

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

JANUARY, 1893.

NATHANIEL FOSTER SAFFORD.

By the Rev. George Madison Bodge, of Leominster, Mass.

NATHANIEL FOSTER SAFFORD was born at Salem, Mass., in the house now numbered 19 Winter Street, September 19, 1815, and died at his home in Milton, April 22, 1891, full of years, beloved and honored by all who have known him either in his public relations or in the way of personal acquaintance and friendship.

When a man like Mr. Safford passes away, we can better appreciate how large a place he has filled, by the vacancy which he leaves. For more than fifty years, as a member of the Massachusetts bar, he has held his honorable place as a lawyer of eminent ability and unblemished integrity. Conservative in his opinions and methods, he was yet strong in his convictions, and prompt to act in the way they pointed. There are few names which show a fairer record, even in the long and honorable lists of the bar of Eastern Massa-From his early years of practice, Mr. Safford was appointed to important positions of public trust, and in every case bonored the place by his ability and fidelity. As a public official he showed a shrewd and ready understanding of men and affairs, which his easy and quiet courtesy might not lead one to suspect.

And, under all circumstances, Mr. Safford was a gentleman, in the full meaning of the term, as all who have met him in any place or relation can testify. As a presiding officer, on the floor of public debate, in the social circle, -and especially in that kindly, courtly cordiality which characterized his welcome of friends to his home, he was always the gentleman. The deep interest which he had in this "New-England Historic Genealogical Society," and his valuable services to it through many years, make it peculiarly fitting that this memoir should herein appear. His own antiquarian tastes and careful researches have made it an easy as well as a pleasant duty to give here a brief sketch of his family's American lineage.

THOMAS' SAFFORD, the emigrant ancestor, came from England to Massachusetts with his wife Elizabeth, and settled at Ipswich some time prior to 1641. They had a son, John<sup>2</sup> Safford, married Sarah —, and settled in Ipswich, where their son, THOMAS' SAFFORD, was born October 16, 1672; and married Elinor Shatswell, October 7, 1698. She was probably the widow of Richard Shatswell, and daughter of Daniel Cheney.

STEPHEN SAFFORD, son of the above parents, born at Ipswich, March 10, 1716, married Sarah Jarvis. He died at Ipswich, July 22, 1767.

NATHAN' SAFFORD, son of the above, born at Ipswich, June 5, 1760, married September 29, 1785, Elizabeth Foster, of Salem, daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Foster, and lineal descendant of Reginald Foster of Ipswich in 1638. They removed to North Yarmouth, Maine, soon after marriage, and there made their home, and there died; he December 27, 1823, and she April 1, 1826.

NATHANIEL FOSTER SAFFORD was born at North Yarmouth, Maine, June 13, 1786; and died at Salem, November 20, 1847. He removed to Salem in 1806, at the age of twenty, and there married, August 8th, 1808, Sally, daughter of George and Sally Smith, born in Salem, July 11, 1791, and died March 16, 1810, aged 18 yrs. 8 mos. 5 days. Of this marriage, Sarah was born at Salem, May 16, 1809. He married 2d, Hannah, daughter of William and Mary Woodbury, of Hamilton, Mass., born June 18, 1791, and died at Salem, April 18, 1856. Of these parents were born two sons, Nathaniel Foster Safford, Jr., born July 14, 1814, died November 28, 1814, and Nathaniel Foster Safford, Jr., the subject of this memoir, born, as stated before, in Salem, September 19, 1815. He married in Dorchester, February 10, 1845, Josephine Eugenia Morton, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Wheeler) Morton of Milton, and a lineal descendant of George and Julia Anne (Carpenter) Morton, of York, England, who came to Plymouth, Mass., in 1623. Of this marriage, one son, Nathaniel Morton Safford, was born January 31, 1848, in Dorchester, and now resides in the family home in Milton, together with Mrs. Safford, his mother.

By diligent correspondence and inquiry, we are able to follow along, in outline, the course of Mr. Safford's full and useful, though even and comfortable life. He was happy in his home-life, both as boy and man. His parents were members of the "Old South Church" in Salem, which was for many of those early years under the pastoral care of the Rev. Dr. Emerson; they were of excellent social standing, and the boy's earliest years were in the midst of the best social conditions of the good old city of his birth. In his figure, and somewhat in his stately old-time courtesy of manner, he is said to have resembled his father; while in features and temperament, as well as in many characteristics of his delicate and sensitive tastes, were recognized the traits of his refined and beautiful mother. Mr. David Moore and Capt. George Upton of Salem were playmates and schoolmates of young Safford in his early boyhood, and recall him as "a very good boy, an excellent scholar, much liked by his associates, but of rather retiring disposition." The boy was carefully but wisely nurtured. We find him as a child at the private school kept by Miss Abigail Mason; and we learn from Mr. Henry M. Brooks of Salem, whose letter is subjoined, and from whose kindly help much of the information about his school-life is gained, that the late Rev. Charles T. Brooks, of Newport, brother of Henry M., was at the same school at the same time with Mr. Safford. He is next found in the private school kept by Mr. James S. Gerrish; and we have in a newspaper clipping the notice of an examination of Mr. Gerrish's school, in August, 1829, in which young Mr. Safford figures quite prominently:

The examination of Mr. Gerrish's School, we understand, was as usual most pleasing and satisfactory, and was attended at Franklin Hall, by a very numerous auditory. At this examination, premiums were awarded to Stephen O. Shepard, Thomas W. Rea, Nathaniel F. Safford, Simon F. Barstow, William W. Story, Henry Cheever, and Thomas Carlile, for good Reading—to Joshua Raymond, Nathaniel Perkins, George F. Allen, Nathaniel F. Safford, Joseph Beadle, Augustus Sanger, George W. Punchard, Francis Perkins, Joseph Endicott, and Charles Wiggin, for good Writing—to Thomas W. Rea, Stephen O. Shepard, and Nathaniel F. Safford, for good Speaking.

We may judge somewhat the quality of the patronage of this school by the names of the pupils. And we can imagine the stately, well-dressed and highly respectable "numerous auditory," gathered with proud interest to see and hear the embryo orators and statesmen perform their parts upon this preparatory stage. And no doubt a special thrill of pride came to the Saffords, as their slender, brighteyed lad alone bore away three of the premiums.

From this school young Safford passed, probably in the autumn of 1829, to the Latin Grammar School, in which he finished fitting for college. The teachers during those years were Mr. Henry Kemble Oliver and Mr. Theodore Eames.

Items of interest in connection with Mr. Safford's father appear in the following letter from Mr. Brooks, which I have in part copied here:

Letter from Mr. Henry M. Brooks of Salem.

Though I had no personal acquaintance with Mr. N. F. Safford, Sr., or his son, I remember both perfectly well. The father was rather a slender and thin man, with a quick, nervous manner and step, and very respectable in appearance. I recall the place of business (he was a dealer in iron, grindstones, etc.), the store under the old Concert Hall at the corner of Central and Lafayette Streets, near the South Bridge. The building was of wood, built in the old colonial style. I well remember the sign across the front over the store, in full width: "Nath! F. Safford," in huge gilt script letters, and the great grind-stones which leaned against the front each side the door. The hall over the store was used for balls, dancing schools, etc., and later as a gymnasium. The building was destroyed by the great fire of 1844. It was replaced with a three-story brick structure, called "Phonix Hall." I think Mr. Safford never occupied the new building, of which the lower portion is used as an oyster house, and the second story as a military armory.

AT DARTMOUTH COLLEGE.

Young Mr. Safford finished his course at the Latin Grammar School at Salem, and was admitted at Dartmouth College in the summer of 1831, just before he was sixteen years old, in the class of 1835, then numbering sixty. From pleasant letters received from two of his class-mates I am able to give a glimpse of his surroundings and relations at Dartmouth. Charles E. Stevens, Esq., of Worcester, one of the few survivors of the class of 1835, kindly gives leave to quote from his address at the annual reunion of the Alumni of Dartmouth, after fifty years from the graduation of their class. The meeting was held in Boston, January 28, 1885. In the opening of his address he speaks of his classmates present, and writes me that he referred to Mr. Safford and Judge Ladd of Cambridge, who sat each side of him at the table. The topic of his address was "Fifty years ago," and the address, published in full in The Dartmouth for March 20, 1885, affords a clear picture of the condition of things at the College during the years of their course. Some brief selections will help to show the young Safford's surroundings.

Mr. Stevens began his address by saying:

I am a little afraid of these many brown heads before me. Some persons, misled by the disguise which nature has imposed upon me, might unawares take me for one of the elders. It would be a very natural mistake certainly. But my classmates, here, on my right and left, would hardly fall into such a mistake. To them I am ever young, as they are to me.

Mr. Stevens goes on to speak of the condition of the institution in those years, and draws a kindly picture of each of the officers and professors from President Lord down. He describes President Lord as energetic, shrewd and wise as a disciplinarian, with dignified manner and fine administrative ability; Professor Shurtleff as "dwelling inscrutably behind green spectacles and seeing a great deal more of us than we of him"; Professor Haddock, a favorite nephew of Daniel Webster and very popular with the students, of high spirit, a gentleman, and treating the students like gentlemen; Professors Crosby and Stowe, the Greek professors, of whom the first is said to have been "immensely great on the infinite little of the Greek particles," while the latter, "not insisting on the finer linguistic criticism, sought to inspire us with his own enthusiasm for the author we had in hand"; Professor Ira Young, the talented mathematical teacher, and father of the distinguished Professor Charles A. Young of Princeton. The class had as instructors during the course: -In Mathematics, Prof. Ebenezer Adams, and tutor, afterwards Professor, Ira Young. In Latin and Greek, tutor, afterwards Professor, Alpheus Crosby, and Prof. Calvin Ellis Stowe. Prof. Roswell Shurtleff and President Nathan Lord were the teachers in Mental and Moral Philosophy, and Prof. Charles B. Haddock in Rhetoric. A German was employed for a time to give lessons in French. These were Safford's teachers during his college course. He closes with a word about his class, which is of interest to us:

I pass on to say a word about my own class. It was noteworthy for two things. The first was, that, with a single exception, it was the largest class ever then graduated; the exception being the class of 1811. We entered, I think, sixty strong, and we graduated fifty. Later classes have greatly surpassed us, but in that day our numbers were phenomenal. It may be said, perhaps, that we were the first fruits of President Lord's new and energetic administration. Three years had elapsed since his inauguration, and the fruit of the Dartmouth renaissance had gone abroad. The second noteworthy thing touching the class was, that with it, began the experiment of abolishing appointments at Commencement. Human nature is weak, and it is my impression that the last half of our class was not sorry. It gave them also as well as their "betters" a chance to appear "in public on a stage," and left the public to find out "who was who" as best it could. The experiment thus begun was continued until, after a fair trial, the authorities found it expedient to restore the old system.

In his letter, in answer to my request for a word from him in regard to Mr. Safford in his college days, he writes:

Mr. Safford was one of the youngest members in our class. As I remember him, he was a fair, delicate boy, sensitive, and free from any of the rough ways of most boys. Because of these characteristics and because of his youth, he was naturally not an active leader in our class. We had in those days two literary societies between which the members of each class were, on entering, distributed by lot. One of these was called "The Social Friends," the other "The United Fraternity." My impression is that in the debates young Safford was not forward to take any conspicuous part, but ready to discharge any assigned duty.

From the letter of another class-mate of Mr. Safford, Rev. Jacob Chapman of Exeter, N. H., now in his eighty-third year, I select a brief extract:

I wish I could give you more full and definite information about my classmate, N. F. Safford. I was in the first division of our class of sixty, and he in the second, so that we rarely met at recitations. I was appointed monitor of the class, and also to assist one of the instructors in "keeping order" during the time of a class recitation to him; and for these reasons some of the younger boys seemed to keep at a distance from me. I think I never had to admonish or reprove young Safford at any time. As I remember him in 1831, when as monitor I was appointed to "keep an eye on him," he seemed younger even than he was; he was very modest, retiring, quiet and studious. Our only athletic game was foot-ball, and I am quite sure that Safford did not take any active part in that. In his freshman year he had his room at the house of Mr. Douglass, and his room-mate was probably Edward Warner of Salem. Josiah Winchester of Southboro' roomed in the same house, and I think these were, in that year, his closest associates. He was considered one of the most studious of the younger boys, and stood well in his class. The second year he roomed at No. 13 Thornton Hall, with Henry Bright Chase, of Warner, N. H. My room was in the same Hall. My impression is that he was always prompt to perform his duties, but not active in much beyond that point. His roommate, Chase, was wholly different from young Safford in habits and character; he afterwards became a lawyer in Clinton, Louisiana, where he died in 1885. In the Mexican war Chase raised and commanded a company.

In the junior year Safford had a room in Wentworth Hall, I think, alone, most of the time. In the senior year he returned to the house of Mr. Douglass, where he roomed the first year, and there his associates were S. C. Bartlett, late president of Dartmouth College, and his brother, later the Rev. Joseph Bartlett.

In answer to my inquiry, President Bartlett writes, under date December 3, 1892:

My belief is that Mr. Safford had no chum while in the house of Mr. Douglass. I remember him as a rather fine looking young man, with black hair and bright black eyes. But as I was in a lower class and somewhat younger than he, and as he was rather retiring in his ways, or, if socially inclined, yet with a different circle from mine, I am unable to give you any more definite information concerning him. I can say, however, that he bore an excellent reputation so far as I can remember, and all my impressions of him, in memory, are very pleasant.

Upon graduation from college Mr. Safford began the study of law in the office of Hon. Asahel Huntington of Salem.

He was admitted to the Essex County Bar, September 17, 1838, as may be seen by the following extracts from the Essex County Records:

At the Court of Common Pleas begun and held at Newburyport, within and for the county of Essex, on the third Monday, being the seventeenth day of September, in the year one thousand, eight hundred and thirty eight. "Nathaniel F. Safford, jr. being duly recommended to the Court to

"Nathaniel F. Safford, jr. being duly recommended to the Court to practise as an attorney, in open Court takes and subscribes the oaths and declarations in such case provided and is thereupon admitted to practise accordingly."

Thus equipped for his life-work, he left home, and came to Dorchester, January 16, 1839, and opened an office at the "Milton Lower Mills" village, in a building then standing where the chocolate mill now stands. He boarded, until his marriage, in Mr. Swift's family at their old mansion on Milton Hill. In 186-? he removed his office to Boston, No. 27 State Street, and has held his city office and practice from that time until his death, having removed his office twice, viz.: to No. 53 Devonshire, and thence to 27 Kilby Street.

Upon marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Safford set up their home in their fine house, a present from the bride's father, still standing, at the corner of Washington and Sanford Streets. There they resided until 1862, when they removed to the beautiful residence in Milton, where he died and where the family still resides.

In the early part of his practice, Mr. Safford was appointed a Master in Chancery, and acted as magistrate, exercising jurisdiction also under the operation of insolvent laws. He was much engaged in local town affairs, and active in town-meetings, while Dorchester was still a separate municipality. His word was listened to with deference by the people, and his services in many official relations were appreciated. He was a ready and pleasing speaker, and few public meeting of importance were held, either of a civil, political or social nature, where his presence and words were not in demand and always welcome. As a presiding officer few excelled him; always courteous and dignified, but, upon occasion, with a touch of quaint bumor all his own. Many remember his introduction, at a political meeting away back "in the fifties," of a tall, gaunt Westerner who had come upon the platform late, whom Mr. Safford did not know, but whose name was whispered to him, when he introduced him as Mr. Lincoln, "one of the old Lincoln family, probably." His introduction "brought down the house," as Mr. Lincoln swung his tall form from his seat and "rose to the probability," and the good people of Dorchester listened for the first time to some of the comical campaign stories and telling hits of Abraham Lincoln, the then unknown future president of the United States.

In social meetings we shall never forget the kindly, droll, always instructive and entertaining speeches, always ready upon call.

Mr. Safford was chosen representative to the General Court from the town of Dorchester, for the years 1850 and 1851. In 1853, upon the retirement of the Hon. Samuel P. Loud from the Board of County Commissioners for Norfolk County (Dorchester being then included in that County), Mr. Safford was nominated by the Whig party, against the forces of the Freesoil and Democratic parties, combined upon one candidate. After two trials at the polls there was no election, and Governor Clifford appointed him in the place of Mr. Loud, and at the first meeting of the new board Mr. Safford was chosen chairman, and afterwards for fifteen years he held that office by successive reëlections. Soon after the annexation of Dorchester to Boston, Mr. Safford's services were sought, and in 1872 he was again elected to the board, and at the organization of the board, January, 1873, was chosen chairman, in which office he served for six years more, making in all a term of twenty-one years.

In that long period of service Mr. Safford had great influence in bringing about many needed public improvements in the department over which the Board of Commissioners had jurisdiction. It was argely due to his persistent and wise exertions that corporate franchises in turnpikes and toll-bridges were abolished in the County. There was not, probably, another man in the County of Norfolk so thoroughly conversant with the public highways within the limits of the County as Mr. Safford. He was wisely cautious, and slow to enter upon any enterprise until plans had been considered from all points of view, the "cost had been rigidly counted," and adequate results could be safely calculated. Under his faithful and conservative direction public funds were never wasted, and few, if any, mistakes were made, or useless experiments tried. Many of the old highways were re-located to meet the new needs of changing interests and industries; railroad crossings, stations, bridges, etc., were controlled and guarded; new roads were located; public building were rebuilt, remodelled or improved, during his term of office. A matter of special interest to him was the preservation of public records and documents; and in many of the county buildings, and also in the town offices, to-day, there are fire-proof vaults or safes where, before his term, these safeguards were entirely wanting. These, however, are but a small part of the real work done by the board under his wise leadership. The influence of his conservative and impartial methods has impressed itself upon the County in such a way that no mere office-seekers are deemed eligible to fill the places of men who were above any partizan dealing, and had nothing to gain from the office save the public good.

In politics, Mr. Safford belonged to the Whigs until the formation of the Republican party, with which he then cast his lot from principle, and to which he was always loyal. Without any self-seeking he worked to uphold the party's standards. But, sincerely patriotic, he always held the nation above the party, and the honor and integrity of the country were as dear to him as his own.

Upon coming to Dorchester Mr. Safford became identified with the Unitarian Society, then under the pastoral care of Rev. Richard Pike. He was one of the most respected, useful and influential members from that time forth. In the affairs of the parish, as in civil duties, he was always conservative in his influence, and his advice was heeded and his judgment trusted, especially in all affairs relating to the property of the parish, investment of funds, etc.

Mr. Safford was greatly interested in antiquarian studies and pursuits, and was a valued member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society for many years. He was a warm personal friend of the late president of the Society, Col. Marshall P. Wilder, and one of his constant and most earnest helpers. The following testimonials from personal friends, members of this Society, bear evidence:

Letter of Mr. John Ward Dean.

My acquaintance with Mr. Safford began in 1873, when he became a member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society. Afterwards he was chosen one of the directors of the Society, and I saw him more frequently. I soon found him to be a clear headed man, whose advice could be safely followed. I was struck with the soundness of his judgment in all matters that came before the board. He investigated thoroughly matters that were specially referred to him, and his decisions were the result of mature thought and careful research. He was one of the most useful members of the board, and was always ready to perform any duty assigned to him. He seldom failed to attend the monthly meeting of the board. He was equally constant in his attendance at the public meetings of the Society; and he frequently took part in the discussions there, his remarks being always listened to with deep interest.

He was a well read man, particularly in history. His conversation showed that he possessed a fund of information upon all subjects. It was a pleasure for me to listen to him. I derived much instruction as well as pleasure from his discourse. He was a lawyer skilled in his profession, and of undoubted ability. He had much experience in public affairs and in the transaction of business.

I found him a firm friend, whose assistance, in all matters in which he was able to aid me, was always to be relied on. I shall long deplore his loss and cherish his memory.

Letter of Rev. Albert K. Teele, D.D., of Milton.

REV. MR. BODGE:

My dear Sir:-At your request I cannot refuse to write a few words regarding my much beloved and honored friend Nathaniel F. Saf-You doubtless have all facts concerning his early life and education, and also his professional career. Therefore I shall not speak of intellectual capabilities, -of his attainments, accurate, varied and far-reaching, nor of his marked fidelity in the many offices of trust, public and private, confided to him,-but only of the nobleness of his heart. He was a true friend, ever to be trusted and relied upon. Naturally unostentatious and retiring, his friendship showed itself in the quiet and persistent effort to help all, and especially to help and upraise the over-burdened and discouraged. In the silent and unseen way he was always working. As a friend and neighbor, always fresh in his interest in current events as well as in antiquarian research, with large knowledge of the advancing developments of our country and the world-his companionship was always of highest interest and value. As a citizen, he ever had the welfare of his fellow citizens at heart, and both at the public meeting of the town, and in a private way, he was the advocate of what seemed to him just, honorable and fair. He was especially the friend of the poor, ever ready as a lawyer, by his counsel and help, to lead them out of difficulties and to save them from the exactions of evil advisers.

Mr. Safford was never robust, but with his simple habits and wise care of his health he was able to do far more work in his quiet methodical manner than many who seemed much stronger physically. His decline in the last years was gradual, and to the last he suffered but little physical pain, and was surrounded with all the tender ministrations of his family in his last hours.

The funeral was held at the family mansion Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Albert K. Teele, D.D., conducted the services and opened by reading a scripture selection. In his remarks he spoke substantially as follows:

It is said that the eloquent Massillon, when the mortal remains of his illustrious monarch lay in funeral state before him, looked down from the high altar into the open coffin and broke the awful silence of the occasion with these words: "There is none truly great but God." The sentiment was just, and the circumstances gave it weight. It is even so, my friends; all ages, all conditions of men bow at the approach of death, and are brought to the same level by its denuding hand. The bright and joyous life and the life shaded by sorrow and suffering; the life of affluence and the life of penury, alike come to this end. Prattling infancy, merry childhood, aspiring youth, vigorous manhood and gray decrepitude yield to the stern mandate.

But a few days ago the beloved clergyman,* whose presence, guidance and wisdom we felt that we could not spare, was taken from us, and now we meet to pay our last tribute of respect and honor to his next-door neighbor, the eminent jurist-our friend, our helper, our counsellor-who, by his wisdom, learning and kindness has helped us over the rough places of life. We shall miss his well known form along these streets, where we have been wont to see him for so many years. We shall miss him in our homes, in our social and municipal gatherings. We shall miss him in the sanctuary of worship. When we knock at the door of this hospitable mansion his kindly greeting will no longer welcome us. We shall hear his voice no more. The end of the earthly life has come, and with sorrowing hearts we bid him adieu. We do not to-day review this long and useful life reaching out in so many directions and entering into so many and varied interests. We gather here as friends and neighbors, fellow citizens and professional associates, rather to proffer our warmest sympathies to this stricken household, and to recall with tender memories our departed brother and friend, seeking together the divine blessing that the influence inspired from this occasion may go with us into life.

From the Parish Records of the Third Religious Society of Dorchester.

Sunday, April 26, 1891, the congregation were requested to be seated after the benediction. Dr. Greene came forward and spoke in memory of Mr. N. F. Safford; recalling his good life among us, and the loss from our midst of so wise and good a man. Rev. George M. Bodge, former pastor of the Society (and occupying the pulpit for the day), being called upon, said: "I am glad to have the opportunity to join the members of this society in this testimonial of respect to one who has been so long and so intimately connected with all the highest interests of this people and parish. As pastor of this society I knew Mr. Safford as a courteous, kindly and genial man, and a wise and conservative counsellor in all the affairs of the parish. In his pleasant home the true and courtly hospitality of the old school was always cordially extended. As a personal friend and adviser I learned to prize him, and in many cases I remember his quiet helpfulness and ready charity, bestowed in such way that the recipient never knew the benefactor. These things are known to many here, as we have heard. But Mr. Safford had other relations in which I chanced to be associated with him, and one in particular of which I may speak. As a member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, I saw much of his influence exerted for the building up of its interests. The late president, Hon. Marshall P. Wilder, relied greatly upon Mr. Safford's wisdom and foresight, which many times was experienced and gratefully recognized. The Society has had no more carnest or respected member, and certainly some of the finest men in New England, including Gov. Andrew and his successors, have been his associates. In all relations I shall remember him for his wisdom, integrity and true worth, while I gratefully recall his helpful personal friendship."

These resolutions were offered by Miss E. P. Channing, and passed by the Society:

It is right and fitting, as our friends and neighbors pass from our midst, to recall their virtues; and especially becoming is it for us, as a congregation of worshippers, to call to mind Mr. Nathaniel F. Safford, who has set us the example of steadiness in church-going, even when infirmity was stealing upon him.

Not again shall we see the erect form which, in all seasons, sought his pew, and in summer laid unobtrusively the flowers he loved so well upon the altar. It is our privilege to remember his integrity, to imitate his kindness known only to the recipient, and to emulate his old-time courtesy.

We tender to his family this recognition of his worth, and our sympathy with their grief in parting from one whom they have loved long and well.

At the meeting of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, Wednesday, May 6th, 1891.

The Historiographer reported the death of Mr. Nathaniel Foster Safford of Milton, on April 22d, 1891.

The Reverend George M. Bodge, of East Boston, asked leave to say a word, in tribute to Mr. Safford's memory, and spoke in warm and fitting terms of his character, personal traits and noble qualities, and of his labors and interest in the affairs of this Society; also of the high esteem in which he was held in his profession, as a citizen, as a public officer, and in his own home circle. Mr. Bodge then offered a resolution, which the Society passed, expressing the respect in which Mr. Safford was held as a man, the deep sense of his loss as a member of the Society, and the sincere sympathy extended by the Society to his bereaved family.

LEE OF VIRGINIA.

By W. B. LEE, Esq., * of Seend, Melksham, Wilts., England.

In a paper by J. H. Lea, Esq., in the REGISTER for January last, occur certain passages on which I should be glad to offer a few remarks. In this and in his former most valuable paper the writer has placed on record in America for the first time the actual facts on which alone any reasonable opinion can be formed as to the origin of the Virginian Lees, and I know his desire for accuracy far too well to fear giving him any offence by the slight criticisms I am venturing to make.

The suggestion that the Lees of Virginia were of the Quarrendon stock was not made by any of the family, but is entirely due to the Rev. Dr. Fredcrick G. Lee of Lambeth. The Virginians, from Colonel Richard the first settler, down to and including the late General R. E. Lee, have always daimed the Shropshire descent. The proofs of this are given by Mr. Lea down to the recognition of relationship between Harry Lancelott Lee of Coton Hall and Archibald Lee of the Virginian branch, 1810-24. Subsequently to that time, viz. in the year 1868, General Robert E. Lee was in correspondence with H. Lee Warner, Esq. (whose family also claim descent from the Lees of Coton), on the subject of his English ancestry. He stated that he was descended from the Lees of Shropshire, and Mr. Lee Warner wrote to my uncle on behalf of the General for any information he might have on the subject. Moreover I have been assured by one of General Lee's own family that until recently no doubt had ever been raised as to their Shropshire origin. Dr. F. G. Lee's statement is that Colonel Richard was the seventh son of Sir Robert Lee of Hulcott and his wife Lucy Pigott. As they were married in 1561, whereas Col. Richard was going to Virginia with a young family in 1663, this statement clearly could not be accepted without proof. Instead of any such proof the convincing evidence from the wills and the Hardwicke monument, cited by Mr. Lea, leaves little room for doubt that Sir Robert's seventh son died in youth, while the evidence at the Heralds' College at Oxford, and in Virginia, makes it absolutely certain that Col. Richard was either of the Shropshire family or an impostor. It is for those who think he was an impostor to give the reasons for their belief, and for Dr. Lee to reconcile such a belief with the Quarrendon theory of which he, and not any member of the family, is the author. It would be interesting if he would also give the evidence on which he bases other statements, e.g. that Col. Richard's wife was Elizabeth Langdon, that his eldest son was Richard, and that one of his descendants called his house Stratford Langton.

"This claim was admitted by the then officers of the College."

arms he used was recognized by the College of Arms. I only wish this had been the case, for then his parentage would be on record. If he was, as is very probable, neither son nor brother, but nephew to the head of the family, his name would be very unlikely to appear in the pedigree unless he himself took the trouble to have it registered. This was never done, and even if Gibbon's statement had given his father's name, it could not be accepted by the College without those proofs which are always rigorously insisted on, and which give to the pedigrees there registered a real authority and value. Those from any other source need verification at every step. Without it no one can say whether they are founded on Page 65. "The statement is made that Col. Richard Lee built Ditchley House. This is incorrect, as the dwelling in question was erected by his grandson Hancock."

The above is a slip on the part of the writer, as Dr. Lee's statement was that Ditchley was built by the emigrant's son Richard. No evidence is offered in support of this statement, and it seems improbable, as William Lee's account in my possession expressly states that this Richard (his own grandfather) passed nearly his whole time in study, and "neither improved nor diminished his paternal estate." That estate, we know from his father's will, was the plantation "Paradise." Mr. Brown's opinion is that Ditchley was built by Hancock the son (not grandson) of Col. Richard, but so far as I have been able to learn nothing is really known as to the date or builder of this house. All that seems certain is that the names Ditchley, Langley, Coton, and Lee Hall have been used by different members of the family in America, but none of them by Col. Richard himself.
"Ditchley, four miles from that city." Ditchley is about eleven miles from Oxford.

Page 66. "John Lee of Norton Regis." Should be Nordley Regis. I quite agree with Mr. Lea as to the probable explanation of "Morton Regis" which he refers to on page 68, but I know of no instance where any member of the family is actually described as of "Norton" instead of "Nordley," and I do not think Norton was a "common" form at all.

Page 67. "A Collection of Arms made . . . . very probably by the Mr. Gibbon whose letter &c."

The E. D. N. alphabet was not made by any one person. It is a sort of general notebook for the officers of arms made about the time of Charles II., and is valuable as probably the only work in existence giving the arms which were then or had been formerly made use of. It is not an authority as to the right to bear such arms. It must not, however, be forgotten that though Colonel Richard's right to the arms could not be recognized by the College without proof, still, whoever made the entry in the E. D. N. A. did not merely record the fact of his using them, but added "Descended" "from the Lees in Shropshire"; while Gibbon, an officer of the College, writing a professional work, expressly commits himself to the same statement. It is difficult to think he would have done this unless he had felt satisfied as to the truth of what he wrote; or, short of actual proof, to imagine stronger testimony.

For the copy of Col. Richard's will here referred to I am indebted to the kindness of General Fitzhugh Lee. It is given in Campbell's History of Virginia, and bears every mark of being authentic, but one cannot say more than this as we do not know where to find the original. "Nine members of the Langley stock." Mr. Lea I know uses the expression "Langley stock" to denote the Lees of Shropshire, but the phrase is in this place a little misleading, as the Coton family was not an offshoot of the Langley branch. Coton came to Roger de la Lee by his marriage with the heiress of the Astleys de Nordley in the reign of Richard II. Langley was acquired in the same way by his elder son, Coton falling to the share of the younger. Six of the nine members referred to by Mr. Lea are of the Coton, and three of the Langley branch. Until Col. Richard's parentage is proved it is of course not impossible that he may have been of the latter, but the tradition has always been that he was of Coton, and the evidence at present certainly seems to point that way.

It would be difficult to exaggerate the value of Mr. Lea's papers to all who are interested in this question, and the contrast between his method and that of Dr. Lee is indeed striking. Hardly a single statement is made by the former without the fullest proof being given, while not a single proof is given by the latter in support of any of his assumptions. The Shropshire family will in all probability be very soon extinct in England, and I think myself very fortunate in having been of any assistance to Mr. Lea in working towards the end we have in view, and which I sincerely hope we may one day reach, viz. the proof of Col. Richard's immediate parentage.

I add certain manuscript notes of John Gibbon from a copy of his book belonging to me.

THE DOLBEARES OF BOSTON.

By EDWARD DOUBLEDAY HARRIS, Esq., of New York city.

THE writer has in his possession several memorandum books and files of business papers formerly belonging to three Boston merchants, John Dolbeare, his son Benjamin, and Benjamin's son John. Among them, in the handwriting of Benjamin Dolbeare, is a copy of a letter written to John Dolbeare, ironmonger, of Ashburton, England, which throws some light on the early history of the family here. It runs as follows:

Boston, New England, 28th August 1772.

Mr. Benj<sup>n</sup> Dolbeare, at Ashburton, in O. Eng.

Sir, I Have lately been informed by one M' Row, who lives about 20 miles from your Town, that you were alive & well when he left home, & you being the only relation that I have heard anything of in England, am desirous of having a Correspondence with you if it will be agreeable to you. Therefore take this opportunity to acquaint you as far as I know, how the relationship came about, Viz. my late father Mr John Dolbeare came from Ashburton into this Country with my Grandfather Mr Edmund Dolbeare, my Grandmother, & uncle Joseph, about the year 1664, my father and uncle Joseph served their times with my Grandfather to the pewterers Trade, in which business my father set up, & added to it the Ironmongry Trade, both which he carried on to the year 1740, when he died in about the 76th year of his age & left nine children, seven sons & two Daughters, all of whom are dead except myself & a younger brother & sister, the one a Widow aged 60, the other a widower aged 59 years. I am sixty one years of age, keep the same shop & carry on the same business my father did. My Grandmother died a few years after she came over here, and my Grandfather Married again, by his last wife he had two sons & one daughter who have all been married, the oldest, a son, has been dead some years, the other son is about 70 & the daughter ab. 65 years of Age, her husband lately died, her Brother has had two wives, by the first he had many Children & two by his last. His Wife & he are poor & in the alms-House in this Town, of which I have the honor of being one of the overseers. When my Grandfather died I know not, it being before I was born. My father was but Nine years old when he came into this Country. My mother died about the year 1745 in about the 70th year of her age. My Brother James who was at Ashburton to visit his relations there in the year 1738 (when I suppose you saw him there) for I understand you are about 60 yrs of Age, he died in the year 1743 in the 37th year of his age, he gave an acct of our relations there & that there was none of yt name but what were related to us. Thus I have given you as full an accot of my fathers family in this Country as I can recollect, & should be glad of an accot of our family remaining with you, if it be agreeable to you to send one.

I now proceed to give you an accot of my own family Vizt I have had two wives, by the first I had eleven children of which only four are living, whose names are Thomas, Sarah, Grizzel & John, the first is about 24 years of age a merchant at Kingston in Jamaica, the second about 23 married to a merchant in this Town, she has one child, a Girl of her name, the 3d about 21 a single woman & the last about 20 years of age, my apprentice; by the last wife I have no children. If you think it worth your while to write to me at any time, direct to Benjamin Dolbeare, Merct in Boston, New England & it will come safe to hand. I wish you health & prosperity & am

It is apparent, from a comparison of this record with the letter to the English Dolbeare that its writer was in error as to the date of his grandfather's coming to Boston; it was doubtless later than 1664.

On another page of the same memorandum book and in the same handwriting is the following:-

VOL. XLVIL

Jn° Dolbeare's Tomb N° 50 in the Common burial ground built 1725. Bury'd in it—

Preserved among the business papers is the title page of a bible (printed in London by John Baskett, MDCCXXXV.), on the blank side of which is written the following:—

I, Benjamin Dolbeare was born the 24 July 1711.

My Wife Hannah whose maiden name was Vincent, was born the 3 May 1712, to whom I was married by the Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Commissary Roger Price the 18th June 1741.

My Son Benjamin was born the 15 March 1741-2 at Eleven a Clock at night, & was Baptis'd by the Rev<sup>d</sup> D<sup>r</sup> Joseph Sewall the 21 of the Same

My said Son Benjamin dyed the 22 June 1742 at 3 o'Clock P.M.

My Daughter Sarah was born on Sunday the 20th Feb. 1742-3 between the hours of 5 & 6 o'Clock in the afternoon & was baptized by D<sup>r</sup> Sewall. My said Daughter Sarah was overlaid & dyed at nurse Clap's at Dorchester the 17 day of April next after She was born.

My Daughter Hannah was born the 14th Febr. 1743-4 between 5 & 6 o'Clock Tuesday morning & was baptis'd by the Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Thomas Prince ye next Sunday.

My second son Benjamin was born the 21 March 1744-5 at abt two o'Clock in the morning & was baptiz'd by the Revd Dr Joseph Sewall.

My second Daughter Sarah was born on a Saturday P.M. between 6 & 7 O'Clock 12th April 1746, & was Baptis'd by the Rev<sup>d</sup> D Joseph Sewall the next day.

My Son Thomas was born on a Tuesday at 3 o'Clock P.M. the 24th March 1747 & was baptis'd by the Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Thomas Prince the Sunday following.

My Daughter Hannah dyed at home of a Consumption 17th June 1747 at ‡ after ten o'Clock in the Evening.

My Son George was born on a Tuesday between the hours of 9 & 10 at night the 12th April 1748 & was baptis'd by the Rev<sup>d</sup> D<sup>r</sup> Sewall the 17th of s<sup>d</sup> month.

My said Son George was overlaid & dyed at Nurse Birds at Dorchester 12

My Second Daughter Hannah was born on Monday 11th December 1749 at 12 O'Clock at Night & was baptis'd by the Rev<sup>d</sup> D<sup>r</sup> Sewall the next Sunday following.

My Daughter Grizzell was born on Saturday the 3<sup>d</sup> of August 1751 at 11 Clock in the morning & was baptized the next day by the Rev<sup>d</sup> D<sup>r</sup> Sewall. My Son John was born on Monday the 15th June 1752 at 10th of the Clock in the Evening & was baptised the 19th July next after at Dorchester by the Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Bowman (on Acco<sup>t</sup> of the Small pox being in Boston at that time) & was held up by M<sup>r</sup> John Lovell.

My Wife was Delivered of a Child a Daughter Still Born 15th May 1753. 1763, June 2, My wife died of a Consumption at about five of the Clock in the morning this day being Thursday.

The name of Edmund' Dolbeare's first wife, who accompanied him to Boston, does not appear; that of his second was Sarah, and the children born of this marriage in Boston were Elizabeth, Martha, and David. John, the elder, who followed his father's business, married Sarah Comer. His brother Joseph married Hannah, a niece of Nathaniel Norder of Marblehead; he had at least two children, Joseph and Edmund.

Of the large family born to John<sup>2</sup> and Sarah Dolbeare, the papers make occasional mention. Thomas<sup>3</sup> mar. wife Sarah, and was of Dorchester. James<sup>3</sup> married, went abroad, and apparently had good reasons for the divorce suit which he instituted. Samuel<sup>3</sup> and David,<sup>5</sup> marrying to the displeasure of their father, were, by his will, disinherited. Mary<sup>3</sup> married Bernard Townsend. Sarah<sup>3</sup> married William Clarke, a physician. George<sup>3</sup> became the inheritor of estates purchased by his father in Colchester, Conn<sup>4</sup>., and his descendants in the male line were there as late as about 1800.

Of Benjamin's children, Sarah married Ellis Gray; Grizzell died unmarried in Dorchester Feb. 7, 1825; Thomas, described by his father in the English letter as a merchant of Kingston, Jamaica, came to financial grief there, sought refuge in New England from his creditors, and lived until 1804 in various places in Connecticut as "Thomas Smith," his son and daughter being in England, I think, with their mother; John was a well known Boston merchant, with residence at Dorchester, having married Zibiah Royall Robinson; he died without issue.

LETTERS OF COL. THOMAS WESTBROOK AND OTHERS,

RELATIVE TO INDIAN AFFAIRS IN MAINE.

I have enclosed a Warr to the Commanding Officers of the Marching Companies to deliver to you thirty Men. You will see that they be good Men & well arm'd & fitted, & after a short Refreshm at fort George You must march with them up Amerescoggin River in Quest of the Enemy, taking with you Cpt Joseph Bane to command under you & as a Skilful Pilot for this Service, And the said Cpt Bane is order'd to attend you accordingly. You must take with you as much Provision as you can conveniently carry, & march as high up the River as possible & if you can find no Tracks or Signs of Indians on that River or the Brack of it, You must cross over to Kennebeck River if it be practicable (of which you will be best able to judge) & march down that River to Richmond. Let your Motions be perform'd with great Silence & Secrecy, & be patient in Lying wait for the Enemy in such Places where it is probable they will pass: If any Opportunity of Service may Present that may require a different Rout I have here directed You have my Leave to proceed accordingly.

I lay very great Stress upon y" Seeking out ye Enemy yt may bee in that river at this Juncture. I expect that you perform some notable service as may be expected from two such good & experienced officers.

If you are of opinion that you may not be safely spared from your Garrison at this Season, I order that Cap' Bean have the Command & p'cure Men [&] instructions, & Hee shall take Some Sutable good officer to Command under Him.

Mr Trescot is the bearer hereof whom I Appoint for the Third Officer in this March And in Case You don't go Your Selfe he is to be the Second.

I have Order'd Cpt. Giles & Cpt Bane with a Detachm of 30 Men from the Marching Companies to go in Quest of the Indians upon Amerescoggin River & Parts adjacent: If this should meet you at Casco or thereabouts,

You will see that this Matter be expedited.

I Can't be of any other opinion but there has been a great Neglect in the Officers at Falm<sup>o</sup>. That a Scout was not immediately sent to ly for some Days about the dead Bodies of the Indians W<sup>ch</sup> being upon a Carrying Place It was highly probable the other six Indians would pass that Way. I desire you would strictly examine into this Matter & find where the Fault lies, for I am much ashamed that there should be so little of a Spirit among the Officers to make any brisk Attempts upon the Enemy. W<sup>n</sup> such proper occasions offer I will find out officers, if it be possible, of some Spirit.

You must Order that the Muster Rolls of the sev<sup>11</sup> Companies be made up as soon as may be, that they be ready to pass upon the first Sitting of the Court. You must not let too many of the Captains or Subalterns be off from their Posts at a time, but the Clerks or one of the Sergeants of the sev<sup>11</sup> Companies may bring up the Rolls, & make Oath to them.

The Enemy being now about, The Frontiers must be carefully protected, & the Marching Forces be upon constant Duty in the Woods, & if any demure should hapen that requires the officer to Clear up I shall p'mitt them to Come downe w<sup>ch</sup> they will have time enough to doe if they make up their muster rolls forthwith, w<sup>ch</sup> may bee done directly as farr as the Elect. Day.

I have no direct application from Coll. Harman or Lu' Jaques to a dismiss" which is proper in such Cases, & tho' they are good officers I Will keep them from better opportunityes for their advantage. If there should bee any other vessell & Company then what are allready in the Service apointed to protect the Fishery, I shall bee glad y' Coll. Harmans serve.

Sir, By the Honbie the Lieut. Gov.

These are to direct the several Commanding Officers of the three Marching Companies or of such of the said Company as are at or near Casco Bay forthwith to detach out of them such a Number of Men from each as shall make up in the whole, thirty effective Men to be deliver'd to Cpt. John Gyles, who is to command the said Party upon a Particular Service, for which he will receive my Instructions.

Worshipful Sir,

These are informing you that by the noice of such a great number of guns which we hear in the woods hard by us killing the cattle, as we supose, we understand there are a great number of the Indians in the place, and we are mightily afrayed haveing to few soldiers, and the inhabitants utterly refuses, unanimously, to watching and to asist us in such a strait, we therefor earnestly desire you would be pleased as you are a civil magistrate & we intreat you to sympathize with us in useing some present method to oblige the inhabitants, if possible, to watching and asist us in this so perilous time, under such eminent and iminent danger. Dear kind Sir, we repose much confidence in your favour and speedy care of us and oblige and help.

You will see by the two Acc<sup>ts</sup> Accompanys this, that the Indians are down upon us in great numbers. I am sending to L<sup>t</sup> Coll<sup>o</sup> Harmon and the Officers on the Frontiers to Muster what men they can to meet them, but they being at Such a Distance fear it will be to little purpose; being in hast cannot Enlarge.

May it Please your Hon'

I rec<sup>d</sup> your Hon<sup>n</sup> Orders p<sup>r</sup> En<sup>n</sup> Triscott who coming by Cape Porpoise, last Saturday, with four men, was fired on by a party of Nine or Ten Indians. Triscott is shott through the Thigh and through the Ankle; two of the men with him had the Stocks of their Guns shott. They immediately made up a party of about twenty four men, some Soldiers, some Inhabitants, and some Fishermen from Cape Porpoise & follow'd them, but could not come up with them.

As to sending Capt Gyles thirty men just now, I cannot possibly make them up, all the Marching Forces & sundry from the Garrisons being already Employ'd in your Hon<sup>n</sup> particular Orders, as your Hon<sup>r</sup> will plainly see by comparing the State of the Army I now send with your Hon<sup>r</sup> Orders. As soon as I can call off such a part I shall immediately send them. The Enemy is certainly down on us in considerable Numbers, so that we have as much as we can do to keep the weak parts of our Frontiers from their Incursions. I have ask'd the Officers of Falmo the reason why they did did not make up a Party and lye by the dead bodies of the Indians. Their Answer is, they did not hear of it till six days after it was done, and not more than seven or eight hours before the Enemy was down wth them and kill'd two men, and the place where yo dead bodies lay was sixty Miles from them, so considering the Enemy's being amongst them judg'd it not safe to march so far from their several Garrisons, for a small Scout, at that Juncture, drawn out, wou'd have very much expos'd them, their Number not being above five or six in a Garrison, and the Garrison very scattering. As to the marching Forces and sundry of the Garrisons they are constantly in the Woods, in sundry small Scouts, and are faithfull in their Duties by what I hear from them from time to time.

I shall Direct the Officers to prepare their Rolls as fast as they can.

I am Your Honrs most Dutiful Servt

Capt Bourn being indispos'd, and desirous to wait on your Hon' I have permitted him to carry the Express for its more speedy Arrival. If your Hon' shou'd be at Newberry in a short time I wou'd be glad to have leave to wait on You there for a few hours.

May it Please y' Honour

I receiv'd your letter of the fourth Currant on the 15th of the same wherein your Hon orders me to give a particular account of the black point scout whom your Hon calls Eighteen men, if so my Clark has made a mistake in Coppying, for there was but Eight men and most of them Inhabitants, so that there was no officer with them but a Soldier or two to go with them to look their cattle. As to the men in Falmouth I immediately drew out all that I could Judge was proper, which did not exceed Twenty, and sent Capt. Bourn & Leiut Dominicus Jordan. I did not give them orders to pursue the enemy let their numbers be what they would, but left them to their own Judgments, according to what discovery they should make, knowing they had behav'd themselves very well when they had an Oppertunity on the enemy, and are reputed men of Courage, and by the Accts they had from Black Point people, and Mitchels and Spurwink Garrisons, they were a considerable number as I acquainted your Hon't before, and by what discovery they made by the Indian Tracks, they could not Judge themselves to be a number sufficient to follow them. I do assure your Hon'. I did not leave more than three men in a Garrison with the Inhabitants and Soldiers for their Defence, which was as little as possible could be left In as much as the place where they were burning our houses and killing our Cattle was not less then Eleven or Twelve Miles through the Woods the nighest way wee could get to them.

> I humbly subscribe my selfe your Hon" most Dutifull Servant

Falmouth May 17th 1725.

May it please your Honour,-I rec'd your Hon ro orders of the Eleventh Currant and shall Endeavour when I have recd the recruits to Improve them in the best manner I can to Intercept and destroy the Enemy & follow your Hon's orders.

Capt. Bean arriv'd here from York the 15th Currant. I immediately dispatcht him to Capt Gyles with directions that nothing may be neglected relateing the march on Amuscoggin haveing before sent the Quota of men Pursuant to your Hon<sup>18</sup> orders. I have since that made up a Scout of Twenty Eight Men, soldiers and Inhabitants, whom I sent out the Sixteenth at night under the Command of Lieut Dominicus Jordan, diligently to search the most likely places on the backs of the Towns, from this place to Saco Salmon Falls, and intend to continue & strengthen them with more men as soon as possible, if your Hon<sup>18</sup> orders do not call them off, these being the places the Enemy chiefly aim'd at both last Summer & this.

I am your Hon" most

Falmo May 21, 1725.

Lieut Dominicus Jordan (who I inform'd of in mine of the Seventeenth), is return'd about three a Clock, and informs that he Tract Two parties of Indians that came out of the Country & return'd in two parties. The least of their paths were much larger then what his Scout made, who consisted of thirty two men, haveing added four to this Scout since my last. Wee Judge that the greatest part of the Enemy are drawn some Distance back, on the great Rivers, this being their time to fish for Salmon & other fish up the fresh Rivers on which the Indians yearly make a fishing voyage. Our winter scouts discovered sundry of their fishing places on Saco, Pesomscott & Amuscoggin Rivers where they made large Quan<sup>tys</sup> last Summer. The new recruits are not yet come, notwithstanding wee have had so many some of their fishing places.

I have since my last, examin'd Henery McKenny relateing the Indians he saw when he burnt the Houses at Black Point, and charg'd him to relate no more then he could give his Oath to. He attests that he told between Thirty & Forty on the plain Marsh from the Ferry Garrison where he was on his Guard in the Watch Box, and at the same time there were others

Westerly winds. As soon as they arrive, if Arm'd, I will endeavour to visit scattered fireing the houses up and Down.

P.S. I have permitted Ebenezer Nutting, the Armourer, to wait on y' Hon' he wanting sundry Tools. I think it of absolute necessity that he be sent down again as soon as possible, sundry of our Arms being out of Repair. Mass. Arch. 52: 183.

Much Honoured st I, your Humble Petitioner, belonging to Captain Samuel Hincks, at Fort Mary in Biddiford, Do Humbly Desire your Honours favour to Dismiss me from the Fort, because if it may be your Honours Pleasure, I would get into Capt Jordans Company. I am Honoured st your Most Humble Dutifull and Obedient Servant, RICHARD DAVIS.

Biddeford, May 24, 1725. Mass. Arch. 52: 186.

Sir.

It being highly probable that the Indians of Penobscot will speedily be out in the vessels they took last Summer from the English & will infest the Eastern Coast to the great Disturbance & Loss of those concerned in the Fishery;

I desire you to draw out of your Ships Compa fifty of your ablest Men to proceed East so far as Passamaqody or the Mouth of St Croix River, in two small Vessels provided for that Purpose, to be under the Command of your Lieutent & such Officer (for the other vessel) as you shall think fit to appoint. Let them keep near the Shoar, & look into the Harbours & Bays among the Islands as they go along, more especially at Pemaquid, Penobscot, Fox Island & Mount Desert Bays, the Mouth of Petit River & Passamaquody, & Endeavour to get Intelligence of the Enemy & Decoy them by Sounding for Fish, Concealing their Men & such other Methods as are proper for that End, And by all possible Means to find out, suppress & destroy the Indian Enemy as well as any Pirates that may, haply, be on the Coast at this Time. And for their Encouragemt they will have One Hundred Pounds for each scalp of a Male Indian above twelve years old, & for other Scalps, & Prisoners the highest Premium the Law Allows.

Notwithstanding the Direction before mentioned I do n't limit you as to the Extent of Coast for this Cruise, But leave it to you & the Discretion of your Officer how far East he may proceed, In which he must govern himself according to the Intelligence he may meet.

If he shall hear of the Enemy on Shoar Let him Land such a Number of his Comp* as he shall judge fit to ambush or p'sue them. And particularly, I think it advisable that they ly some Time in Ambush on the Western Point of a small Island at the Mouth of Petit River, within two Leagues of Machias, the usual Passage of the Indians from Passamaquody & S¹ John's River to Penobscot. For more particular Information in these Matters your Officer had best consult the Pilots.

This Cruise may be for Forty Days, or if Circumstances shall be such as to give great Prospects of doing Service let them stay out longer.

He says, that he has no clerk, neither any man in his fort who knows any thing about his affairs. And yet he says, that his fort is guarded and he can defend it if assaulted. "Y' Hon' will not blame me if I do come."

ABSTRACTS OF THE WILLS OF THE MATHER FAMILY, PROVED IN THE CONSISTORY COURT AT CHESTER FROM 1573 TO 1650.

By J. PAUL RYLANDS, Esq., F.S.A., of Birkenhead, England.

SAMUEL CLARK, in his account of "The Life and Death of MF Richard Mather who dyed Anno Christi 1669," says:—"Richard Mather was born in a Village called Lowton, situate in the Parish of Winwick in the County of Lancaster, Anno Christi 1596. His parents Thomas and Margaret Mather were of ancient families in Lowton aforesaid; but by reason of some unhappy Mortgages, they were reduced into a low condition in regard to their outward estate."

Much has been written about Richard Mather and his descendants; but very little is known of his forefathers, who were probably resident in Lancashire for several centuries, as the name occurs in early documents as Madur, Madowr, &c. The family does not appear to have been of sufficient importance socially to attract the attention of the Heralds at their visitations, although Cotton Mather states that the armorial bearings of his family were Ermine, on a fesse wavy Azure three lions rampant Or; Crest:—On the trunk of a tree lying fesseways Vert, a lion sejant Or; bearings which are also attributed to Madder of the County of Stafford in Burke's

"General Armory."

It was with a view of adding something to the family history of the Mathers that, a number of years ago, I made a series of genealorical abstracts from the wills at Chester, in conjunction with the late Mr. Charles Bridger; and the abstracts then made have been recently supplemented by others made by Mr. William Fergusson Irvine of Birkenhead, thus forming a complete series from the year 1573 to the year 1650. Unfortunately these wills do not, so far as I am aware, increase our knowledge of Richard Mather's ancestry, but they may help to bring some new facts to light from other sources; and in the hope that this will be the case I offer them to the New-England Historic Genealogical Society. For the same reason I will allude to the marriage of Ralph Rylands, then of Westhoughton, but afterwards of Culcheth in the parish of Winwick, yeoman (who died in November, 1633), and Mary Mather of the parish of Winwick, which was solemnized at Deane Church, 25 May, 1613 (Transcripts at Chester). This Mary, in her will, proved at York 20 November, 1645, desires "to bee buried at my parishe Church of Winwicke in my ancestors buriall [place] and neare unto Raphe Rylandes my late husband"; and I have very little doubt that she was a relative, probably a near one, of Richard Mather, the "Pilgrim Father," because her place of burial suggests that she was one of the Lowton Mathers, and also because her husband, being a man well-to-do in the world, would be likely to choose his wife from the better educated branch of the Mather family. Their third son Ralph, who was born in 1622, was living with Henry Mather at Culcheth in 1641, and, on 19 May, 1644, he married Alice Mather at the chapel of Newchurch in Winwick parish; Alice was, perhaps, Henry's daughter, and a relative of her husband.

It is also worth noting that Margaret Byrom, of Lowton, widow of Henry Byrom, in her will, dated 18 April, 1648, mentions her son Henry, her sister Jane Green, her sister Anne, wife of Roger Bate, and her brother Richard Mather.

An entry in Warrington Parish Registers of the baptism, on 9 December, 1610, of "Christian, daughter of George Mather, Gent.," shows that the wills at Chester do not give all the contemporary information that could be desired. Probably, when the Record Society of Lancashire and Cheshire carries out its intention of printing the early Marriage Licences, which begin in the year 1608, we shall know more of the history of the Mathers of Lowton and their alliances, and so obtain a clue which will lead us to other fields for investigation.

THE WEAVER FAMILY OF NEW YORK CITY, &c.

By ISAAC J. GREENWOOD, A.M., of New York City.

The Weaver Family* were, for a long succession of years, to be found principally in the three counties bordering on Wales, viz. Cheshire, Shropshire and Herefordshire. Their name was taken from the Manor of Weever, near Middlewick, Ches., held by the service of finding two men to guard Aldford Castle for forty days in time of war. They had a chapel formerly in the churchyard of Middlewick, of which there are now no remains, and the manor was sold, about 1720, to the Wilbraham family, by the Stanleys of Alderly Park, into whose possession it had come by descent. Since then, the old manor-house has been taken down and a farm-house built on its site. The arms of Weever of Weever, Ches., were: Sable, two bars argent; on a cauton of the first a garb of the second.

Thomas Weaver, Att. Gen. in the Leeward Islands, came to New York from Barbadoes with Gov. Lord Bellamont, and was appointed, under his patronage, to various offices, as King's Council at Law, Provincial Agent, Collector of the Port, Solicitor General, and Member of the Council, besides receiving the freedom of the city in August, 1701. Falling into bad odor with the Governor's successor, Lord Cornbury, he returned, about Sept. 1702, to England, leaving in New York his wife Katherine and family. He was soon after appointed, by the African Company, Governor of Fort James on the Gambia. His ultimate fate is thus alluded to in Luttrell's Diary; Tuesday, July 10, 1705. "Yesterday our merchants had advice * * * that two French ships from Martineco, have plundered and destroyed our factory at Gamboa, on the coast of Africa, killing Mr. Weaver, the Governor, and those few men he had with him, and then returned with their booty to Martineco."

. These notes were compiled in Feb. 1860, and have had but little added to them since.

Weaver back to England, alludes to him, in his Memorial to the Lords of Trade, Oct. 26, 1709, as "Chief of Gamby."

Fort James, formerly Fort St. Andrew, situated on the Island of Boavista, in the river Gambia, had been taken from the Dutch in 1661, by an expedition favored by the Duke of York, and commanded by Major Robert Holmes, who was permitted to carry at the main top of his ship, "the Charles," the Union or King of England's Flag. The place was afterwards, for some years, subject to attack and despoilation both by the Dutch and French.

1. SAMUEL WEAVER, a tanner, and by tradition of Welsh birth, with his wife Anne and an infant son, came to New York during the administration of Gov. William Burnet, and in the second year of Robert Walter's mayoralty, was admitted a freeman of the city, April 10, 1722.

He immediately commenced business, but met with serious loss almost at the start; for his three small houses, being a store-house, work-house and moke-house, situated near the swamps, in the East Ward of the city, were burned down on the 5th of October, 1722, involving a loss of over seventy loads of bark, a bark-mill, six dozen of sheep-skins, and all his working tools; the entire loss amounting in value to upwards of £200. This we learn from a document (on file among the N. Y. Col. MSS., Vol. LXV., p. 12), subscribed to by four of the city aldermen, and endorsed "Briff, manted Oct. 1722, to continue for three months, for the County of New York & ye Countys of Long Island," by which brief Weaver received authority to reimburse himself through a public collection.

The Greppel Bosch, or Swamp, about which the city tanneries had collected, is still the centre of the leather trade in New York; one hundred and sixty years ago or more, it has been represented as "about a mile and half wide, and about nine fathoms deep," with a rail fence at places to keep out the cattle of the surrounding grazing grounds; it was covered with brakes and bushes, and its stagnant waters gave rise to unwholesome vapors exceedingly dangerous and detrimental to the health of the neighboring inhibitants, while on the spring, or high tide, it was overflowed by the united Vaters of the Hudson and South (or East) rivers.

Continuing his business with success, Mr. Weaver, in May, 1734, purthised for £400, New York currency, from Aultje, widow of Pieter Chaignean, a lot on the northerly side of Queen Street, formerly Smith's Fly, and now Pearl Street; it had belonged to Joseph Latham, shipwright, and as early as 1712 to William Anderson, gent (see Lib. 28, N. Y. Conv., pp. 9 and 11; Lib. 46, pp. 530 and 532).

This year, 1734, witnessed the arrest in November, by order of the Council, of Peter Zenger, printer of the New York Weekly Journal, for publishing seditious libels, though on the 28th of January following the grand jury found no bill against him. Subsequently, on motion, the Court ordered a "struck jury," of which Samuel Weaver was a member. Andrew Hamilton of Philadelphia, counsel for the prisoner, insisted, in his defence, contrary to the opinion of Chief Justice De Lancy, on the truth of the facts charged as libellous, maintaining that the jury were judges of both the law and the fact. The verdict was returned,-Not Guilty.

*Thomas Weaver of Boston, Mass., by w. Elizabeth, had dau. Sarah, b. 6 Nov. 1674, and Sammel Weaver signed petition of Boston inhabitants, June 11, 1697 (Rec. xvi. 86) that the law be repealed relative to building with brick. The name, however, is not found the sarry Probate or Registry Records of co. Suffolk, Mass.

VOL. XLVII. 5*

VOL. XLVII.

In the fall of 1737 Mr. Weaver was one of the citizens signing a petition to Gov. Clarke, demanding the removal of High Sheriff Crosby, for misdemeanor in declaring a Mr. Philipse to be the chosen Representative of the City and County; five months later, in February, 1737-8, we find him a member of Capt. Cornelius Van Horne's militia company.

About July, 1738, a certain William Lanner of New Town, L. I., against whom judgment had been obtained in the matter of a debt for some sheep, sought to avoid levying of execution upon his house and land, by conveying them, through a sham deed, to Samuel Weaver. The latter, as Lanner deposed, refused subsequently to surrender the deed for cancellation, whereupon Weaver was ordered to appear before Gov. Clarke at Fort George on Tuesday, January 15, 1639-40, at 10 A.M., to answer the charge. How the affair terminated we do not learn.

May 6, 1741, Mr. Weaver was one of the jurors sworn in on the trial of John Hughson and others concerned in the Negro Plot. He was also a juror, May 29th, on the trial of two negroes, who were burned at the stake the following day for their participation in the same affair. Evidence went to show that his own slave, Will, who died before the plot matured, had attended the meetings and taken active part in the proposed insurrection.

May 18, 1742, by deed not on record, Weaver bought of Thomas Hodgson, leather-dresser, a lot of ground at the S.-E. corner of Cliff and Beekman Streets, which had formerly belonged to Joseph Latham, who had in turn purchased from heirs of the estate of William Beekman. Cliff Street, running through Vandercliff's orchard, and Beekman street, were projected much about the same time, the divisional map of the Beekman estate showing the various building lots, having been drawn up in September, 1708; but Beekman street was not properly regulated and paved till the year 1750, and two years after, on the N.-E. corner, St. George's Chapel was erected, situated, says Smith the historian, "in a new, crowded, and ill built part of the town."

Mr. and Mrs. Weaver had brought with them a bible, published by J. Basket of Oxford, in 1715, and containing the Episcopal Church service; they, however, joined the congregation under the Rev. James Anderson, who were worshipping, according to the discipline of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland, in the City Hall, on Wall street, pending the erection of a meeting-house on ground adjoining. Within the walls of the new edifice both of them were subsequently interred.

His will reads: "Samuel Weaver of the city of New York, currier, being at present sick and weak in body, but of sound mind and understanding, &c. The house and ground wherein he now lives to son Samuel and heirs forever; to wife Anne 500 l. current money of New York, to be raised and levied out of personal estate. Similar amounts to daughter Marcy and son William, and the residue of the estate, real and personal, to be divided equally between the widow and three children. The lot recently bought of Thomas Hodgins to be sold by the executors, and the interest derived from the shares of the two sons to be applied to their education and maintenance until 21 years of age, or until their marriage, and the shares then to be paid them. Executors: friends Dr. John Nicholls, and his son-in-law Dr. Isaac Dubois, John Breeze, leather dresser, James Burling and Simon Witnesses: Jacob Bamper, Robert Provoost and Thomas Griffith. Signed 31 August, 1742; proved 30 September following; inventory to be returned in six months." The seal upon the original will shows a small, apparently plain, mantled, shield, surmounted by a helmet facing to the right.* The chief executor, Dr. Nicholls, one of the founders of the Presbyterian church in New York, and distinguished for benevolence and piety, died about a year after Mr. Weaver. The lot, especially mentioned in the will, was not sold, but two small wooden houses were built

The widow, Anne Weaver, survived her husband some ten years. By her will of March 7, 1749-50, proved Nov. 15, 1752, the bequeathed to her son and sole executor, William Weaver, the house and lot which she occupied, "fronting on street known as Beekman-street," together with her other house adjoining and fronting on same street. Should he die before coming of age or before marriage, said lots were to go to her granddaughter Anne, daughter of John Carpender of New York. To said granddaughter, when 21 years of age, or upon her marriage, 500 l. New York currency, to be raised from the personal estate; should she die before either event, the amount was to be paid to son William, to whom she gave her negro-wench Crescia. To John, William and Thomas, sons of the late John Coxe,† currier, 10 l. currency apiece. All the household furniture and residue of estate, real and personal, to son William and his heirs forever. Witnesses: Charles Jandine, Catherine Bedford, and James Emott, attorney wlaw. The executor was to render a just and true account and inventory when lawfully requested.

With not a few New York families the American Revolution appears to have been a baptism of fire, from which they arose, phænix-like, with a gilded ancestry, and a string of traditions too pleasant to be disturbed and opened up at the present day for critical investigation.

Thus, Samuel Weaver was a Welsh gentleman who had made a runaway match with the sister of Lady Harvey, the wife of Lord John Harvey (or Herrey), son of the first Earl of Bristol. At the very start this tradition meets with a serious barrier, for Mrs. Weaver's maiden name comes down to us as "Nettleton," while Lady Harvey, who died Sept. 1, 1768, aged 62, was the famous Molly Lepel, maid of honor to the Princess of Wales, and only daughter of Brig. Gen. Claus Wedig Lepel, who had been a Page of Honor to Prince George of Denmark, and was naturalized by Act of H. of Com., 9 January, 1698-9, just previous to his marriage with Mary Brooke, a daughter and co-heiress of John Brooke, Esq., of Rendlesham, o. Suffolk. Corresponding, some years since, with Mr. Sydenham H. A. Hervey, $ in charge of the family archives, nothing was found throwing light a the supposed connection; but among the published letters of Mrs. Howard, one of the bed-chamber women of the Princess of Wales, and subsequently Countess of Suffolk, can be seen a letter of 1722, alluding to a parallel case, if not to the identical one in question. It is from Mrs. Howard's very intimate and chatty maiden friend, Miss Peggy Bradshaw, daring a temporary visit at Gawsworth Hall, near Congleton, Cheshire, the residence of Mrs. Charles Mordaunt, afterwards Lady Mohun. She remarks, "I had so witty a letter from the Countess of Bristol" (meaning the mother of Lord John Hervey), "I shall not think of answering it till I an get somebody to help me"; and continues, "Miss Mordaunt is very full of business in managing a wedding, which she has with great skill brought to perfection, between the richest tanner of the place and her maid. The man was pricked to the heart at the first glance, yet, if I may say it, I think I never saw anything young that had less to boast of; but beauty is in the lover's eye, and after this and Mrs. Wentworth, nobody need despair; and our Miss (Mordaunt) has a chance still."

Tradition goes on to state that letters passed from time to time between the Hervey family of England and the Weavers of New York, and that to the latter inducements were held forth for their return to the old country; that on the marriage of William Weaver, about 1753, among other articles of household ware sent out by Lady Harvey, was a good sized open bellmetal pot, standing, with an iron bail, on three short feet. This is certainly found on the inventory of William's estate, as prepared in June, 1786, and is still religiously preserved in the family as a relic of pre-historic times, for the correspondence, above alluded to, was destroyed by William's sons at the close of the war, and to the myths, which have since arisen, some of his descendants have added the infatuation of fortune hunting, quoting De Bernardy's "Index Register of Next of Kin," which mentions the five names of James, John, Joseph, Mary and Samuel Weaver.

As the early records of the Presbyterian Church of New York were probably taken to Boston, and lost (and as the private entries are gone from the old family bible), no dates in connection with Samuel Weaver, his wife name occurs on the list of freemen Feb. 2, 1742-3, as Samuel Weaver, jr., currier. According to tradition he did not long survive a visit to his relatives in England, and was certainly not living in March, 1749-50, when his mother's will was drawn up. To her, administration* was granted on his estate, 14 Sept. 1750, when with John Carpender, her son-in-law, and Edward Light (signed Leught), currier, she gave bond for 500l. currency; inventory to be presented by March 14, and Account of Administration by Sept. 14, next en-suing. Witnesses; John Gadby and J. Benson.

ii. Marcy, born in New York about 1725; married John Carpender, butcher, who was admitted to the freedom of the city 5 Feb. 1744-5, and was one of the three sons of George and Elizabeth Carpender. Disfranchised in 1763, he removed to Brooklyn, where he continued to reside. and was a purveyor at one time for the continental army. His wife Marcy died before 1750, leaving a daughter Anne, mentioned, as we have seen, in the will of her grandmother, the widow Anne Weaver: he had a second wife Catharine, and in March, 1772, married his third wife, Mrs. Sarah (Stout) Taggart, who died 21 April, 1808. By the last two marriages he left several children. His will of 23 Dec. 1780, proved 17 May, 1793, mentions a "lot of land wherein are interred the corpse of my late wife Catharine, and of my daughter Ann; before the sale of which the said corpses to be interred by Executors, in my family vault in New York if such shall be provided, otherwise in burial ground of the Church in

George Carpender, father of John, came to New York from Long Island about 1718, and dying in 1731, his business as a butcher was carried on by his widow, Elizabeth, until her decease, 16 April 1776, æ. 85. Mrs. Elizabeth Carpender, in her will of June, 1774, leaves a certain house in New York for life, to her daughter Elizabeth, widow of the Sidney Breese, leather dresser, who became a free-man of the city, Oct. 29, 1734, and who in 1754 had a temporary appointment from Gov. De Lancy, as purser of H. M. ship Centaur, for the purpose of victualling the two Independent Companies of New York which had been ordered to Virginia. The house above alluded to had been bought by Mrs. Carpender from another son-inlaw, Capt. Samuel Bayard, a prominent privateersman of New York prior to the American Revolution. He was son of Peter and Rachel Bayard, and grandson of Peter and Blandina Bayard, the latter being a dau. of Mrs. Sarah Kiersted, whose mother was the widow Anje (Jans) Bogardus. Capt. Bayard dying in 1784, cut off his "undutiful and disorderly" son Peter with 5s., leaving his estate for life to his widow Catharine, with remainder to certain grandnephews and grand-nieces on his wife's side, children of Samuel Breese of Shrewsbury, N. J., and of Sarah, wife of Brig. Gen. William Malcolm. One hundred years ago, Aunt Katy Bayard's parure was famous among all her young female relatives, to whom a peep at the display in her jewel box was considered quite a treat. Mrs. Sarah Malcolm was a daughter of Dr. Richard Ayscough of N. Y., by his first wife Mary (?), a daughter of George and Elizabeth Carpender. Dr. Ayscough died 29 May, 1760, æ. 37; he had a posthumous daughter Ann, by his second wife Ann, dau. of Capt. Richard Langdon, afterwards wife of Thomas Moore, merchant; the dau. Ann married the Hon. Joshua Sands, and died in July, 1851, æ. 91. Dr. A. was a nephew of the Rev. Francis Ayscough, D.D., who died, dean of Bristol, in Aug. 1763; and whose son George-Edward, named for the two royal princes, sold out his position in the Foot Guards in 1777, and died 14 Oct. 1779, some six weeks before his cousin Thomas, the 2d Lord Lyttleton; both the cousins were noted for their profligacy, and the peculiar death of the latter, which was doubtless suicidal, has given rise to a story of his having been preternaturally warned.

2. iil. WILLIAM, born about 1730, in New York; the only surviving child, he inherited the entire estate, which, though small, was in those days a competency; and, pursuing no business or occupation, was distinguished on the records, from the year 1754, as "gentleman." About 1753, he married Jane Cossart, born 12 Oct. 1733 (O. S.), the only child of Joris Cossart, bapt. in the city, 19 Nov. 1699, the son of David Cossart, mason, bapt. 18 June, 1671, who m. 11 Oct. 1696, Styntje Joris, and was a son of Jacques Cossart, who emigrated to the New Netherlands, landing in Oct. 1662, a passenger on the "Pumerland Church," and settling at Bushwick, L. I. with his wife Lydia Willems. David Cossart removed in 1735 to Somerset Co., East New Jersey, conveying his city lot to his son-in-law John Harpending, Jr., cordwainer; his son Joris or George, whom tradition would make Dr. George Cossart, may have the George Cossart, brick-layer freemen of New York 7. been the George Cossart, brick-layer, freeman, of New York, 7 He was married in the Dutch Church 16 Sept. 1730, to May, 1745. Elizabeth Hooglandt,* and in order, it is said, to secure some property in Europe to which he was heir,† left the city, a few years after marriage, on a ship which was never after heard from. The writer has two mementoes of William Weaver's marriage with Miss Cossart; the first a long wallet of two compartments, lined with silk and stiffened with card-board, the outside a zig-zag pattern of brightly shaded worsted work, and on the flap the letters "W. W." and the date "1753"; the second a small card-case in similar style, covered with black silk embroidered with flowers; both articles evidently the work of his flancée. Besides these, there are still preserved a half-dozen silver openwork bell-buttons, which were worn on the vest of the groom.

His life evidently passed serenely and uneventful, and after the Brick Presbyterian Church, at the head of Beekman St., had been opened by the Rev. John Rogers, for public worship on New Year's day, 1768, Weaver became a member of the congregation. When

On the night of Aug. 23, 1775,† the Liberty Boys and students of Columbia College, among whom was Alexander Hamilton, being engaged in removing cannon from the Battery, were repeatedly fired upon by the guns from the Asia man-of-war, Capt. Vandeput, lying in the harbor. Weaver, who had been attracted to the place by the noise, was struck on the calf of one of his legs by a ball, and never entirely recovered from the injury. The family now removed to Woodbridge township, in Middlesex Co., N. J., and here, from indiscreet exposure while watching a negro using a buck and saw, he was attacked with erysipelas in his wound and died during the fall of 1777; he was buried in the Quaker ground at Spanktown, now part of Rahway, but the record of interments prior to 1800 is

The widow was appointed Administratrix, 13 May, 1786, in New York (Lett. of Adm., Lib. ii. p. 475), and an Inventory is both on file and record (Book A of Invent., 1776 to '86, p. 531). husband's death, Mrs. Weaver endeavored, with the aid of her two elder daughters, to support herself and family by taking in sewing, an effort in which she was ably seconded for a while by her eldest son Samuel. The next son, William, was in the city ostensibly for the purpose of collecting the rents and interests due the estate, with what result we gather from the following letter addressed to Gov.

Elizth Town, 14th August, 1780.

At the desire of the Widow Weaver, beg leave to trouble Your Excellency with these few lines, her helpless and reduced situation, without assistance can be afforded her soon, She with her children must come on the Town. Her husband died about two years ago at Rahway where the Family has lived since the Enemie got Possession of New York. Her Oldest Son, whom was her chief dependence here, died Ten days ago,-her second Son is in New York, where her property is, —I think they told me the Houses rented for £300 per annum,—but this second Son is such a spendthrift, that out of the Rents he Receives, he does not remit them one single farthing.

What she now requests is, that Your Excellency would be pleased to grant her a permit to go to New York with liberty to return, to endeavor to procure some Rent of Her Houses for the support of herself & family.

Her Deceased Husband was the only person that was wounded at the time the Asia fired on the City of N. Yk, and a family that has always acted the friendly part in their Countrys cause. Excellencys Complyein will be greatfully acknowledged.

Your Excellencys Most Obdt. humble Servant JOHN ADAM. §

The daughter Elizabeth (Mrs. Greenwood) used to tell of her having been rewarded on one occasion, by the lady to whom she had carried some work, with the gift of a small box full of what she at first supposed powdered sugar, which had then to take the place of candy, but which turned out to be the still greater treat, salt; an article then selling at three dollars a bushel, and which, before the close of the war, rose to eight dollars. With the declaration of peace the family returned to the city; the real estate was sold after a few years, and the proceeds divided equally between the seven children and the widow,—who, her two sons having taken their shares and moved out West, continued to live with her daughters Ann, Jane and Catharine, until her death, which took place Sept. 1, 1817, when in her 84th year. Her remains were laid in a vault at the N. #### 2. WILLIAM WEAVER (Samuel1), by wife Jane, had ch.:

- 1. Samuel, b. Aug. 30, bapt. Sept. 8, 1754; studied law under John Bogart; removed to Rahway with family, at outbreak of war, and opened a small store for sale of tea, groceries and provisions. Died about Aug. 4, 1780, and was buried beside his father. As eldest son of his father, who had died intestate, he inherited the two pieces of real estate on Pearl St. and Beekman St., but he signed an agreement with his mother, Dec. 1, 1777, binding himself, in the sum of £6,000 proclamation money of New Jersey, to devote the net income of said property to the support of his mother, brothers and sisters, until the youngest should come of age (i. e., in May, 1798), and if, with consent of his mother, a sale of the real estate should take place at any time, the proceeds were to be equally divided among all the children, himself included. The widow Jane Weaver was appointed in New York, 31 Aug. 1784, as Admtx. on the estate of her late son, Samuel Weaver, gent., formerly of New York (Lib. II. p. 173), and in October she filed the above Agreement in the Sec. of State's office, Albany (Deeds xxi. 326). But as, by Acts of Legislature, July 12, 1782, and Feb. 23, 1786, all estates tail were abolished, &c., Mrs. Weaver, as we have before mentioned, took out Let. of Adm. on the Est. of her late husband, William Weaver, gent., May 13, 1786 (Lib. II. 475).
- 5. ii. William, b. Nov. 17, bapt. Dec. 5, 1756; when the family left the city he remained behind to look after the property, and, as "William Weaver, jr.," signed the Citizens' Address to Adm. and Gen'l Howe, Oct. 16, 1776, on the occasion of their successful occupation of the city. He had a pass to visit his family at Rahway, and his marriage license to Anne, dau. of George Haberton, is dated 2 March, 1782. In 1788, he was living on a farm at Bound Brook, Somerset Co., N. Y., but removed in 1790 to the County and Territory N. W. of the river Ohio, afterwards called Hamilton Territory. Intending to remove further west, he, on Jan. 27, 1800, appoints his brother Henry Weaver, of the same place, as his attorney to dispose of certain interests in New York, and during the following April sold out to his mother his share of the property, corner of Beekman and Cliff Streets. Records of the Probate Court of Hamilton Co., Ohio (Cincinnati), show that his estate was administered upon, 27 April, 1802, by his brother Henry Weaver. He left no children.
  - III. ANN,<sup>3</sup> b. Jan. 15, bapt. March 4, 1759; married‡ Capt. Nathaniel Leonard, Col. Dayton's Reg't, N. J. Cont. Line. He was commissioned Ensign, Feb. 9, 1776, served through the war, and was discharged at its close, Nov. 3, 1783, and lived for some years at Rahway.

The remains of Mr. and Mrs. John Greenwood, and Mrs. Cath. S. Gamage, were reacted to the same vault; those of Dr. John Gamage to Cypress Hills Cem., N. J.

3. iv. HENRY, b. April 15, bapt. May 3, 1761.

- v. ELIZABETH, b. March 6, 1764; married March 22 (bible record, March 17), 1788, by Dr. John Rogers, D. D., to Dr. John Greenwood (2d son of Isaac G. of Boston), b. 17 May, 1760, d. 16 Nov, 1819; she died 13 Jan. 1831, leaving children: (1) Isaac John; (2) Clark; (3) John William; (4) Jane Weaver, w. of David Mills Ross, and after of Thomas Whalley Langdon of N. Y. (formerly of Boston).
- vi. John, b. Sept. 16, bapt. Sept. 28, 1766; died young. vii. George, b. July 24, bapt. Aug. 1, 1768; died young.
- viii. Jane, b. July 28, bapt. Aug. 13, 1769; was for many years a member of the family of her nephew Clark Greenwood, of New York, and died 27 March, 1861, a. 92. With her, family legend was well preserved, and her memory of past events was, to the last, unimpaired.
- ix. Mary, b. April 15 (church record Apr. 27), bapt. May 17, 1772: m. 4 May, 1793 (Presb. Ch., N. Y.), John W. Moore, merchant of N. Y. He was a son of Capt. Wm. Moore who m. (Dutch ch. N. Y.) 31 Dec. 1760, Mary Bogart, and lived at the corner of Beekman and Cliff Streets, in a house which he sold in 1793 to his son, and removed to East Chester, where he died, his will being dated Oct. 5, 1795; he left children, John W.; Louis; and Leah, wife of Joel Stone of Montreal; the second son, Judge Louis Moore of Hackensack, N. J., m. a dau. of Michael Price, lessee of the old Park Theatre. John W. Moore visited France early in the century, and, at the receptions of the First Consul, his wife was known as "La Belle Americaine"; her miniature, taken at this period, was long in possession of her niece, Mary Moore of Hackensack. Returning to the city, Mr. Moore lived for a time on Beekman St., with a country-seat at New Brunswick, N. J., and afterwards at Greenwich Village, in the suburbs of N. Y. At the time of Mrs. Moore's death, in August, 1834, their residence was on Broadway, near Spring Street. The loss of his wife and all his children, who had died in youth, having made him somewhat misanthropical, he removed to Hudson Street, near Vestry St., and remained in seclusion until his death in January, 1846. They were both buried in the Greenwood Vault, Marble Cemetery, N. Y.
- x. CATHARINE SINGER, b. May 8, 1777; m. at Harlem, N. Y., June 29(?), 1816, Dr. John Gamage, son of Wm. Gamage, Jr., of Cambridge, Mass. (whose widow Abigail d. 21 Dec. 1803, aged 85—Bond's Watertown). Dr. G. had been long a resident of New York, where in 1789 he had m. his first wife Elizabeth Ash, who died in Oct. 1815, aged 46. Mrs. Cath. S. Gamage died Aug. 11, 1816, æ. 40, and her husband before the middle of October following, aged 51.
- 3. Henry<sup>8</sup> Weaver (William,<sup>2</sup> Samuel<sup>1</sup>), b. Apr. 15, bapt. May 3, 1761 (Brick Presb. Ch.); is said to have seen some privateering service during the war, and to have been liberated from confinement in the Old Mill Prison, England, at the ratification of peace in Jan. 1784. The war certainly left him minus several fingers, but stories as to their loss vary.

He married, about 1787, Hannah Meeker, who soon separated from him and returned to her family. In a legal document of 1788, he is styled "Henry Weaver of New York, gentleman." Forming, soon after, an attachment for a young lady who had not yet seen her fifteenth summer, he consulted, so the story goes, her father, though suppressing the fair one's name, as to what he ought to do under the circumstances; and was advised to take her and be off. He accordingly eloped with Miss Susan R. Crane, the marriage ceremony taking place May 1, 1790, and the couple leaving forthwith for the West. Miss Crane, b. Dec. 12, 1774, was a dau. of Judge Joseph Crane of Elizabethtown, N. J., by his first wife Susanna Ross, and was a cousin of the late Com. Wm. Montgomery Crane, U. S. N., Col. Ichabod B. Crane, U. S. A., and Judge Joseph H. Crane of Dayton, Ohio.*

Weaver settled at Columbia, N. W. Territory, about six miles from Cincinnati, which at the time was known as Fort Washington, with half a dozen small frame-houses around it. Here he carried on farming and surveying, was one of the few who, in 1792, helped establish Tucker's Station, midway between Cincinnati and Fort Hamilton, and in 1794, under the territorial administration, he received from Gov. St. Clair an appointment as Justice of the Peace for Hamilton County.

Gov. Wayne having, in 1795, concluded a treaty with the Indians, Weaver soon after removed to a tract of land near Middletown, in what is now Butler Co., and about 1801 purchased land on Elk Creek (Madison) township, where he resided until his death. His address in 1800 was "County of Hamilton Territory, N. W. of the river Ohio"; five years later he was appointed an Associate Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Butler Co., in which capacity he served until his resignation, July 20, 1829, thus completing a judicial career of almost thirty-five years. He died Aug. 17, 1829, &. 69, and was buried in the Baptist Church Ground, Trenton, Butler Co., Ohio. Mrs. Weaver's death occurred Jan. 22, 1851, aged 76. Children:

which he has held various public offices; was at one time editor of the "Iowa Tribune," published at Des Moines, and was elected to the Congress of 1879, &c. His name has been prominently before the public as the Greenback-Labor candidate for presidency, during the past decade.

NOTES.

A.

ELIZABETH HOOGLANDT, wife of Joris Cossart, was bapt. in N. Y., 20 Nov. 1706, the oldest daughter of Johannes3 Hooglandt, by his second wife Janneke Andries, wid. of Jan Piet Slot (or Sloat), of Bergen and New York, born 1665, the son of Pieter Janson Slot and grandson of Jan Pietersen Slot from Holstein, who settled first in Haerlem, N. Y., and after in Bergen, N. J. Johannes Hooglandt was a merchant of New York, like his younger brother Adrian, but removed subsequently to Staten Island, and lived to a good age, being 75 in 1741, when his eldest son of the same name, by the first marriage, was still called "junior." Johannes' father, Direk Cornelissen<sup>2</sup> Hooglandt, died on Staten Island early in 1705, æ. 67, having married Lysbet, dau. of Joris Jansen Rapelje; he was the son of Cornelis Diercksen1 Hooglandt, the first ferry-master to Long Island, who was in the New Netherlands as early as 1638, being then 38 years of age. Cornelis was probably from a small place in the province of Zealand, just west of Middelborch, on the Island of Walchern, called Hogelande; his wife Aeltje Ariens was a widow of Jacob Dircksen Vogel, who had left debts due him which Hooglandt endeavored to collect at Middelborch, in 1639, through an attorney, Magdelena Luycas of Amsterdam. The writer has in his possession an antique brass box, with embossed scriptural subjects on either side, inside the lid of which, scratched in the well-known hand-writing of his grand-father, Dr. John Greenwood, in 1814, is a statement that "This box was brought to this country by one of the first settlers from Holland by the name of Hogeland, and was given to me by one of the descendants, my wife. It was her grand-mother's father's " (meaning Johannes Hooglandt, father of Mrs. Elizabeth Cossart). "She (i. e., the grandmother, Mrs. Cossart) died 22 years past, very old." Since she was born in 1706, as we have seen, she would have been aged about 86 years at the time of her death in 1792. Her spinning-wheel, ingeniously converted into a foot-drill by Dr. Greenwood, is still preserved; and the brass box, which was attached to it, served to hold the steel drills.

Tradition enumerates among the various kinspeople of Mrs. Elizabeth (Hooglandt) Cossart, the families of Janeway, Hogewout, Cloppers and Kouwenhoven. We find, on investigation, that her sister Sarah Hooglandt, bapt. 8 Aug. 1708, married 26 June, 1738, Jacob Janeway,* whose well-known son George died at his residence on Chatham St., N. Y., 2 Sept. 1826, aged 34; that her youngest brother Adrian Hooglandt, bapt. 31 Oct. 1716, a carpenter of N. Y., removed about 1740, with his second wife Catharine Hogewout, to Bridgewater township, Somerset Co., N. J., and there died in the fall of 1782; there also resided his brother-in-law, John Hogewout, formerly a wheelwright of N. Y., who had married Mrs. Cossert's cousin Elizabeth Hooglandt, bapt. 9 Nov. 1692, a daughter of Joris H. of Staten Island. Another cousin, Elizabeth Lefferts, b. 1724 (dau. of Ab. Lefferts,* merchant of N. Y., by wife Sarah Hooglandt), m. in 1743, Peter Clopper,† sadler of N. Gen. Washington, $ towards the close of 1778, speaks reprehensively of the free and open intercourse with New York which, on his arrival at Elizabeth Town, the 1st of Dec., he found prevailing, and orders were given to Gen. Maxwell, at the head of the Jersey Brigade, in the neighborhood, to suffer no person to pass unless permission should be previously obtained from Gov. Livingston and Reed, suggesting the first of every month for the purpose. Gov. Livingston, in a reply of Dec. 21st, says: "Of all those who have applied to me for recommendation to the commanding officer at Eliz. Town to go to Staten Island or New York, not above one in twenty appeared entitled to that indulgence, and many of them were as venemous Tories as any in this country. It is either from a vain curiosity (extremely predominent in women), cloaked with the pretence of securing their debts or effects, in which they seldom if ever succeed, or for the sake of buying tea and trinkets (for which they would as soon forfeit a second Paradise, as Eve did the first, for the forbidden fruit), thus they are perpetually prompted to those idle rambles. . . . The men are still more seriously mischievous, and go with commercial motives, | and to secure capital quantities of British merchandise."

CERTIFICATES OF HEAD RIGHTS IN THE COUNTY COURT OF LOWER NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

By J. HENRY LEA, Esq., Cedarhurst, Fairhaven, Mass.

THE Court Records of Lower Norfolk County, from which the following extracts are taken, are among the most ancient of the kind extant in this country, dating from May, 1637, and continuing in almost unbroken sequence to our own time.

As is well known it was the custom from an early period in the history of the Old Dominion to grant fifty acres of land for every * Abr. Lefferts, a merchant of N. Y., b. in Flatbush, 1 Sept. 1692, was a son of Leffert Pieterse from Houghwout, N. Holland.

† Peter Clopper, bapt. 21 Feb. 1718, a son of Cornelis and Catherine (Grevenraet) Clopper, grandson of Johannes Clopper by 2d wife Margareta Hagen, and gt.-grandson of Cornelis Janszen Clopper, from Bergen op Zoom, who m. in New Amsterdam, 28 Oct. 1658, Heijltje Pieters. Cornelis died towards close of 1693, and his widow, in Sept. 1697, became the second wife of Scort Oliphertsen. the second wife of Soert Olphertzen.

I Much more of interest as to this branch of the Hooglandt family can be found in the recently published Hoagland Genealogy, pp. 17-50, though the account has numerous person who was imported into the Colony, without regard to age, sex, or condition of life. The person entitled to this benefit made oath in his county court to the facts of the case, and a certificate was issued to him, on presentation of which to the authorities at Jamestown a patent was granted for whatever amount of land it showed to be due to him.

These records of patents are now preserved in unbroken series at the Land Office at Richmond, and a few years ago an attempt was made to print abstracts of them (Richmond Critic, 6 January, 1889, et seq.), but, most unfortunately, the periodical came to an abrupt end in 1890, and only 329 of the earliest of them were published, covering the period from 1623 to 1636 inclusive. It is greatly to be hoped that the task will be taken up again and carried out to completion as at first designed.

The time at the writer's disposal being limited, he has only covered in his extracts the period from May, 1637, to May, 1666; but subsequent to the latter date many entries of great interest might be found. Comparison of these certificates with the patents published in the Critic is most interesting, as it will be seen that they largely Illustrate each other.

Beside these land certificates the court books contain a vast amount of information which is of the more value as there are practically no other records extant. Wills, deeds, depositions, and occasionally banns of marriage, alternate in the dockets with actions for debt and criminal procedures, the whole throwing a flood of light on the early history of the county which is well worth exploitation by some local historian who has the leisure to devote to the work.

The few extracts which follow the list of certificates will give some idea of the scope and value of these entries; they have been selected mainly with a view to illustrate the origin and early English connection of the emigrants.

To the Clerk of the Court and his courteous assistants the writer must express his most cordial thanks for uniform kindness and facilities shown for thorough examination of the records in their charge. He would also express his obligation to Mr. Virginius Newton of Richmond, Va., in whose behalf this search was undertaken, for kind permission to use these notes.

At a Court holden 21 Nov. 1638 Thomas Melton (1)* was granted one Certifficate for the transportation of foure persons—videliz: himself in the topewell 1632, Anne Wallingson in the safety 1635, Gawin Lancaster (2) in the Transport 1635, Edward Cooper in the Blessing 1637.

Probate was issued on his will 2 Sept. 1640, being the first probate recorded the Lower Norfolk Court.

Mr. William Dayues was app. one of the Commissioners of Lower Noro., 15 Oct. 1663.

Court was held at the House of William Shipp 6 July 1640, and frequent equent dates. He appears later (28 Dec. 1654) as then in occupation of a house which was formerly Robert Glascock's and also a Patent of Land which

Glascock gave him before his death. (See note to Robert Glascock.)

13. Simon Hancock, planter, appears in the Records as early as 6 Feb. 1638. Before 26 May, 1642, he had married the relict and administratrix of Gilbert Gaye, dec'd, and 22 June, 1624, Letters of Admin. were granted on his own estate to his widow Sarah Hancocke, her sureties being Mr. Wm: Moseley and John Carraway.

14. Barthelmew Hopkins appears in Muster of 1623 as of Eliz. City. And in 1625 as Bartholmew Hoskins holds 100 acres in same by Patent.

In the Va. Land Office, Patent 47, we find this grant as to Bartholomew Hoskins of Buck Roe, ancient planter, "who came to this country before the departure of Sir Thomas Dale," 100 acres on Back River. Issued 1624. He is said by the annotator in the Critic to have been born 1601, Burgess for Lower Norfolk 1649 and 1654. Wife Dorcas living 1651. Critic, 26 May, 1889.

He occurs as Bartholomew Hospkins, planter, 6 Feb. 1638, in the Court Records.

15. A Richard Lee (or possibly Loe) aged 32 years, appears as witness 2 May 1641, as a Juror 12 June 1647, when he signs by mark, and in 1655 as plaintiff in suit with Thos. Godby; he seems by entry of 15 Nov. 1655 to have been a carpenter. A letter of John Temple to Mr. Bridge, recorded in Court 16 Jan. 1656, advises that "Richard Lee is now bound up the Bay with mee," he seems to have been in trouble at this time as many claims were filed in Court against him. James Mullakins of Lynham in will dated 15 Oct. 1668, names his "sonin-law" Richard Lee as under 18 years of age, and a Mary Lee, perhaps issue of Mullikins' wife Rosamond by a former marriage, and a Richard who occurs 11 May 1681 is no doubt the latter. These Richards are of course not to be confounded with Col. Richard Lee, Clerk of the Council, Commissioner of the Quarter Court and Sec. of State for Virginia, with whom they were probably in no way connected.

16. Perhaps this name should be Theleball, a well known Hugonot Family of Norfolk Co.

17. Whereas fferdinando a negro sued Capt. Warner for his freedom p'tending hee was a Christian & had hadd seu rall yeares in England & therefore ought to serue noe longer than any other seru'ts that came out of England accordinge to the Custom of the Country & alsoe p'duced seu all papers in Portugell or some other language with the Court could not understand with hee alleadged were papers from seu all Gouerno's where he lived a freeman & where hee was borne wherefore the Court find noe cause wherefore hee should be free but Judg him a slave for his life time, from with Judgmt the said negro hath appealed to the first day of the next Gen'all Ct.

Ct. Rec. 15 Aug. 1667.

18. Lieut. Francis Mason was one of the most prominent of the early settlers of the County. He appears to have been born about 1584 (being 40 years of age in 1624) and to have come to Virginia in the John and Francis in 1613, probably bringing with him wife Mary and dau. Anne, as recited in the Head Rights. This first wife probably died between 16 Feb. 1623 (when she appears in the List of Inhabitants) and the second Census of 23 Jan. 1624–5, when we find him with wife Alice, aged 26, who had come out in the Margett and John in 1622 (Hotten, pp. 188, 251). He was Churchwarden 6 July 1640, High Sheriff 5 Mar. 1646, but had resigned the office before 15 Apr. 1648. He was one of the Commissioners of the Co. Court from its commencement until 15 Aug. 1648, when his name is found for the last time and, 15 Nov. following, Letters of Administration were granted on his estate to his widow Alice and son Lemuel. His son Francis, by the first wife, seems to have died young and the dau. Anne probably died unmarried, but another dau., Elizabeth, became the wife of James Theleball, a French Hugonot. The son Lemuel, of whom we shall have more to say under his own head, was by the second wife. There are some discrepancies in the records which cannot be reconciled, i. e., he is said to have been 40 years of age in 1624-5, but 10 Jan. 1637, he testifies in Court that he is 42 years old, and another deposition is cited in 1641 in which his age is 46, which agrees with the last (Rich. Critic, 12 July, 1890). The deposition of Jarvis Mason, aged 26, is also given 10 Jan. 1637, who may have been a younger brother of Francis; he is not heard of again. Some connection with the Hart family is indicated by the following letter, recorded in Court 15 May, 1643:—

Cosin frances Mason J pray deliner unto Symon Drew ye Cow and Calfe was this note makes Mencion of, & what is due to you J will see you satisfied, see with my Love J rest

19. Cornelius Lloyd, by Patent No. 222, had 800 acres on Elizabeth River and Merchant's Creek, Head Rights for 16 persons not named in 1635. Called in Patent of 1636 "of London, Merchant" (Critic, 25 Jan, 1890). Born about 1608, aged 38 in deposition of 1 Sept. 1646. Was in Virginia before 1640; Burgess for Lower Norfolk Co., 1642 to 1652; then Lt. Col., 1653; then Col. (Virginia Carolorum, pp. 168, 185, 189, 199, 226, 232). He died before 10 Dec. 1654, when we find Power of Atty. from Elizabeth Loyd of Elizabeth River, relict of Cornelius Loyd, to friend Nicholas Hart of New England, michant. Witnesses Thomas Lambert and William Turner. Recorded 12 Dec. 1654. His widow died before 28 Apr. 1658, when Power of Atty. is given by Thomas Evans of City of Kilkeney in Ireland to kinsman John Bellgraue of Kilkeny, gent., to collect all dues &c. in Va. which "did belong to my late sister Mrs Elizabeth Loyd of Elizabeth River &c." And later we have an agreement between William Carver of Co. of Lower Norfolk, Atty. for mi Nicholas Hart of Rode Jland in New England, for an estate left by Mrs Elizabeth Loyd, dec'd., of Co. afsd. & blank) vnto Thomas & Mary Evans of kilkeny in Jreland, by which all differences are settled with mi John Belgraue of Kingdom of Eng., Atty. for Thomas and Mary Evans, dated 26 July and rec. 15 Feb. 1661. His brother, Edward Lloyd, was perhaps of Eliz. City in 1623 (Hotten, 182). Burgess of Lower Norfolk 1644-46, removed to Maryland before 1659 (Neill's Founders of Md., 137). The connection shown with Nicholas Hart of Tannton and Boston and after of Warwick and Portsmouth in R. I. is most interesting. (See Savage II., 367, and Austin's Dict. of R. I., 316.) Nicholas Hart's wife, according to Austin, was Joan Rossiter, and his exact relationship with the Evans and Lloyds is not boursent.

20. A Jno Lee appears in the Court Records 15 Aug. 1660, when Attachment was granted to Edward Walker for 560 lbs. of tobacco against the estate of Abraham Rouse in hands of said Lee.

21. An inquest was held 15 Apr. 1662, on the body of William Wilson who was drowned by falling overboard from a vessell, and Mr. John Cummings was cleared of suspicion of having been concerned.

22. At a Court held 15 May, 1643, John Ball was sentenced to receive 30 ashes for stealing a boat. He was probably not connected with Richard Ball, planter, who had patent of 6 acres of land at Buck Roe in 1627. Patent No. 85.

222. Katherine widow of Mr. Oliver Vanheck makes grant of certain personal estate, 10 Sept. 1645, to her son John Vanheck before her marriage with George Mie.

23. Henry Sewall the elder, Merchant, was a Burgess for Elizabeth City in 1623, but before 5 July, 1642, was of Lower Norfolk. He died about 1644, and 18 settlement of his estate was had at an Orphan's Court held 25 Feb. 1649, as follows: "having mett Concerning the Estate of Hen: Sewell deceased, by the opinion of the Coll and Consent of Jno Holmes, Overseer, and Mr. Lemuell liason who hath Juter married with Ann the dauther of the said sewell Jt was greed as follows:—The estate of Mr. Mathew phillipps late deed to be responsible for estate of said Hen: sewell as it was left at the decease of Alce ye wife of ye said H. S. by Juventory &c and differences to be decided by 4 Judifferent men chosen on behalf of ye Orphants of ye said Sewell & Mrs. Anne Phillips used (sic) Administratrix of said Mr. Mathew Phillips." The four arbitrators were Mr. Jno Hill, Mr. Tho: Lambard, Jno Holmes and Tho: Juy. The son Henry was ordered to be sent to Holland for his education in charge of Mr. Tho: Lee, who is spoken of as "his Kindsmans and seeming very desirous to have the yough with him." He seems to have been placed under the charge of one William Scapes, Merchant, of Yarmouth in England, and 22 Mar. 1653, he was bound apprentice to him for 4 years and 7 years service by consent of the mrt. Scapes writes concerning him under date of 6 Dec. 1653, that "the hath beene hitherto verry sickley, he brought a distemper vppon him from inia wth has stucke by him almost all this time, wth was a hardnesse in his oddy wch is now desolved & doeth begin to threiue, he can wright and siffer well and could have spoake ffrench and dutch &c." A deposition taken 18 June, 1662, shows that the son Henry was born 1 May, 1639; and another, 16 Aug. 1672, mentions Henry Saywell the Younger as "late deceased," and that his sister and heir Ann, now the wife of Coll. Lemuel Mason, was born about 37 or 38 years since. A Thomas Seawell had Patent of 400 acres on Pocoson River in 1635, and was perhaps connected with Henry Sewell the Elder (Patent 166 in Richmond Critic). The connection with the Phillips family is not clear, but it seems probable that Alice, widow of the elder Henry Sewell, remarried to Matthew Phillips, and after her death he married again to the Anne who appears as his administratrix.

24. Capt. William Tucker, "now commander of Kiquotan," had patent in 1624 for 150 acres in Elizabeth City for head rights of George, Paul and William Thompson, the brothers of his wife. Patent No. 32. He was born in 1588; came to Virginia in 1610 in the Mary and James; he was Burgess for Kiquotan 1619 and 1623, and commanded a force against the Indians the latter year. His wife, Mary Thompson, came in the George in 1623, as did her three brothers above named. He was Commissioner of Elizabeth City 1631, and member of the Council 1627 to 1633. He was one of the wealthy merchants of Hotten's Lists, p. 244; Critic, 12 May, 1889. 25. A Patent was granted in 1635 to Robert Glascocke for 200 acres in Eliza beth Co., adjoining Lieut. Cheesman's land, for four servants unmarried and not named. (Critic, 8 March, 1890.) He was decd. in 1646, as we learn by the Certificate and shortly after the Court, learning that she intended marriage with one John Fernihaugh, and it being rumoured that she had a husband living in England (not having been the legal wife of said Glascock), forbids the marriage. This slander seems to have been disproved, as they were married before 27 April, 1647. John Fernihaugh's will was proved 5 July 1649, and his widow remarried before August, 1650, to Geo. Heigham. 26. Deposition of John Marshall, aged 42 years, taken 28 Dec. 1654. Query-if the John Marshall aged 21 in the Plaine Joan, London to Virginia, xvo Mai Hotten's Lists, p. 80.

27. Second son of Sir George Yardley, Knt., and Lady Temperance his wife, he was born in Virginia about 1623 (Hotten, p. 222). He married Mrs. Sarah Gookin, widow of Capt. John Gookin and formerly wife of Capt. Adam Thoroughgood. He was for a time resident in Maryland, and in 1652 was of the Council there; returned to Virginia, and was Burgess for Lower Norfolk 1653. He is said to have died without issue. (Critic, 27 Jan. 1889.) The tomb of Mrs. Sarah Yardley was still visible at Church Point, Princess Anne Co., with Coat of Arms (not given) and the following inscription—"Here lieth ye body of Capt. John Gooking & also | ye body of Mrs. Sarah Yardley who was wife to | Capt. Adam Thoroughgood first, Capt. John | Gooking & Collonell Francis Yardley, who | deceased Avgyst 1657."

28. Capt. John Sidney was High Sheriff of Lower Norfolk in 1662.
29. Banns of Marriage of Coll. Lambard and Dorathy Mason, both of the parish of Lynhaven, were published in Court 17 May 1661. She may have been the daughter of Col. Lemuel Mason, but if so probably died before him as she is not named in his will, q. v.

30. In the Muster of 1624-5 for Elizabeth City we have William Cole aged 26 came in the Neptune 1618, and Francis Cole aged 27 in the Susan 1616.

Hotten's Lists, p. 245. 31. Col. Lemuel Mason was second but eldest surviving son of Lieut. Francis Mason (q. v.), and was probably born in Virginia after 1625. He was one of the County Commissioners from 1649, Burgess 1654, '57, '58, '59, '60, '63, '75, '85, '92 and perhaps other years; High Sheriff in 1664 and 1668; Major in 1656, Col. before 1676. His will dated 17 June 1695 was proved 15 Sept. 1702, and names his father, Francis Mason, deceased, wife Anne (who was daughter and heiress, after her brother's death, of Henry Sewell, Merchant) (q. v.), sons Thomas, Lemuel and George, brother (in-law) Mr. James Theleball, daughters Francis Newton (wife of Mr. George Newton), Alice, wife of Samuel Boush and widow of William Porten, Elizabeth, wife of T. Cocke, Margarett, wife of Mr. (torn), Ann, wife of (torn), Mary, wife of Mr. Walter Gee and Dinah; Sister Elizabeth Theleball. His widow Anne Mason, gentlewoman, by her will dated 30 Oct. and proved 15 Mar. 1705, names daughters Frances Sayer (Georg Newton's widow who had remarried to Major Francis Sayer), Alice Boush

Mary Cock (sic) and Dinah Thoroughgood, and sons Thomas, Lemuel and George. There was also a daughter, Abigail, who before 14 May 1690, was married to George Carford, at which date Lemuel Mason deeds them an island in Coratock, N. C., she probably predeceased her father. His wife Anne was afflicted with lameness in her limbs as recited in a deed to her of 100 acres of land 17 Apr. 1671.32. The Muster of William Gayne of Elizabeth City in 1624-5 shows him to be aged 35 and to have come out in the Bona Nova in 1620. He seems to have been in partnership with Robert Newman. Hotten, p. 253.

Mr. Richard Conquest was elected one of the Commissioners of Lower Norfolk Co. 16 March 1649 and in 1660 was High Sheriff. 34. John Dyer had wife Frances who, 15 Aug. 1642, was under censure of the Court for undue intimacy with Richard Poole.

35. Mr. William Moseley, Merchant, and family came to Virginia from Rotterdam, and he seems to have at once taken a prominent position in the affairs of the Colony, being elected one of the County Commissioners at the same session of Court at which the above Land Certificate was granted. He was probably a Goldsmith as we have record of a very splendid set of jewels sold by him to Capt. Francis Yardley in 1652, and which his wife Susan states that she had herself purchased at the Hague. His will dated 29 June was proved 15 Aug. 1655, he names in it cousin William Cockroft, grandchild Corker (compare the Susan Robinson al's Cocker named in the Head Rights), wife Susan and sons William and Arthur. His widow could have survived him but a very brief seried as Administration was granted on her estate to her son William the same period as Administration was granted on her estate to her son William the same day as the probate of her husband's will. This son William married Mary, daughter and heiress of Capt. John Gookin, and died in 1672, and his widow remarried to Lt. Col. Anthony Lawson; he left issue. Arthur, the second son, had wife Ann and numerous children; in 1696 and subsequent years he had licence to keep a tavern; he died in 1703.

36. Tho: White, aged 16, was passenger in the George, London to Virginia,

21 Aug. 1635.

37. Richard Foster, aged 16, was a passenger in the Safety, 10 Aug. 1635, Hotten, p. 122.

38. William Morton of Elizabeth City came in the Margett and John in 1620, he was 20 years old at the Muster of 1624-5. Hotten, pp. 186-249.

DESCENDANTS OF WALTER HAYNES AND PETER NOYES, OF SUDBURY, MASS.

By FREDERICK HAYNES NEWELL, Esq., of Washington, D. C.

THE following facts were obtained for the greater part from a copy of an old manuscript, the original of which was written by John Haynes (b. 1684) describing the families of his great grandparents Walter Haynes and Peter Noyes, who came to this country together and located in Sudbury. This was written later than 1772, since it gives that date, and was probably prepared when the writer of the original was nearly 90 years of age. The manuscript was found among the papers of his grandson Samuel Haynes (b. 1737) by the latter's grandson Wm. F. Haynes, and a copy was made by his cousin Clark Lewis Haynes (b. 1807) the grandfather of the present writer, Frederick Haynes Newell.

Savage's Genealogical Dictionary gives many of the more important of these names and dates, and a comparison shows a remarkably close agreement in details. The old manuscript, however, gives much information of the fourth generation and children succeeding -facts not otherwise recorded so far as has been ascertained. historical narrative concerning Walter Haynes, Peter Noyes and their sons, reference should be made to the History of Sudbury, Mass., by Alfred Serano Hudson, published by the town in 1889.

1. WALTER HAYNES was born in England in 1583, in the town of Sutton, Mandeville, county of Wilts.* He also owned a house and out-buildings in the village of Shaston, situated in the island of Purbeck, in the south-eastern portion of Dorsetshire. He, with family and servants, arrived in Boston in 1638, in ship Confidence (see Savage, also REGISTER vol. ii. p. 108). In the same ship came Peter Noyes, yeoman, of Penton, county of Southampton, with children and servants.

Walter Haynes was a linen weaver, and was 55 years of age when he came to this country. About a year after his arrival, he with others removed from Watertown, having obtained a grant for a township named Sudbury, where they settled Dec. 22, 1639. He was made freeman 1640, was representative in the years 1641, 1644, 1648 and 1651, and was one of the Selectmen of Sudbury for ten years. He died Feb. 14, 1665, aged 82. (See Whitman's History of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, 1842, p. 97.) Nothing is known of his wife Elizabeth. They had children (date and order of birth not known):

- Тиомаs,<sup>2</sup> d. single.
   ii. John, b. 1621, in England; m. Dorithy, daughter of Peter Noyes.
- 4. iii. Josiah, m. Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Noyes.

THE WIDOW OF DAVID THOMSON.

By FRANK W. HACKETT, of Portsmouth, N. H.

EVERY new fact relating to the fortunes, or the family, of David Thomson, the first settler of New Hampshire, is, it is hardly needful to say, of historic interest. Landing early in 1623, with his little band, at the mouth of the Pascataqua, building there a substantial house, and fortifying it; in 1626 himself removing with wife and child, or children, to an island in Boston harbor, that to this day bears his name,—and dying soon after, the little that is known of Thomson's career excites a desire to ascertain what manner of man he was, and what, in its fullest bearings, was the purpose of his coming hither.

It is to be hoped that records will some day come to light that shall make us better acquainted with these "old planters," whose courage and enterprise entitle them to grateful remembrance. Meanwhile it is a pleasure to announce that a mystery is at last dispelled which hitherto has attached to Thomson, and has long perplexed our local historians. I refer to the fact now made certain that the widow of David Thomson became later the wife of no less a personage than Samuel Mayerick.

The date of Maverick's marriage to Mrs. Amias Thomson is conjectural, but of the occurrence of the event itself there can be no doubt. Thomson died "soon after" coming to Thomson's Island, probably in 1626. His widow was married to Maverick, perhaps late in 1627.* The Reverend William Blackstone was at hand to perform the ceremony according to the rites of the Church of England.

It may interest the reader to learn how it has lately come to be known that Amias Maverick was none other than Amias, widow of David Thomson.

Being engaged in the preparation of a volume upon Samuel Maverick, to be printed by the Prince Society, I could not but be struck with the value of the clues afforded by a letter of Amias Maverick, addressed to Robert Trelawny, of Plymouth, a friend of her father, and one who "loved" her first husband. The letter, which will be found at page 76 of that admirable volume "The Trelawny Papers," edited by James Phinney Baxter (Documentary History of Maine, vol. iii., Portland, 1884), is dated 20th November, 1635, * Governor Bradford's Letter Book (Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, 1st Series, vol. 3, page 63) gives the name of "Mrs. Thomson" as a contribute to the expense of removing Morton. The letter sent to England with Morton bears day June 9, 1628; and from an expression of Bradford it might be inferred that Mrs. Thomsor contributed "at the same time." It is to be observed, however, that the proceedings against Morton were not suddenly conceived, or executed; and Gov. Bradford may have allude to a subscription list (confessedly imperfect), begun possibly as early as 1627.

at "Nottells Iland in Massachusetts Bay." The writer therein refers to her "fatherless children" by her first husband.

At the suggestion of Mr. Baxter, I addressed a letter of enquiry to the historian of Plymouth, Mr. R. N. Worth. My letter spoke of Samuel Maverick and David Thomson, as in my belief connected in business relations, and both devoted to the interests of Gorges. I asked if some traces of Thomson were not to be found in the church records at Plymouth, or something to indicate who was Amias Maverick's father; and I enclosed a copy of the seal used by Mrs. Maverick.

Mr. Worth very promptly responded as follows, under date of 11th September, 1891:

I think there is a clue to Amias Maverick's identity, which I will try if possible to follow up further. Her seal is what is called a merchant's mark, and I believe it to be that of Moses Goodyear, who was originally Robert Trelawny's partner in the New England grant in 1631, but who soon after isappears. His wife was a daughter of Abraham Jennings, a merchant of Plymouth, and I believe is the lady in question, though unfortunately as yet I can't put my hand on her Christian name. That she should use Goodyear's seal is quite natural. Goodyear was probably about the same are as Robert Trelawny, who was born in 1598, and his widow therefore would be quite of reasonable age to marry Maverick.

As to Mr. Clemett I have no doubt he is John Clement, whom Robert Trelawny made an overseer of his will in 1639; and who may or may not have been the John Clement who was mayor of Plymouth in 1615.

It is negative evidence, but the only other Plymouth families of note at this time connected with merchantry, whose names began with G, were Gorges and the Gayers (these connected with the Trelawnys), but she can't be placed among them.

Thomson I believe will be hopeless, unless accident helps. It is such a common name that I feel convinced that it does not occur, as you want it in the town records, all of which have passed through my hands.

With exemplary kindness Mr. Worth continued his researches, until he was enabled to communicate the gratifying intelligence that he had found what we were after, and hit upon a true solution of the difficulty. The following is a copy of his letter:

4 Seaton Avenue, Plymouth, Nov. 5, 1891.

My dear Sir:

The Amias Maverick mystery is solved, and with it a part of the David Thomson. I have been hunting the registers of an old parish church here, the only one up to the date in question—St. Andrew's. At first I got no trace, and found no Amias among the baptisms. Amy and Annis and Avice there was, but nothing more. Having exhaused the probable years of hirth, I turned to the weddings and soon found that Moyses Goodyeare married Ann Crane, March 21, 1619.

a that failed; but at length I worked backward, and in 1613 came on entry, under date July 13: David Thomson and Amyes Colle. So your two mysteries when run to earth turn out to be one. It is one of the most curious coincidents in my experience.

You need have no doubt as to the identity. I found no other Amias or Amyes for at least forty years, and no other Thomson. He was evidently not a Plymouth man. Quite as clearly she was a Plymouth woman, for though I could not find the entry of her birth, the Colles or Coles were a Plymouth family; and about the time when she must have been born there were four Coles having children baptized year by year,—Thomas, Vincest, William and Robert. There are a few illegible names in the register, and a month here and there is recorded as wanting in the latter decades of the sixteenth century, or she may have been baptized in an adjacent parish; but Amias Maverick is clearly Amyes Thomson, who was Amyes Colle or Cole. I am delighted to have been able to run her to earth. The seal clearly could not have been hers, or her husband's, though had the G been a C it might have been her father's. I suppose there is no chance of the original being a C.

I also came across the entry of the baptism of John Winter, which I had been told could not be found. John Wynter, son of Robert Wynter, was baptized July 6, 1595. That may be of use to you. . . . . .

Yours respectfully,

R. N. WORTH.

As for the seal, one may say after a minute examination that it is by no means certain that the letter is not a "C," after all. Curiously enough the seal that Amias Maverick uses is identical with that adopted by Richard Vines. (See vol. vii., 4th Series, Massachusetts Historical Society Collections). To this identity in the employment of a seal Mr. Baxter has called attention in a note to the Trelawny Papers. It is not beyond the range of possibility that the circumstance of an identical seal, thus used, may lead to some discovery of consequence.

Nor is it unlikely that the marriage of Samuel Maverick and Mrs-Amias Thomson thus ascertained may have been the first wedding by church ceremony of our English ancestors upon the soil of New England.

7. Stephen* Crane (Benjamin, Stephen, Henry), born in Braintree May 19, 1734, removed to Canton, Mass., where he built a house on the shores of Punkapoag Brook, near its junction with the Neponset river. A short distance below his house, a paper mil had been built in 1730, by a company, one of whom was Danie Henchman, book-seller and publisher of Boston, which was run for a few years but could not be sustained. "In 1760 the business was again revived by James Boies of Boston, who procured a paper maker from a British regiment then stationed in Boston, by the name of Hazelton, who obtained a furlough long enough to set the mill to work."* This was carried on in rather a small way until the revolt of the colonies threw them on their own resources in this as well as in so many other manufactures.

As business increased many more workmen were called in, amongst whom were two sons of Stephen Crane, Stephen junior and Zenas. After the former became skilled in the work, he went to Newton Lower Falls where he built and managed a paper mill of his own.

Stephen Crane married, Nov. 13, 1762, Susannah, daughter of Nathaniel<sup>5</sup> and Susannah (Tucker) Badcock, who was born at Milton, Feb. 7, 1742. They had children:

THOMAS CRANE (Thomas, Ebenezer, Henry), born at Braintree, Feb. 16, 1735, early removed to Boston, where he first engaged in trucking, then as a wharfinger. In 1772, he with his wife Ann sell a brick house that stood next the Green Dragon; in 1783, he owned a house on Essex Street; in 1784 Ebenezer Woodward, whom he calls his brother-in-law, deeded a certain portion of a wharf which Ebenezer Woodward had purchased of Leonard Vassall Borland, under the name of Borland's wharf, to Thomas Crane, which was from that time called Crane and Woodward's wharf. Here the two pursued their several avocations, Mr. Woodward as cooper and merchant, and Thomas Crane as wharfinger, with joint partnership in a salt wharf adjoining which they held in common. Just before his decease, Ebenezer Woodward gave a deed of the whole to Thomas Crane. Later this wharf was known as Central Wharf.

Thomas Crane married Ann, probably a daughter of Richard and Ann Pattishall. Richard Pattishal took his degree at Harvard, of B. A. 1735; M. A. 1738; preached occasionally and was also a teacher of a private school in the north part of Boston, "on Hanover Street three houses below the Orange tree, in Mr. Bradford's house." His father, Robert Pattishall, a wealthy merchant of the city, bought four thousand acres of land above Saco river falls from Major William Phillips, 16. 1. 1667. His brother, Richard Pattishall, had removed to Pemaquid, Maine, and owned a sloop which plied between that point and Boston. This sloop, as it lay near the barbican, in 1689, was that used to convey the trembling fugitives from Pemaquid Fort, after the massacre by the savages, to Boston, although Richard Patishell himself was slain.

In his will drawn Feb. 8, 1791, probated Sept. 12, 1791, Thomas Crane mentions his wife Ann, his brother Joseph Crane, cordwainer, of Braintree, and his mother-in-law Mrs. Ann Patteshall, but no children.

On his return, John, with his elder brother, Abijah Crane, junior, learned the housewright's trade, and together they bought, in 1767, of Andrew Belcher, a house, land and a shop in Boston, on Nassau Street, now Tremont, near Dr. Byles's meeting-house, and butted by land of Deacon John Eliot, John Withington, and directly opposite what is now Hollis Street, where Joseph Lovering's tallow chandlery stood. Further down Tremont Street, on the part then called Long Acre, near the old Province House, Adino Paddock, a London coach maker, owned a large estate. He had some young elms brought from the Robbins farm at Brush Hill in Milton, by John Crane and Gilbert Deblois, and they set them out opposite Major Paddock's place before the South or "Granary" Burying Ground Paddock was then a captain of a train of artillery composed of mechanics, in 1774, and in that John Crane received his military training.

Both John and his brother Abijah were hot patriots, and it was at their shop that some seventeen men under disguise of Indians, late in the afternoon of Dec. 16, 1773, started for Griffin's (now Liverpool) wharf, where three Indiamen, laden with tea, were anchored. As they went through the narrow, crooked streets, a crowd of men and boys swelled their number to about seventy.

When abroad ships, as John Crane was down in a hold flinging out the tea chests, one of them fell upon him and he was picked up senseless, to all appearance dead. Some of the men carried him ashore and hid him under a heap of shavings in a carpenter's shop near by.

After the passage of the Boston Port Bill, John Crane, finding it hard to support his family in the stagnation of trade that ensued, removed with his partner Ebenezer Stevens, to Providence, R. I. Soon after, the news of the fight at Bunker Hill roused them; they immediately raised two companies of artillery, marched to Roxbury and joined Colonel Gridley's regiment; when Crane was appointed major and Stevens captain in the Rhode Island Train Band.

From this time until the close of the war, Major Crane was in constant service. July 8, 1775, he, with Major Tupper and a company of volunteers, attacked a British advanced guard on Boston neck and routed them. He commanded a breast-work on the neck during the siege of Boston; January 1, 1776, he received a commission as major in Knox's regiment of artillery, and went with the army to New York. Sept. 14, 1776, a part of one of his feet was shot off whilst he was cannonading a British frigate that was running by Corlaier's Hook, and was thus disabled for a time. Jan. 1, 1777, he received a colonel's rank and raised a regiment in Massachusetts "which was officered chiefly by those who had been trained under Paddock, Gridley and Knox, which was principally employed in the main army near the person of the commander-in-chief and was relied on as an essential auxiliary in the most important battles. No military organization in the army participated in so many eventful scenes or won more laurels; portions of it were with Sullivan in the Rhode Island campaign; with Gates at Saratoga and in the heroic defence of Red Hook on the Delaware; he was brevetted brigadier general, Sept. 30, 1783."* He was a member of the had one son Josiah, and daughters. Josiah had no sons. These three are supposed to be related. William was an apprentice, married a Barker and went to Bridgewater. Mitchell has an account of his descendants, which are found later in Providence.

1. NICHOLAS' SNOW came in the Ann in 1623, and had share in the division of land in Plymouth, 1624; settled in Eastham in 1645; a man of much note. We find where he lived, and his neighbors, from Plymouth Colony Records, vol. 1, page 59. "A heigh waye" "from Plymouth to the Eele River. . . . The upper way to Thomas Clarkes still; the lower way from Ralph Wallens right out to Holmans Rock; allowed fourty foote on the west side, and so straight to Manesses Kempton's ground, whose fence is to be removed twenty foote inward, and so passing betweene two rocks at the brooke, straight to Edward Banges, leaveing his house west, and so along, leaveing Nicholas Snowes house east & so to Mr Hopkin's house, leaveing it east, and so up the valley to Thomas Clarkes uper stile, the foote way to be continued from Mr Hopkin's, in the old path, belowe Thomas Clarkes to the heigh way," etc.

He was freeman 1633. He with six others-Mr. Thomas Prence, John Doane, Nicholas Snow, Josias Cook, Richard Higgins, John Smally, and Edward Bangs-seven families, in all forty-nine souls, began the settlement of Eastham-at first called Nauset, early in 1645. It "is granted to be a township, and to have all the privileges of a township as other towns within the government have " in 1646. "Thus recognized a meeting of the inhabitants, duly convened, elected Nicholas Snow Town clerk, Edward Banks town treasurer, & Josias Cooke town constable." Nicholas Snow was town clerk from 1646, sixteen years; was deputy from 1648, three years; was selectman from 1663, seven years. He and his son Mark signed the call to Rev. John Mayo to settle as their minister in 1655. He was one of Gov. Thomas Prence's associates. We think he was born in Eng-

Henry F. Waters, in his Genealogical Gleanings in England (REGISTER, vol. 39, page 166), states that Joseph Walker of St. Margaret's, city of Westminster, gentleman, in his will dated 13 Feb. 1666, proved Feb. 27, 1666, bequeaths "to my kinswoman Mary Snow, wife of Nicholas Snow, citizen & armourer of London, whome I nominate executrix." Also the will of George Upham Wiveliscombe, Somerset, dated 1653, mentions testator's brother-in-law Nicholas Snow. This Nicholas Snow and Mary his wife may have been the parents of our Nicholas. He names his oldest daughter Mary.

He died at Eastham, Nov. 15, 1676. He married in Plymouth, Constance Hopkins, daughter of Mr. Stephen Hopkins, and a former wife. They came in the Mayflower. Bradford, in his History of Plymouth Plantation (Collections of Massachusetts Historical Society, 4th Series, vol. 3, page 448), gives in the list of the Mayflowerites:- "Mr Steven Hopkins & Elizabeth his wife, & 2 children caled Giles & Constanta a doughter, both by a former wife; and 2 more by this wife caled Damaris & Oceanus, the last was borne at sea, & 2 servants, called Edward Dotey, & Edward Litster." In 1650 he writes, "Mr Hopkins & his wife are now both dead, but they lived about 20 years in this place, & had one sone & 4 daughters born here. Their son became a seaman & dyed at Barbadoes, one daughter dyed here, & two are married, one of them hath 2 children, & one is yet to marry. So their increase which still survive are 5, but his son Giles is married, & has 4 children. His daughter Constanta is also married, & hath 12 children, all of them living, & one married." (Ibid, page 452.)

Goodwin, in his Pilgrim Republic (page 185), says that the Martins, Molines and Hopkins joined the Pilgrims in England.

Constance (Hopkins) Snow died Oct. 1677.

Nicholas does not mention his daughters in his will, and we suppose they received their portions when they married. The ages of his children are only guessed at, and the order in which they came, and I should be very glad of corrections. Nicholas Snow and Constance (Hopkins) Snow had children:

NICHOLAS SNOW.

SAMUEL TREAT THOMAS PAINE, SEN.

It is my desire that Dea. Samuel Freeman and John Mayo would oversee the same and faithful performance of this my last will and testament; and be helpful in any case of need concerning the same.

- 2. Mark Snow (Nicholas'), born May 9, 1628; was a man of large usefulness and influence. In 1679 "Select Courts" "being established by law, Capt Jonathan Sparrow, Mr Mark Snow & Mr John Doane were commissioned to hold them in this town." In 1675 Mark Snow was chosen deputy, and continued deputy for six years. In 1667 Mark Snow was chosen selectman, and was selectman eighteen years. In 1663 he was chosen town clerk, and was town clerk fifteen years. He died in 1695, in Eastham. He married 1st, probably in Eastham, Jan. 18, 1655, Anne Cook, daughter of Josiah Cook, and had one child:
- 13. 1. Anne Snow, born in Eastham, July 7, 1656; the mother died July 25, 1656. Mark Snow married 2d, Jane Prence, Jan. 9, 1660, daughter of Gov. Thomas and Mary (Collier) Prence. She was born in Duxbury, Nov. 1, 1637; died at Harwich, about 1711. "Widow Jane Snow admitted to church in Harwich, April, 1701."

HOPE ALLEN OF BOSTON.

By ORRIN P. ALLEN, Esq., of Palmer, Mass.

THE first glimpse we get of Hope Allen, is found in the Boston Town Records (Second Report of Record Commissioners of Boston): "The 29th 7 mo, 1651. At a meeting this Day of the Select men, Hope Allen, a Currier, is admitted an inhabitant."-(page 106). On May 14, 1660, Hope Allen and wife Rachel of Boston sell for £400 to Samuel Bennett, their new dwelling house in Boston. May 31, 1660, he purchased 400 acres of land on Casco River (now Portland, Me.), of George Cleeves. May 23, 1666, he petitions the court that tanners and shoemakers may not exercise the trade of a currier. May 31, 1670, he is fined £10 for allowing his daughter to marry Mr. Deacon without the prescribed form of being

His will was written in Boston, May 3, 1677, and may be seen in the Suffolk Probate Records, as well as an inventory of his estate made July 27, 1677, valued at £660—exclusive of the property in Falmouth.

HOPE ALLEN'S family, with the exception of Edward, and the daughter who married Mr. Deacon, are found on the Boston Records as follows:

EDWARD, b. probably before 1650.

Daughter, name not known; m. Mr. Deacon, about 1670.

iii. JACOB, b. Feb. 22, 1653. iv. JOSEPH, b. Oct. 4, 1655.

- LEAH, b. May 16, 1657; d. July 9, 1657.
- MARTHA, b. June 15, 1659. Martha d. young. vi.
- vii. MARY, viii. BENJAMIN, b. Jan. 10, 1661.
- ix.
- MARTHA, b. Mar. 30, 1664. RACHEL, bapt. 16th 7 mo. 1666.

Of the above, Jacob, Joseph, Rachel, Mary and Benjamin were bapt. at the First Church, 16th 7 mo. 1666. His wife Rachel d. about 1661. He m. (2) Mary -, about 1669. She d. 1670. Child:

xi. John, b. Nov. 24, 1670; bapt. 20th 9 mo, 1670.

He m. (3) Hannah ——, about 1671. Children:

xii. JAMES, xiii. ELIZABETH, b. Sept. 6, 1672.

xiv. DEBORAH, b. Mar. 26, 1674; bapt. 29th 1 mo. 1674.

xv. RACHEL, b. May 16, 1676. xvi. Hope, b. June 18, 1677.

Hope Allen, sen., died probably in June or July, 1677. His widow Hannah married Richard Knight, about 1683. In his will Hope Allen devises the 400 acres of land in Falmouth to his eldest son Edward, and a portion to his wife Hannah and children Jacob, Benjamin, Mary, Elizabeth and Deborah. His youngest child Hope was not then born; from this it would appear that the rest of his children were deceased. His son Edward settled in Dover, N. H.; he had a son Edward born in Boston, July 11, 1671, and Hannah, bapt. 20th 4 mo. 1675, and probably Jacob, b. in Dover, and possibly others. Edward, sen., resided many years in Dover, about 1676, where he was a prominent man, and where he and his wife Sarah probably died. His son Edward settled early in Nantucket, and was the progenitor of numerous descendants.

QUERIES.—Who were the parents of Hope Allen? Is it not known just when he arrived in New England, and if so at what place? Who were the three wives of Hope Allen, and who were their parents? Who were the parents of Sarah, the wife of Edward Allen, son of Hope? What was the date of death of Edward and Sarah Allen? Is there anything known of the after history of Jacob and Benjamin, sons of Hope Allen? Any information concerning the family of Hope Allen will be thankfully received by the writer, who is compiling a genealogy of his descendants.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

NOTES.

CONVNGHAM AND PEYTON.—I wish to protest in the REGISTER against some of the mistaken deductions of "Browning's Americans of Royal Descent." An examination of the latest edition of this work just issued reveals the repetition of two pedigrees for which there is not the least foundation in fact.

1. That of Conyngham of Letterkenny, Ireland; Philadelphia and Wilkes-Barré, Pa. The American branch of this family unites with me in protesting against Browning's assumptive pedigree on p. 603 of this work. He there gives the royal descent of this line from Donal the 173d monarch of Ireland, through Donal-Gem MacSweeney and his wife Honora, daughter of Owen MacSweeny, whose daughter he states married Alexander Conyngham of Rossguil, the known head of the Conyngham line of Pennsylvania. This assumption he bases not on any examination of documentary authorities, but on a very brief and imperfect sketch written by myself for suggestion, not for publication, in 1880; sent by me to Mr. John O'Hart, author of "Irish Pedigrees," in Dublin, as an aid to the examination I wished him to make in re Conyngham. O'Hart, to my surprise, printed this sketch in his 2d Ed., pp. 433-4, without even correcting his proof, and Browning, without submitting the matter to the family in Wilkes-Barré, reprinted it in his work, errors and all, and, accepting the MacSweeney tradition as fact, has made the wife of Alexander Conyngham of Rossguil a daughter of the above Donal Gem. This Donal Gem died in 1686, leaving 10 children. Alexander Conyngham of Rossguil died about 1700, leaving 10 children. Only one of these lived to great age, i.e. Rev. William Conyngham, b. 1695, d. 1783, when his will was probated, aged 88. The others died 1749, 1754, 1759. The eldest son David died 1759, leaving 10 children, the eldest of whom was b. 1716; on him the estate of Alexander of Rossguil was entailed. Now supposing the tradition on p. 433 of O'Hart to be true, that Alexander of Bossgull went to Ireland 1600 and became the son-in-law of MacSweeney—which MacSweeney, Browning states, was Donal who died 1636—and that "MacSweeney would sometimes ascend with his son-in-law the summit of lofty Mackish, and point out the land taken from him by the Plantation of Ulster "(about 1610), surely Alexander Conyngham must have been born so late in the 16th century, or so early in the 17th century, as to make him at least 90 years old, if not 100, when his son William was born, 1695. The royal descent of Alexander Conyngham through the Scotch line could have been more easily demonstrated by Browning with careful research. It is proper to add that the Conyngham family of Pennsylvania knew nothing of his purpose to publish their line in

2. That of Peyton of England and Virginia on p. 193 and 612, in which he makes Colonel Valentine Peyton of Virginia the son of John Peyton of Bury St. Edmund (baptized 1596, came to Virginia 1644), and grandson of Thomas Peyton of St. Edmondsbury by his wife Cecelia, daughter of the Earl of Bath. He makes Col. Valentine d. s. p. m., and makes Henry Peyton his brother marry to Ellen Packington. There is not a scintilla of evidence for all this. Col. Valentine Peyton was not the son of John, baptized 1596; he did not d. s. p. m., but married and left one son Gerard Peyton. His brother Henry did not marry Ellen Packington. John Peyton supra baptized 1596, did not come to Virginia. "Henry Peyton, Esquire," the father of Col. Valentine Peyton and Henry Peyton of Virginia, was born about 1590, and there is no evidence that he was the grandson of Thomas and Cecelia (Boucher) Peyton. This Peyton connection of the Virginia line with the English line in Browning's work is entirely erroneous. In my work "Virginia Genealogies," p. 460, et seq., these deductions of Browning are disproved by documentary evidence. The only royal descent known in the Virginia Peyton line is that through Major Robert Peyton of Gloucester Co., Va., whose descendants still live in Virginia. The only male representatives of this line known are Col. Jesse E. Peyton of Haddenfield, N. L. and his sons. Their royal descent comes through Sir William donfield, N. J., and his sons. Their royal descent comes through Sir William Calthorpe, knight, whose granddaughter was wife of Sir Robert Peyton, Kt., of Iselham, 1498-1550.

HOLBROOK. - Who was Alice, the wife of Peter Holbrook? He was native of mintree, where their first child was born 1679; removed to Mendon about 80, and was deacon, selectman, etc. Alice died in Mendon, April 29, 1705. Who was Hannah, wife of John Holbrook? He was native of Braintree, but ed at Mendon, where he was cornet, selectman, etc.; one of the petitioners r incorporation of Bellingham. Hannah died there in 1770 in her 86th year. e had married Holbrook about 1705.

Who was Hannah, wife of John Pond? He was of Wrentham, and they were wried perhaps 1686. She died in Wrentham, 1691.

Who was Rachel Clark to whom Jonathan Flsher of Wrentham was married Boston, Aug. 15, 1718? I presume that Fisher was the man whose will is in ston probate, dated Dec. 17, 1718, and presented Jan. 12 following, and that widow, April 14, 1720, became the wife of John Pond of Wrentham, and d in Medway, Feb. 15, 1770, in her 78th year. m to them in 1700, and his estate was settled in 1725.

Who was Mary, the wife of Colonel John Knowles of Eastham? She was tried prior to 1696 and her grave-stone says that she died Nov. 7, 1745, in her byear. Edward D. Harris, 274 Broadway, New York.

ARTIN.-Wanted, the first name of the Webster woman who married Abijah rtin about 1750, in some town near old Woodbury, Conn. MRS. E. M. GUILFORD. Vinneapolis, Minn., 139 Aldrich Avenue.

WALCOTT.—Jonathan Walcott Jr., b. Sept. 1, 1770, was the son of Sergeant Jonathan and Mary (Sibley) Walcott, of Salem Village, Mass. Jonathan Walcott Jr. married about 1693-4, Priscilla Bayley of Newbury, by whom, according to Salem First Church Records, he had a daughter b. 1693-4. And also, according to the same records, Dec. 28, 1712, Sarah and Priscilla, daughters of Jonathan Walcott Jr., were paptized as "adults." Jonathan Jr. also paid church rates in 1694-5, and at this date Priscilla Walcott and also Jonathan Jr. were in a list of Householders.

Jonathan Jr. paid church rates in the years 1709-10-11-12. After the date of his daughter's baptism there seems to be no account. Can any one say where the family was between 1695 and 1709, and after the date of 1712?

Who was Jane Smith, who married about 1695, Isaac Turner, father of Capt. Isaac? I will be very grateful for any data relating to the above. Wilkes-Barré, Pa. HORACE EDWIN HAYDEN.

REPLIES.

ALDEN ITEMS.—Since my queries appeared in the July number of the REGISTE I have had many answers and many questions, and I will, with the Editor's permission, answer many of my own queries. I have visited Plymouth, examined the records, gravestones, and many authorities, and the result is I change all the dates of birth in John Alden's family. He was married between June 1, 1621, and the first part of 1623,—the second or third marriage. Mrs. Jane G. Austen found her authority for saying that Priscilla Mullines was of a Huguenot family, in Dr. Baird's "History of Huguenot Emigration to America," vol. 1, page 158. There is also a family tradition to that effect. They must have left Leyden and gone to Dorking, England, and joined the Pilgrims there. See John A. Goodwin's "Pilgrim Republic," and N. E. Reg., vol. 40, pages 62-3, where we also find that William Mullines left a son William in England, and a married daughter "Sara Blunden." This son came later to Plymouth, received his share of land, living on it 1633, freeman 1648, probably died in Brainno. 12, 1672. Bradford's journal says, in 1650 John Alden had eleven In division of land 1624, the number opposite John Alden's name is and Davies assumes it was 2, but I feel sure it was 3, for Elizabeth n then. In division of cattle May 22, 1627, John Alden and Priscilla abeth 3 years old, and John 1 year. Elizabeth's descendants have alimed that she was "the first white woman born in New England," and t diligent search fails to find another girl. Her tombstone says she 31, 1717, in her 94th year, making her born 1623. John, born 1626; car arms 1643; freeman 1648. His gravestone, discovered in Carlton oston (see N. E. Reg., vol. 25, pages 88-9) reads: "Here lyes ye Body ohn Alden, Senior, aged 75. Deceased March 14, 1701-2." From Mr. Jennison's possession it next appears in Dr. Shurtleff's, who gives it to mezer Alden, and after his death it is given to New Old South Church. Alden was born 1627, not 1624; freeman 1657. Jonathan was not the t son, was not born 1627, but 1633 about. His stone, in possession of cin Alden Bradford of Duxbury, reads: "Here lyes ye body of Jonathan died February ye 14th 1697 in the 65th year of his age." Ruth Alden rried in Duxbury, and died in Braintree, 8 mo. 12. 1674. How old was bavid was probably youngest son, born 1646, not 1626 (see Mass. Hist. ol. 2, First Series), and was father of Priscilla Alden who married Cheesebro' of Stonington in Duxbury, and also of Elizabeth (who marin Scabury), and not daughter of John Alden, 2d, as Alden Memorial She was grandmother of the first Episcopal bishop, Samuel Seabury. definitely settle John Alden's children :- Elizabeth, about 1623; John, oseph. 1627; Sarah, about 1629; Jonathan, about 1633; David, about Michell says "Zachariah Alden of Dnxbury" was father of Anna, who in Duxbury, Josiah Snell of Bridgewater (the ancestor of the poet Whether this Zachariah was son or grandson of the Pilgrim I do not If son, he was probably dead or a "mariner" absent, and husband of terious "Mary Alden" in the settlement; or she may have been Mercy, rried in Taunton, June 1688, John Burrill of Weymouth, and had family. like her descendants. #### HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE.

HICAL ESTATES IN ENGLAND.—The following article is copied from the Evening Transcript of August 29, 1892, too late for insertion in our number:—

Of course I have not seen the documents in Mr. Booth's possession. But it is a sad fact that for many years Americans have been deluded into spending time money, and peace of mind more valuable than either, in the vain pursuit of these enormous estates, "waiting heirs," "in the custody of the Lord Chancellor," or the "vaults of the Bank of England," which I believe have proved, one and all, as unattainable as Captain Kidd's buried treasure. The American legation in London has been so persecuted by applications for aid in these researches, that some years ago a circular was issued by the then American minister, copies of which can readily be obtained from the State Department at Washington, showing authoritatively that there are no such sums awaiting the acceptance of unknown claimants and that nothing but loss has resulted from every similar expectation. In the present case, I would point out that there is no Duke of Bridgewater. The last Duke of Bridgewater, the patron of Brinley, died in 1803, and the last Earl of Bridgewater (the originator of the well-known "Bridgewater treatises") in 1829. To conceive that any duke of Bridgewater or anything else, should be employed by the Court of Chancery to manage estates which have been unclaimed for 125 years, having been originally Crown lands willed by Queen Anne, involves more perversion of English law and history than could easily be crowded into so short a compass without effort. HISTORICUS.

Quincy, Aug. 26.
Not long after the above note appeared, the London correspondent of one of our papers, who could not possibly have seen my article, mentioned the case at length; confirming my statement that it was pure delusion, and pointing out, as I had done, the absurdity of introducing the Bridgewater title in 1892. It is to be hoped that the reinsertion of the note in the REGISTER may assist in checking the preposterous pursuit for unclaimed estates which exercises such a baneful influence on many New-England families. In the past year I was consulted as to the possibility of getting evidence of the marriage of a certain lady, because her descendants represented a family which had emigrated from the Orkneys early in the last century, and were entitled to great estates there.

The father of the present Lord Inchiquin, whom everybody in Ireland knows to be the undoubted head of the O'Briens, on succeeding to his title at the death of Lord Thomond-a succession not in the least contested, and as certain as Queen Victoria's-had to prove to the House of Lords the lawful birth and marriage of every ancestor back to the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when his branch of the O'Briens separated. The expense, for a not over rich man, was very serious, though the matter was one of pure formality, and nothing but a title of honor, involving no estates, was at issue. What it would cost to clinch a score of births at present unknown, in a genealogical chain which would entitle the representative of some early New-England emigrant to "unclaimed" estateif there ever were such a thing-is beyond the power of Rider Haggard to WILLIAM EVERETT.

LEWIS AND CLARKE'S EXPEDITION OVER THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS .- Dr. Elliott Coues has been actively engaged preparing a new and important edition of Lewis and Clarke's Expedition over the Rocky Mountains in the years 1804, 1805 and 1806, which will be published shortly by Francis P. Harper, New York.

It will comprise a faithful reprint of the Philadelphia edition of 1814, the best and only complete one, with a bibliographical preface, biographical sketches, and numerous valuable explanatory, ethnological, geographical and scientific notes to the text by the editor. Maps, plates, and an index to the entire work will be added.

Dr. Coues is well fitted for this task, having made a specialty of the literature of the Lewis and Clarke Expedition, and has been over the entire ground the explored. This new edition, which will be limited, will entirely supersede all others.

JOURNAL OF SERGEANT JOHN HAWKS, 1748. - Some years ago I found in the MS. Archives of Massachusetts the fragment of a Journal without date, which was wrongly indexed as of 1725, but which I indentified as that kept by Sergt. John Hawks—of Fort Massachusetts farm—on his return from an embassy to Canada to exchange prisoners in 1748. It covers the period from his parting with his rench escort at the head of Black River, April 26, to his arrival at Deerfield, april 30, with Samuel Allen one of the exchanged prisoners.

The query is, where is the first part of this Journal? George Sheldon.

Deerfield, Mass.

GENEALOGIES IN PREPARATION.—Persons of the several names are advised to urnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that if facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, specially service under the U.S. government, the holding of other offices, unduation from college or professional schools, occupation, with places and ates of hirths, marriages, residence and death. When there are more than one bristian name they should all be given in full if possible. No initials should a used when the full names are known.

NECROLOGY OF THE NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

THE Editor would inform the Society, that the sketches prepared for the REGISTER are necessarily brief in consequence of the limited pace which can be appropriated. All the facts, however, which can be athered are retained in the Archives of the Society, and will aid in more mended memoirs for which the "Towne Memorial Fund," the gift of the ate William B. Towne, is provided. Four volumes, printed at the charge this fund, entitled "Memorial Biographies," edited by the Committee on Memorials, have been issued. They contain memoirs of all the sembers who have died from the organization of the society to the year $52. A fifth volume is in press.

How. John Rodman Rollins died at Derry, N. H., on Tuesday, 13 September, 522. Theore, a few days afterward, his remains were conveyed to the cemery at Lawrence, under escort of many of his companions in arms, the officials f the city, past and present members of the school committee and teachers, and a large concourse of citizens. The schools were closed and the bells tolled, last fit tokens, on earth, of respect to the beloved, honored citizen.

Rollins was born at Newburyport, 9 February, 1817, son of Lieut.-Col. and Elizabeth (Sawyer) Rollins of that town; was fitted for college at the nies of Essex County, and was graduated at Dartmouth with the class of 1836, becoming A.M. in 1839. For some years he was an instructor at Byfield Academy, and principal of the Lunenburg High School; for four years he was an accountant of the Fitchburg Railroad in its Boston office; for eleven years he was the book-keeper and pay-master of the Essex Company at Lawrence; for thirteen years he was the cashier of the Pacific Mills; for eight years he was cashier of the Broadway Bank in that city; for a while he was an assistant in the Clearing House of the Boston banks and superintendent of a mining enterprise in Colorado.

Beside these many years of active and honorable business life, he served the town of Lunenburg as town clerk and school committee for four years; the City of Lawrence as mayor for two years, as a member of the school committee for thirty-five years, and as its superintendent of schools. For many years he was a trustee of the Essex Savings Bank. In 1862-3 he was captain of Co. H. Fourth Regiment Mass. Volunteers, and saw service in the Louisiana campaign.

Mr. Rollins was elected a member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society in 1851, and became a life member in 1872. He was an honorary member of the Historical Society of Wisconsin, and a member of the Harleian Society of London.

His immediate ancestry, for several generations, had the singular infelicity of raising but a single son, and to this inheritance he was no exception. He had the misfortune to lose his mother in his ninth year, and his father in his sixteenth. Known in youth as the promising, talented son of one of the most popular and admired gentlemen of Newburyport, he cherished, throughout his long life, an abiding interest in his native city, her citizens and her institutions. He was possessed of a gentle soul and a genial humor. His temperament was scholarly, and he found congenial his early vocation as a school-master. His reading was wide and his information accurate beyond that of ordinary men. He wrote a felicitous, robust prose and was unusually happy in occasional verse, some of which appeared in the magazines of a generation ago. He compiled and published an excellent genealogy of his immediate branch of the Rollins family, and had an extensive collection of material for that of the collateral branch, which is preserved in MS. In his hours of recreation and vacation he had gathered a mineralogical cabinet which, duly labelled and catalogued, he presented, upon his departure to the war, to the library of the Lawrence High School. During his military and mining career, he kept a journal of events and occurrences, a task for which he was peculiarly qualified.

He had a high sense of honor and his integrity was spotless. It was his duty, for a period of years, to serve as the disbursing agent for some of the largest corporations of Massachusetts, where thousands, mounted to millions, passed through his hands, without defilement or the shadow of a suspicion. In all the high stations he was called to fill, both public and private, his demeanor was courteous and gracious, unaffected and sincere.

Mr. Rollins married, 20 November, 1844, Miss Sarah Stearns Patterson, daughter of Dea. James and Sarah (Stearns) Patterson, of Lunenburg, where she was born 15 March, 1821. Mrs. Rollins died at Lawrence, 30 August, 1883. Of their children two survive—Elizabeth, wife of Rev. F. C. Saure, of Derry, N. H., and William Herbert Rollins, M.D., D.M.D. of this city.

Three Episodes of Massachusetts History. The Settlement of Boston Bay; The Antinomian Controversy; A Study of Church and Town Government. By CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS. Boston and New York: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1892. The Riverside Press, Cambridge. 12mo.; 2 vols.; pp. 532 and 535.

The Centennial Milestone. An Address in Commemoration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Incorporation of Quincy, Mass.; delivered July 4, 1892. By Charles Francis Adams. Cambridge: John Wilson & Son, printers. University Press. 1892. Pamphlet, 8vo.; pp. 59. se two bound volumes are, in fact, one. The second begins with page and ends, with an index to both volumes, at page 1067. Two light and books are thus provided, not burdensome to hold in reading, nor too cous to be pocketed or bagged for perusal during a railroad or steamboat. The binding is comely and surfaced to resist dust, and the typography with ample space between the lines. The date of the year constantly is at the top of the page, referring to the text below, and there is the nt additional convenience of a double date wherever the day of the month in, corresponding to the difference between the old and new style.

three episodes are: the settlement of Boston Bay; the Antinomian consy, so called; and the evolution of the author's place of residence, the city ney, from its condition at the time of the white man's first appearance. That date was 1625, and in the interval the place has borne, successively, mes of Mount Wollaston, Braintree and Quincy. For a single discourse ree episodes might seem to be topics wide apart, but they have something mon, as the author demonstrates, and under his portraiture they appear ee cherries pendent from one stem. He explains in his preface that the ting to write came through certain investigations made in preparing an commemorative of the settlement of the neighboring town of Weys. That prompting was in the first instance only to the production of a y of Quincy, but the theme broadened in contemplation as he proceeded, he result was the more comprehensive historical discussion entitled as

t part of the book which deals with the history of Quincy is less full in than are many town histories, but the characteristic and what may be the picturesque facts of record have been sedulously sought out, and are resented in chronological order, lucidly, and with much sage commentary. s method, and under the author's skilful treatment, the local reader or resident has no cause to complain, and those identified, by residence or rise, with any of the ancient towns of Massachusetts, are benefited th the reflected light which this narration of the experience of Braintree uincy will supply, for illumination of contemporary records in those while the stranger and student, who desires only a typical instance of ew-England town system, need search no farther. Furthermore, the ction is, as the author intimates, that in the vicissitudes of this, or other of the ancient towns of Massachusetts, may be studied, in ure, the mutations of the nation's history (that which has been or will nce the same ethical and political principles have sway in the little and eat republic. To many readers, what the author has to say under this title town of Quincy will prove the most interesting of the three chapters; it be so, the reviewer is inclined to think that it is a case of seeming best se appearing last. Judged by the literary canons, the second in succession, n the Antinomian controversy, should have the palm; while in the field of chusetts or New England historical discussion, the first, or that relating beginnings of civilization on these shores, is the most valuable.

is be remarked, that to a considerable extent this product of Mr. Adams's not new to readers of current historical literature; but these will value less than others, as being now put into permanent form and made readily tible. All readers will be gratified in finding so much of information cong things remote, and, as regards many of them, embodied in the original is in a manner to be confusing, here brought together and fused into ancy and made intelligible. Whoever, hereafter, will write of New Engearly history, either with reference to phases of that history or with reference geographical divisions, will need to have Mr. Adams's two handy volumes reach. The aid they will supply is partly consequent upon the thoroughed wide scope of his investigations, indicated by abundant foot-notes and references, and partly upon the author's habit of passing an independent cent upon all mooted points; therein, in some instances, presenting an al and novel view. These personal interpretations are not all likely to have I acceptance, but all will be scanned because of their evident sincerity

that he has to say of the beginnings of New England, the author gives t of the presence on the coast in 1497 and 1498 of Sebastian Cabot, and glimpse in the haze of things of Capt. John Smith, in 1614; but Sir

Ferdinando Gorges is quite distinctly limned as the colossal figure in that beginning. After some account of Gorges' prior military career, he is presented in the period between 1601 and 1605 as the military governor of Plymouth, in England, and as entering about that time into colonizing schemes with Sir John Popham, chief justice of the King's bench. To Popham's influence is attributed the grant of two royal charters, one to the London and one to the Plymouth Popham and Georges identified themselves with the latter company, whose territory took in the whole coast from the Potomac River to the outer verge of Cape Breton. Each of these dignitaries sent out an expedition in 1606. Popham died in 1607, and thenceforward for a period of years Gorges appears to have been a promoter, either directly or indirectly through his agents, of all the movements looking to colonization in what is now Massachusetts. The Pilgrim Fathers were influenced in their decision to come to New England by Weston, who, if not the agent of Gorges in this particular matter, was such in other matters, and held intimate relations with him. One of the signatures upon the patent by which the Pilgrims held title to their domain is that of Ferdinando Gorges. Weston himself came hither in 1622, and located at what is now Weymouth, under like sanction. Robert Gorges, son of Ferdinando, arrived at Weymouth in 1623, intending a permanent settlement. He bore official title as "Lieutenant of the Council for New England"; the original Plymouth company having been merged into this Council under the manipulation of Ferdinando Gorges. Robert Gorges was also styled "Governor of the Country," meaning New England. One of his first acts on getting ashore was to call Weston to account for misdoings and disloyalty to Sir Ferdinaudo's interests. The two met at Plymouth. To the wordy dispute which ensued the Pilgrim officials were listeners, and in what was said and done both Weston and those officials recognized the paramount authority of Gorges as "Governor of

The Weston attempt at settlement at Weymouth was, as Mr. Adams explains, a failure; but that of Robert Gorges, though not a success with reference to the Gorges intentions, and though unimportant as respects the number of settlers abiding, was a permanent lodgement upon the coast; wherefore, Mr. Adams dates the settlement of Boston Bay from the year 1623. As Mr. Adams further explains, this expedition of Robert Gorges would have been a formidable affair could it have been well sustained in England. It was organized not merely for trade, as in case of Weston, but for government and ecclesiastical rule. Its two clergymen of the Church of England, as our author concludes, were Rev. Mr. Morrell, who was certainly at Weymouth and wrote a poem there which he published in England afterwards, and Rev. Mr. Blackstone, who at a later date was found cabined on the west slope of the Shawmut peninsula. Mr. Adams comments pertinently as to this situation of affairs upon New England's shores in 1623, and the dismay it must have caused to the Pilgrims, and suggests that they well "might have asked themselves if the earth did indeed contain no wilderness so remote that an Established Church could not follow them into it to persecute." Happily, as he goes on to say, the two clergymen named were not of a persecuting spirit, nor did the newly arrived Gorges government have the force at command to persecute had it been so disposed.

Still, so far as human foresight could then discern, the force might soon be at hand; for this expedition was designed to be the first step in a greater emigration which should bring Ferdinando himself to New England, as its head and governor general of the country. This grand Gorges scheme failed for want of money and active support in England. Robert Gorges having wintered at Weymouth, was glad to get away in the early spring. He sailed with part of his company, first for what is now Portsmouth, N. H., and there decided to return to England, leaving a remnant (whether agreeably to themselves or not) at Weymouth. Of this remnant a part, as Mr. Adams believes and avers, removed to more favorable situations in the Bay, namely Blackstone to Shawmut, Maverick to Winnesimmet, and Walford to Charlestown, leaving among those at Weymouth the clergyman Morrell, William Jeffreys and John Bursley. Of these, Morrell did not stay long, but the others, the number being unknown, continued and made the permanent settlement.

Besides these, Thomas Morton was present during a part of these early years at Mt. Wollaston. In the year 1630, shortly before Winthrop arrived. Sir Christopher Gardner made his abode near the Neponset river, as is conjectared. David Thomson occupied the island in Boston harbor which still bears his name, in 1626-28, and his widow was living there or near by in 1630. interesting point brought out by Mr. Adams in this narration of familiar facts is that all these persons, thus scattered along the shore of the Bay from Weymosth to what is now called Chelsea, were at one time or another, and in one way or another, concerned in some of the Gorges movements, enough so at less to show a friendly feeling towards and a certain identity with Gorges; and moreover, that they and their servants and adherents were not of the Puritanic order. Mr. Adams describes them as "the Episcopalian advance guard of the Puritan emigration, those composing which had, when Winthrop first sailed into Boston Bay, already for seven years been living on its shores." Furthermore, these people, or the bulk of them, were in this view of the matter the "old planters," frequently referred to in Massachusetts documents and writings of early date. Mr. Adams does not in this book give his reasons for concluding that these old planters were an advance guard sent out by Gorges, the precursors, by intention, of a firm Episcopalian establishment in Massachusetts. He had done that previously in a paper read before the Massachusetts Historical Society and published in its "Proceedings" in 1878. That interpretation having musined for fourteen years without refutation, and perhaps without challenge, complacently (but who shall say unwarrantably?) assumes it as data for his present narration.

In this view, accordingly, when Endicott and Winthrop reached these shores ther did not find the country, as has sometimes been portrayed and often imagined, in a state of nature, a land of "woods and Indians," nor even of woods, Indians and fishermen; but to a degree occupied under a charter, such as it was, by an "advance guard" of the prelacy. If it were so, it may be surmised that the new comers, having an indisputable charter, were well disposed to approof these tender plants, or at least to freeze them out. At any rate the Mount Wollaston settlement was removed root and branch, and its owner sent a prisoner to England. Blackstone ere long found the rule of the "lord-brethren" be uncongenial, and with not less politeness, it may be presumed, than, scording to Winthrop, was manifested by those brethren in the departure of Sir Christopher Gardner, he was "dismissed in peace." The former found a tration to his liking in Rhode Island, and the latter within the Gorges patent in Maine. Walford, as Mr. Adams intimates, had no better treatment than any redinary blacksmith who had "confronted the authorities" would have got in England in King Charles' day. He was banished to Portsmouth. Maverick was tolerated after a fashion, though in a crisis he was commanded to remove himself to the Boston side of the channel, where he could be better watched than at his island home. Those who lingered at Weymouth seem to have given no offence, but to have accepted the inevitable, and become merged in the Puritan community which grew up there.

But these things were not done in a corner. All England had opportunity to know about them by taking note of the proceedings in the high courts of the kingdom. What may be called the war of the royal charters was fought out. there, and of this Mr. Adams gives a concise and luminous account. Had the policial circumstances been favorable to Gorges the occupancy of the Massabusetts coast by his straggling bands of settlers might have proved to be a formidable fact; but in the end, as our author makes it clear, Gorges disappears, and the not less colossal figure of John Winthrop is beheld firmly seated in the chair of authority.

In the preface to his book Mr. Adams, though recognizing the fitness of its more comprehensive title, says that "in a narrow sense it is a history of the town of Quincy." Accordingly, however distant the situation to which the reader's attention is called, he will find that there is, at least, a thread of circum-Pance connecting it with that ancient municipality. Thus, a compendious history of the Plymouth colony, in its early period, is given in the book, and thereby the reader is reminded, among other things, that two of the victories of the redoubtable Capt. Miles Standish were achieved on Massachusetts soil, at Mount Wellaston and at Wessagusset; and that both Weston's party of adventurers their successors of the Robert Gorges expedition might have perished on then dismal shores of Boston Bay, had it not been for timely and generous supplied from Plymouth. Boston and Cambridge are the scenes of the fierce inomian controversy, but in the narration Mount Wollaston early comes into 9*

view as the parish, or parochial vineyard, of Rev. Mr. Wheelwright, whence he set forth for Boston to preach what proved to be (doubtless without intention on his part) his incendiary discourse. And when all was over, and only the sentence of doom remained to be executed, Mount Wollaston again appears as the first resting place of Mrs. Hutchinson in her journey of banishment. On one of the last days of March, 1638, she took passage in a boat at Boston for the Mount, where her husband had a farm, and where, besides the minister, Wheelwright, two other men of distinction, who were of her adherents, William Coddington and Atherton Hough, were proprietors. Of Coddington there is at Quincy a continuous official record to date, concerning certain school lands which came to the municipality from him; and of Hough there is a perpetual memorial in "Hough's Neck," a favorite sea-side resort.

Of Capt. Wollaston, whose name the Mount preserves, the author relates all that can be told; and of the doings of Thomas Morton, "mine host," "lord of misrule," whose name history and romance, and also poetry, such as it is, have taken into their keeping, he gives a particular and lively description. In the "Antinomian" part of the book all, or nearly all, the great chiefs of the Puritan colony are brought into view and discoursed upon, either in their political or theological aspect or both. The author makes no disguise of his dislike of their theology and of their standards of conduct in the given case. It is easy to see, in the reading, that this "episode" might be written up in quite another vein; but the author is full and candid in his presentation of the facts, and of notes of reference to contemporary and other writings bearing upon the sub-

The book will be widely read and much enjoyed, and will find a place in every historian's library or other library organized with an historical department. It is not to be regarded as a finality, for in certain respects it is rather a beginning. and opens up new fields for investigation and narration; and it is everywhere valuable as a guide. The trend of things from the earliest days forward, through periods of various length, is clearly discerned and traced by the author. It is a suggestive book, and on some points may go farther than to suggest, and may provoke a taking up of the pen by another historian. Of the great multitude of interesting matters touched upon, dwelt upon, or alluded to, the index of fifty-six pages length bears witness.

Two or three matters, though not of special importance, have caught the reviewer's attention as seeming to demand a query point. For precision's sake they may be mentioned. Twice, at least, appears the phrase "under weigh," signifying a ship's starting upon her voyage. In it is a mingling of two distinct ideas, covering two events which stand in the relation of cause and effect. When the auchor has been weighed the ship instantly gets under way; but the "weigh" in the one case stands in no etymological relation whatever to the "way" in the other case.

The statement on page 233 as to the original Dorchester settlers is: "The locality where the whole company finally settled down was the historical Dorchester Heights, now better known as South Boston." The expression "finally settled down" will not serve; though "settled down for a day and a night" might do. The final settlement was around the log meeting-house and fortress just north of the less famous height of Jones' Hill, and numerously, on both sides

On page 237 is a reference to "George Alcock, deacon of the church at Dor-chester." This is literally correct, but as the state of the church at Dormisleading. If, for instance, any of the deacon's descendants, thus prompted, were to visit Dorchester, thinking to find the scenes and situations where their ancestor lived, farmed, paid town taxes and voted in town meetings, they would be quite wrong. He was a Roxbury man in all these particulars, but was ordained and temporarily served at Dorchester. Pastor Eliot, in his record of the Roxbury church, is the sole authority in the case, and he says of Alcock: "When the people of Roxbury joined to the church at Dorchester (until such time as God should give them opportunity to be a church among themselves) he was, by the church, chosen to be deacon, especially to regard the brethren at Roxbury; and after he adjoined himself to this church, at Roxbury, he was ordained deacon of this church."

The author seems willing, per page 625, in case of "Hough's Neck" to tolerate the pronunciation of "How's Neck." By persistent endeavor our historians there two John Bursleys? Our author seems quite sure of one as an settler at Weymouth. The History of Dorchester gives Dr. Harri as for the statement that John Bursley was an original settler of Dorin 1630. The History adds that he was in the country before that date an early settler of Weymouth. Dr. Harris was a careful historian, but ately does not always give the source of his information. But the ord of Dorchester is not open to any dispute, and it states that in June, in Bursley was chosen in town meeting, with six other prominent citi-the important office of assessor. In to me that no branch of learning can be more interesting and instructure seeker after knowledge, than that of history. Amid all the mere one and theories, the shifting hypotheses of our day, it is refreshing ful to turn to the ample page of history, "rich with the spoils of time." bejected that history is imperfect, scholars will generally admit that it main correct and to be relied on. At any rate, the leading facts, the och-making events of the past, with all their mighty influences, cannot aid. Certainly there is no better guide and source of knowledge (after ipture and tradition) than this. Perhaps earnest students of history we from it and apply to their thought and life widely different lessons, ariation in the quality and calibre of minds, training and association is at, so are the results deduced from the investigation of the same. But who does not, not only modify his thought by the experiences and conarrived at by the wise men of the past, can have but a very narrow conception of life and all its grand opportunities and possibilities. Not that any one should be slavishly bound to think and act in all ways as others have done, for this would be perilous to the intellectual life. In all matters not of the Christian faith (and even here in this sacred precinct, if the soul cannot honestly accept the eternal truths of religion) there should be wide liberty for freedom of thought and action. Noble ideals, nobly carried out, have ever ruled the world; have ever led the way in progress and growth, not only in the mental development of man, but in that far higher part of his nature, his spiritual life as well. And men will gladly follow where there are leaders full of enthusiasm and of stern devotion to duty to go before. So it has always been, and so it will always be. If there have been lapses in the history of nations, there have always been the strong flood tides of righteonsness to succeed them. Hildebrand, Francis of Assisi, Martin Luther, have stirred the world to its very depths. And God will continue to raise up other holy and humble men of heart to carry forward the grand work of the salvation of men. Other branches of study prepare the way for, lead us to the path of learning, but the careful study of history takes us directly to the source, the fountain head of knowledge. And what more important and engaging division of the subject can there be (to Americans at least) than the study of our own history and institutions, the grand outgrowth from the great principles inherited from our British forefathers who (under the guidance of Almighty God) built up here in the new world a powerful nation? And what, I ask, can be of deeper interest to us-after devotion to religion-than the care ful application and dissemination of the great political principles embodied in our Declaration of Independence? No loyal American can ever regard the principles contained therein save with the deepest regard and respect. Here is the political foundation of our national life. Liberty is ever the watchward of Old England and New England; liberty—under the law of the land—to act and speak as conscience dictates. Neither is this liberty to be ever allowed to degenerate into anarchism. The tenacity and staying qualities of our race, our love of order and justice inwrought through and through in that splendid code of the English common law—"the best," no less an authority than Montesquieu has said—"that the world has ever seen"—the principles of which are accepted and believed in by all English-speaking peoples, may be safely trusted to carry us through all insurrections from within and dangers from without. So shall we retain the position which our race has so proudly won in the van of civilization and true progress. So shall we be carriers and dispensers of the Christian religion to all nations.

The Necessity for a Hospital in Dover, N. H. Read by John R. Ham. M.D., at the regular meeting of the Dover Medical Society, on Feb. 3, 1892. Dover, N. H.: N. E. Stiles's Job Printing House. 1892. 12mo. pp. 6.

Here are three works relating to Dover in New Hampshire by Dr. Ham of that city, who has done much to preserve materials for the history of that ancient town.

The Bibliography of Dover contains: 1, Works on Dover; 2, Works written by residents of Dover while residing there; 3, Works bearing the publication imprint of Dover. The compilation seems to be very thoroughly and accurately done. We are surprised at the number of titles Dr. Ham has been able to collect. It will prove a very useful work.

In the next work, Dover in the United States Navy, the author gives a list of one hundred citizens of Dover who served in the navy, with the names of the vessels in which they served, besides other interesting details.

The other pamphlet is an able plea for a hospital in that city.

The London and Middlesex Notebook. A Garner of Local History and Antiquities. Edited by W. P. W. Phillimore. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, E. C. 1892. 8vo. pp. 288. Price 10 shillings.

This book, by an antiquarian writer well known to our readers, is peculiarly interesting because of the great variety of its contents; every fact that is diffi-call of access or liable to total loss relating to London and Middlesex is deemed an appropriate part of it. Brief histories of societies and the work of their probers, copies of monumental inscriptions, accounts of local customs, biopart of the book is the frequent articles on the old buildings now destroyed, telling when and by whom they were erected and occupied, and sometimes accompanied by drawings. This study of the changes in appearance of localities a becoming most popular in New England, especially in Boston, and the columns of the Saturday Evening Transcript are highly valued for this kind of matter; a pamphlet like Mr. Phillimore's admits fuller description and illustration, and this one feature of its work must make it of inestimable value in a few years our changing times. The most amusing articles, which would interest everysee are the descriptions of ancient customs, some of which still survive, as the set of the "rousing staff" at Fulham Palace, to wake the servants by rapping their windows,—the easement of the right to walk and smoke on the roof of the church of St. Olave, Jewry,-and the inquisition of the manor of Sutton, poing into such detail as to include "unus cattus senex, et duo juvenes catti. The N. E. Historical and Genealogical REGISTER is several times referred to, and distracts are taken from the English probate papers which Mr. Waters has been publishing in this magazine the past ten years. London and Middlesex Gentry 1673 covers many pages, and may furnish a clue to many American genealofishs; the names are arranged alphabetically, and some of them sound very familiar. The most elaborate contribution is An Account of the Lord Mayors Meriffs temp. James I. These are arranged chronologically, and give a short sketch of the origin and rise of each individual, the names of his wives, usually aral, and children with their marriages, all accompanied with dates and valuble notes. Bound together in this volume are several very interesting genealogical inquiries, and the answers thereto some months later.

Early Grants of Land in the Wilderness North of Merrimack. By George A. Gonzoon. Lowell, Mass: Press of the Morning Mail. 1892. 8vo. pp. 47. With an Index.

The Old Residents' Historical Association of Lowell, Massachusetts, was organized December 21, 1868, and has already completed four volumes of its Contributions." The number before us is the first of a new volume, and contains: 1, Memoir of Hon. Josiah Gardner Abbott, LL.D., by Charles Cowley, LL.D., 2, Early Settlers of that part of Chelmsford now Lowell, by Henry S. Perham; 3, Early Grants of Land North of the Merrimack, by George A. Gordon; 4, My Schools and Teachers in Lowell Sixty Years Ago, by Varnum Lincoln; 5, Annual Report, by Benjamin Walker, vice president; and 6, St. Luke's Courch, Lowell, by James S. Russell. The annual report and the papers were all read before the Association at various dates, and they all contain valuable matter illustrating the history of Lowell and its vicinity.

Mr. Gordon's paper, which was read on the 2d of August last, has been remitted as a separate pamphlet. The title is given at the head of this article.

New York Nation, Dec. 8, 1892, thus speaks of it:

"Few historic monographs are so instructive, and fewer are so readable, as Mr. George A. Gordon's account of land-grants in the wilderness north of Merrimack River in 1659 and onward.

Lowell, second of Massachusetts cities in 1880, was a centre of these grants, and this paper was recently read there before the Old Residents' Historical Association, all of whom doubtless wished they were descendants of the original grants. The grants were sometimes made to requite heroism in public serice or in return for money advanced in planting the colony, or in place of planting, or, once, as an Indian reservation. It is remarkable how many names scar that are still notable, as Winthrop, Saltonstall, Higginson, Gardner, Tyng, Bassell, etc. The boundaries were so indefinite as to need perambulations at

GENEALOGICAL GLEANINGS IN ENGLAND.

By HENRY F. WATERS, A.M.

JACOB JESSON of London, merchant, 30 September 1682, proved 17 August 1686. Refers to marriage agreement with present wife Mary. I give, will and devise unto Mr. George Scot and Mr. Richard Lloyd, my executors all my lands, messuages &c at Yarmouth in New England in trust, they to sell my lands and tenements in Plymouth Colony in New England to such persons as John Walley of Boston in New England, whom I have authorized to sell the same, shall sell or agree to sell and the money that shall be raised by the sale thereof shall be reckoned as part of my personal estate and shall go to my children. I give and bequeath to my honored mother Dorothy Jesson twenty pounds to buy her a ring and five pounds to buy her mourning. To my father in law Richard Glover five pounds to buy him mourning. To my brother Nathaniel Jesson twenty pounds to buy him a ring and five pounds to buy him mourning. To my brothers in law William Grosvenor, John Glover, Gabriel Glover, Richard Thomas and James Cocks five pounds apiece to buy them mourning. To my sisters Rebecca Thomas, Elizabeth Cocks, Sarah Grosvenor and Elizabeth Jesson* five pounds apiece to buy them mourning. To the said Sarah Grosvenor five pounds to buy her a ring. To Madam Lydia Martin als Stevens at Westminster twenty pounds if she survives me or else to her heirs. To my loving brother in law Mr. Jnº Walley of Boston five pounds of New England money. To my niece Elizabeth Walley, the daughter of my brother in law Thomas Walley deceased twenty pounds in New England money, to be paid to her upon the attaining to the age of twenty one years or day of marriage. To my loving friend Tho: Taylor, minister, now living on or near Gaslick Hill in London ten pounds and to my cousins William and Josiah Bird five pounds apiece. To my uncle Samuel Short and to my aunt Rebecca Cooper and unto my cousin Stephen Newton twenty shillings apiece to buy each of them a ring. To Thomas Jacomb Doctor in Divinity five pounds. To my executors fifteen pounds in trust to give the same unto such poor ministers as they shall think fit. To the parish of St. Andrew Undershaft where I now dwell five pounds for the churchwardens to distribute as they shall think fit. Forty pounds to be paid to such persons as my sister Rebecca Thomas shall direct and appoint, and the same amount to such as my sister Elizabeth Cocks shall appoint. The rest to my children.

My friends M' George Scot, citizen and fishmonger of London and Mr. Richard Lloyd, citizen of London and by calling linendraper, to be executors.

· [Of the above Jacob Jesson, Savage says that he was a merchant in Boston and agent of his brother Abraham, an ironmonger of London. He was a member of the Artillery Co. 1673. It is to be hoped that some of my Boston friends will show just who the testator's brothers in law, John and Thomas Walley, were.

HENRY F. WATERS.]

> Nathaniel,2 survived his brothers. Jacob. Abraham, who had three children. Rebecca, wife of Richard Thomas. Elizabeth, " "James Cox. Sarah. " "William Grosvenor.

hese, Jacob Jesson was in New England, and undoubtedly was twice mar-His first wife, as will be shown, was Elizabeth, probably a daughter of Thomas Walley; his second wife, Mary, was evidently a daughter of rd Glover. These marriages are clearly pointed out by his mention of res-in-law John and Thomas Walley, John and Gabriel Glover. I find on ston records that Jacob and Elizabeth Jesson had: Jacob, b. Dec. 18, 1670; am, b. July 14, 1672; Jacob, b. Sept. 16, 1674. As neither of these chilsmentioned in Mrs. Dorothy Jessop's will, it is fair to presume that they oung and that their mother also died here. I find by Suffolk Deeds, vili. hat 25 March, 1671, Abraham Jesson of London, ironmonger, made his er Jacob J. of Boston his attorney. This power of attorney was witnessed in Lawrence, Jr., Christopher Clarke and Isaac Addington; Clark verified 1 July, 1671, and Addington did so Dec. 4, 1673. In 1674 Jacob Jesson t land on Rawson's lane from Edward and William Rawson. He sold the Jan. 10, 1676, to William Hubbard (Suff. Deeds, xiii. 81) and as no wife therein, I have no doubt that she was dead, and that he was going home. that Feb. 16, 1685, Major John Walley and wife Sarah, of Bristol, Ply-County, mortgaged a wharf and other property in Boston to Jacob and niel Jesson of London, for £246 (Suff. Deeds, xiii. 445). This mortgage id in full Aug. 17, 1694 (Suff. Deeds, xvi. 394) to William Stoughton, ney for Nathaniel Jesson and John Petit, executor of Jacob Jesson. not find the marriage of Jacob Jesson and Elizabeth Walley at Boston, nably in 1669 or 1670, but it seems that her father, Rev. Thomas Walley, to Boston in 1663. It is also possible, as Rev. Thomas had been rector of ary's, Whitechapel, London, that Jesson had known the Walleys in London ad married there, coming to New England to join his wife's relatives. ill now proceed to the Walley family, concerning which much confusion in printed accounts.

re were two contemporary John Walleys in Boston, both members of the outh. One was John, son of Rev. Thomas, a major, judge, &c.; the other very reputable citizen. In regard to this latter John, I find that Boston records show that John Walley m. Elizabeth, dau. of late Robert Wing, fl. 1661, and they undoubtedly were the parents of six children between and 1679; viz. John, b. Aug. 27, 1662; Elizabeth, b. May 8, 1665; Elizabeth, b. 28, 1667; Samuel, b. Feb. 1, 1670; Thomas, b. Feb. 26, 1672; Samuel, b.

n we come to probably another John and Elizabeth four years later, and I me the Old South Catalogue is correct in saying that this was John Jr., his wife Elizabeth was dau. of the second John Alden, and that she reded in 1702 Simon Willard. Their children were:

Sarah, b. Aug. 25, 1684; d. June 29, 1690. Abiel, b. Aug. 30, 1686. William, b. Dec. 23, 1687. John, b. July 19, 1689. Elizabeth, b. May 4, 1693. Sarah, b. April 17, 1695.

far this seems all clear and probable. There were also in Boston, John ey and wife Sarah, who had John, b. 7 Nov. 1677, and Hannah, b. 23 July, I see every reason to suppose that this was our Major John Walley, who f Art. Co. 1671, and removed to Barnstable about 1683, and thence to Brishere he was in 1685. Nor do I see that he had any other wife than Sarah y, Old South, Dec. 1672. His wife Sarah, who was alive in 1685, d. Nov. 11, and was buried on the 15th, as Sewall says (ii. 326). He also says, 29. Mrs. Hannah Walley died last night aged better than 30 years." This with the above birth of the daughter in 1680; and under date of Dec. 1, VOL. XLVII. 10

Sewall says, Mrs. Sarah Walley buried, evidently a slip of the pen, and possibly

strengthening our surmise that Hannah was daughter of Sarah.

It seems highly probable that Major John Walley's first child, John, died early, and that at Bristol he had the four who survived him. His will of Feb. 4, 1712 (Suff. Wills 17, p. 402) mentions son John Walley, two daughters Elizabeth and Lydia Walley, dau. Sarah Chancy, widow [of Rev. Charles C.] and her four children, viz. Charles, Mary, Isaac and Walley. He also mentions his late brother Thomas, and late sisters Hannah Alleyn and Mary Crocker.

I do not trace the documents of Major John, because a very good account is given in Freeman's Cape Cod, i. 291. But the will enables us to correct Savage's account. Rev. Thomas¹ Walley of London is supposed to have been the son of Robert of London, whose will is dated 1651, and grandson of John Walley, printer, of London, recorded at Whitechapel. He had sons John² and Thomas,² and daughters Sarah wife of Samuel Alleyne, and Mary wife of Job Crocker. Thomas² Walley, Jr., m. Hannah Baker and had Thomas,³ who d. s. p.; Hannah,³ who m. William Stone, and secondly James Leonard; and Elizabeth, wife of Edward Adams, cordwainer. Thomas,² d. in 1672, and his widow m. Rev. George Shove of Taunton.

George Shove of Taunton.

I am surprised that the maiden name of Major John<sup>2</sup> Walley's wife is unknown, but it is not improbable that he married in England.—W. H. WHITMORE.]

tas Banckes citizen and barber surgeon of London, 15 October oved 17 May 1598. My body to be buried in the parish church ichael in the Querne. Forasmuch as my eldest son Richard Banckes naturally and undutifully forsaken his native country and natural and in the course of his life hath brought great grief and sorrow to his mother and in regard of his want of compassion towards us hath justly deserved to be holden and reputed as a lost son I do therefore will and devise all my lands, tenements and hereditaments to my son John Banckes. My movable goods and chattels &c. shall be divided, according to the custom of the City of London, into three equal parts, whereof one part I give and bequeath to Joan my loving wife and an other third part I will to be divided amongst my children, whereof as many of my said children as are already advanced shall every one of them have, out of the same third part, so much for their full and further advancement as shall make up their portions, according to the custom of the City, equal with the residue of my said children not yet advanced, saving that my said son Richard shall be utterly secluded out of this my last will and testament and hold himself to his advancement already received, without partaking with the residue of my children in any of my estate, either of inheritance, goods or chattels. The other third part, being by the custom of the said City in my free and voluntary disposition, I do ordain &c. to bear, perform and pay the charges of my funerals and other the ordinances, legacies and payments hereafter limited, bequeathed or devised. Then follow certain bequests of mourning gowns &c. to individual friends, servants &c: To my godson Richard Deane son to my daughter Mary Deane twenty pounds, to my daughter Katherine Some twenty pounds, to my daughter Mary Deane twenty pounds, to my daughter Elizabeth twenty pounds, to my daughter Susan twenty pounds, to my daughter Joan twenty pounds, to my daughter Sarah twenty pounds, over and above their said portions rising unto them by the custom of the said City of London. I do also forgive unto my brother William Banckes all such sums of money as he doth owe me, and five pounds to be equally divided amongst his children. [Those who were sufficiently interested in the article on the Exhibitions of Ervard College in the Register, July, 1892, to read the note to the Lady Mowlson gift, page 234, will remember that in that note it was suggested that Liv Ann Mowlson, the founder of the Scholarship, might prove to be the tiow of Sir Thomas Mowlson, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1634. All lat was known of her was her name and that she was a widow in 1643. It will be observed that in the above abstract of the will of Sir Thomas, we have a calcil dated December 5, 1638, while the will was probated December 8, 1638. The bequest to "Dame Anne, my loving wife," furnishes the name of his widow. Int Lady Ann, the relict of Sir Thomas Mowlson, was alive in 1643, is shown by the execution on her part in 1657 of a will and in 1661 of two codicils, which the probated November 2, 1661. For the bequest to Anthony Radcliffe, eldest and her brother Edward Radcliffe, it may be inferred that her maiden name as Radcliffe.

The questions which it was hoped that an examination of the wills of Sir Romas and Lady Mowlson would answer, were three. Was her name Ann? Tas she alive in 1643? Was she a widow at that time? The researches of Mr. Waters enable us to say that the Lady Ann Mowlson, who in 1643 founded the last Scholarship at Harvard College, was probably the widow of Sir Thomas Mawlson, at one time Lord Mayor of London.

thaniel Braddock, citizen and mercer of London, 10 July, 1635, at 31 May 1636. Bound on a voyage to Virginia in the parts beyond the parts beyond the good ship called the Marchant Hope of London. My vol. xlvii. 11 brother in law John Rooke standeth bound unto me for payment of three score pounds the First of January next ensuing the death of my father John Braddocke. Out of this sum I give to John Rooke, son of said John, twenty pounds, which his father shall put out and employ for the most use and benefit of the said John Rooke his son, until he attain to the full age of one and twenty years; then the twenty pounds, with the benefit and increase, to be paid unto the said son. To John More son of my brother Valentine More other twenty pounds out of the said three score, at one and twenty years. In the meantime my executor to pay to my sister Susann Moore, mother of the said John Moore, thirty and two shillings per annum towards the maintenance of the said John. To my brother John Braddocke five pounds out of the said three score pounds, and five pounds more thereof I give to my sister Rebecca Braddocke. The residue of the said three score pounds to my brother in law John Rooke if he take upon himself the execution of this my will. All my other goods I give to my brother John Braddocke and my sisters Sarah Rooke, Rebecca Braddocke and Susan Moore.

EDWARD BRADLEY of the City of Philadelphia in the Province of Pensylva, glazier, 22 March 1743-4, proved 8 November 1746. I do nominate and appoint my dear and loving wife Esther and my trusty friends Ebenezer Kinnersley and Thomas Leach, both of the said city, shopkeepers, to be the executrix and executors of this my last will and testament for and concerning my estate in Pensylva and elsewhere (Great Britain excepted). Whereas the said Ebenezer Kinnersley is indebted unto me in the sum of thirty pounds, this Currency, or thereabouts now I do release him of the aforesaid upon this condition only, that he undertake the burthen of executorship without any further consideration or reward for his trouble therein; and I do give unto the said Thomas Leach thirty pounds Pensylva Currency for his trouble as an executor; and I do give and bequeath unto my said dear and loving wife Esther particularly all my negroe slaves, namely, York, Daphne, and the child Gin, with all my plate, household furniture and the sum of seven hundred pounds currency aforesaid in cash, or such bonds or securities to the amount thereof as she shall choose; also the moneys that become due unto me for the land I lately sold unto William Haw, and also my mare, chase and harness thereto belonging, and all my right to the stable which I took of Thomas Howard. Moreover I give and devise unto her, my said wife, Esther, my messuage or tenement, and lot of ground thereto belonging situate in Front Street in the said City, between the messuages and lots of Robert Strettle to the North and George Shed to the Southward, together with the appurtenances and all those yearly rent charges in or near Elbow Lane which I purchased of Joshua Carpenter, amounting to the yearly sum of twelve pounds, eight shillings and four pence or thereabouts. As for and concerning the rest and residue of all and singular my lands, tenements, rents and hereditaments I do hereby direct and authorize my executors for my estate in Pensylva, or such of them as shall undertake the executorship there, or the survivors or survivor of them to make sale thereof for the best price that can reasonably be gotten and out of the moneys thence proceeding, with what more can be recovered or made of my goods and chattels, it is my will that by and out of the same and out of my effects in Great Britain there shall first be raised and paid the sum of one hundred pounds sterling apiece to my brothers, Thomas Bradley and Joseph Bradley and my sister Ann Shepherd, and, in the next place, the sum of thirty pounds sterling apiece to my two nephews, namely, Edward Shepherd (my said sister's son) and William Bradley (the son of my brother Joseph) which two nephews I do nominate to be my executors for my estate and effects in Great Britain. And lastly as concerning the surplusage, if any, I do hereby give and devise the same unto her my said wife Esther, her executors, administrators and assigns for ever.

Wit: Pr Turner, C. Brocden, Rob' Strettle.

The will was proved by the oath of Edward Shepherd, to whom adminstration was granted, power reserved of making the like grant to William Bradley, the other executor, when he should apply for the same.

Edmunds, 318.

WILLIAM WADE late of Westham, Sussex, yeoman, bound to Pennsylvania in America, 24 August 1682, proved 28 October 1682. I do order and appoint Philip Ford living in London, in Bow Lane, merchant, to be my executor and do give him ten pounds and do allow him reasonable charges. I do give unto my brother Edmund Wade five pounds. To my brother Thomas Wade five pounds. To my brother Edmund's eldest son Edmund Wade one hundred pounds. To his younger son Thomas Wade all my estate in goods in Pennsylvania, paying every servant both men and maids five pounds apiece when they have served their times out. To the meeting at Asen five pounds, at Mascall Picknols and Moses French and Samuel Web's disposing, and what remains over in England to be equally divided between my two brothers Edmund and Thomas Wade, except the hundred pounds I have in Sosiets (sic) stock, my will is that it should be divided between my brother Edmund Wade's two sons, Edmund and Thomas. Cottle, 124.

SARAH SEWARD of Bristol, widow, well stricken in years, 12 July 1681, proved 2 December 1682. My body I commit to the earth to be decently interred in St. Thomas Churchyard within this city, as near as may be to the corpse of my late deceased mother there. To my elder son John Seward and to his wife Hester ten pounds, so as they buy them mourning apparel and wear it at my funeral. To the said John one hundred pounds in money, in one year after my decease, if he be then living, but not else. My executors shall in twelve months pay into the chamber of Bristol two hundred and fifty pounds, to remain at the usual interest by them given, for the benefit of my five grandchildren, Sarah, Hester, John, James and Thomas Seward, children of my said son John by his said wife Hester, to be paid, fifty (with its interest) to each at one and twenty. To my eldest daughter Bridget Williams five pounds, to be paid into her own hands within ten days after my decease, my intent being that it shall not be liable to satisfy any debt due by her husband nor that he shall have any thing to do therewith. I give her five pounds more to buy her mourning apparel to be worn at my foneral. My executors also to settle on her an annuity of twenty pounds, cleer of all taxes, charges, deductions and reprizes, to be paid into her own hands (in quarterly payments); and her husband shall have nothing to do with it &c. Another annuity or yearly sum of ten pounds to be settled on my grandson James Williams, son of my said daughter Bridget; but if my said grandson shall either be beyond sea or cannot come to receive his said annuity in person my executors shall detain the same till he doth return from sea or can come to receive it in person, it being my intent that his father nor wife shall have any benefit by this my bequest and that if my said grandson dies in the life time of my executor all arrears of this his annuity shall accrue and be paid to him my said executor. Certain wearing apparel and household effects to said daughter. To said grandson James Williams ten pounds within ten days after my decease. daughter Sarah Hasell five pounds, for mourning to wear at my funeral, and five pounds more as a token of my love. And I forgive her the fifty pounds which I lent her late husband William Hasell. To her son William Hasell twenty shillings, and the reason why I give him no more is because I intend to give fifty pounds towards the placing of him apprentice; but to her son John Hasell I give nothing because he is beyond sea, never likely to re-rurn for England. To her other five children, Richard, James, Sarah, Mary and Katherine Hasell fifty pounds apiece, to be paid at their respective ages of one and twenty years. To my daughter Mary Seward five pounds (for mourning) and five pounds as a token of my love; and the reason why I give her no more is because I have promised to give her three hundred pounds for an increase of her portion on her intermarriage with Robert Dowding, and if said marriage takes place in my life time I give the said Robert Dowding five pounds for mourning. To my son James Seword my lodge and garden on St. Michael's Hill, Bristol, in or near the Royal Fort, being city land, and all my term &c. to come therein. To my daughter Rebecca Seword two hundred pounds and five pounds more (for mourning). Ten pounds to ten poor bouseholders of Bristol, and forty shillings in bread to other poor. To Mr. Nicholas Penwasme, minister of St. Stephens, forty shillings, and to M' Thomas Palmer, minister of St. Walburge twenty shillings. All the rest to my said younger son James Seword, whom I constitute sole executor.

JONATHAN CAY, Rector of Christ Church parish in Calvert County in the Province of Maryland 24 June 1718, proved at London 19 October 1738. I give my body to the ground to be decently interred by my executrix, with as little charge as possible. To my loving brother, John Cay, all my books, those only excepted which shall be chosen by my executrix, as hereafter mentioned. I give to my wife Dorothy any twenty books which shall choose out of mine; the remainder to my brother as already mentioned. All the rest &c. of my goods, chattels &c. I give to my wife whom I constitute sole executrix.

Wit: Phillis Clodius, Frederick Clodius, Owen Ellis.

ELIZABETH HAM, wife of Hierom Ham of the City of Bristol gen', late and executrix of John Olyver of the said city merchant, 24 December 1619, proved 30 October 1628. I give unto my daughter Mary Gryffit one sixteenth part of the "prysadge" lease and unto my son Henry Olyve the other sixteenth part of the same prysadge lease I now hold, which prysadge lease I did put my husband Hierom Ham in trust to buy for m and to be disposed of at my pleasure. If my said daughter Mary Griffith shall decease and depart this life before the end of the said lease then the profit and benefit of the time then remaining shall come to her children, to be divided by equal portions, that child only excepted which shall then b "interessed" in the living in Redland. More I give unto her one feather bed one bolster and two pillows, marked with two letters for her name, and my best Arras coverlet, the great Cypres chest, a neddle work chair, with the two stools, one of the gilt chairs and all my wearing apparel &c. my grand child William Griffith the great spruce chest in the higher gallers and my green carpet. To Mary Griffith my grandchild my dozen o Apostle spoons. My will is that my son Henry do pay, out of his said sixteenth part of the prysadge lease, unto my husband Jerom Ham ten pound yearly during the lease (if he so long shall live), only the last two years excepted to him the said Henry. More, he shall pay unto my son Thomas Rowland (only the last two years excepted) ten pounds yearly (if the said Thomas so long shall live); and if the said Thomas shall happen to depart this life before the end of these years given him then my will is that what years shall be then to come shall remain to his children that hath no postions left them by their grandmother Redwood. More, my will is that the first ten pounds payable out of his sixteenth part of prysadge lease unto my son Thomas Rowland shall be given unto Mary Oliver, the daughter of my son James Oliver, as my gift. And my will is that my son Henry Olyver shall leave in my executor's hands the said sixteenth part of the prysadge lease so given him, for the assurance of the payment of the said ten pounds yearly to the said Hierom Ham and the ten pounds yearly to the said Thomas Royland: and if the said sixteenth part, so given the said Henry, shall at any time not amount to the sum of forty pounds by the year then each of them shall stand to their part of the loss accordingly. And if it happen my son Henry Olyver depart this life before the end of the years given him then whatsoever is given him by this my will shall remain to his children, John, Thomas and Hierom Oliver, to be divided them by equal portions. The rest of my plate and household stuff not given I give unto my husband Hierom Ham, and my will is that until my funeral and the hundred pounds due to the chamber for Robert Rowland and what else I shall owe be paid none shall receive or demand any portion out of the prysadge. And I do ordain for my executors my husband Hierom Ham and my son in law John Griffith. Agreed unto by me Hier Ham.

Administration, according to the tenor of the will was granted to William Griffith, grandson of the deceased, for the reason that John Griffith, one of the executors named in the will, had died before accepting the duties of executorship.

PETER THATCHER of the City of New Sarum, Wilts, clerk, 1 February 1640, proved 5 August 1641. I give and bequeath to Peter Thatcher and Thomas Thatcher, two of my sons, the sum of thirty five pounds in money, which was sent over to New England to buy goats, and is in the hands of my brother Anthony Thatcher. Also I give and bequeath to my said two sons twenty pounds which is due to me from my said brother for keeping his child. Also I give to my said two sons the several sums of thirty and one pounds and fourteen pounds, being in the hands of my brother in law Christopher Batt. All which said several sums of money to be equally divided between my said two sons. And my will is that my said son Thomas shall have his legacy paid as conveniently as may be after my decease, and my said son Peter to have his legacy paid when he shall have served out his apprenticeship, and not before. And in the meantime to be managed by my overseers. To my son Peter my great brass pot and Mr. Henry Aynsworthe's works and Mr. Rogers his seven Treatises. To Anne Thatcher, my daughter, fifty pounds and all her mother's childhed lines. To Martha and Elizabeth Thatcher, my daughters, to each of them fifty pounds. The said legacies given to my said three daughters shall be paid unto them when they shall respectively attain to their several ages of twenty and one years or be married, which of them shall first happen. To John Thatcher, my son, fifty pounds, to be paid to him when he shall have served out his apprenticethip or shall have attained to his age of twenty and three years. All these four last mentioned legacies of fifty pounds shall be paid out of the moneys specified in a writing now in the hands of Mr. Francis Dove. word as to the record spelling of Peter Thacher's surname. There can be bubt that the signature of the original will was spelled as he invariably dit, so far as is known, without the middle "t." The writer has in his ssion photographs of original signatures of his, so spelled, and the records s parish are full of his signatures, so spelled. He was settled in 1616 over arish Church of Milton, Clevedon, Somersetshire, and an inscription upon one in the wall of that church to the memory of his deceased child, John, the name THACHER. Why, then, it may be asked, did the scrivener who the will, or the clerk who recorded it, spell it otherwise. Unquestionably carelessness in one or both. A distinguished historian and antiquary, in or's "Memorial History of Boston," has spelled the name both ways, in the article, on the same page. Anthony, brother of Peter, always spelled his e leaders of St. Edmunds Parish in Salisbury were Puritans, and a dis-ment having arisen, in consequence, with their minister, Hugh Williams, signed in 1621 or 1622. These leaders having fixed upon Mr. Thacher as Williams's successor, he was invited to that parish by repeated, urgent votes williams's successor, he was invited to that parish by the vestry. He finally resigned the vicarage of Milton Clevedon, and Feb. 622-3, he was instituted rector of St. Edmunds, Salisbury, by the then continued Sarum. JOHN DAVENANT, who favored the Puritans. has been generally supposed that the Anthony named in the wills of Thomas Clement as their brother, and as being out of the realm, was the same Anbrother of Rev. Peter, who is mentioned in his will. for various reasons, doubts the correctness of this hypothesis, notwithfing a pedigree of the Thacher family, furnished many years since by off-of the College at Arms in Loudon, to the late Hon. J. S. B. Thacher of hez, Miss., assumes Thomas, Clement, Peter, and the Anthony of Peter's to have been brothers. The extract from the Public Record Office in on, which Mr. Waters appends to his abstracts of the three wills, places catter, it seems, beyond controversy. We there find, Oct. 31, 1631, an Any Thacher, 65 years of age, dwelling at Leyden, with his wife Clarey. Now ony Thacher, brother of Rev. Peter, so celebrated for his graphic and padescription of the awful shipwreck on Thacher's Island, Aug. 15, 1635, he and his wife were the sole survivors of the vessel's crew and passennumbering twenty-three, and who was afterwards one of the three founders armouth, Mass., never had a wife "Clarey." His first wife, Mary, died at bury, July 26, 1634, while he was serving his brother Peter as curate at dmunds, which office he held several years. (In the record of his wife's in the parish register, he has the title of "Clerk" or clergyman.) Eliza-VOL. XLVII.

beth Jones became his second wife only six weeks before she embarked for New England, on or about April 6, 1635, with her husband and four of his children, one (Benjamin) having been left behind in the care of his brother Peter, because of his tender age. They were accompanied by Thomas, then 15 years of age son of Peter, afterwards first pastor of the Old South Church of Boston, and who preferred a tramp through the woods from Ipswich, the place of embarkstion, to the water trip, having, says Cotton Mather, " such a strong and sad impression upon his mind about the Issue of the voyage, that he, with another, would needs go the journey by land." (See 1 Mag. 442. Hartford ed. of 1820.) Anthony died Aug. 22, 1667, aged about 80 (see Freeman's History of Cape Cod), which would require his birth to have occurred in 1587. He could hardly have attained that age, however, as Peter, for good reasons, believed to have been the elder, was born in 1588. If we assume that Anthony was eighty in 1667, he would have been forty-four in 1631, when the Anthony of the Public Record Office was sixty-five. Anthony, the brother of Peter, had received a good education, wrote a very handsome hand, and expressed himself with ease, correctly, with force and perspicuity, and sometimes, eloquently. Yet the most persever ing researches have failed to discover the place of his education. It has been surmised that he may have received his education from his brother Peter.

It will be observed that in neither of the wills of Thomas and Clement is

It will be observed that in neither of the wills of Thomas and Clement is there any reference to a brother Peter, or a sister Anne, which can hardly be accounted for if the two latter, indeed, bore such relation to the two former.

The John Thacher, son of Peter, named in his will, being the second son of that name, was interred Sept. 1, 1673. Administration was granted on his estate Nov. 10, 1673. He was a chirurgeon. All the children named in the will, except Samuel, Paul and Barnabas, of whom the testator speaks as his "three youngest sons," were the children of his first wife, Anne, whose burial is recorded March 26, 1634. In those days baptism usually succeeded the birth within a day or two, and sometimes took place on the day of birth. Martha was baptized Nov. 30, 1623; Elizabeth, Jan. 29, 1625-6; John, Feb. 3, 1627-8. Mr. Thacher was married to his second wife, Alice Batt, a sister of Christopher Batt, named in his will as his "brother in law," about April 14, 1635. The record of this marriage has not been discovered, but the marriage allegation, recorded in the Diocesan Register at Salisbury, is as follows:

"April 14, 1635. Personally appeard Richard White of St. Thomas, in Sarum.

"April 14, 1635. Personally appeard Richard White of St. Thomas, in Sarum, Grocer, and he craves License for marriage between Peter Thacher, Clarke, Master of Arts, Parson of St. Edmunds, in Sarum, and a widower, and Alice Batt of St. Edmunds, in Sarum, Spinster, aged 30 years, or thereabouts, and alleged that, to his knowledge, there is noe impediment, either in respect to consanguinity, affinity, former contract, or otherwise, but that they may lawfully marry together, and that her parents are both dead, and of the truth thereof

he offereth to make faith."

Francis Dove, the author of the inscription on Peter Thacher's tomb, signed "F. D.," was one of his principal parishioners, and a Churchwarden of St. Edmunds during the greater part of his incumbency. Francis Dove was of the order of the gentry. He was held in the highest esteem in Salisbury, and was a man of pure morals and of sterling integrity. He was twice mayor of that metropolitan city. His brothers, John and Henry, also in turn held that responsible office. Francis was the "very loving friend" of his minister, and married his widow, Alice (Batt) Thacher, Oct. 19, 1641. The "loving brother in law," Richard Alwood, appointed with Francis Dove "overseers" of the will, married Elizabeth Batt, a sister of Alice, Jan. 29, 1640-1. Mr. Thacher deceased Feb. 19, 1640-1.

Alice and Elizabeth Batt were sisters of Christopher Batt, above mentioned. The testator also speaks of his "sister Anne Batt," to whom, with his "wife's four sisters, Elizabeth, Margery, Mary and Dorothy," he gives five shillings each, "to make them rings as a remembrance of my (his) love to them." The fact that he calls Anne, wife of Christopher Batt, his sister—said Christopher being his brother-in-law—has led to the belief that she was his own sister. But as Christopher was the brother of Mr. Thacher's wife, and thus the former became the latter's brother-in-law, and as there is no evidence, outside of this will, that Mr. Thacher ever had a sister Anne, and as it appears by the record at St. Edmunds that Christopher Batt married another person, it has been inferred that the testator called Anne Batt his sister out of courtesy merely. In the Bishop of Sarum's Books, under date of Oct. 10, 1629, there is recorded an allegation of marriage" between Christopher Batt, tanner, aged 26 years, and the Baynton, Spinster, aged 26 years. October 12, 1629, there is found in the trish Register of St. Edmunds a record of their marriage. There is no evidence that said Christopher was married a second time. The record of the rths of his children tends to show that their mother was Anne (Baynton) Batt. e emigrated to New England with his family in 1638. His wife Anne survived

The will of Paul, one of the three youngest sons of Peter Thacher, baptized aly 22, 1638, interred Sept. 16, 1678, and that of the son of Paul, Anthony Hil-Thacher, baptized Nov. 4, 1671, interred Nov. 25, 1692, allowed and recorded the court of the Sub Dean of Sarum, are now to be found in Somerset House, ondon. Paul inherited from his mother a large real estate.

WILLIAM HULL.

By SAMUEL C. CLARKE, Esq., of Marietta, Georgia.

Five persons of this name are to be found in the early history of New England, who are supposed to have been brothers: John, George, Richard, Joseph and Robert Hull. John Hull was admitted a freeman by the General Court of Massachusetts, Aug. 7th, 1632. He was a member of the artillery company, admitted in 1638. George Hull of Dorchester was admitted a freeman March 4th, 1633. He was a Representative to the General Court in 1634, and afterwards removed to Connecticut. Richard Hull was made a freeman in April, 1634. He removed to New Haven, Conn. in 1639. His son John was baptized in 1640, and removed to Derby, which town he represented in the General Assembly. Afterwards removed to Wallingford, where he was known as Dr. John Hull, and owned a mile square of land. Two of his sons, John and Joseph, remained in Derby, and from Joseph descended General William Hull and Commodore Isaac Hull.

Joseph Hull of Hingham was admitted a freeman in 1635. He was a Representative to the General Court of Massachusetts in 1638 and 1639.*

Robert Hull, blacksmith, of Boston, was admitted a freeman in 1637. He died in 1666. His son John, or perhaps as Sewall's diary has it, his grandson, was made a freeman in 1649, and was a goldsmith, and a highly respected citizen of Boston. His children all died young except Hannah, who married Chief Justice Samuel

The name Hull, or Hulls, as it was often written in early times, seems to have been the same as Hill or Hills. See Piers Plowman, Ox. Ed. 1869, first printed in 1550:

"As on a May morning on Malverne hulles."

In the early Archives of the City of London, Cornhill is written "Cornhulle." One of the earliest of the name in English history is "John de Hulls" or John of the Hills, A.D. 1293. (See Dugdale.) Sir Hugo Hulls Justice of King's Bench, A.D. 1395. (See King's History of Chester.) Master Andrews Hulls, keeper of the Kings Privy Seal, A.D. 1450. Arnold Hulls of London was one of the patentees of the Virginia charter, 1606.

Sewall in 1676. John Hull became treasurer and master of the Mint in 1652, and left a large estate.

William Hull, the subject of our memoir, was born in Derby in 1753, being the fourth son of Joseph Hull, 3d, and Eliza Clark, who traced her descent from Thomas Clarke of Plymouth, said to have been the mate of the Mayflower.

Joseph Hull was a substantial farmer, who sent William to Yale College, where he was graduated with the English oration in 1773. He first taught a school, then studied law at Litchfield, and was admitted to the bar in 1775. In April of that year he was chosen captain of the first company raised in Derby, and marched with Colonel Webb's regiment to Cambridge, where he took part in the siege of Boston, his regiment being one of those which seized and fortified Dorchester heights, compelling the British to evacuate Boston.

The next service for Captain Hull's regiment was the defence of New York, for which purpose Washington occupied Brooklyn heights, and was attacked by a greatly superior British force and defeated, but succeeded in crossing the East river to New York in a fog the next morning, with his whole force of 9000 men, and posted himself at Fort Washington. To ascertain the object of the enemy was important; this was made known to Col. Knowlton, of the Connecticut line, and his officers. Captain Nathan Hale had recently been transferred from Webb's regiment to that of Knowlton. existed a warm friendship between him and Captain Hull, who were of the same age and had been classmates at Yale. After his interview with Col. Knowlton, Captain Hale visited Captain Hull, and told him what had passed, and said he thought he owed to his country the accomplishment of an object so important, and he knew of no other mode of obtaining the information than by assuming a disguise and passing into the enemy's camp. Captain Hull tried to dissuade him from the undertaking, arguing that it was not in the line of his duty; and that he was of too frank and open a temper to act successfully the part of a spy, or to face its dangers, which would probably lead to a disgraceful death. Captain Hale replied that he considered no death disgraceful when incurred in the service of his country. After considerable discussion, in which Captain Hale's views seemed to be unshaken, he took his friend by the hand and said "I will reflect, and do nothing but what duty demands." He disappeared from our army, and in a few days an officer came to our camp, under a flag of truce, with the information that Captain Hale had been arrested within the British lines, condemned as a spy, and executed that morning.

When apprehended, he was taken before Sir William Howe, with papers on his person which showed his business, and he at once declared his name, his rank, and his object in coming within the British lines. Sir William Howe, without the form of a trial, gave orders for Captain Hale's execution on the next morning. Captain Hale asked for a clergyman to attend him, and for a Bible, both of which requests were refused by the brutal Provost Marshal, who was an American tory. "On the morning of the execution," said the officer, "my station being near the fatal spot, I requested the Provost Marshal to permit the prisoner to sit in my marquée while he was making the necessary preparations. Captain Hale entered, be bore himself with gentle dignity, in the consciousness of rectitude and high intentions. He asked for writing materials, which I furmished him, he wrote two letters, one to his mother and one to a brother officer. He was shortly after suspended to the gallows. Few persons were around him, yet his characteristic dying words were remembered. He said, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." The Provost Marshal destroyed the letters of his prisoner, and assigned as a reason "that the rebels should not know that they had a man in their army who could die with so much firmness."

Captain Hull's next service was at White Plains. A brigade of 1500 men, to which Colonel Webb's regiment belonged, under the command of Gen. McDougall, was ordered to occupy Chatterton's Hill to oppose the advance of the British army under Gen. Howe, which it did for two or three hours, and at last retired in good order, Webb's regiment being the last to quit the field, for which it received the thanks of Gen. Washington. The brigade lost 250 men in killed and wounded, and inflicted an equal loss on the enemy. In this engagement Captain Hull was detached by Colonel Brooks his commander to oppose a superior force of the enemy which was seeking to turn the left flank of the American force. After a sharp conflict, in which Captain Hull was wounded, the enemy was driven back.

On the 25th of December, 1776, Gen. Washington marched with 2400 men to attack the British post at Trenton, garrisoned by 1500 Webb's regiment was in the right column commanded by Gen. Greene. The Lt. Colonel and Major being absent, Captain Hull acted as field officer by direction of Colonel Webb. The crossing of the Delaware, amid floating ice, was due to the skill of a regiment composed chiefly of Marblehead sailors, and the march of ten miles through a heavy snow storm resulted in the killing or capture of most of the garrison, with the loss of two men killed and two frozen to death. For his conduct in this affair Captain Hull was promoted by Washington (there being no vacancy in the Connecticut line) to be a Major in the 8th Massachusetts regiment. About the 1st of January, 1777, Major Hull was ordered with a small body of troops to impede if possible the advance of Lord Cornwallis, who with greatly superior members was coming to attack Washing-Major Hull met the British advance about three miles from Trenton, and skirmished with it during the afternoon, so retarding the British forces that Washington was able to retire to a strong position behind the Asaupink Creek with about 5000 men. Cornwallis with double that number was on the other side of the creek, and the two armies exchanged cannonades until dark. Cornwallis confidently expected to destroy the American army on the morrow and put an end to the war. But Washington, leaving his camp fires burning, withdrew silently in the night, marched upon Princeton, and defeated the British force there, inflicting a loss of four hundred men, killed, wounded and prisoners.

we make some extracts:

"When we left the Highlands, my company consisted of about fifty, rank and file, I found that there was not more than one poor blanket to two men; many of them had neither shoes nor stockings; and those who had, found them nearly worn out. All the clothing was of the same wretched description.

These troops had been about a year in service, and their pay was still due them, yet their privations and trials were only equalled by their patience. In a noble spirit of patriotism, they served their country in her greatest need, without compensation, and almost without the hope of more prosperous days.—In the attacks at Trenton and Princeton we were in this destitute situation, and continued to sleep on the frozen ground without covering, until the 7th of January when we arrived at Morristown, N. J., where we went into winter quarters. The patient endurance of the army at this period, is perhaps unexamped in this or any other country."

When the army was established in winter quarters in January, 1777, Major Hull was ordered to Boston to recruit the Eighth Massachusetts regiment, of which Michael Jackson was colonel and John Brooks lieutenant colonel. Colonel Jackson was still disabled by wounds, and Col. Brooks had been recruiting that regiment, and had sent several companies to Springfield. Major Hull was ordered to that place to take command and attend to their discipline. In April he was ordered to march them, three hundred in number, to Ticonderoga to reinforce Gen. St. Clair. Here St. Clair was beseiged by land and water by greatly superior numbers under Gen. Burgoyne, and found himself on the 6th of July obliged to evacuate the fort and retreat; pursuit by the British was immediate, and St. Clair's rear guard was attacked the next day, and defeated, with considerable loss, but St. Clair brought the bulk of his army to Fort Edward on the Hudson, where he found the force of Gen. Schuyler.

A popular clamor immediately arose against St. Clair. Even the army which he had saved from destruction joined in the cry. Major Hull did everything in his power to convince his brother officers of the necessity of the retreat, and wrote a letter to a Connecticut paper, justifying the measure. A public inquiry was made, and St. Clair was honorably acquitted.

When Burgoyne advanced upon Fort Edward, Schuyler retreated across the Hudson. Major Hull commanded the rear guard of three hundred men, and was to remain two miles in the rear and retard the approach of the enemy. This he successfully did, and received the thanks of Gen. Schuyler for his conduct.

Major Hull was next ordered to march with his detachment to Albany, and join Gen. Arnold, who was about to go with fifteen hundred men to relieve Fort Stanwix, which was besieged by a large force under Gen. St. Leger. On Arnold's approach the British retreated in haste, leaving their camp equipage and military stores, and went to join Gen. Burgoyne.

It the battles of the nineteenth of September and the seventh of October, which led to the surrender of Burgoyne, Major Hull took part, although not with his regiment, the Eighth Massachusetts, then commanded by Col. John Brooks. In the first battle Major Hull commanded a picket guard of two hundred and fifty men in front of the camp, and when the action commenced two regiments were sent to strengthen the position. Soon after the action began General Arnold rode to Major Hull's position, called the officers around him and told them that three hundred volunteers, to be commanded by a field officer, must immediately reinforce the troops which were engaged. As no other officer offered his services, Major Hull remarked that if he could be excused from his duty of commanding the guard, he would be happy to command the detachment. Gen. Arnold replied that he would excuse him, and directed the colonels of the two regiments to call for three hundred volunteers, and officers to command them. In a few minutes the number required was paraded, and in four companies was marched by Major Hull to the relief of Gen. Poor, who was hotly engaged. The fighting was very obstinate during the whole afternoon. Towards night Major Hull led a bayonet charge, which resulted in the repulse of the enemy and the capture of two guns, with some prisoners. Of the three hundred volunteers, one half were killed or wounded, which showed the severity of the engagement.

We have described this action particularly, because some historians have denied the presence of Gen. Arnold on that day.

No important operations took place until the seventh of October, when Burgoyne undertook to force his way through the American lines. On this day Major Hull again commanded the advanced guard of two hundred and fifty men. When Burgoyne advanced he was furiously attacked by Arnold's three regiments, Morgan's riflemen, and the guard of Major Hull. Burgoyne was driven back to his camp hotly pursued, leaving most of his artillery, arms, and some provisions.

As soon as the retreat commenced, Major Hull with his guard was ordered to assist in removing the prisoners, the wounded, and the captured artillery, while Arnold and Morgan pursued the British to their camp, which was stormed, and the Eighth Massachusetts regiment, under Col. Brooks, established themselves in the enemy's works. Although Major Hull had a separate command on this momentous day, and acted his part in the battle, yet he remarks, "I always regretted that as I was the major and second in command of the Eighth Massachusetts regiment, that by the routine of duty I was absent from it at the time when it stormed the British intrenchments." Major Hull was present at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga a few days after this battle.

After the close of this campaign, the Eighth Massachusetts regiment was ordered to Pennsylvania to reinforce Gen. Washington at Whitemarsh. The troops were disappointed, feeling that they had done enough for the campaign. They had marched from Boston to Ticonderoga; had retreated through a wilderness from that place to the Hudson; had marched to the relief of Fort Stanwix on the Mohawk; had returned, and been engaged in all the battles with General Burgoyne. They wished to go into winter quarters. But with cheerful submission to orders, they marched to afford aid to their countrymen. A few days after the junction of the two armies, Gen. Howe came from Philadelphia with his principal force, with the evident intention of bringing on a general engagement. But he was unable to force Washington from his strong position, and after some skirmishing he returned to Philadelphia, and on the twelfth of December the American army went into winter quarters at Valley Forge, about twenty miles from Philadelphia. was bounded on one side by the Schuylkill, on the other by wooded hills; the camp was entrenched, and a bridge built across the river, and the soldiers built log cabins for shelter. Major Hull writes that Col. Brooks and himself occupied a hut together; it had but one room, but their shelves contained a few books and a row of cheeses, sent from Derby to him by his mother; a luxury of which the camp could rarely boast, and with which visitors were regaled. Famine, and its natural consequence, mutiny, were threatening the army with dissolution. During the whole winter provisions were scarce, sometimes no meat for a week. The small-pox broke out in the camp, and one quarter of the well men were unfit for duty, being naked and bare-foot. Had Howe been an energetic commander he might have captured or destroyed the American army at this time, but fortunately he preferred to take his ease in Philadelphia.

Soon after the army was quartered at Valley Forge, Baron Steuben, a veteran soldier of the Prussian army, was made a major general, and the inspector general of Washington's army. The Baron introduced the military tactics of the Great Frederick, as far as they would apply to the American service. They were simple and uniform. He considered no part of the manual exercise essential, except to handle the firelock in such a manner as to have entire control of it—to load, take aim, and fire as fast as possible. He likewise taught one uniform mode of forming columns, and drawing up in a line in any necessary direction the situation of the enemy rendered expedient. The advantages of this system soon became apparent; under these simple and beautiful exercises, the army moved like a great machine whose various parts unite to form a perfect whole. Major Hull, with other field officers, was appointed to assist the Baron in these duties.

May 19, 1778, the Marquis Lafayette was sent with a force of two thousand five hundred men to observe the enemy and cut off his communications, but being attacked by a superior force was obliged to retreat, closely followed by the British. A detachment was sent by Washington to reinforce the Marquis, including the Eighth Massachusetts regiment under Major Hull. Some skirmishing took place, but the British retired to Philadelphia.

In the battle near Monmouth Court House, N. J., on an intensely hot day in June, 1778, Major Hull was in command of the 8th Massachusetts regiment, Col. Brooks being detailed for other duty. The discipline introduced by Baron Steuben here bore fruit, and it would probably have been a victory for the Americans but for the misconduct of Gen. Lee, who made an unnecessary retreat early in the day. He was sent to the rear by Gen. Washington, who rallied the troops and drove back the enemy. The forces were nearly equal and the fight was obstinate, both sides claiming the victory, but the British departed silently in the night. Major Hull went over the field the next morning, and found a large number of dead bodies without any wounds, who probably died from the heat of the weather. He buried four officers and two hundred and forty-five privates of the enemy; and more must have been killed, for there were a number of newly made graves. In his indignation at the retreat of Lee, Washington lost his usual command of temper, and Major Hull, who was present, used to describe the anger of the chief as so terrific that Lee, who was a bold and arrogant man, was completely cowed by it.

In the autumn of 1779, Lt. Col. Brooks being absent on leave, Major Hull was left in command of the regiment, which in November he was ordered to march to White Plains and take the station on the lines near Kingsbridge. Here Major Hull remained during the winter, eighteen miles in advance of the American army. Being in the face of the whole British army, without fortifications, their afety depended on unceasing vigilance, and although many attempts were made to destroy the detachment, they were invariably defeated. The region was that described in Cooper's romance, "The Spy," lying between the North and East rivers in the neighborhood of Dobbs Ferry, and was ravaged alternately by "skinners" and "cowboys," whose depredations Major Hull was sent to prevent. In May, Major Hull was ordered to West Point, where he built a fort on a hill which commanded the other works at that place.

In July he was ordered to unite his corps to Gen. Wayne's forces for the attack on Stony Point, which took place on the night of the 15th of July. In this assault Major Hull commanded about four hundred men in the column led by Wayne himself. The works were taken with the bayonet, and the garrison of six hundred men were killed or made prisoners. For his conduct on this occasion Major Hull was made a Lt. Colonel. He had two narrow escapes, one bullet piercing his hat, another his boot.

During the campaign of 1780, Lt. Col. Hull was employed on the discipline of the division commanded by Gen. Howe, of which he was appointed Deputy Inspector under Baron Steuben. About this time Lt. Col. Hull was honored by Gen. Washington by an invitation to enter his military family as one of his aids. On consultation with Baron Steuben, however, he was convinced by the Baron that he could be more useful as Assistant Inspector, than in any position, he having become familiar with the course of instruction in discipline then going on so successfully. The Baron undertook to explain to the Chief, Hull's reasons for declining so honorable an appointment. Lt. Col. Hull not only declined the appointment on these grounds, but he ventured to recommend his friend Col. Humphreys for the position, and successfully, for Humphreys was appointed, and retained until the end of the war.

In the fall of 1780 Lt. Col. Hull was again sent with a force of four hundred men to the lines on the Croton river to protect that region, where civil law was yet silent.

The condition of the army was distressing. The continental bills of credit, with which the army was paid, had so depreciated as to be almost worthless, and a month's pay would hardly buy a breakfast. Great discontent naturally prevailed among the troops, and the British commander sent his secret emissaries to induce them to But a contrary effect was produced among those patriotic Americans, for they siezed the spies and delivered them up for punishment. Washington was anxious to employ these disaffected troops, and Lt. Col. Hull suggested that an attack might be successfully made upon the British post at Morrisania, garrisoned by four to five hundred men under Colonel De Lancey. This post being four miles in the rear of a large part of the British army, no enterprise against it had ever succeeded; but to break it up was an object of importance, it being held by a partizan corps which was constantly committing depredations on the people between the two armies. General Washington expressed doubts as to the success of the enterprise, but considering the advantages to be gained, he gave Lt. Col. Hull permission to undertake it with a force of six hundred men, while Gen. Howe should march against a body of mutineers in New Jersey. Both expeditions were successful.

to arrive at Morrisania, distant thirty miles, before daylight the next morning, but owing to bad roads and swollen streams the place was not reached till after daybreak. A sharp contest ensued for fifteen minutes, when the loyalists broke and scattered. Fifty-two prisoners were taken, with sixty horses and a number of cattle. The barracks were burned, with a great quantity of forage, and a retreat was commenced. But the British posts were thoroughly alarmed all along the lines, and a large force was sent out from forts Washington and Independence to intercept Col. Hull's detachment, which was then four miles in the rear of the British army, had marched thirty miles, and had not slept for 24 hours. They had yet eight or ten miles to march under fire before they could reach the covering party under Gen. Parsons, and their situation was critical.

The attacks on the flanks and rear became so severe that Col. Hall selected about two hundred of his best men for a rear guard, of which he himself took command, while he sent forward Major Maxwell, his second in command, with the main body and the prisoners, horses and cattle. In this way the wearied troops fought their way against constantly increasing enemies, until they reached the troops under Gen. Parsons, about 1500 strong, when the enemy retired. The situation, however, was still so dangerous that Gen. Parsons continued his march till midnight, under a heavy storm of snow and rain, to the border of Connecticut. For his conduct in this affair, Lt. Col. Hull and his troops received the thanks of Gen. Washington in general orders, and Col. Hull also received the thanks of Congress. Col. Hull having now served six years, obtained leave of absence, his troops being now in winter quarters. In February, 1781, he was permitted to pass the rest of the winter in Boston, and was married to the daughter of the Hon. Abraham Fuller of Newton.

In July, 1781, the French army, under the Count de Rochambeau, arrived in the western part of Connecticut, on its way to join Washington at Peekskill, and Col. Hull was sent by the Commanderin-chief to the Count at Bedford to arrange for a joint attack on the British in New York. A demonstration was made by Gen. Lincoln on the one side, and the Duke de Lauzun, with a body of French troops, on the other; Col. Hull acting as aid to the Duke by request of the Count de Rochambeau. It was unsuccessful, and the theatre of the war was changed from the North to the South, by the determination of the Count de Grasse to sail for the Chesapeake instead of Sandy Hook. Gen. Washington, with the main army, went south, and Gen. Heath was left in the Highlands with twenty regiments, to one of which Col. Hull was attached, and was appointed Adjutant and Inspector General of the Army in the Highlands, and these duties he performed until the summer of 1783, when the eturn of Washington from the capture of Cornwallis and the cessation of hostilities took place. He was then ordered to West Chester, in command of a regiment of light infantry, to protect the people of that region from the refugees and tories, and here he remained until the evacuation of New York by Sir Guy Carleton, Nov. 25th, when by orders of Gen. Washington he took possession with his regiment of the forts about New York, and afterwards commanded the corps of light infantry which escorted Washington into the city. When the corps was paraded the General rode up to their front and expressed his satisfaction at the excellent appearance and high state of discipline of the troops appointed to attend him at the last interesting moments of his military command. "To render this service," writes Colonel Hull, "to their beloved commander, to hear his approving words; to gather, for the last time, around his beloved person, was a full reward for our long severe toil."

Before Washington retired from command, he was authorized by Congress to disband the army, excepting one regiment, and a corps of artillery. Gen. Heath was appointed to command the regiment, with Lieut. Col. Hull as second officer.

Previous to disbanding the army, the Society of the Cincinnati was formed by the officers, with Gen. Washington as President.

Col. Hull was one of its founders.

A year had passed since the peace, and the frontier posts of Niagara, Detroit, Macinac, etc., were still held by the British in violation of the treaty. Col. Hull was ordered to go to Quebec and make a formal demand for the surrender of these posts. He was politely received by Haldimand, the Governor General, who, however, declined to accede to the demand, having had no instructions to that effect. Nor were these posts surrendered until after Jay's treaty in 1794.

Col. Hull's regiment being disbanded in 1786, he retired from the army, and commenced the practice of the law in Newton, Massachusetts. He lived for some years in a house at Angier's Corner, since occupied by the Coffin family, and afterwards he built a large brick house in that village, which now forms part of the Nonantum House. A family of one son and seven daughters grew up around him; the latter being married to husbands in various parts of the country, from Georgia to Maine.

Col. Hull belonged to the Republican or Jeffersonian party, opposed to which was the Hamiltonians or Federalists. But he was no partizan; knowing nothing of the doctrine that "to the victor belong the spoils," he gave his influence and authority wherever he found merit and talent to deserve them. His friends were as numerous among the Federalists as among the Republicans; hence he was never a great favorite with Jefferson or Madison, who preferred absolute partizans like Dearborn and Eustis.

When the disaffection of the people in Massachusetts resulted in what is called "Shays' Rebellion," and Governor Bowdoin called out a force of 4,000 men to suppress it, Gen. Lincoln was placed in command, with Colonels Rufus Putnam and William Hull commanding the right and left wings of the army. By a forced march through a violent snow storm by night, Gen. Lincoln surprised the insurgents in their camp at Pelham, and dispersed them, taking one hundred prisoners, but with no loss of life. Fourteen of the leaders were convicted of high treason, but afterwards pardoned by the Governor.

The poverty and distress following the war produced many schemes for relief, among them a demand for more money; and there being no silver mines in operation, the call was for a large emission of paper. The farmers of Newton, where Col. Hull lived, were induced to elect to the Legislature one of these paper money schemers, but the wiser people of the town secured a vote instructing the delegate, and Col. Hull was appointed to draw up the instructions. They show that his views of finance were sound; viz. "Long experience has established the truth of this position, that money cannot long, in any place, be too plenty or too scarce, but in commercial countries must bear the same proportion to the property at market. To such relief in paper money would be political empiricism, founded in fraud, which would involve individuals in ruin, and eventually beggar our country. A paper bill can be of no value, but as it represents specie, -gold and silver being general in their credit,would only forsake us." All of which is as true in 1892 as it was in 1792. The instructions closed by directing the delegate "to use his endeavors that a sacred regard should be had for public faith, and the right of both debtor and creditor; and that agriculture and manufacturing be encouraged." It is creditable to the good sense of the people of Newton that they were willing to reverse their policy and accept their instructions by a large majority.

When the officers and soldiers of Massachusetts in 1792 petitioned Congress for their arrears of pay, Col. Hull went to Philadelphia to explain and enforce the petition; but it was neglected by Congress.

In January, 1793, Col. Hull was sent to Quebec as a Commissioner to arrange a treaty with the North-western Indians, through the Canadian Government, but the British policy was always to keep the Indians in a state of hostility to the United States, and Col. Hull could get nothing but fair words. Wayne's complete victory, however, about this time broke the power of the Indians, and they were glad to make peace.

About the year 1787 Col. Hull received into his family his nephew Isaac Hull, son of his brother Joseph, then a boy of twelve years old. He sent him to school and wished to send him to college, but the inclination of the boy for a sailor's life was so strong, that a place was found for him as cabin boy, on board a ship commanded by a friend of his uncle. Isaac worked his way up to the command of a ship at the age of 21, and in 1798 he entered the navy as a lieutenant. His great nautical abilities brought rapid promotion, and at the opening of the war of 1812 he astonished the world by the capture, in the frigate "Constitution," of the British frigate "Guerriere,"—this beginning a course of naval victories, which raised the United States to the rank of a formidable naval power.

The winter of 1798 was spent by Col. Hull in London, and the spring in Paris. There he visited the Legislative Assembly, and witnessed some of the scenes of the first Revolution.

Soon after his return, Col. Hull was appointed Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Middlesex County. He was elected to the Legislature, and afterwards to the State Senate for many years, and was a member of the Council. He was a commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, and Grand Master of a Masonic Lodge. In 1798 he was elected Major General of the Third Division of the Massachusetts Militia, which office he held until his resignation in 1805. Under his care the Division became one of the best appointed and disciplined military bodies in the State. These honors conferred by Federalist constituency, while William Hull was a Jeffersonian republican, showed personal popularity and the esteem of his fellow citizens.

In October, 1798, Gen. Hull, then in command of the 3d Division, wrote for himself, his officers and men, an address to President John Adams, at his residence in Quincy, offering their services to the Government, if necessary; and the President replied with compliments on the patriotism, fine appearance and discipline of the Division.

A descendant of John Adams, in a recent history of the administration of James Madison, commenting on the appointment of general officers in the War of 1812, asserts that William Hull never commanded a regiment in the face of the enemy, and hazards the opinion that if those officers had been appointed by the States, Andrew Jackson would have taken the place of James Wilkinson, and William Hull would not have received an appointment from Massachusetts. The first statement is shown by the record to be incorrect; William Hull having commanded the 8th Massachusetts Regiment as a rear guard in Schuyler's retreat before Gen. Burgoyne, in the battle of Monmouth, on the lines near New York in the winter of 1779, and with other troops at the capture of Stony Point; besides many other important detached commands.

Concerning that writer's opinion as to what Massachusetts would have done in appointing a general, the record shows that William Hull was elected to the same offices, civil and military, to which Tennessee elected Andrew Jackson; and by that writer's own reasoning, Massachusetts might have appointed William Hull a Brigadier General, as Madison did.

In 1805 William Hull was appointed by Jefferson Governor of Michigan Territory, then containing less than 5,000 white inhabitants, mostly Canadians, living along the lake. The rest of the territory was occupied by various tribes of Indians, mostly in British pay, and hostile to the United States. The efforts of Governor Hull were to civilize these people, to gradually extinguish their land titles, and to convert them into citizens. When he removed with his family to Detroit, his route was by way of the Mohawk river and Oswego, up Lake Ontario in a boat to Buffalo, and thence to Detroit in a schooner which made occasional trips between those villages. Being in Buffalo in 1806, he writes to his friends in Boston that he shall travel from Buffalo to Boston with his own horses, and expects to do it in three weeks time. Such was the State of New York at that time. Shortly before the arrival of Governor Hull at Detroit, that village had been nearly destroyed by fire, and was rebuilt and reconstructed under his direction. He built a large brick house for himself at the corner of Griswold and Atwater Streets in 1806. In 1840 it was used as a hotel, and called "The Mansion House." William Hull was the first Governor of the territory, and it became his duty to organize it, in the face of many difficulties and opposing interests among the different races of people who inhabited the territory.

He appears to have been generally popular there, and was reappointed by Mr. Jefferson, showing that at least his proceedings

EDWARD JOHNSON.

By CHARLES EDWARD BANKS, M.D., of Portland, Maine.

THIS prominent pioneer dated his emigration to this country almost back to the landing of the Pilgrims. He was one of the colonists brought out in the spring of 1622, by Thomas Weston the London merchant, who settled at Wessagusset, and from that time, through a period of over half a century, he occupied a prominent part in the political affairs of Maine. In the Weston colony a "parleament" was held to consider the case of a man who had stolen corn from the Indians, and "Edward Iohnson was a spetiall Judge of this business" [Morton, New English Canaan, 109]. According to Butler the man suffered a vicarious punishment on account of his great age and usefulness, and was hung as described in "Hudibras" Canto ii., 409-436]; although other contemporaneous writers assert that the real thief was executed. [Pratt, Relation, 4 Mass. Hist. Coll. IV., 491; Young, Chronicle of the Pilgrims, 332; Bradford, Plymouth Plantation, 130]. At another time it would appear that he saved the unfortunate colony from massacre, and the story of his action is thus related: "The treacherous Indians who had been wont to trade with the English, had plotted to cut them all off designing the way they would take to do it: when a few should come first to draw them together to truck, and then the rest should suddenly surround them armed and fall upon them and kill them: only God seasonably discovering of it, by theyr dying Sagamore to Mr. Johnson (now living at York, eastward and the relation] of it to myself) who had bestowed sundry good things upon that sick Saggamore (which lived up further to wards] Plimouth [Corbett, (MSS.) Narrative of New England Deliver-Patent." ances, in Library of the Massachusetts Historical Society, vid. REGISTER, vii. 209. It is not known what became of him after the dissolution of the plantation at Wessagusset, but it is probable that he joined the Morton revellers at Merry Mount, and finally drifted to the eastward about the settlements near the mouth of the Piscataqua. In 1636 he purchased of Thomas Bradbury, agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, 500 acres of land at Braveboat Harbor, York, and settled there, where he ever after lived. In 1640, he was nominated by Gorges to be one of the eight "Aldermen" of Agamenticus under the first charter, and in 1644-5 when the Mayor of Gorgeana, Roger Garde, tried Mistress Cornish in his municipal court, upon a charge of homicide, the prisoner accused Johnson of adultery with her. If we may believe a chronicler who was always ready to journalize all the bad things he heard about the Maine people, we must believe that he "openly confessed it at the time of her execution." [Winthrop Journal, ii. 257.] He submitted with the rest of his townsmen in 1652 to the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, and received from her hand in 1655 the appointment of Councillor. He petitioned Cromwell in 1656 for a continuation of the Massachusetts The Royal Commissioners appointed him a Justice of Maine in 1655, which office he held till July, 1668, when the government of Maine was once more overturned by Massachusetts. He petitioned the King in 1668, and again in 1680, praying for a termination of the encroachments of Massachusetts. He died at York not long after 1682, having been born in 1593 (York Deeds, iii. 116). In his long residence in New England during the early years of its past settlement, he had survived five forms of government, and retained the respect of his fellow citizens during all those vicissitudes. A contemporary has written of him that he was "m honest man and always for kingly Government" [Mass. Archives, iii. 300]. He had a son Benjamin (York Deeds, ii. 88) and a daughter, Deborah, who married John Harmon of York (Ibid. iii. 83). I presume that Priscilla Johnson, living in York in 1717, aged 80 years (ibid. viii. 261) was his daughter, and William of York, granted land in 1661, who had wife Hannah in 1669 (ibid. iii. 12), may be his son. I am not able to trace descendants in York, though a family of that name resided there after his death. His wife Priscilla was born in 1617, and was living in 1682 (ibid. iii. 116).

I have Recd many of Yours, lately, & perceive Your great Industry to obtain an opportunity of doing Some Service against the Enemy, & the Reinforcemt of Indians being as I hope ere this Arriv'd You. I doubt not, of Your Employing them in some Notable Enterprise. This Covers Doct Bacon's Commiss under Capt Bourn & also Jerem House to be Lieut of the other Company of Indians, for They must be divided into Two Companys. Howes' Commission has a blank for the Name of the Captain, who must be some Able, Active Man. I hope Capt Bourn will be with You in a short time with More Indians & by Capt Franklyn you shall have 10 Good Whale Boats. For the present you will send other Indians out in a body or otherwise Employ them as You shall upon the Best Intelligence find most proper for The Service. Two fellows of Colo Harmans Company have put in a petition to the Gen1 Court to have him sent for to Answer to their Complaints of Detaining their Wages from them. And the House have, it seems, thought it worth while to Address Me that he may be sent for accordingly, And tho' I dont think proper to send for him Yet I would have You to tell him he may have Liberty to Come to Town to make up his Muster Roll which for the present is Demur'd, as I am Inform'd. Mr Grant moves me for a Reinforcemt of Two Men at the Garrison house of James Grey. Let him have them, if it be Necessary & you can spare them. Tell Capt Moulton that I expect if you have a prospect of any Eminent service that he be Ready to March when You shall Direct him. If it be Consistent with the present occasion of service let Capt Oliver Come to make up his Muster Roll.

I am Y' Humble Serv

May it Please your Hon'

In my last, of the 17th Ins<sup>t</sup>, I inform'd that Cap<sup>t</sup> Bourn and Cap<sup>t</sup> Franklyn were not come, whom your Hon<sup>r</sup> inform'd me in yours of the 4th Curr<sup>t</sup> would be with me in a few days. We have not more than Six days Provision left; if Franklyn do not arrive in a few days I shall not be able to keep the Scouts out.

Jo: Nebon asserts, that the Penobscot Tribe have planted a great Quantity of Corn at their old Town & at their new, but Saccaristis will not own they have planted any below their new Town. Saccaristis affirms, that yo Indians fitted out two of the Scooners yt they took last Summer & went a fishing & getting Soils off at Grand Menan and the mouth of St Johns River, sometime in the latter end of May last. I am someths surprized the Indians are so still at this Juncture.

I omitted to inform your Hon' of Cap' Moultons return on the 15th of this Inst from Pigwocket; he made little or no Discovery of the Enemy, saving where Cap' Lovewell had his fight. There he found the place where those Bodies of twelve of our men and four of the Enemys were buried. As they went up by the side of Osaby River they found a dead body and judge it to be Cap' Lovewell's Lieu'. I won'd have sent Cap' Slocum with the Hostages before this had there been any Winds, tho' loth to part with the sloop till another Sloop arriv'd, it being of absolute necessity to have one constantly here, we having frequent Occasion to remove Provision from place to place, according to our marches. If your Hon' shou'd think fit, I believe it wou'd be best that all the Officers return to their Posts as soon as their Affairs will admitt of it, so that we may be in the best posture we can in all our Frontiers to receive the Enemy, in case they shou'd make their Attempts on us.

I wrote the Enclos'd about ten a Clock in the forenoon, Cap Franklin arriv'd here about eight a Clock in the evening, by whom I rece'd your Hon's orders, Dated the 16th Curr' which I shall strictly observe. I have this morning landed the stores, and now wait for a fair wind to send Cap Penhallow with twenty men on board the Sloop to proceed to Arrowsick & St Georges, to see wether the Indians have not attackt those garrisons, in as much as I cannot learn any thing of them up this way.

I had forgot to inform in the enclos'd, that Sacaristy says, that there was sixty Indians at Blackpoint when they burnt the houses and kill'd the Cattle there, on the 29th of last April, and that it was the same Indians that fought Capt Lovewell at Ossiby, which well agrees with Lovells fight, that being the 7th of May following.

Your Honre Order came to my hand on Tuesday: ye 22th, the 23th they Marchd Capt Joseph Golde Comandr wth a full Troop to the Estward according to yor Honrs order.

The Troops in y° Regiments, of Late, do not consist more then 40 Men, besides theire Officers. Considering the difficulty & danger of theire Marching in the Estward parts, I have taken out of Ipswich & Rowley Troop to make him a full Troop, to y° numb of six<sup>ty</sup> Men; they are all likely Men, & all well fitted, & goe out wth good Courage. If I have transgress'd, I pray that yo' Hon' would signify it to me. I had no ord' to subsist the men, I ordered every Man to take 3 or 4 days provition to carry them to Wells: & I Assured them it would be allow'd as heretofore.

Some hours after I had seal'd my last, the wind came fair for Capta Penhallow to go East, which he Embract, and the Sloop had not been out of sight more than an hour before I rec'd a verbal acct from Lt Dominicus Jordan (who was out with his Scout) that the Iudians had kill'd a man at Spurwink garrison, and that he heard the Guns, and was on ye spott in less then two hours. I cannot give a further Acct at present. Cap' Kenady will be able to inform your Hon' the posture wee are in at this time. If your Hon' should think fitt, I will give Lieut Jordan the Command of the second Company of Indians.

I ree'd your Hon" orders of the 19th and of the 21st on the 6th of this Inst abt nine or ten a Clock at night. I immediately dispatcht repeated orders to all our fronteirs in the County of York to be strict on their gaurds, and orders to Cap' Moulton to assist the Cap's of the Troops with experience and faithfull Pilots. I constantly keep out Scouts some distance from the Towns, endeavouring to make discovery. I wrote some Letters of Capt Kenady which will not be long before they come to your Hon hands. I diligently searcht to find out we's way y' Scout came y' kill'd y' man at Spurwink, but cannot find out unless they came by water.

Sir,

I am inform'd that the Indians lately enlisted under Cpt<sup>e</sup> Bourne, especially those that Came last to you p' Saunders, have complained of great Injustice done them by Defrauding them of a Part of the Money allowed them by the Governm<sup>t</sup> for their Enlisting, which was 20/. a Man. I would therefore have you take the first Opportunity, To enquire of the Indians if they can charge any of the Officers concern'd in Detaining from them their Money, And if any of them say they have not rec<sup>d</sup> the whole of their Premium, Call the Officer that gave them their Money & the Indians that complain before you, And make the strictest Inquiry into the Truth of this Matter; For if I find the Indians have been any Ways oppress'd I shall take Care that full Satisfaction be given them, And such Officers shall have the utmost Marks of my Displeasure. Therefore, I expect that you be very much in Earnest in this Inquiry.

Inclose an acc<sup>t</sup> of Intelligence I have from some that are acquainted who the Indian affairs, which may be of use to you, tho' I doubt not but you have taken Care to gett the best information in order to p'forme some such service, now, when you shall have a good Number of Men with you. I have noe Deserters in Custody, one In Cambridge Goal & the other In Newberry who being notorious offenders I shall, by Advice of the Councill, putt over into your Hands to be try'd by a Court Martial for an Example of Terrour to Others, It being of the highest Consequence to Check that spirit amongst the Forces. They shall both of them be secured in Newbury Goal forthwith, & I direct you send downe a faithfull serjeant, who seaven Men, to take them into Custody & bring to Falmouth, in order to their speedy tryal, & you must take Care to have a sufficient number of officers to Make a Court. You shall have a more p'ticular Acc<sup>t</sup> of these deserters, in order to your proceedings, lodged wth Newbury & wth Salem men.

St

The Sloop Merry-Meeting arrived at New Castle, yesterday, about three of the Clock afternoon, and after the delivery of your Hon<sup>25</sup> Letter to Lieut<sup>15</sup> Gov<sup>16</sup> Wentworth, he called his Council together, and by their advice did appoint Co<sup>16</sup> Shadrack Walton to Joyn with us in our Affair with the Eastern Indians. We hope he will be able to goe on Board a little after noon. Lieut<sup>16</sup> Gov<sup>17</sup> Wentworth thinks that the Indians will not much encline to goe to Boston, but Choose rather to come to Casco-Bay, or Winter Harbour, which places he Judgeth more convenient for a Conference than Boston, where (he saith) those Indians did never meet on such an Occasion, and (accordingly), in his Instructions to Co<sup>16</sup> Walton, does allow him to agree to their coming to either of s<sup>d</sup> places, if the Indians doe Insist upon it.

We are your Hon most Humble, Obedient servants,

Since we Wrote, Cap' Slocum came into this Harbour with the two Indians, which are now on Board with us. They tell us that the Sat Johns, and Cape Sable Indians have agreed to abide by what the Penobscot Indians shall agree to, and that the Penobscott Indians have directed him to acquaint your Hon' that they are willing to be at Peace, and that it lyeth with you whither there shall be Peace or not. They are desirous to treat in their own River which hath not been stained with Blood. They further add, that when we Come to Sat George, they can soon find some of the Penobscott Indians and bring them to us.

We are now weighing Anchour, and hope to be at Casco Bay before to Morrow Morning.

I examin'd the under-named Indians relating their Enlisting with Cap' Bourn, and they say they rec<sup>4</sup> no more money than is Annext to each mans name. I immediately sent for Cap' Bourn while they were present, and askt him the reason, his Answer was, that he agreed with them for that Sum and no more, which some of the Indians own'd and others made Excuses and said they did not so well understand it. Cap' Bourns says, that he Enlisted them in the Room of some that Deserted, and inform'd them that they shou'd receive wages from the time that the Deserters Enlisted, & that they were well satisfy'd therewith.

I rec<sup>a</sup> your Hon<sup>rs</sup> Letters, by Cap<sup>t</sup> Bourn, of the 24th, and those p' Serj<sup>t</sup> Parker of the 28th of last Month, with the enclos'd Information relating the Indians. I always make it my business to get the best Informations relating the Enemy I can, and Inform'd your Hon<sup>7</sup> of the Indians living on the back of Mount Desert in my letter last September, and that I was Inform'd they were supply'd from Annapolis by some man that married in that Country, who supply'd one Bellisle, a frenchman, who married with one of Casteen's Daughters, and mostly lives thereabouts, so that it well agrees with the Information your Hon' Enclos'd, and likewise with what I inform'd in my Letter of the 17th of March 1724-5 that two Friars and several of them liv'd at Passimaquoddie and Adjacent to it. As to that part of the Information that they are up in the Countrey till the last of June, about their Corn, interfers with their yearly Customs in coming down the last of May, or not exceeding the first of June, to gett Eggs and Fowl, during wheh time they generally leave their old men & women to tend their Corn, and then are down again the last of July or August, Catching Ses Fowl, and Sail before I seal'd this. I recd your Hones p' Colle Harmon, the 3d of July, which was Dated the 25th of last Month. As to the Indians planting their Corn, I wrote Capt Kennedy the best Information I cou'd get at present. By your Hon" Orders to me I understand your Hon intends to visit the Penobscott Tribe. We have recd but four Whale boats since I wrote your Hon that we had few or none fit for service, so that there is necessity of having them from the Castle, and ten or twelve more.

The Indians Capt Bourn Enlisted are most of them in the Woods; fourty are with L' Jordan up Saco River, whom I don't expect in this ten days, and another party are with Capt Penhallow whom I have Directed to attend the Commissioners Orders, so that I can't settle them Compy at present, according to your Hon" Orders. I have, therefore, sent Capt Bourn, with these Expresses, to wait on your Hon hearing little of the Enemy and making no Discovery of them. I wou'd desire to wait on your Hon' a few days at Boston before I be put on any further service. I shall take Care to leave the Frontiers on their Guard. The Commissioners sail'd from

As to the Two Deserters, wee have no manner of place at Falm' to secure them, so that they will be a great Clog to the service; neither have wee a sufficient number of Commission officers to try them, unless wee call them off from their several posts and Scouts, so that the service will suffer, the frontiers being so long it is difficult getting them together. I would pray your Honour either to continue them where they are for the present till the Affaires are in a better posture, or that they be tryed by the Justices of the Assises in the County where they were taken, as is explain'd in the Sixtht Article of the Martial Law. The Lieut of the man of Warr arriv'd here the 6th Currt with a small Sloop they took from the Indians about Ten days ago, and one Samuel Trask,* whom he redeem'd from Casteen, of whom I got the Enclosed Information, and the other from Lieut James March. It seems to me as if the providence of God had sent him at this Juncture to do us great service. * See REGISTER, xiv., 139, 140, for a copy of a letter (Mass. Arch. 52, 226-9), from Baron De Castine, the younger, dated at Pentagouet, 23 July, 1725, in which he mentions the fact of having redeemed Samuel Trask, "of Salem, near Marblehead," "from the Salvages,"

This Samuel Trask was a grandson of Captain William, of Salem, where he was born 14 Angust, 1671, and died in Edgecomb, Maine, in the month of August, 1789, at the advanced age of 118 years. The tradition in the family is, that "he walked a mile home and back, on the day of his death, ate his dinner, sat back, appeared to be falling, and soon died." His wife survived him till the May following, when she died; was buried the 20th of May,

It appears that a sum of money had been voted by the town of Salem for the redemption of Mr. T. from the Indians, but, on the 30th of April, 1725, his whereabouts not being hard, it remaining uncertain whether he was dead or alive, they voted to appropriate the money for the purchase of a bell, "and if said Trask should be heard of and stand in need of help for his redemption," they would contribute towards it. See Sewall's Ancient Demninons of Maine, page 251. Abigail Trask, grand-daughter of Samuel, married the Rev. Samuel Sewall. She was a grandmother of Rufus K. Sewall, Esq., author of the above work. Felt's Annals of Salem, 1st edition, page 379; 2d ed., vol. ii., page 255, contains information concerning the said Samuel Trask. A fac-simile signature of Samuel Trask is here given, his name being appended to various petitions for land, &c., the originals of which are to be found in the Massachusetts Archives, as also that of his sons, Samuel, Jr., Thomas, David, Solomon and Joseph, some if not all of whom left descendants. Several of these petitions are printed in the Registers. Samuel Trask and Hannah Steward, both of Salem, were published Nov. 21, 1730. See Salem Press Historical and Genealogical Becord, vol. 1, page 54. This was doubtless Samuel, the "redeemed captive."

Franklin W. Sherman, Esq., Town Clerk of Edgecomb, has sent the following from the Records:

Samuel Trask, Jr., son of Samuel Trask, was born in Edgecomb, Oct. 24, 1731. Dorcas Track, his wife, was born Oct. 16, 1733.

I must pray you to excuse me that I have not of late been more Punctual in Acknowledging your Letters weh I don't use to bee guilty of, but my time towards the End of the sessions was a Little more than ordinarily taken up & has been Since. I Consulted the Council about your proposal for the Indians Coming to Winter Harbor &c. but they were of opinion it was more honorable to Insist upon their Coming to Boston. I have sent orders accordingly to our Commiss & as I have Little faith of the Sincerity of the Indians for a Peace, at p'sent, & it seeming by Many Concurring Circumstances that they are taking an opertunity to surprise us & that they aim, Cheifly, at amusing us till they have gott in their Corne, which we have an Undoubted Account that they have Planted in Penobscott New Towne & some say in y° old Towne too. I have ordered about Two hundred & Twenty Mer to March Thither the same Way that Cap<sup>t</sup> Heath went the last Year, & if you shall think fitt to send a Company of your Men with them it will Strengthen them & p'haps Make the March More Chearful; & I hope if it shall Please God to succeed us herein the Indians will then be in earnest for a Peace & Come in wherever you shall think it Proper. I have order[ed] our Forces to March the 1st of August. If you Please to keep the affair Secret as Possible you may adjourn the time of Marching wth Colln Westbrook who is under orders to be very secret.

COLUMBUS DAY.

Communicated by Capt. CHARLES HERVEY TOWNSHEND, of Raynham, New Haven, Conn.

The following paper is a portion of an article which was prepared by the author, apropos of the approach of Columbus day, and was published in the New Haven Journal and Courier, of Jan. 29th, 1891, relative to Columbus and how this country came to be named America instead of receiving a name in honor of the great discoverer.

Brief mention will be made regarding the original or native name of our continent which it bore before the Columbian discovery, and point out how, by a combination of circumstances, the whole world has been led into the error that America was named for Vesputius, a Florentine map-maker, who enlightened Europe on the discoveries of Columbus.

Am-ar-ca is the native name of the land which Christopher Columbus discovered in 1498 near the mouth of the Orinoco river on the north coast of the South American continent, while making his third voyage westward from Spain in quest of a more direct route to India, Cathay and Japan. These last named countries having been visited in the thirteenth century by the noble and illustrious Venetian voyager, Marco Polo, of which he on his return to his native city, published to the then known world so interesting an account, and concerning which Colonel Yule of the Royal Bengal (British) army has also eulightened us in his (Polo's) letters of his on, mineral and agricultural productions, and the unsurpassed magnifience of the Tartar dynasty and of the Great Khans who at that period

eld autocratic sway of Asia.

The Baron de Humboldt tells us that the first settlement of Spaniards in the main land was at a place called Amaraca-panna, and on a map howing the discoveries and explorations of Columbus on the coast of enezuela from the Dragon's Mouth (one of the approaches to the Bay of 'ara) between the island of Trinidad and the coast of South America and ne mouth of the Orinoco river appears the name Maraca-panna, or properly maraca-panna. This name Amarca was adopted by the Spaniards for the ew country, and so laid down on their charts and publications of that date, and so gave publicity concerning this native name and by which later the thole western continent became known to Europeans by the national ame of its chief nation.

The name Amarca is in this form: viz., Am-ar-ca. The root-ar is in three erms: ar, primary; er, secondary; and or, a tertiary state; so that the ame Am-ar-ca and America are identical.

The sacred book of the Peruvians shows that Amarca or America was cally the national name of their country. This has been proved by tracters and chart makers, who show that early South Americans adopted the yetem of adding prefixes to the national name in designating the most important cities, such as Cundin-Amarca, Cay-Amarca, Pult-Amarca, Yan-Amarca, Ang-Amarca and Vin-Amarca, and their capital was called Amarca; and to give here in way of an illustration a parallel we will say North Laven, East Haven, West Haven, etc., etc.

From this time, A. D. 1500, the name of Amarca was well known in burope, and every year new expeditions for exploration and trade were tted out, as history abundantly proves, viz., those of Nino and Pinzon, oth companions of Columbus; Lepe 1501, Guerea 1502, etc., etc. The spital of the new country, Amarca, was burned by the Spaniard Alvardo

Having shown the name America to have been of native origin, it natually follows that an explanation should be sought as to why the great error thich it has taken centuries to explain was made by early historians and trown broadcast to the world; why the nickname Amerigo for Alberticus esputius, a Florentine naval astronomer, should have been thus misapplied. Espucci was not even a mariner. He was a man of business who, in fay, 1499, and the year following the Columbian discovery of the American continent, accompanied the Ojeda expedition as a passenger with the bject in view to collect materials for his new books and charts, which later sund a market and sale in the countries of Europe, and as there were veral Vespucci at this date following the same calling, he was distinguished out the others (who were his relations) on account of this voyage by the ognomen of the new country of which he wrote, and was thus known to be world by its native name, Amarca.

It was the custom at that period to give men who had accomplished retarkable deeds an additional cognomen, as in our day General Gordon, the served in China, was named Chinese Gordon; General Jackson, Stoneall Jackson; Dr. Livingston, African Livingston, etc., etc.; so, as Albercus Vesputius had voyaged to the new found land of Columbus, whose disovery of it no one disputed at that period and of which Columbus had hade charts, Vespucci was given, we are led to suppose from investigation, the cognomen of "Amerigo" Vespucci. Early in the sixteenth century (A. D. 1500) the duke of Lorraine gave to the famous monastery of St. Dee, where the learned monk, Waltze Muller, was the principal, a printing press; and the publications of Vespucci regarding the discovery of the new country being at that time new, these monks, wishing to show the wonders of printing, issued on April 26, 1507, as their first work, a little book (four pages) and with it the Vespucci map of the then supposed world, with the new country added thereto.

Lambert says in tracing the new-found-land they (the monks) were guided by the published letters of Vesputius, and in the preface of the work it was suggested that the western continent be named Amerigo, after the man who, they added, had discovered it. They did not know that Vesputius himself had taken the name Amerigo (Italian) from Amarca, the native name of the country which he had visited and of which he had written.

About A. D. 1512, Muller, finding out his error, issued a new map of the new discoveries, and without mentioning his error wrote on it, "This land with the adjacent isles was found by Columbus, an officer in command for the king of Castile." Hereafter all the new maps seem to have copied this native name of the new country, Amerigo, but spelling it America, and the name was generally adopted by the whole world, and no one seems to have corrected the wrong impression that had gone out broadcast through the medium of this, at the time, seemingly insignificant fact.

I will not repeat the voyages of the Northmen to Vineland (New England) centuries before Columbus's voyages, 1492-1502, when he explored the north and west shores of the Carribean sea, and unknown to himself discovered a continent, supposing it, on account of error regarding the then unknown circumference of the world, to be contiguous to Cathay on the eastern shores of Asia Minor. Nor will I enlarge at length on the history of the voyage of Columbus and his contemporaries, with which all are familiar, but will only make brief mention of those navigators and their exploits, as their names are required to fill up and connect history, and as they were known factors in stimulating the nations of western Europe to combined efforts in promoting the development and settlement of a newly discovered continent.

It has been abundantly proved by Columbus's own letters that he had, from some source, knowledge of lands west of the line of Ptolemy. The Punctum Meridenale of the nations of the east was drawn through the most western of the Canary Islands. Some sailors and geographers, however, used the meridian of the peak of Teneriffe. The Arabians used the most western cape of Europe known to them on the Atlantic ocean, and that was probably the oriental meridian adopted by Ptolemy, who flourished one hundred and fifty years before Christ, and who reduced geography to a regular science. During the dark ages, which followed the fall of Rome, the arts and sciences were kept by the Arabians and eastern nations of Europe after the return of Polo and Manderville.

The voyage of Columbus to Iceland and Greenland, of which I will give an abstract from his letter, is supported by the account of a dying shipwrecked Spanish pilot named Buxola, who had been driven by storms into the western sea in sight of unknown lands, arriving ill at the newly discovered isle of Madara, where then dwelt Columbus, giving in return for his hospitality the secret of the voyage which strengthened the faith in the belief that it might be reached by sailing west through the trade winds from Spain. Columbus, in this letter on his voyage to Iceland, written fifteen years before his discovery of America, an abstract of which his son gives, says: "In the year 1477, in February, I navigated 100 leagues beyond Thule, the southern part of which is 73 degrees distant beyond the equator, and not 63 degrees as some pretend, neither situated within the line which includes the west of Ptolemy, but is much more westerly." Seneca (61 B.C.) being transported with a rapture, with a poetical fury and divination, sung something of it in his Media:

> In after age the time shall come In which the all-devouring foam Shall lose its proper bound and shew Another continent of view; Nor frozen Thule shall we see, The utmost parts of the earth to be.

But it is folly to think that any one knew of the unknown continent in the time of Seneca. Historians tell us that Thule was the name generally given by the ancients to the most northerly part of Europe known to them, and, according to Pliny, an island in the northern seas. But most modern geographers identify Thule with Iceland.

The learned now believe that Columbus actually visited Greenland and that he was unaware that it was a part of a new world, which he afterward discovered with so much courage and good fortune; and as we have positive evidence from Columbus's own pen of his having voyaged there, it is fair to presume that at Iceland he first conceived the scheme of not following the circuitous track of the northerners via Iceland and Greenland to the southwest, but of sailing directly westward from Spain to Cathay (Japan and China) of Marco Polo, who flourished centuries before-A. D. 1250 -1324.

Columbus's successful voyage, 1492, was followed by the Cabots, father and son, 1497-1498, in the employ of Henry VII. of England, John Verrazzanio, a French corsair, in the employ of Francis I., king of France, 1524, when he coasted from Wilmington, North Carolina, to Nova Scotia, and took possession of the coast, as James Cartier later in 1534 did in the French king's name.

Varrazzano in 1524 anchored his ship on the bays of Norembaga and explored the eastern part of Long Island Sound, and gives us, in his report to the French King, the first description of the island at the east entrance, and the noble harbor of New London, Narragansett Bay and Sandy Hook.

Notes .- Henry Stevens, of Vermont, tells us that on the third of November, 1507, there was published in Italian at Vicenza, a most important collection of voyages under the title "Countries Newly Discovered and the New World of Alberticus Vespucci," containing accounts of the voyage of Cadamas to Cape Verde 1454-5, De-Centra to Senegal 1462, Vasco de Gama 1497-1500, Cabral 1500-1, Columbus (three voyages) 1492-1498, of Vespucci, four voyages of Cortcreal and others. This book was the next year, 1508, printed in Latin and German. Lambert writes: "I cannot account for the fact that his name appears so often in history as Alberticus. He (Vespucci) seems to have adoped the name Amerigo and knew of the treasures of Condin Amarca, afterwards called the Golden City, or Eldorado, by the Spaniards, which the crown had resolved to spend millions to find. He kept the secret, and Spain appointed him piloto mayor de la casa de construction—a sort of first lord of the admiralty. In this position it was his duty to make maps and to write the native name on that part representing the western hemisphere."

Those that did not know his name was Alberticus and who only heard of him as Amerigo-Vespucci, who had travelled to the new-found-land which had been named Amerigo, must have naturally arrived at the conclusion that the country had received his name.

Juan Florens, or Giovanni, a French corsair, and a Florentine under orders of Francis I., 1524, was sent out to seek a passage to Cathay, made the coast of North America, which obstructed his passage westward, and which he examined and charted and named Francesca.

In his report to the French king, on his return in 1525, just after the battle of Pavia, which was lost and Francis a prisoner in Spain, and not released until 1526, he gave an account of his discoveries, naming more than fifty harbors and headlands after places in Normandy, and an account of the natives he saw at the entrance of New York harbor, eastern entrance of Long Island Sound and Narragansett Bay, having cast anchor in these places during the summer of 1524.

His discovery embraced a coast line from about Deippe in 27 degrees north latitude, shown on a map made by his brother ("son frere et hertier") to the

R. de la buelta in 43 north latitude.

Harrisses gives us the following translation from Ramusio, vol. iii., fos. 423-426, with a map bearing the inscription La Noovo Francia. The discourse is not dated; but Ramusio in his introduction says that it was written in the year 1539. —"This Coast was discovered 15 years ago by Giovanni da Varrazzano who took possession of the same in the name of King Francis and of My Lady the Regent. That Country is called French Land by many even by the Portugues themselves."

"The Regent was Louise de Savoie, the mother of Francis I., and this seems to account for the inscription both on the Maggiolo and Varrazano Maps.'

DESCENDANTS OF JONATHAN GILLET, OF DOR-CHESTER, MASS., AND WINDSOR, CONN.

ARRANGED AND ENLARGED

By the Rev. Henry Clay Alvord, A.M., Pastor of the Old South Church, South Weymouth, Mass.

1. JONATHAN' GILLET, the progenitor of this branch of the family, belonged, with his brother Nathan, to the company of about one hundred and forty Puritans, which was formed in the counties of Devonshire, Dorsetshire and Somersetshire, England; sailed, with Rev's John Warham and John Maverick as pastors, in the Mary and John, March 20, 1630, and arrived off Nantasket, May 30th following, settlement being made at Dorchester. He was made a freeman there May 6, 1635. There was "graunted to Jonathan Gellet: to fence in halfe an acre of ground about his house leaving a sufficient highway." Further "... the foresayd p'tyes do p'mise to fetch all the Cowes from Jonathan Gillets house to Mr. Woolcotts . . . "; "graunted . . . also to Jonathan Gillet 4 acres" ("over against fox poynt"); "the bounds being from Jonathan Gillets pale &c."; and "one [lot] the other side, which was once Jonathan Gilletes."

With the Dorchester Church and Rev. Mr. Warham, he and Nathan removed about 1636 to Windsor, Conn., where he "had a lot granted to him seventeen rods wide" near Mr. Warhams, and across the Poquonnoc road from Alexander Alvord of the same company, whose descendant, Henry of Bolton in the sixth generation, married Mary W. of Colchester in the sixth generation from Jonathan. He and his wife Mary are included in Matthew ant's church list, made thirty-seven years after the settlement, of twenty-"members, who were so in Dorchester and came up with Mr. Warham are still of us." They were also privileged, having paid six shilgs, to sit in the long seats in church. He gave 4s. 6d. to the fund in aid ufferers by the Indian war at Simsbury and Springfield, and was one of committee of distribution. He died Aug. 23, 1677, and his wife Jan. 1685. # THE SNOW GENEALOGY.

The Will of Jane Snow.

In the name of God, Amen. I, Jane Snow, widow, of Harwich, being weak of body, but of sound and disposing memory, blessed be God for it, do make this my last will & testament in manner following; That is to say, first and principally, I resign my soul into ye merciful hand of Almighty God, my Creator, assuredly hoping through ye merits of my blessed Savior to obtain the pardon & remission all my sins; and my body I commit to the earth whence it was taken, to be decently buried at ye discretion of my executors hereafter named. And as for the temporal estate that God has given me I dispose of it as followeth:

Imp. I give to my son, Nicholas Snow, my Casin and ewer, and small brass kettle and one spit.

It. I give unto my son Thomas Snow, one copper kettle.

It. I give to my son, Prince Snow, my great iron kettle.

It. For my cattle, my will is that they be equally divided among all my children.

It. I give to Anne Atwood a pewter wine cup, and a dram cup, & a sucking bottle.

It. I give my cabinet unto my grand child Jane Nickerson.
It. I give my little trunk unto my grand child Jane Snow.

Furthermore my will is, that ye rest of my moveable estate be equally divided betwixt my two daughters, Mary & Sarah.

Furthermore, I do appoint my son Nicholas Snow, and my brother Jonathan Sparrow, for to see this my last will performed.

As witness my hand and seal, this twenty and first day of December, 1703. Signed, Sealed & delivered

JANE + SNOW.

Martha Cobb.

The above will proved July 2, 1712.

Mary Snow (Nicholas1), born about 1630, probably in Plymouth; married about 1650 Thomas Paine, who came from Kent, England, in 1622, and was then aged "10 or 12," and who died in Eastham, where his children were born. Mr. Josiah Paine writes: "Mary Snow, who married Thomas Paine, I think was among the eldest of Nicholas Snow's children. She was doubtless a very remarkable woman. Her son John, to whom we are indebted for much respecting her, was lavish in his praise of her. Her seven sons all were men of character, and highly respected in towns in which they settled. Four of the grandsons were ministers." . . His quite strange that Nicholas Snow did not give the names of his daughters in his will. It could not have been for his dislike of them, for those whose history has reached our time appear to have been women of the first order. Mary (Snow) Paine died in 1704, and her distinguished son, Dea. John Paine, great grandfather of John Howard Payne, left in verses much relating to her, showing she possessed many excellent traits of character." Children:

The Will of Joseph Snow, of Eastham.

In the name of God, Amen. The twenty-third day of November, 1717. I Joseph Snow of Eastham, in the County of Barnstable in the province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, yoeman, being stricken in years, and not knowing how soon it may please the Lord to put an end to this my frail and mortal life, & being yet sound in knowledge, memory, & understanding, do make this my last will and testament in manner & form following; that is to say first of all I recommend my soul to the mercy of God in Jesus Christ, and my body to the earth to be decently buried at the discretion of my executors hereafter named and as to such worldly estate as I have, I dispose of, give & bequeath in manner following; that is to say after my just debts & funeral charges are paid.

I give & bequeath to my two grandsons, namely, Nathaniel Snow & Joseph Snow, to them, their heirs and assigns forever, one half of my lot of meadow at Lieut Island, next the southerly side of said Island, near the great rock; that is to say, one third of said half to Nathaniel, and two thirds of said half to Joseph. Also I give to them my sd two grandsons, and to their heirs and assigns forever, equally alike, one third part of my wood lot, of upland, on the southerly side the fresh brook, laid out & set to me in the last division of land.

Item, I give & bequeath to my son Benjamin Snow, and to his heirs & assigns forever, one quarter part of my lot of Meadow lying on the southerly side of Lient. Island, near the great rock. Item, I give to my son Stephen Snow, and to his heirs & assigns forever, one third part of my meadow at Silver Spring, with one third part of all my upland there adjoining. Item, I give to my son James Snow, and to his heirs & assigns forever, one quarter part of my lot of meadow, lying on the southerly side of Left. Island, near the great Rock, and also one third part of my meadow at Silver Spring, with one third part of all my upland there adjoining. Item, I give to my son Josiah Snow, and to his heirs and assigns forever, all my homestead or house lot, with all my housing, only in case my wife Mary Snow out lives me, then she shall have the use and improvement of third part thereof during the time she continues to be my widow; also I give to my son Josiah Snow all that plain lot of land, adjoining to my homestead, laid out in the former division and also my tenement lot adjoining, laid out in the former division; also my wood lot laid out in ye last division on ye southerly side of the Fresh Brook; also my plain lot laid out in ye last division near my homestead; also all my part of meadow at Left Island, called a money share in the division of meadow; also one third part of my meadow at Silver Spring, with one third part of my upland there adjoining all to him & his heirs & assigns forever. Item I give unto my daughter Lydia Lincoln, and to her heirs and assigns forever, one third part of my wood lot of land in the last division on the southerly side the Fresh Brook. Item, I give to my wife, Mary Snow, my best bed and the bedding thereto belonging; also, I give her one cow & six sheep, and all her wearing clothes both woolen & linen. Item All the rest of my personal estate, I give one half part thereof equally to be divided among my four daughters & grand daughters, namely, Sarah Young, Lydia Lincoln, Ruth Brown, Rebecca Snow & Rebecca Hamilton, and the other half part thereof to and among my four sons, and two grandsons, namely Benjamin Snow, Stephen Snow, James Snow, Josiah Snow and my two grandsons, namely, Nathaniel Snow and Joseph Snow between them, to have one equal part with my said sons, and in case my right in common meadow should ever be divided, then my said sons & grandsons to have the same equally alike among them to their heirs & assigns forever.

And I constitute & appoint my aforesaid son James Snow, executor of this my last will & testament. In witness thereof I do hereunto set my hand and seal the day & year above written.

Witnessed, signed, sealed & declared to be his last will & testament in the presence of Joseph Doane. Mary + Doane. John Shaw. Barnstable Co. Records.

THE ORIGIN AND ANCESTRY OF REV. THOMAS HOOKER.

A paper prepared by Commander EDWARD HOOKER, U.S.N., and read before the Hooker gathering, August, 1892.

FROM whence came Rev. Thomas Hooker? Of the origin and ancestry of Rev. Thomas Hooker, we have no knowledge whatever, beyond the probability that his father's name was Thomas, and that his father had a brother named John.

It has been asserted that Mr. Hooker was born at Marfield, Leicestershire, England, but no authority is given for this assertion, and the most exhaustive searches having utterly failed to produce any evidence corroborative of this assertion, the conclusion was reached many years ago that the assertion was incorrect, while the inquiries made seem to show conclusively that Rev. Thomas Hooker had nothing whatever to do with Marfield.

While the Marfield story is swept away, a mere myth of the past, no evidence has as yet been brought to light which gives any positive information as to the region from which Mr. Hooker came or the family to which he belonged, and, in the absence of all positive information regarding this matter, the only course to pursue is to collate such suggestive data as can be found, and present it in as concise form as possible, that those who wish may deduce from it their own conclusions.

From a period ante-dating the reign of King Henry VIII. and to a time long after the "Restoration," there was in the South of England a noted family of Hookers. They were possessed of wealth, rank and social position, and they intermarried with England's proud old families. They were scholars, disputants and authors whose books, written three hundred years ago, are today found as valued books of reference in the larger libraries.

From some points in these books we learn that while they were loyal to their King and undoubtedly recognized the divine authority of the kingly office, they gave careful thought to sociological matters and entertained what may be considered as at that time advanced sociologic ideas, as,—that the people were the proper source of power; that society was constituted for the greatest good to the greatest number; that all men were equal before the law.

Some time before Rev. Thomas Hooker was born there was produced a written constitution for governmental purposes, and this constitution must have been a revelation to these liberal-minded students of sociology in the south of England, for it embodied the ideas which they entertained. It elucidated the theories which they had advocated. It was a solution of the social problem to which they had, with doubtful success, devoted careful thought and laborious study, and there can be no doubt, even if no evidence existed of it, that this embodiment of their social ideas gave great satisfaction to these liberal sociologists and was carefully observed by them.

This old constitutional government continued until long after the Connecticut Colony had been founded, and their cannot be any question that Thomas Hooker and the other founders of Connecticut Colony were thoroughly acquainted with this older constitution and the success attending its working, and doubtless they had this clearly in mind when they adopted the Connecticut form of government so nearly upon the basis of this older constitution, if indeed they did not have a copy of that older constitution before them when they worked out their social problems and established their governmental forms and methods.

Here then we have a noted family of Hookers, possessing the same characteristics for which Rev. Thomas Hooker was noted, entertaining the same sociologic ideas which he entertained and to which he gave force in the Colony of Connecticut. And around this family of Hookers we find towns, villages and parishes, bearing names which are familiar to us as names of Connecticut towns. And here too were found families having names which we find in Mr. Hooker's company, and among the founders of Connecticut.

In this family of Hookers we find that the stock names were John, Thomas, Richard, Roger, Dorothy, Joanna, Mary—the very names we find in Thomas Hooker's family.

There is little question that Rev. Thomas Hooker's father was named Thomas, and in that family of Hookers we find a Thomas Hooker, born about the middle of the sixteenth century, and who was probably between thirty and forty years of age when Rev. Thomas Hooker was born.

The Rawson family, in seeking their pedigree, find as one of their ancestors, John Hooker, a brother of the father of Rev. Thomas Hooker. And in this south of England family of Hookers we find a son John, brother of the Thomas before mentioned.

The intimate personal friendship between Thomas Hooker and John Pym can scarcely be questioned. They were of the same age, entertained the same sociologic views, and advocated the same theories and the same reforms. And many years ago the assertion was made that Anna Hooker, the wife of John Pym, was a sister of Rev. Thomas Hooker, and the assertion was also made that Rev. Thomas Hooker's wife was a sister of John Pym.

Anna Hooker, the wife of John Pym, however, was the daughter of John Hooker, and therefore could not be the sister of Rev. Thomas Hooker, whose father was named Thomas; but she may have been a daughter of that John Hooker who was a brother of Rev. Thomas Hooker's father, and thus have been an own cousin to Rev. Thomas Hooker. Of that, however, we have no positive information.

We have no evidence that assures us that the wife of Rev. Thomas Hooker was the sister of John Pym; but in view of the relations existing between the two men, and in the utter absence of all information as to who the wife of Rev. Thomas Hooker was, together with the fact that John Pym's wife was a Hooker, and the possibility that she may have been a cousin of Rev. Thomas Hooker, we may reasonably consider it at least a possibility that Rev. Thomas Hooker's wife was a sister of John Pym.

The seat of the Pym family was in the south of England, and at not a great distance from the seat of this Hooker family; and, though we have no positive evidence upon the matter, we may, from the similarity of characteristics and the community of sentiments, very properly conclude that the two families were well known and intimately associated with each other, and there is a strong proba-

Hooker family in the south of England.

So far as known, no evidence exists that positively assures us that Rev. Thomas Hooker belonged to that family of Hookers, but this suggestion is presented very forcibly to us. If Rev. Thomas Hooker did not belong to that family of Hookers, then we have spread out before us one of the most wonderful chapters of coincidences the world has ever produced.

The following chart of probability is based upon the data from which this paper has been prepared:

NOTES.

James Theleball, a man of some standing in the Colony and a Churchwarden, was a French Hugonot, and married Elizabeth, daughter of Lieut. Francis Mason, by whom he left sons Francis and James and daughters Margaret and Mary. His will dated 9 Apr. 1692 was proved 15 Sept. 1693. His widow Elizabeth's, dated in 1702, was proved in 1709.

40. Will of John Godfrey, Planter, dated 5 Aug. 1708, pro. 15 May 1710, names wife Mary, sons Matthew & William & daus. Amie & Anne Godfrey & Mary wife of James Whithurst; Wit. Richard Butt, Jr., Daniel Godfrey, Moses Ball, Sampa Power. (Register, Bk. x., fo. 159 b.) His widow, Mary Godfrey of Elizabeth River, by Deed of Gift dated 15, recorded 16 Aug., 1717, gives dau. kmy, wife of John Hutchings of Princess Ann, marriner, two negroes. Wit.

Sathaniel Hutchings, Daniel Hutchings & Catterine Godfrey.

41. Thomas Willoughby, gent., was the only son of Ensign Thomas Willoby, and was born 25 Dec. 1632, and educated at the Merchant Tailor's School, London. (Critic, 13 Jan. 1889.) The father, Ensign Thos Willoby, merchant, don. (Critic, 13 Jan. 1889.) The father, Ensign Thos Willoby, merchant, me out in the Prosperouse in 1610, and was 23 years of age in 1624-5 (Hotten, 248). He is thought by Mr. E. E. Salisbury (Critic, op. cit.) to have been scrhaps the son of Thomas Willoughby of Wateringham, Kent, and the grandon of Thomas Willoughby of Draw Rochester. Certainly a Thomas Willoughor of Rochester, aged 27, was a passenger, 6 July 1626, on ship Peter and John for Virginia, and, as he is spoken of as an old settler returning to the Colony, we cannot doubt that he was the emigrant of sixteen years before (Virginia Carolorum, p. 46, Sainsbury's Calender of Va. State Papers). He was a promi-ment man in the Colony, a Member of the Council and a large land-holder.

The will which follows is no doubt that of the widow of either the elder or anger Thomas Willougby, probably the latter:—

Will of Sarah Willougby of co. of Lower Norfolk, wide, sick; Dated 15 Sept. proved 17 Feb. 1673; Two children Thomas and Elizabeth willoughby sole Legatees & Exrs & they to be in care & tuition of Lemuell Mason, Jne Porter, wm: Porter and george newton whom J request to bee ouerseers & said george newton to Liue in the house to have a Care of the Estate, butt nothing to bee Done wthout Consent of said Lem. Mason, Jno Porter sr. & Wm. Porter; daughter Elizabeth all apparell & Child bead Linnen; each Overseer a morening Ring; the Girle susanna a Cow & to haue her well Cloathed; Wit. Elizabeth Theleball, francis Mason and Margaret Mason.

On reference to my friend Mr. Leland L. Duncan of Lewisham, a gentleman thoroughly conversant with Kentish topography and genealogy, he assures me that there is not and has never been, such a place as "Draw Rochester," and gests the probability that this has been a clerical or typesetter's error in the tic for Dean of Rochester, and calls my attention to the following pedigree, m the Visitation of 1619, in the Archiologia Cantiana, and which is repeated Berry's Kent Genealogies (p. 9) :-

VISITATION OF KENT. 1619.

ARMS: Quarterly. 1 & 4, Willoughby, Fretty, Or & Az.; 2 & 3, Fremling, a Chevron between 3 Helmets.

Arch: Cantiana, Vol. IV.

A very hasty search of the Calendars of the Prerogative Court of Canterburg gave me three wills of the Thomas Willoughbys, which follow, and of which the first is certainly that of the Dean in question whose name heads the pedigree, and the putative grandfather of the emigrant; the second is perhaps his son Thomas, who married Joanna Fremling (Chidington and Watringbury are only a few miles apart in the southwestern part of the County); he names only four children, but possibly the two younger daughters predeceased their father; the third will seems, however, beyond a doubt to be that of the grandson Thomas of the Dean, as given in the pedigree, but its superficial nature, as a nuncupative will, forbids any certainty as to whether or not it is the Virginian returning from his voyage of ten years before, to his native land to die. The "else where" of the will may, or may not, refer to his possessions in Virginia. The whole question is a most interesting one, and will probably be capable of final solution.

45. John Custis of Rotterdam, of Irish extraction, was in Northampton County, Virginia, in 1640. He had six sons Thomas of Baltimore in Ireland, Edward of London, Robert of Rotterdam (a tavern keeper there whose daughter married Argoll Yeardley son of the Governor, about 1649), and John, William & Joseph of Virginia. John, the son, was Sheriff of Northampton Co. in 1664 & in 1676. Major General during Bacon's rebellion & his estate of Arlington on the Eastern Shore gave its name to the well known Custis estate near Washington. (Meades Old Churches & Families of Virginia, op. cit. Neill's Virginia Carolorum pp. 208-9.) It is probably the son John who occurs, being the only mention, as far as the writer is aware, of the family in the Norfolk Court Records. In a List of Tithables in Accomack Co. 1680, occur Col. Jnº Custis 7 in family, & (Capt.) Wm: Custis with 6 members. (Accomack Court Rec. Book I., fo. 211).

46. Will of William Johnson, tailor, dated 1 Oct., was pro. 17 Nov. 1656; name his 3 children William, Richard & Mary, friend Stephen Horsey, Mr. Richard Yeats, brother Mr. Thomas Phillips in Marke Lane (London), friend Nickolaus Mason Exor.; Wit. John Pead & Th: Stanlijg. (Reg. Book vi., fo.

A Thomas Bridges was in the Muster of 1624, aged 12 years, then at Capt.

Samuel Matthews' plantation at James City. He came out in the Marmaduke in 1623 as a sarvant. (Hotten, p. 234.)

49. Lemuel, son of William Langley, Planter, of Co. of Lower Norf. has Deed of Gift of a Cow from Lemuel Mason of same, gent., being his godsonne, dated I Aug., rec. 2 Sept. 1651.

50. Probably the Dorothy Mason whose marriage with Col. Thomas Lambard has been already noticed. (See note 29.)

51. James Simons adjudged guardian of Mary, daughter of John Tucker, " who is departed from the country these severall yeares," being her Unckle, she to serve him till 16 years of age & to be instructed. Rec. 16 July 1694.

2. Probably not identified with the William Basnett who occurs 1651 and 50, as the latter claims head right for wife 17 August 1663 q. v.

53. Thomas Tooker, an Orphan & sonne of Thomas Tooker dec'd, to be in taltion of William Vascombe for 7 years & to be bred to the trade of a Cooper.

54. Power of Atty from Jnº de Potter of amsterd' in ye province of holland, mrchant, to sister Bridgett Edmunds, wife of Tho: Edmunds of Elizabeth River in Virginia, vintner, &c. Dated 10 Mar. 1658 & recorded 18 Dec 1659.

55. Perhaps the Thomas Newton of Accomack Co., whose deposition 22 May 1663, then aged about 36 years, is found in that Court. (Acc. Ct. Rec. Book L, fo. 7.) He occurs with family of two persons in List of Tithables of that year. A Thomas Newton also occurs as early as May 1637 in the Records of Northampton Co. (before the separation from Accomack), had wife Mary in 1639 & was still living in Feb. 1643-4, but of course not identical with the preceding. (Northampton Ct. Rec. Book, Ino. fo.).

56. Major Francis Sayer married Frances, widow of Mr. George Newton.

56. Major Francis Sayer married Frances, widow of Mr. George Newton, after the death of the latter in 1694, and was himself deceased before 13 April, 1708, when inventory of his estate was taken by his widow Frances to whom administration was granted.

Perhaps the Elizabeth Laney should be Elizabeth Ganey. (See note on will of Margaret Cheeseman in Mr. H. F. Waters's Gleanings, in this Number of the REGISTER.)

THE ORIGIN OF CERTAIN NAMES ENDING IN "MAN."

By ARTHUR AMORY CODMAN, Esq., of Boston, Mass.

In the thirty-sixth volume of the REGISTER, July, 1882, page 301, instances were adduced, chiefly from Burke's General Armory, showing that the termination man in certain surnames is a corruption of nam, which is a contraction of enham, this latter termination being the last two syllables of many place-names in England which are locally pronounced quickly, with the terminal sound of nam.

Since offering those remarks for publication in the REGISTER, I have found in Burke and elsewhere several other such instances, and even proof that the terminations ham and man, with the same first syllable, were sometimes regarded by Heralds as synonymous. This is one of the curiosities of nomenclature, and was strangely overlooked by Mr. Lower, and, I think, has not been noticed by any writer upon surnames.

Lower, at least in one instance, esteems similarity of arms as warrant for a probability of common derivation of names having some resemblance; and this is plainly the finding of Burke, while in our early records are several instances of the two terminations, man and nam, used for the same family and even for the same individual. It may therefore be hoped that the present article may be found of sufficient genealogical interest to be deemed worthy of place in the Register.

In his "English Surnames" Lower says "Buckmaster, Buckman," and others, "were probably servants to the 'Parker,' and had the care of herds of venison." It is possible that such an occupation may have been the origin of the name of Buckman in some instances; —but we have the name of Bucknam in New England; and Mr. Savage mentions "Joses Bucknam m. in 1673," and in vol. xxxviii.

of the REGISTER, in the "Soldiers in King Philip's War," the Rev. Mr. Bodge gives the name of Joses Buckman in 1676—evidently the same individual named in Savage, Bucknam; and in vol. xli. of the REGISTER, Rev. Mr. Bodge speaks of "Buckman (or Bucknam)." Buckenham is a parish in Norfolk, Eng., and it is highly probable that that place gave its name to a family, descendants of which contracted it to Bucknam, sometimes written Buckman.

Burke gives "Chartman or Chartnam," "Chippenham or Chipman," and Codenham, Codham and Codnam, which latter three have strong similarity in arms, and we have Codnam and Codman for the same persons in early New England records. Other instances of the name of Codnam than those noted by me in vol. xxxvi. have been found by Mr. Ogden Codman, Jr., Codnam appearing more frequently than Codman.

In his "English Surnames" Lower says, "from Dean came Denman." Perhaps so, directly, in some instances, but also indirectly through Denham;—for Burke gives "Denman or Dennam"; and the latter form is more likely to be a corruption of Denham than of Denman, and a Denman bears the precise arms of a Denham;—ar.

Burke gives Dowman and also Downam, both of Yorkshire, and with arms nearly similar. Downam must have been originally Downham—analagous to Denham and Glenham—and not Dowman; for what occupation or residential locality could give rise to the latter name? Downham, however, is found bearing different arms, but this is not proof that Downam was not originally Downham; while there is every probability that Dowman, being found in the same county with Downam, and bearing nearly the same arms, has the same descent.

"Dymon or Dyman" bears arms very similar to two families of Dynham.

"Elyman or Ellingham" is one of the many curious instances in the "General Armory," where very different forms of name—in fact different names—are apparently assigned to the same family;—though the cause of mutation is here very evidently traceable through the pronunciation of the older form, with the g and h silent, as Ellinam, and the confusion of that with Elliman sometimes written Ellyman or Elyman. Other variations from the same original name are given, with some resemblance of arms, in Elynam and Elyngham.

"Glenham, Gleman or Glemham" is another curious instance.

It is worth noting here that the London Notes and Queries of Jan. 11, 1890, gives a most curious instance of the termination man, wrongly written, instead of enham in a place-name, by an illiterate parson so late as 1797. This reverend dolt wrote "South lofman" for South Luffenham!

"Lymon or Lynam" is found in Burke, and in New England we have both Lyman and Lynam. These names unquestionably derive their origin from some place named Lyneham or Lynham.

Lower, in his "Patronymica Britannica," says that Longman, Newman, Potman, "explain themselves." Had he enlarged upon Newman he would have doubtless said that the original bearers of this name must, evidently, have been novi homines. But we find that Newman of Devon, Newman of Kent, and Newman "(granted 1611)," each bear arms very similar to those of Newenham and Newnam; proving probably that in these instances the pedigree was traced to Newenham. And, while preparing this article for the press, and since making this note concerning Newman, I have chanced to find that in Note 558, Northamptonshire Notes and Queries, vol. iv., part 25, Mr. H. H. Crawley, in reply to a request of Mr. A. S. Newman for evidence to show the identity of the names Newham, Newnham and Newman, gives a list of ten instances of such evidence, the first of which is sufficient for quotation here, viz. William Newnham, lord of Lamport's manor in Thenford, a brotherin-law of Sir William Mantell, is written "Newman" and "Newnam" in Ye Boke of Purston Mede, quoted by Baker.

Two Pakemans and Pakenham are found in Burke, each bearing ar. two bars gu., with other charges of much resemblance;—also Pakeman with arms similar to Packam. "Putman or Putnam," also. "Shipman or Shipham" was a grant of 1581, and this shows that three hundred years ago, and more, these two forms were considered by Heralds synonymous, evident corruptions of the same original name, Shippingham, Shippenham or Shipenham—Shipman being obtained through the confusion of man and nam in the contracted corruption, Shipnam, and Shipham through the strange excision of the middle syllable of the original name.

In volume xxxviii. of the REGISTER, in a note on page 442, under a list of names containing that of Eliah Tottingham, Rev. Mr. Bodge says, "'Illjah Thatham of Oborne' was what the clerk made out of Elijah Tattingham of Woburn. The name appears elsewhere as Totenham and Totman."

Both Wadham and Wadman bear three roses ar., though differently.

The arms of Walsham and Walshman contain each "a cross voided."

p. 713, appears "Waynam or Wayman."

In volume xxxix. of the REGISTER, Mr. Waters, in the Fawknor pedigree, has "Francis Wyrdman son of John Wyrdman of Charlton in co. Berks." Burke does not give Wyrdman, but he does give "Wirdnam (Charlton, co. Berks.),"—and as Mr. Waters says the pedigree, giving the form Wyrdman, "is from the Visitation of Hampshire, 1634," this is another proof of heraldic confusion of the terminations nam and man.

Finally we find that Wiseman (Middlesex), bearing precisely the same arms as Wisnam, may not be descended from a remarkable sage; as would probably have been the opinion of Mr. Lower.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

NOTES.

Some Notes on Smith's History-on The Virginia Company of London AND THE MANAGERS THEREOF, FOLLOWED BY SOME QUERIES.—In order to show the motive for some questions which I am going to ask, it seems necessary that I should first give some of the reasons why Smith's "Generall Historic of Virginia, New-England and the Summer Isles" should not be accepted, any longer, as the standard authority on the early English colonization of North America; why the managers of The Virginia Company of London and those who came to this country and devoted their lives to planting a Protestant nation "where none before had stood," really deserve our eternal gratitude, and why we have made a grave mistake in judging them, their actions, motives, etc., on such evidence as Smith's.

Capt. John Smith says, that "the wisest living is soonest abused by him that hath a faire tongue and a dissembling heart," and there is much in his books which appeals to human nature, especially to the fault-finding side thereof, as well as to several of the numerous influences which were then shaping opinions in England. It is evident that his personal narrative could not have been in-dersed by other members of the Council in Virginia (1607-1609) or by the managers in England; on the other hand, although we may not know exactly why, or wherefore, or to what extent any one of his positions was indorsed by any one, it is natural to suppose that he was indorsed by members of his own faction, and that his leading position in favor of the first form of government, which was designed by James I., was indorsed by those who regarded the King writings) found friends among the Roman Catholics, because it criticised The Virginia Company of London, and conveyed a very narrow-minded idea of the great Protestant movement. And in this connection it must be borne in mind that the only religious oath required of the colonists under the first form of government (1606), for which Smith contended, was the new oath of allegiance assed at the second session of the first Parliament of James I., which oath did of necessarily exclude English Catholics from the colony, as there was a difference of opinion among them on the lawfulness of taking it, and some Catholics are said to have gone to Virginia under the first charter. Whereas the charter of 1609, which Smith protested against, was much more rigid,—the 29th Article requiring the oath of supremacy to be taken by every one going from England to America,—and this virtually excluded all papists from the colony which was planted and established by The Virginia Company of London, as no sincere Catholic could take this oath. These, and other things, furnish ample reason why Catholics should favor his opposition to this company, as, although his objections were on different grounds, they were objections all the same.

But what probably gave Smith's writings their greatest strength, and made them a favorable vehicle for his claims, charges, etc., was the fact that he always praised the country and favored the taking possession thereof. His idea "I liked Virginia well, though not their proceedings," was one which naturally appealed to the more friendly class of critics.

However, opinions are based on various influences, and it is not at all necessary for us to know exactly why, or wherefore, or to what extent, he was indorsed by any one. "The primary end of history is to record truth; impartiality, idelity and accuracy, are the fundamental qualities of an historian. He must not enter into faction nor give scope to affection." And in order to place a correct estimate on written evidence, it is of the first importance to regard the motives which influenced the writers or compilers. As an old maxim expresses it:

"In every book regard the writer's end, Since none can compass more than they intend."

And what we need to know is: Was it really Smith's end, or motive, to write a Mistory of Virginia, New England, etc.? Manifestly it was not. His primary I was not to record truth, with impartiality, fidelity and accuracy. It was to ike a special plea for himself, the leader of a faction in Virginia, and against ters, regardless of the truth; to criticise and disparage the acts of those -io had him removed from office, of those who finally established the colony, and to take to himself the credits and honors which rightly belonged to them; to give as much prominence as possible to the experimental period of the first Virginia Company (1607–1609), and to take nearly all the credits therefor to himself; to produce the impression that he founded and left a well established colony in Virginia; while the chief object of his very brief account of the definite, determined, and finally successful efforts of The Virginia Company of London, under whose auspices the colony was really established, was to criticise and belittle their proceedings in almost every way. He places in 1607–1609, but "appropriates the deserts to himself," events which really happened at a later period, and events which did not happen in Virginia at all. And a single illustration will be sufficient to show the inaccuracy and the incompleteness of his account of events after 1609. The arrival of the Spanish spies, which really happened in 1611, is the only particular event mentioned as having happened in Virginia during the peculiarly important epoch in the life of the colony, between June, 1614, and May, 1616—(a period about as long as his own time of freedom in Virginia)—when it was really first beginning to stand on its own feet and becoming to some extent, at least, an established plantation.

More than one half of Smith's "Generall Historie" is taken up with Smith's descriptions, discourses, orations, digressions, criticisms, etc.; and more than the smith of the s one half of the narrative is devoted to the brief period, 1607-1609.

The account of "The Summer Isles," in which the historian was not personally interested, is the least partisan and most correct. His claims as to New England are just as broad as they are as to South Virginia, and he reflects, occasionally, on the North Virginia Company, saying, "I am not the first they have deceived etc., and he criticises the Pilgrims quite freely; but his accounts of the South Virginia Companies and colonists are much the more objectionable and incorrect.

The narrative in Smith's publications is of two kinds. First, that which we are told was compiled from the writings of others. Second, that witten avowedly by himself.

The first has been relied on as being the evidence of disinterested authors but some of them were not disinterested, some could not have written what is attributed to them, and several of the tracts from which Smith did compile still remain to show that his compilation is garbled in his own interest and unreliable; that he did not hesitate to insert his own name, or a favorable reference to himself, where there was none in the original, "so that the whole being to be misdoubted in that it is falsified in part, or the true from the untrue not distinguishable." While the narrative, "writ with his own hand,"—and the trustworthiness of his narratives really depends on his own veracity,— shows that his own narrative is frequently misleading, prevaricating or untrue; and that he was not a true man. In the first kind, grave charges are brought against others, while in the second he ignores others almost entirely, and takes nearly all credit to himself. "When I went first to these desperate designs it cost me many a forgotten pound to hire men to go." "In this little He of Mevis * [March 27th to April 3rd, 1607] * I have remained a good time together to wood and water and refresh my men." Newport was then in command, and Smith was "restrained as a prisoner."

"How first he planted Virginia and was set ashore with about an hundred met in the wilde woods." He was still a prisoner. "Where with some thirty-seaved men and boyes the remainder of an hundred and five [this reference is to Jan. 2, 1608, when he was again a prisoner] against the fury of the salvages, I began that plantation now in Virginia; which beginning (here and there) cost we neare five yeares worke and more than five hundred pound of my owne estate. The auditors credit him with only £9. "I would yet begin againe with as small meanes as I did at first ** For all their discoveries I can yet heare of, are but pigs of my owne sowe." "That the most of those faire plantations did spring from the fruits of my adventors and discoveries is evident." etc.

For the last fifteen years of his life the burden of his song and the essence of his story was how much he had done, how much he had spent, and how little he had gotten therefor. And "therefore I humbly entreat your Honour," etc. etc. Smith himself gives quite a fair summary of the idea, or motive, of his publications under "the differences betwixt my beginning in Virginia, and the proceedings of my successors," in his advertisements for the "unexperienced Planters of New England," etc., pp. 3-7; and his manner of writing is perfectly described by Capt. George Percy in his letter to the Earl of Northumberland.

His story is in no sense a history. It is in almost every sense a travesty on the true history of the early English colonization of North America. It does not give an impartial, faithful and accurate account of the charters, companies, councils or colonists; or of the acts or motives of managers, or officials; or of events, either in England or Virginia, at any time. His motive is a selfish one.

The settlement of this country by Protestants was a result of the Reformation, and the movement which led thereto was largely inspired by old Protestant solders of the Reformation wars. But the earliest historian, although probably a Protestant, had been an old soldier of the Holy Roman Empire under the uncle of Phillp III., of Spain; and he was a free lance in letters as he had been in war. The panegyric poetry under his portrait on his map of New England was written by a Roman Catholic; and every map in his history of colonies which were panted especially "to check the increasing power of the Jesuits in America," is stamped with a coat-of-arms, said to have been granted to the historian by Sigismund Bathori, one of the leading Jesuits in Europe. The work was published under the patronage of a member of the most powerful Roman Catholic family in England, and after the annulling of the Virginia charters in 1624, when there was a very bitter feeling in the hearts of a large party in England towards the members of the first administration of the Virginia Company.

The enterprise was one of the most momentous strokes of national policy in the annuals of the world. It was under the supervision of the great English statesmen of that period, and under the careful management of the wonderful men of affairs who were then spreading abroad the interests of Great Britain. But Smith's history gives the prime position to Smith (a mere adventurer), while it ignores or obscures those on whose protection, supervision and management the enterprise and the final success thereof was really depending. And as our earliest history has been based on Smith's story, the importance of this enterprise and the genius of its managers have been overshadowed in the World's history.

But we must turn from the picture painted by Smith and his authors, and lock at the facts of the case. The managers of the enterprise during the foundation period, both in England and Virginia, like the managers of all great advance movements "since the world began," had to run the contemporary gauntlet; had to contend with opposition of every kind. They were held responsible for very disaster, whether of human or divine origin; willing ears were open to have every charge against them, from every source and of every sort; and willing te guess were ready to tell them what they might, could, would or should have done after every misfortune and "defailement." And without any prospect of present profit, they were obliged to look to the future for their reward, and to posterity for their vindication.

In England,-they had to contend with the self-constituted directors in the rear, who always think that they can manage affairs better than those at the front were doing. With differing opinions among those who favored the enterprise,—from the first, some protested against so many merchants being among the managers, asserting that such an enterprise should be managed entirely by the gentry, but others contended that the old merchants were the best equipped managers—some wanted more clergymen in the Virginian Councils, but others said that the enterprise was an affair of State, and that Church and State affairs should be kept separate, etc. etc. With those who objected to the plantation of Virginia—who said that it was "unjust to take the land from the Indians"—might prove a war with Spain—"the might of our enemies"—the difficulty of settling a plantation there and of keeping possession of the land—failure of former colonial enterprises—"ill reports of the country"—a continual charge and the uncertainty of profit-"this age will see no profit," etc. etc. With the unsuthorized publications and writings of critics and fault finders; with "such le at home and doe gladly take all occasions to cheere themselves with the prevention of happy successe in any action of publike good, disgracing both the actions and actors of such honourable enterprises as whereof they neither know or understand the true intents and honest ends;" with secret spies and avowed mendes; with friendly but visionary advisors; with the agents of Spain's cor-

"Jon fund, and with those purchased therewith; with the opposing religious tests; with the advocates of a form of government designed by "a Salomon ed," who tried to shift the blame for its failure from its bad form, and "to some it" on their bad management and on the conduct of several of their agents in Virginia; with discharged employees, deserting planters, and members of factions, like those who returned from Virginia with Smith in 1609, and like those mentioned in the 14th and 15th Articles of the Charter of 1612; with dissatisfied and disappointed adventurers who had to be sued for their dnes; and with opponents of all sorts, great and small—the "dyvell," the Papists, the Pope, the players, the Spaniard, the traducers of Virginia, etc. etc.

En route.—The colony was located thousand of miles from the base of supplies; the only means of reaching there was by the small sailing craft of those days, and the only natural route thereto was via the trade-winds and ocean currents which passing through the tropics subjected their small craft to tempests, hurricanes and shipwreck,—and the emigrants to "the sickness"; and through the Spanish West Indies made their vessels liable to capture by the Spaniards. "The sickness," "the calentura," "the yellow-fever," bred in the tropics, caused the rate of mortality to be terrible. And as the plague (cholera?) was raging in London during 1603–1611, that infection was also brought, from time to time, into Virginia. Prior to June 25, 1621, "scarce eighty of an hundred of those who left England reached Virginia alive, and many died after landing there."

In Virginia.—The colony was situated in a malarial country to which the English being unacclimated, caused disease and death; the country was filled with a numerous, savage, cunning and hostile people, who delighted in ambushes, murders and wars; and for the first three years the plantation was hampered by a very bad form of government which bred factions and caused anarchy, "even to their owne ruine."

In Spain.—The country of Virginia was claimed as a part of the Spanish West Indies, on the grounds of prior discovery; donation of the Pope; prior possession, settlement, etc.; and the King and Council of Spain were demanding of the King and Council of England that they should abandon the territory of Spain; placing every diplomatic obstacle and protest in the way, and constantly threatening to remove the colony by force, etc.

These were some of the difficulties, obstacles and troubles which had to be met; some of the true causes of "the defailements," and not those assigned by Smith. Neither were the managers "marplots," or "incompetent," as Smith has led us to suppose.

All of the great companies for new trades, discoveries and colonization of that period were largely under the same managers. They were human beings and of course sometimes erred; but their errors were corrected as soon as found out, the causes and causers of faction and dissention were promptly removed, and the "manifold difficulties, crosses and disasters, appointed by the highest providence," were met "with a constant and patient resolution." It is true that no great battles had to be fought. Our battle of Armageddon had been fought in the days of Queen Elizabeth; but this nation was planted in the name of The Prince of Peace, and the struggle which ended in success was rightly waged on the peaceful plane of diplomacy, and the managers thereof are all the more to be commended therefor. They did not give way under the troubles in England, the disasters en route and in Virginia, nor to the demands of Spain. God's secret purpose to uphold the enterprise was so strongly fixed in the lespired minds and undaunted spirits of the constant Adventurers, who met around the Virginia Council Board at Sir Thomas Smythe's house in Philps Lane, London, that they were never discouraged and never ceased to yield "their purses, credit and counseil, from time to time, to make new supplies, even beyond their proportion, to uphold the Plantation."

The Huguenots, the English, and Dutch Protestants had, from time to time attempted to settle in America, and there were fishing stations in Newfoundland and south of 45° north latitude along the present New-England coast; but what this movement began in England no Protestant nation really held any lot or portion whatever in the New World. And these men were not merely upholding the plantation on the banks of James River,—the contest was really between England, backed by the Netherlands and the Protestant interests, and Spain backed by the Bulls of Rome,—and these men, under the support of the Crown of England and under the supervision of some of her greatest statesmen, were securing the first firm hold for a Protestant nation on "a lot or portion in the New World;" they were clearing the way and making possible all that has come after them; they were planting an English nation where none before had stood; and the English-speaking people, all Protestants, and the citizens of both North and South Virginia, still owe them a debt of gratitude, which they have as yet made no attempt to pay.

It was a great work, in the prosecution of which great difficulties had to be met and overcome in England, in Spain, en route and in America-by land and by sea—and the true history therof is really grand. It was managed, and finally accomplished, by great men, with great labor and responsibility, and at great expense. It was regarded by them "as an action concerning God, and the advancement of religion, the present ease, future honor and safety of the Kingdom, the strength of the Navy, the visible hope of a great and rich trade, and many secret blessings not yet discovered." In one of their darkest hours (December, 1609) they prayed "unto that mercifull and tender God, who is both easie and glad to be intreated, that it would please him to blesse and water these feeble beginnings, and that as he is wonderfull in all his works, so to nourish this graine of seed, that it may spread untill all people of the earth admire the greatnesse and seeke the shades and fruite thereof;" and it has pleased God to answer their prayer. This nation traces back to this movement. "All people of the earth admire our greatness;" and yet our knowledge of these men and of their work has been derived almost entirely from the evidence of their opponents or critics. "Necessity which knows no law" lies at the bottom of this great injustice, -for many years there was really no other evidence available to us regarding "the infancy of our State"; but there is no longer any necessity, and therefore no apology, for continuing to judge these men and their actions on such evidence.

The publications of Capt. John Smith furnish good evidence as to some of the controversies, trials, criticisms, etc., with which those on whom the success of the enterprise was depending had to contend; but they do not furnish impartial, faithful, or accurate evidence for Smith or against others. There is nothing to patify us in reflecting on the characters or motives of those "undaunted spirits," who established the first English Protestant colony in North America, on any unfriendly partisan evidence whatever. And it is manifest that the acceptation of Smith's "Generall Historic of Virginia, New-England and the Sommer Isles," as the standard authority on the early English colonization of North America—as the history of this great Protestant movement—has put a stigma on the men and motives of our first foundation, which is a reflection on the English-speaking people and Protestant religion, as well as on the patriotism and intelligence of those who are now enjoying "the shades and the fruite" produced by the "graine of seed" which our founders planted.

We are preparing to celebrate the discovery by Columbus on which the claims of Spain were based; but there is not a memorial in these United States to those men who, "for the advancement of God's glory and for the good of their country," devoted their time, their talents, and their lives to the first establishment of the English race and religion on American soil. Even the graves of those who died in Virginia are unmarked and, indeed, unknowh. And Jamestown, which should be the Protestant Mecca of America, where the first firm hold was taken on a lot or portion in the New World for a Protestant nation, has crumbled to decay, and the sacred dust of the martyrs of our genesis is being swept out to the sea by every falling tide. But "for a less service than theirs men have been deemed gods by the ancients, and canonized by the church of Rome"; and Protestants will "prejudice themselves and the truth" if they contique to be unjust to the advancers of their standard, and to the martyrs of their cause; if they continue to condemn them, their characters, acts and motives on any unfriendly partisan evidence whatever, or without full consideration of their side of the case.

I do not mean to insinuate that we should not celebrate the discovery of Columbus, because it seems to me eminently proper for us to do so; but I do mean to say, that, while this is going on, we ought not to lose sight of the discovery by Cabot, on which the claims of England were based; that we should not forget those who secured the first lot or portion in the New World for a Protestant nation, and that it is the duty of the Protestants to cherish at all times—and never more so than now—their own historic interests and incidents.

Those who were managing the enterprise in England are now comparatively ell known; but we ought to know more than we do of those who came to VOL. XLVII. 19

North and to South Virginia prior to 1620, and I will be especially grateful for any recently-found-out item of interest relative to any of them. deal about a good many of them; but the men who really established the first English colony in America were men of action, and not of words; they were not "paper tigers"; they were not "mere verbal projectors"; they were not "given to bookemakeing"; it was not necessary to tell them that they "writ too much and did too little"; they left little or nothing in print concerning themselves, and we may never be able to find much that we ought to know about many of them; but I believe it to be our duty to make every effort.

I am especially anxious to know the parentage, date of birth, something of the family history, any item of especial interest, etc. etc., of the following:—

Captains Ellis Best, Gome Carew and Edward Harley of the first Council (1607-1608) in North Virginia.

Rev. Richard Seymour.

Master Richard Vines of North Virginia.

Captains James and Robert Davis, or Davies, of both North and South

Captain Gabriel Archer, who wrote one of the first descriptions in English of North and, also, of South Virginia. Captains Christopher Newport, Bartholomew Gosnold and John Ratcliffe, commanders of the first expedition sent to Virginia by the first Virginia Company; Edward Maria Wingfield, the first President of the Council; George Kendall, Matthew Scrivener, Richard Waldo, John Martin (the only man to protest against the abandonment of Virginia on the memorable morning of June 7, 1610), Peter Wynne (to whom the first commission as Lieut.-Governor of Virginia was sent), and Francis West (afterwards Admiral of New England) of the first Council (1607-1609) in South Virginia. Captains Isaac Madison, Nathaniel Powell and Robert Tyndall, the first surveyors of Virginia. A complete list of the surveyors prior to 1620 is also wanted. Master, or Captain William White, who wrote one of the first descriptions of

Captain Samuel Argall, who was sent out in 1609 to find a new route to Virginia,—not an unauthorized trading voyage, as Smith says. He did not "bring New England to light" as Smith asserts that he (Smith) did; but he removed "a cloud that was settling on the land" in 1613.

Sir Thomas Gates, the first Governor of Virginia (May, 1609); Sir George Somers, the first Admiral (May, 1609); Thomas West, Lord De La Warr, the first Lord Governor and Captain General (February, 1610);—one of his ancestors was the hero of romance, "Guy of Warwick," who having fought in the East and having done wonderful things for his lady love, retired to a cell in the woods of Arden and lived the life of a hermit. Another ancestor, Richard de Beanchamp (1382-1439), 5th Earl of Warwick, fought three French Knights, the one after the other, on three successive days, and overcame each of them (Sir Rob's Cotton's MSS. Julius, E. iv.);—Sir Ferdinando Wenman (B.A. Balliol College, Oxford, 10 April, 1592, who came to Virginia in 1610, as Master of the Ordnance not as "Generall of the Horse," as Smith says); when and where was he knighted? Sir Thomas Dale, the first High Marshall (February, 1611). It will be noted that the Smith references to these officers (Oxford Tract, p. 93, and "Generall Historie," p. 89) are misleading and incorrect as to dates of appointment, and as to facts.

Captain Daniel Tucker, who was taken as a prisoner to Bordeaux by a Spanish vessel in January, 1607, and who placed his claims in the hands of the lawyer there, etc., an account of which was sent by Sir Thomas Edmonds from Paris on Dec. 30, 1614, to Secretary Winwood.—(Smith tells us of somewhat similar adventurers to himself in 1615), and Captains George Sharpe, George Webb.
—— Smalley, Samuel Macock, Abraham Percy, William Pierce, Roger Smith, Edward Berkeley, Edward Brewster, Thomas Holecroft, Wm. West and Thomas Lawson; Lieutenants Wm. Cradock and —— Puttock; and Ensigns Anthony Scott, — Harrison, — Waller, and — Powell (who killed the King of Paspahegh, after trying in vain to take him alive, near the old block house, or Feb. 9, 1611), of the first commanders in Virginia. A complete list of the Commanders is, also, wanted.

Reverends Richard Buck, — Glover, Robert Hunt, George Keith, William Mays or Mease, Robert Pawlett, — Poole, John Proctor and William Wickham.

Largers Gabriel Archer, John Martin, George Percy (Middle Temple, 1597), William Strachey and, possibly, Sir Thomas Gates, were "educated to the law."

John Twine, first clerk; Thomas Pierse, first sergeant-at-arms; John Pory, first speaker, and the first Burgesses in our first General Assembly, convented at James City in Virginia, August 9th (present style), 1619, namely:—Mr. John Boys, William Capps, Mr. Thomas Davis, Thomas Dowse, Lieutenant Gibbes, Mr. Edward Gourgaing, Capt. Thomas Graves, John Jackson, Mr. John Jefferson, Samuel Jordan, Capt. Christopher Lawne, Mr. Thomas Pawlett, John Polentine, Capt. William Powell, Ensign Edmund Rossingham, Samuel Sharpe, Mr. Walter Shelley, Ensign Wm. Spence, Mr. Robert Stacy, Capt. Wm. Tucker, Capt. John Ward and Ensign Washer.

I would, also, like to know more than I do of Captains Adams, Bingley, Challons, Dermer, Elfrith, Fitch, Hobson, Hudson, Hunt, King, Moone, Nelson, Pett, Poole, Powell, Pring, Rocroft or Stalling, Turner, Webb, Wood, and other commanders of exploring and colonizing vessels during 1606-1619. And of very many others, whose names even are now unknown. For instance: who were the

Norwood P. O., Nelson County, Virginia.

ALEXANDER BROW ALEXANDER BROWN.

A MOURNING RING of 1759.—The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company has received from James H. Upham, Esq., of Upham's Corner, Dorchester, a very minable relic in the form of a mourning ring, made in memory of one of its members of 1711. The ring is of fine gold, and of the best workmanship; it is hirteen-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, the letters are raised and spaces filled in with black enamel. The outer surface is of six festoons or panels, three of them reversed, or upside down, and the raised letters are about one sixteenth of m inch high. The inscription is as follows:

Gen. Hatch was a prominent man in the days when we lived under the King. The following sketch of him is taken from "History of the Town of Dorchester, Massachusetts. By a Committee of the Dorchester Antiquarian and Historical Society. Boston, Ebenezer Clapp, Jr., 1859, pp. 319-320, 335.

"Gen. Estes Hatch died Feb. 6, 1759. He was a prominent man in town, had held the principal military offices, and at the time of his death was Brigadier General of Horse. His wife was Mary, daughter of Rev. Benjamin Rolfe. She ded Oct. 21st, 1763. Her father and mother were both killed by the Indians, at their house in Haverhill, Aug. 29th, 1708; also their youngest child. Mary and her sister were saved by the courage and sagacity of Hagar, a negro slave. Upon the first alarm she leaped from her bed, carried them to the cellar, covered ch or them with a tub, and then secreted herself. The Indians ransacked the the cellar, took everything of value to them, repeatedly passed the tubs, and eren trod on the foot of one of the children, without discovering them. They drank milk from the pans, then broke them in pieces; and took meat from the barrel behind which Hagar was concealed. Anna Whittaker, an inmate of the family, concealed herself in an apple chest under the stairs, and escaped unbarmed. Mary was born March 9th, 1695; Elizabeth, her sister, Sept. 1st, 1699. The latter married Rev. Samuel Checkley, the first minister of Church Green, Boston. Miss Sarah Hatch, the only daughter of the above, died Sept. 25th, 1779, aged 56 years. They are all deposited in Gen. Hatch's Tomb, in the old burying-ground in Dorchester, which tomb is entirely under ground, with grass now growing fresh above it."

The only son of the General was "Nathaniel Hatch, H. C. 1742, a Justice of e Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk. He went to England and died there in

The Salem Press Historical and Genealogical Record for October, 1890, and January, 1891, contains a very interesting paper by George R. Curwin on Fun-al Rings, which is well worth the reading. Mr. Curwin has taken the pains — search through the Diary of Judge Samuel Sewall, and obtains the record that the Judge received fifty five (55) Mourning Rings between 1687 and 1727.

THE CAPITAL LETTER F IN EARLY CHIROGRAPHY.—The following note from E. Maunde Thompson, keeper of the manuscript department of the British Museum, and author of the article upon paleography in the last edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, which note was written in answer to an inquiry as to the proper way of rendering into print the symbol like a double lower-case f, which was used in manuscripts of the 17th century where a capital F would now be used, may, in connection with the article by C. F. Adams, Jr., and others, in Proceedings Mass. Historical Society, vol. xx, interest some of your readers.

British Museum, London, W. C.,

Dear Sir:

The English legal handwriting of the middle ages has no capital F. A double f (ff) was used to represent the capital letter. In transcribing, I should write F, not ff; e. g. Fisk, not ffisk. To transcribe ff would be affectation.

Yours faithfully,

Dr. Davenport.

E. MAUNDE THOMPSON.

[The above article is communicated to the REGISTER by Bennett F. Davenport, M.D., chairman of the committee having charge of printing the early records of Watertown, Mass.

We would remark that in the early manuscript letters and records of New England, in the seventeenth century, two characters are used for the capital letter F. One of them resembles the F in modern chirography, the other is a duplication of the lower-case f. When the manuscript was printed, the double f was not used at that time. As a rule, the double f should not be used in printing; though we allow the use of it in the Register when an exact trascript is intended to be given. The modern affectation of using a capital with a lower-case f in surnames (as Ffrost, Ffoster, etc.) cannot be too strongly condemned.—Editor.]

ELLERY.—(Communicated by William John Potts, Esq., 529 Cooper Street, Camden, N. J.)—I find in the "National Gazette," Philadelphia, May 3, 1820, the following article headed "Mr. Ellery: "—"The venerable Mr. Ellery, the subject of the extract we give below, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and upwards of ninety years old when he died. The writer of the letter is a gentleman of Rhode Island, of much distinction, who was intimately acquainted with the deceased."

Extract of a letter, dated Newport, R. I., March 14, 1820.—"Old Mr. Ellery died like a philosopher. In truth death, in its common form, never came next him. His strength wasted gradually for the last year, until he had not enough left to draw his breath, and so he ceased to breathe. The day on which he died he got up as usual and dressed himself, took his old flag-bottomed chair, without arms, in which he had sat for more than half a century, and was reading Tully's Offices in the Latin, without glasses, though the print was as fine as that of the smallest pocket Bible. Dr. W. stopped in on his way to the Hospital, as he usually did; and on perceiving the old gentleman could scarcely raise his eyelids to look at him, took his hand, and found that his pulse was gone. After drinking a little wine and water, Dr. W. told him his pulse beat stronger. 'O yes, Doctor, I have a charming pulse. But,' he continued, 'it is idle to talk to me in this way. I am going off the stage of life, and it is a great blessing that I go free from sickness, pain and sorrow.' Sometime after, his daughter, finding him become extremely weak, wished him to be put to bed, which he at first objected to, saying he felt no pain, and there was no occasion for his going to bed. Presently after, however, fearing he might fall out of his chair, he told them they might get him upright in the bed, so that he could continue to read. They did so, and he continued reading Cicero very quietly for some time; presently they looked at him and found him dead, sitting in the same posture, with the book under his chin, as a man who becomes drowsy and goes to sleep."

BLAISE VINTON.—John A. Vinton, on page 22 of the Vinton Memorial, says that Blaise Vinton, a son of John Vinton, the original immigrant, "very likely perished" in the Indian war of 1675. James R. Newhall has the same supposition in his history of Lynn.

Blaise Vinton appears in "A contrie rate made by the Selectmen for the Town of Brantree this 12 may 1690." It is evidently incomplete, but it contains the me of "blase venton," who must have been a resident of Braintree at that ne. It is probably the Vinton who married Lydia Hayden, daughter of John d Hannah (Ames) Hayden. John Hayden in his will, dated May 25, 1718, entions his daughter Lydia Vinton.

QUERIES.

Hallett.—William Hallett, the ancestor of the Halletts, formerly of Hallett Foint. Long Island, New York, and owner of a large tract including what is now Barenswood and Astoria, was born in Dorsetshire, England, about 1616; he noved to New England previous to 1847, probably first going to Boston, Mass. Shortly after his arrival he seems to have become intimate with Underhill and the men of his regiment, among whom are named Capt. Daniel Patrick and Lient. Robert Feake. In 1647 we find him, in conjunction with Elizabeth Feake, wife of Robert Feake, in charge of the latter's property at Greenwich, Conn. The next year Elizabeth Feake is enjoined by order of the council from aliepating any part of her late husband's property. In 1649, William Hallett and Mrs. Feake remove to Long Island, and he writes from there to Governor John Winthrop, signing: "Your unworthy kinsma, William Hallett." The following par an indenture, signed by William Hallett and Elizabeth Hallett, is given to Jesses Ferris, conveying all his interest and: "his wifes right also in ye lands parchased by Daniel Pattrick and Robert Feke," at Greenwich, Conn. Can any one tell me when Mr. Hallett came to New England and where he landed; whether he was a member of Underhill's forces, or how or where he lived before stilling in Greenwich, Conn.? When and where he married Elizabeth Feake, and who was his former wife?

SNOW, COOK, ETC .- Was not Ann Cook (first wife of Mark2 Snow of Eastham) the daughter of Josiah Cook and Susanna (Ring Deane) Cook, or was he married before? Can any one give me all his children? Who was the wife of Lieut Joseph<sup>2</sup> Snow? We know she was Mary. Was she the mother of all his children, and when did she die? I would like her parentage.

Who was Elizabeth, wife of Jabez<sup>2</sup> Snow, also her parents? Where did she

Who was the wife of John Smalley, one of the first settlers of Eastham? Miss E. W. Leavitt has kindly sent me the following item: "At Hampder Falls, New Hampshire, by Rev. Theophilus Cotton, 22 December, 1725. Mark Snow of Eastham & Sarah Langford off Boston, By Licence from Lieut. Gov. Wentworth."

I would like the parentage of both these persons, where they lived, and any children they may have had. MRS. CHARLES L. ALDEN.

Wood.-What were the names of the children of John Wood of New London. 1660? When did he die?

A John Wood, probably son of above, died in Groton, Conn., Dec. 20, 1738, "aged ninety odd" (g.s.). His wife Mary died May 3, 1744, aged 77 years (g.s.) What was her maiden name? Their children as shown by will of John Wood What was her maiden name? Their children as shown by with o'l solid word dated March 26, 1723, and proved Jan. 22, 1738-9, were William, John and Elizabeth Wood and Sarah "Prentis." Whom did each of these marry? The wife of William Wood was "Anner"—, who died March 28, 1796, in her 90th year (g.s.). William Wood died Dec. 2, 1794, at Groton, Conn., in his 93d year (g.s.). His children named in his will were John, William and Hannah Wood. Mary Allen, Anna Bailey and Pauline Rogers. Information wanted concerning these and their descendants, also concerning the descendants of John and Sarah (Prentice) Wood, children of the John who died 1738. FRANK B. LAMB.

OATMAN-HANAFORD-BATES .- Who were the parents of Samuel Oatman, born about 1740, of Oxford, Conn., who married in 1769 Hannah, daughter of Samuel and Anne (Moss) Wooster, of the same place?

Who were the parents of Esther Hanaford (Handford, Hanford), said to be of Norwalk, Conn., born about 1740-5, who married George Cable of Fairfield.

Who were the parents of Benjamin Bates, sometime a resident of Derby, Conn., born about 1730, and married Abigail Hine, April 2, 1751, by whom be had children? CHARLES E. BANKS, M. D.

U. S. Marine Hospital, Portland, Me.

EMIGRATION TO OHIO .- From 1790 to 1800 numerous families from the Saco Valley in Maine removed by horse teams to Ohio, and sat down not far from Cincinnati. When in the West in 1872, the writer saw some aged men who were children when the exodus took place, and from their lips made notes of some adventures while on the way to "Hio" in 1800. Has any society in Ohio published an account of the New England settlement? If so I wish to lay hands REV. G. T. RIDLON, SR. on the book. Who can direct me?

Kezar Falls, Me.

FULLER.-I desire information as to the descent of Elizabeth Fuller, who married Thomas Upson in 1846.

Thomas Upson was one of the early settlers of Hartford, Conn., and an onginal proprietor and settler of Farmington. He died July 19, 1655.

GENEALOGICAL QUERIES:

Information wanted about the ancestors of Druzilla Bunnell, born Nov. 28, 1766; died March 12, 1846, in Lanesboro'. Married Stephen Mead.

Who were the ancestors of Rhoda Hall (wife of Abial Platt), born 1747, died Oct. 1827, in Lanesboro', Mass.? She was sister of Ezra Hall, whose daughter married Gov. George N. Briggs, of Massachusetts.

Danbury, wife of (Ebenezer Platt), born 1708;

What was the maiden name of Mehitable, wife of Josiah Cushing of Rehoboth? He was son of Matthew Cushing and Deborah Jacob, of Hingham, and died in 1787. Mehitable died 1778.

Who were the parents of Rev. Thomas Tousey, minister at Newtown, Ct., from 1723 to 1761; graduate of Yale in 1707; died 1761? Was his wife Hannah Clark? [Dexter, in his Yale Biographies, page 69, says that he was the only surviving son of Thomas Tousey of Wethersfield, who was the son of Richard

Tousey of Saybrook.-EDITOR.]

Can you give me the address of any one by the name of Haynes who is learned in the genealogy of that name? A family sketch, written by my great grandfather, says that his great grandfather, William Haynes, was a descendant of Gov. John Haynes. Judging from dates, he must needs be a grandson of Gov. John, but I find nowhere mention of a William. Perhaps some Haynes can assist me in this matter. A. K. Cushing.

REPLIES.

THE SIMANCAS MAP AGAIN (REGISTER, vol. 46, pp. 181, 272, 401).—Passing over criticisms that answer themselves, permit me to notice the opinion of Mr. Drake, who questions the date of the map of 1610, for the reason that it contains names as Isle Haute and Mount Desert, which appear on Champlain's map of 1613. Mr. Brown has made a reply which ought to silence objection, yet something more may be said on the internal evidence of early date. In reality the above names might have been derived from various separate sources not known to us. Pierre Angibaut, known as Champdoré, made four voyages on the coast, and was cordially hated by Champlain. From him Lescarbot doubtless obtained the material for his Nauvelle France, not having himself voyaged down the main coast to Cape Cod.

Glancing at the French names on the Simancas Map, they clearly appear to have come from a source independent of Champlain, as his "illes iettees," evidently the outlying rocks of Matinicus, are the "Isles Basses," the low islands.

In reality it is not even necessary to suppose that Champlain was the first to name Isle au haute and Mount Desert, as voyagers frequently repeated names, not recognizing that they were already conferred. Thus Cartier says that he named the north part of Cape Breton "St. Peter," notwithstanding the fact that he found the name already applied on the maps, as it may be seen on the Maijolla map of 1527. Thevet was notorious for this habit, and after Verrazano had given the name of "Angouleme," birth place of Francis I., Thevet says that he gave it in honor of his own birth place. It is evident that long before 1610 Isle au haute was popularly known by the name; and Lescarbot, writing of Penobscot Bay and the "Islands of Norembega," speaks of one as bien arount (et La Premiere) en mer, qui est haute et remarquable sur les autres. This is Isle au haute, the outermost of the group, a landmark that impresses every navigator. This was translated into English by Errondelle in 1609.

No more really needs to be said, though we are told that the Simancas Map is "entirely too good for the state of discovery at that early period"; yet, on a careful inspection of the contents, we find no exploration noted later than 1608.

There is one feature alone, I think, that independently must establish the early date, though not pointed out by Mr. Brown. I refer to the fact that the result of Hudson's voyage is not shown, as it must have done if the map was produced subsequent to 1613-14. On the Figurative map of 1614 Hudson's exploration of the North River is recognized, and the river is represented, in accordance with Hudson, ending in an innavigable brook; whereas, on the Simancas Map, the river, which had been known since the voyages of Verrazano and Gomez, is wn as a broad stream or strait, leading into an inland sea. This idea, that river was a strait leading to a sea, and probably to the Pacific, was the idea Captain John Smith, who recommended Hudson to search here for a passage the Indies, in case he should fail at the north. Hudson acted on the advice, i when he overshot the river, and ran too far down the coast, he returned i entered the harbor of New York. In all probability he had a copy of this y map, furnished by Smith, which proves that the English knew all about the roor of New York before Hudson sailed. It would be simply absurd to sup-se that after the voyage of Hudson, which disillusioned Smith and others to fancied that there was a passage in latitude 40°, any strait would be reprented on a map like the Simancas Map. King James and all the world at once arned the result of Hudson's explorations.

Again, whoever says that the Hudson region was drawn from Hudson's deription should consider another fact, namely, that it seems to contradict udson, who represents the west, or Hoboken side, of the river as "Manahatta," hile the Simancas Map gives the name to both sides with simply a different elling. Hudson, on his arrival in England, it will be remembered, was detained prisoner with his ship for a considerable time, and the Euglish learned fully e result of his exploration, which was written up by Robert Juet of Lime-ouse. If the map had been compiled subsequent to Hudson's voyage, it would ave recorded the result, and dissipated John Smith's dream of the strait in titude 40°. Unfortunately for objectors, the dream is in the Simancas Map, nd establishes the early date. B. F. DECOSTA.

THE WEAVER FAMILY (Jan. 1893, ante, p. 48). Communicated by the Rev. rederic William Weaver, M.A., Madg: Coll: Oxon., of Milton-Clevedon, Eng-

I have just read the article on the above family by Mr. Greenwood. I fear hat most of the bearers of my own surname here in England cannot claim so valted an origin as Mr. Greenwood assigns them. Instead of taking our ame from the Manor of Weever in Cheshire, I fancy that most of us bear it scause our ancestors were engaged in the cloth trade.*

The name is a very common one all over England, especially in the Midland counties; in Staffordshire where I was born, and in Worcestershire where my ather, grandfather and great-grandfather were born. The only 'gentle' famies of the name, so far as I am aware, belonged to Cheshire and Herefordshire, and the latter had at least one branch in London.

The following are the references:

Weever of Aston and Weverham, Cheshire. See The Visitation of Cheshire n 1580. (Harleian Society, xviii., 243.)

Weaver of Aymestrey and Presteign in the counties of Hereford and Radnor and a branch in London).

See The Visitation of the Co. of Hereford in 1569, ed. by F. W. Weaver, p. 99. The Visitation of London in 1568 (Harl. Soc., i. 35).

The Visitation of London in 1633-4, vol. ii. (Harl. Soc. xvii., 334), and Robinson's Mansions of Herefordshire, p. 17.

The arms of Weaver of Herefordshire are "Or on a fess az. between two otises gu. three garbs of the field."

The arms granted by the College of Arms to my grandfather in 1856, when he was mayor of the City of Worcester, are somewhat similar, being "Ermine on a fess engrailed sa a tower ar. between two garbs or." Crest "an heraldic antelope sa. resting the dexter foot upon a cross pattée or. and holding in the mouth a pear slipped ppr." Motto "Esto fidelis."

These arms bear witness to the fact that they were granted in the year of his mayoralty, for the tower forms part of the arms of the City of Worcester, and the pear in the antelope's mouth is a famous product of that country

I am able to prove no connection between my own family and that of the same name in the Visitations of Herefordshire; it is not impossible, however, that they may have been connected with each other, for my great-grandfather, Samuel Weaver, who was born in 1725, lived at Mitton in the parish of Hartlebury, Co. Worcester, where he had some landed property; and this place is only about twenty-five miles from Amestrey in Herefordshire, which was the abode of the Herefordshire family for many generations (see Robinson's Mansions of Herefordshire, p. 17).

The above Samuel Weaver, who was born in 1725, married in 1772 at Hartlebury, Mary Jones, who was, I believe, a native of the neighboring parish of Shrawley; he died 16 May, 1804, aged 79; she died 26 July, 1828, aged 84. They had eight children; the three eldest were daughters named Sarah. Jane and Mary; then five sons, Samuel (died young), Joseph, John, Samuel and James.

The last named, who was born in 1789, and died in 1860, was my grandfather, and was, as has been said, mayor of Worcester in 1856. He married Mary Anne, tenth and youngest child of John Homer, Esq., of Bromley Hall in the parish of Kingswinford, Co. Stafford: she died in the year of her husband's mayoralty. They had three children, who survived; two daughters and one son, James William Weaver, J.P. for the Borough of Wolverhampton, who was born in 1815, and died 1869; he married Mary, youngest daughter of John Crowley, Esq. of Wolverhampton, whose family I have been able to trace back as far as 1650; this has been the easier because the name is rather a rare one, whereas with common names it is difficult to disentangle the different families, commemorated often in the same parish register. Mr. James William Weaver had four sons, of whom I am the youngest. I have been tempted to give this bit of family history, because the name "Samuel" seems to run through the New York family as well as my own.

THE SHAKESPEARE WILLS (ante, vol. 46, p. 425).—In the New England REGISTER for October, we find several wills of more than ordinary interest. The wills of the Shakespeare family, of Thomas Nash and Elizabeth Barnard have been several times printed, but attention should be directed to one of two points.

It will be observed that Dr. John Hall made no attempt to dispose of "New Place." It is not mentioned in his will, and was not his to dispose of. It was left to his wife, as security for her fulfilling some special obligation.

But Thomas Nash, who married Dr. Hall's daughter, seems to have lost sight of this interest, for he coolly leaves "New Place" to his kinsman Edward Nash.

with some other items of the Shakespeare property.

His widow, however, carried the matter into court, and the court sustained her claim to William Shakespeare's bequest. I cannot at this moment give the necessary references, but by turning to page 428 of the October Register, any one can see, that after her second marriage, Dame Barnard, who had been Mrs. Nash, was still in possession of "New Place," and in her will ordered it sold, and the money to be given to the said Edward Nash, in pursuance of a promise probably made before the court.

The manuscripts alluded to in Dr. John Hall's will were probably medical manuscripts.

Some of these, written in Latin, were obtained from his wife by a surgeon named James Cooke, who was attached apparently to a regiment stationed at Stratford-bridge. He was invited to New Place by Mrs. Hall in 1642, to look at Dr. Hall's books. After a general survey, she brought out some medical books that she wished to sell. Two of these proved to be medical MSS. prepared for the press, in Latin, by Dr. Hall himself.

One of these Cooke translated and published in 1657. The family of Shakespeare and Dr. Hall himself entertained the Puritan preachers of the time, and would not have been likely to take interest in Shakespeare's Plays. It seems singular that it has to be so often repeated that Shakespeare's manuscripts were not his own property. After he retired to New Place, he is said to have received £1000 a year from the theatres, and of course this was for plays original or adapted. Of none of these, nor of those already known, could he have owned a copy. The manuscripts belonged to those who bought them, and as they must have been copied hundreds of times, it is not likely that any one was in existence, in his own handwriting, when the folio was published.

It is not impossible that manuscripts of his sonnets may yet be found, scattered like autographs, in hidden scrap-books. Shakespeare valued his poems. His plays do not seem to have interested him as much. He was obliged to conform to the demands of the theatres; he often adapted very poor, but popular d hardly realized the outbursts of poetic power, that forced themselves int of his pen. He hated to make himself a "motley to the view" and cheap what was most dear."

> "Your monument shall be my gentle verse Which eyes not yet created shall o'er read," s in a sonnet, secure of his future fame; and then, in the very next:-

"Oh for my sake do you with fortune chide
The guilty goddess of my harmful deeds,
That did not better for my life provide
Than public means, which public manners breeds.
And almost thence my nature is subdued
To what it works in—like the dyer's hand:
Pity me then, and wish I were renewed!"

ast quotation shows plainly that his true love was poetry, and that he rdly forgive himself for forsaking her (as he thought) to get his daily writing plays.

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE.

RT A. BROCK, of Richmond, Va.—We learn that the friends of this an—the efficient secretary of the Southern Historical Society, who in good service for historical literature while he was corresponding y and librarian of the Virginia Historical Society—are making an effort in his services as the editor of the Virginia Calendar of State Papers, for is historical knowledge and literary ability so well qualify him. We have given our opinion of the value of his services to the Virginia Historical for sixteen years, in a note printed in the Register for October, 1891, page 319. The work of reorganizing and enlarging the sphere of the Historical Society, commenced by the lamented Col. Thomas H. Wynne, cessfully carried forward by Mr. Brock. The executive committee of fiety, at a meeting held on the 4th of February last, voted that, iew of the long and valued labors in behalf of this Society of Mr. R. A. Its late secretary, the executive committee deem it proper to put on ome recognition of his distinguished services.

Brock became secretary April 12, 1875. From that time he has devoted with singular enthusiasm and prodigious labor to the work of the This he has done upon a salary, which, although as large as the means occiety warranted, was altogether disportionate to the work performed; shardly too much to say that his useful exertions during this long period effect preserved the life of the organization."

oss of Mr. Brock's services is a serious one for the Virginia Historical, but if the commonwealth of Virginia can secure them we shall not t. The profound knowledge of the history of Virginia which Mr. Brock es admirably fits him for the position which his friends wish him to and we hope and trust that their efforts will be successful. He would to utilize much valuable illustrative matter which he has been many ollecting.

dition to his historical knowledge, Mr. Brock's acquaintance with the gy of Virginia families is probably superior to that of any other person and those who wish to have genealogical investigations made in that ave now a rare opportunity to secure the services of an accomplished gist. His address is at the Southern Historical Society's rooms, Rich-Va.

The history of the Post Office in this city has been compiled with great and furnishes a succinct account of the office from the appointment of Richard Fairbanks as postmaster in 1639 to the administration of Thomas N. Hart.

Mr. Ernst has also compiled lists of the Postmasters at Boston from 1639 to 1893; of the Assistant Postmasters; the Cashiers, and the Superintendents of Delivery; for type-written copies of which we are indebted to him. He has given perfect lists of these officials, with the date of appointment, the terms and close of their services, as far as could be obtained. The public are indebted to him for the first complete list of the Postmasters of Boston.

MAINE FAMILIES.—Persons wishing for records of old families of Buxton, Holis, Limington, Standish, Baldwin, Denmark or Brownfield, can find the births, marriages and deaths, as copied from the town records, arranged alphabetically in the hands of Rev. G. T. Ridlon, Sr., who is making a careful copy of the same Kezar Falls, Me.

Genealogies in Preparation.—Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the U. S. government, the holding of other offices, graduation from college or professional schools, occupation, with places and dates of births, marriages, residence and death. When there are more than one christian name they should all be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full names are known.

Barnard.—Frank B. King, of Albany, N. Y., is also preparing a genealogy of the Barnard family. It is his intention to carry down the female lines for two generations in both families. Information is solicited.

Bartol.—Charles E. Banks, M.D., U. S. Marine Hospital, Portland, Me, is about to publish in book form a genealogy of the Bartol Family of Marblehead, Mass., and Freeport, Me., being the descendands of John Bartol and Parnell Hodder his wife, who emigrated to this country from Crewkerne, Somersetshire, about 1638, and settled at Marblehead. He was the son of John and Agnes (Williams) Bartol, a glover of Crewkerne. Any information about the family or its descendants now living will be gladly received and incorporated in the volume. It will probably be distributed gratnitously to members of the family.

Dodge.—A Genealogy of the Dodge Family of Essex County, Mass., is being prepared by Hon. Joseph T. Dodge, Ph.D., 346 Washington Avenue, Madison, Wis. An introductory article on the subject appeared in the October number of the REGISTER. Circulars soliciting information and subscriptions are issued.

Everett.—The history of this family is being collected; and any information relating to the same will be thankfully received by Mr. Edward F. Everett, Post Office Box 1423, Boston, Massachusetts.

Hondley .- A book on the descendants of William Hoadley of Branford, Conn., s in preparation by Francis B. Trowbridge, Esq., author of the Champions Genealogy.

Laurence, Buckley and other families .- The Rev. Lawrence Buckley Thomas of Lawrenceville, Tioga County, Pa., contemplates an enlarged reprint of his genealogical notes of 1877 and 1878, and pedigrees and notes of 1883, long out of print and very scarce. He would be glad to receive corrections or additions to the pedigrees at an early date. The principal families noticed are Brooke, Buckley, Chew, Ellicott, Fairfax, Hopkins (of Maryland), Lawrence (of Long Island), Rutherfurd, Schieffelin, Snowden, Thomas and Wethered. He will print in one volume, at $5.00, if sufficient subscribers are received.

Steele-Frank Barnard King, No. 95 Washington Avenue, Albany, New York, has for several years been preparing a revised and enlarged record of the descendands of "Mr. John Steel," the first secretary of the Connecticut Colony, 1636-1639, and also of his brother, George Steele.

Upton.—Hon. William H. Upton, F.R.S.A., of Walla Walla, Washington, has nearly ready for delivery his "Upton Family Records." For reasons which he will explain in his preface he was obliged to print his book in England, and limit his edition to one hundred copies, of which only seventy will be sold. The book will contain more than five hundred very large pages, will be handsomely printed, with broad margin, and will be neatly and substantially bound. The original subscription price was Twelve Dollars, but the price was raised on the first of March to Fifteen Dollars. Address W. H. Upton, Walla Walla, Washington, to whom remittances should be made payable.

SOCIETIES AND THEIR PROCEEDINGS.

NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

Boston, Massachusetts, Wednesday, February 3, 1892.—A stated meeting was held in the hall of the Boston University, 12 Somerset St., in this city, at three o'clock P.M., the president, Abner C. Goodell, Jr., in the chair.
William W. Bailey, LL.B., of Nashua, N. H., read a paper entitled "Matthew

Several amendments of the By-Laws were offered, and they were referred to committee consisting of Messrs. Hamilton A. Hill, Henry H. Edes, John W. Dean, Martin P. Kennard and Henry E. Woods.

March 2 .- A meeting was held at 12 Somerset St., at three o'clock P.M., resident Goodell in the chair.

William Gray Brooks, LL.B., of Boston, read a paper on "The Birth of Religious Toleration: A Study of the Maryland Charter."

The librarian reported the monthly donations.

The historiographer reported the deaths of four members.

Fourteen resident members were elected.

Several additional amendments to the By-Laws were offered.

April 6 .- A stated meeting was held at 12 Somerset St., at three o'clock P.M., resident Goodell in the chair.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas M. Clark, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Rhode Island, read a sper on "William Wheelwright, the benefactor of South America."

The librarian presented his monthly report.

One honorary and fourteen resident members were elected.

Hon. James W. Austin was appointed a member of the committee on the amendment of the By-Laws, in place of John Ward Dean who declined.

Rev. Ezra Hoyt Byington, D.D., was chosen a member of the Council to fill a May 4.—A stated meeting was held at 12 Somerset St., Boston, President Goodell in the chair.

A paper by Rev. Alonzo H. Quint, D.D., on "The Capture of Fort William and Mary in 1774" was read by Rev. William H. Cobb.

The librarian read his monthly report. Eight resident members were elected.

The historiographer reported the death of one resident member, Rev. Artemas B. Muzzey, D.D.; and Rev. Alonzo A. Miner, D.D., spoke feelingly of his life and exalted character.

The president announced that the members of the committee on amending the By-Laws had resigned.

The corresponding secretary announced the resignation of the president, the vice president for Massachusetts, the corresponding secretary, the recording secretary, the librarian, and six members of the Council, namely, Abner C. Goodell, Jr., Benjamin A. Gould, LL.D., Henry H. Edes, Gustavus Arthur Hilton, Henry W. Cunningham, Andrew P. Peabody, D.D., Hamilton A. Hill, Benjamin G. Smith, Henry Williams, Grenville H. Norcross and Henry P. Walcott, M.D. The resignations of Mr. Norcross and Dr. Walcott were to take effect at once, the others at the close of the June meeting.

Rev. E. O. Jameson, Rev. Alonzo A. Miner, D.D., Newton Talbot, Rev. Henry F. Jenks and Albert A. Folsom were appointed a committee to confer with the gentlemen whose resignations were announced; and, as far as possible, persuade them to retain their positions, and, in case they cannot be persuaded to do so, to nominate successors.

June 1 .- A stated meeting was held in the lower Horticultural Hall this afternoon, at three o'clock, President Goodell in the chair. The president, after a brief speech, called Andrew McFarland Davis to the chair.

The librarian being absent, his report was read by the corresponding secretary. David G. Haskins, Jr., William G. Brooks, Henry A. Hazen, D.D., David H. Brown and C. B. Tillinghast were chosen a committee on the proposed amendments to the By-Laws.

Rev. E. O. Jameson, chairman of the committee to request the members who had resigned their offices to retain their positions, reported that they could not induce them to withdraw their resignations, except on conditions which the committee obtained in writing and reported to the Society.

On recommendation of the committee, the Society voted, that the fact that the Council was outvoted on a measure involving presumably honest differences of opinion, created no necessity that they should resign; that the paper presented by gentlemen of the Council cannot be accepted, as it contains charges in no wise to be admitted; and that the Society cordially invite the several officials, without any reference to the paper presented, to withdraw their resignations.

The committee was requested to nominate candidates at an adjourned meeting. June 22d, to fill the places of those who did not withdraw their resignations within ten days.

Don Gleason Hill and Charles Carleton Coffin were elected members of the Council to fill vacancies.

More amendments to the By-Laws were proposed. The committee on By-Laws was authorized to consider the whole of the present code.

June 22 .- An adjourned meeting was held this day, President Goodell in the chair. A vote was passed approving the work of the Committee on the Rolls of Membership.

Hamilton A. Hill read a communication from the retiring officials, regretting the necessity of burdening the Society with a new election; but stating that they could not, without a loss of self-respect, withdraw their resignations.

Rev. E. O. Jameson, in behalf of his committee, nominated candidates to fill

President.—William Claffin, LL.D.

Vice President for Massachusetts.—Walbridge A. Field, LL.D.

Librarian.-John Ward Dean.

Counsellors .- William Tracy Eustis, Hon. James W. Austin, David G.

October 5.—A stated meeting was held this afternoon at three o'clock, at No. 12 Somerset St., the president, Hon. William Claffin, LL.D., in the chair.

The president made a brief address, in which he referred to the death of John Greenleaf Whittier, who had been a life member of the Society for nearly a quarter of a century, and had been much interested in its work.

Resolutions on the death of Mr. Whittier were offered by Hon. Eben F. Stone of Newburyport, and were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

S. Ensign was chosen president pro tem. Prof. John Fiske read a paper on "Charles Lee, the Soldier of Fortune."

The librarian reported 115 volumes and 97 pamphlets as donations in October. George Kuhn Clarke offered resolutions endorsing the petition of the Cape Cod Memorial Association to the General Court for an appropriation for the erection of a fitting monument at Provincetown, to commemorate the arrival of the Mayflower and the landing of the Pilgrims there, Nov. 11-21, 1620. The resolutions were unanimously adopted.*

December 7.-A stated meeting was held this afternoon at three o'clock at No. 12 Somerset Street, Hon. Joseph B. Walker, vice president, in the chair. Rev. Ezra Hoyt Byington, D.D., read a paper on "The Puritan and the Pilgrim in New-England History.'

David G. Haskins, Jr., chairman of the committee on the revision of the By-Laws, reported in print a series of amendments. It was voted that the consideration of these amendments be postponed to the next meeting, and that printed opies of the report be sent to each resident and life member with the notice of the annual meeting.

The corresponding secretary and the librarian made their monthly reports. Albert Harrison Hoyt, Albert A. Folsom, George S. Mann, Andrew H. Ward and Julius H. Tuttle were chosen, by ballot, a committee to nominate officers

Sixteen resident members were elected.

Wednesday, January 4, 1893 .- The annual meeting was held in the hall of Boston University, 12 Somerset Street, this afternoon, at three o'clock. In the absence of President Claffin, Hon. Charles C. Coffin was called to the chair. Mr. George A. Gordon was chosen secretary pro tem.

The report of the committee on the By-Laws was taken from the table and the committee was discharged. Action on the report was referred to the next

NECROLOGY OF THE NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

Prepared by the Historiographer, Rev. EZRA HOYT BYINGTON, D.D., of Newton, Mass.

THE sketches of deceased members prepared for the REGISTER are of necessity brief, because the space that can be appropriated is quite limited. All the materials for more extended memoirs which can be gathered are preserved in the archives of the Society, and they will be available for use in preparing the "Memorial Biographies," of which four volumes have been issued and a fifth volume is in press. The income from the Towns Memorial Fund is devoted to the publication of these volumes.

As the office of Historiographer has been vacant for a number of months the work of this department is in arrears. It is hoped, however, that in subsequent numbers of the REGISTER the deficiencies will be made up.

Rt. Rev. Phillips Brooks, D.D., Bishop of Massachusetts.—Bishop Brooks was born in Boston, Dec. 13, 1835, and died in Boston, Jan. 22, 1893. He was the second son of William Gray Brooks and Mary Ann Phillips, thus combining in his own person and in his name two of the oldest and best families of New England. His father was a member of this society, and his memoir will her than the property of the society of the society. found in the REGISTER, vol. 33, p. 255.

He was prepared for college in the Boston Latin School, was gradual from Harvard 1855, and studied divinity at Alexandria, Virginia. He was ordained to the ministry in the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1859; was rector of the Church of the Advent in Philadelphia until 1862, when he was transferred to the Church of the Holy Trinity in the same city. He became rector of Trinity Church in Boston in 1869, and after a ministry of twenty-two years in this ancient church he was elected Bishop of Massachusetts, April 30, 1891, and was consecrated October 14th of the same year.

Bishop Brooks was descended from Thomas Brooks, who came from England in the early years of the Puritan emigration. A number of eminent citizens of Massachusetts have been among his descendants. Three generations ago a descendant of Rev. John Cotton, the second minister of Boston, became the wife of the great-grandfather of Bishop Brooks.

On the side of his mother the Bishop was descended from Rev. George Phillips, a graduate from the University of Cambridge, who came from England in the Arabella, with Governor Winthrop, in 1630. He was the first minister of Watertown. The great-grandson of Rev. George Phillips was the well known Rev. Samuel Phillips, minister for sixty years of the Old South Church in Andover. Judge Samuel Phillips, born 1750, was Lieut. Governor of Massachusetts, and one of the founders of Phillips Academy, Andover, as another of the Phillips family was the founder of Phillips Academy, Exeter, and others of Andover Theological Seminary.

Bishop Brooks was interested in everything that relates to the history of New England. He was the author of a number of volumes which have had a wide circulation in this country and across the sea. His sympathies were broad and generous. He was the friend and helper of men of all sorts and conditions. But he will be remembered chiefly for his gift of eloquent and persuasive speech. He seemed to be equally attractive to people who differed not only in respect to culture, but also in their tastes and opinions. He had already taken a place among the greatest preachers of his time. It would not be easy to name one among English-speaking clergymen who excels him as a preacher to the multi-tudes of men. We shall wait a long time before we look upon his like again.

He was elected a resident member of this Society March 2, 1892.

RUTHERFORD BIRCHARD HAYES, LL.B., LL.D., the nineteenth President of the United States, was elected an honorary member of this Society, Oct. 3, 1877, and was one of its honorary vice-presidents from 1879 to 1889.

He was born in Delaware, Ohio, Oct. 4, 1822, and was of the sixth generation from George Hayes of Windsor, Conn., who came to New England about the year 1680. The family is believed to have been of Scottish descent.

Mr. Hayes received his early education at Norwalk, Ohio, and Middletown, Conn., and was graduated from Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio, with the highest honors, in 1842. He entered the Law School of Harvard University, and was graduated in 1845. He began the practice of law in Fremont, Ohio, but removed to the city of Cincinnati, where he soon rose to eminence in his profession. He was city solicitor of Cincinnati a number of years before the civil war. He en-listed as a volunteer in the Army of the United States in 1861, receiving a commission as major. He was in active service during the whole of the war,—was severely wounded at South Mountain Sept. 14, 1862,—was promoted Brigadier General in 1864, and Major General by brevet in 1865. After the close of the war he served in the House of Representatives from 1865 to 1867, when he was elected Governor of Ohio. He was reëlected in 1869, and in 1875. In 1876 he was elected President of the United States. The most important events during his administration were the withdrawal of the United States troops from the outhern states, the resumption of specie payments, and the progress of civilervice reform. After his retirement to private life he was active in educational and charitable work, serving for many years as president of the National Prison Reform Association; trustee of the Peabody Educational Fund; and of the John F. Slater Fund.

He married, Dec. 30, 1852, Lucy Ware Webb, by whom he had eight children. Besides the practice of law, and the duties of his political life, President Hayes gave much attention to literary and historical studies. He was one of the founders of the Ohio Historical Society, and a corresponding member of various historical and literary societies. He received the degree of LL.D. from Lenyon College in 1868, from Harvard 1877, Yale, and Johns Hopkins in 1880.

He died in Fremont, Ohio, Jan. 17, 1893.

George William Curtis, A.M., LL.D., was elected a corresponding member, Feb. 7, 1883, and an honorary member, Oct. 1, 1890. He was born in Providence, R. I., Feb. 24, 1824, and died at his home in West New Brighton, Richmond Co., New York, Aug. 31, 1892. He was a son of George and Mary Elizabeth (Burrill) Curtis.

At the age of fifteen he became a clerk in a mercantile house in New York. When eighteen years of age, he, with his older brother, joined the community of Brook Farm in West Roxbury, Mass., remaining there about two years. Then they spent one or two years on a farm in Concord, Mass. In 1846 Mr. Curtis went abroad, spending some time as a student at the University of Berlin, and traveling in a leisurely way through southern Europe, Egypt and Syria. In 1850 he returned to New York and entered upon a literary life. He was connected with the New York "Tribune" for a short time.

From 1853 to 1856 he was editor of "Putnam's Monthly." This led him into a partnership with the publishers of the magazine, though he had no share in the management of the business. In 1857 the firm failed, and Mr. Curtis relinquished his private property, and, as that did not suffice, devoted his income for the next fifteen years to paying in full the debts of the firm. He was engaged several seasons in the lecture field, where he won high distinction. He took the stump for Fremont in 1856; was a delegate to the second national Republican convention at Chicago, in 1860; became political editor of "Harper's Weekly" in 1863; was made a regent of the University of the State of New York in 1864; was non-resident Professor at Cornell University for four years: in 1867 was a delegate at large to the Constitutional convention of New York. in which he was the chairman of the committee on education; was a delegate to the national Republican convention of 1876. In 1862, President Lincoln offered him the position of consul-general in Egypt, which he declined. He declined also the post of minister to England, and later that of minister to Germany, offered to him by President Hayes in 1877. Mr. Curtis was specially interested in civil-service reform, and was the chairman of a commission appointed by President Grant in 1871, to draw up rules for the regulation of the civil service. He was for many years President of the National Civil-Service Reform League, and of the New York Association. He was, as has been seen, for many years prominent in the national Republican party. After the spring of 1884, he so longer identified himself with that party.

For the last twenty-five years of his life he had his summer home in Ashfield. Mass., where he spent four or five months of each year. He came there into pleasant relations with the permanent residents of the town, entered heartly into the local educational and social interests, and has left behind most pleasant recollections of himself. The academy, the public library, the poor and feeble, have reason gratefully to cherish his memory.

Mr. Curtis married in 1856, Anna Shaw, the daughter of Frank George Shaw, and had three children: Frank George Curtis, Elizabeth Burrill Curtis and Sarah Shaw Curtis. He received the degree of A.M. from Brown University in 1853; that of LL.D. from Madison University in 1864, from Harvard University in 1881, and from Brown University in 1882.

His principal publications were: "Nile Notes of a Howadji" (1851); "The Howadji in Syria" (1852); "Lotus Eating" (1852); "Potiphar Papers" (1853); "Prue and I" (1856); "Trumps" (1862). To these should be added the series of papers entitled the "Editor's Easy Chair," which Mr. Curtis contributed to "Harper's Monthly" from 1853 to the time of his death. Among his published addresses are the following: "Eulogy upon Charles Summer," before the Legislature of Massachusetts in 1874; "Centennial Oration" at Concord, Mass, 1875; "Centennial Oration" at Schuylersville, N. Y., 1877; "Discourse upon William Cullen Bryant," before the New York Historical Society, 1878; "Oration upon Unveiling the Statue of Burns" in Central Park, 1880.

By the Rev. George M. Adams, D.D., of Auburndale.

DAVID WILLIAMS PATTERSON, the well-known genealogist, was elected a corresponding member of this Society, Sept. 5, 1855. He died at his home in Newark Valley, Tioga Co., N. Y., on 18th Nov. 1892.

His father, Hon. Chester Patterson, a native of Richmond, Mass., where he was born 24 Sept. 1777, removed with his father to Union, Broome Co., N. Y. in February, 1793, and was sheriff of that county, 1809-12; represented it in the state Legislature, 1819-21, inclusive: was one of the presidential electors of the state of New York, 1824, casting his vote for John Quincy Adams; and town clerk of Union for many years, besides being otherwise much occupied with the public affairs of the town. In 1839, he removed with his family to Newark Valley, where he died22 Sept. 1857, &. 73. His wife was Mary Ann

His son, the subject of our sketch, was born in Union, N. Y., 15 July, 1824; removed with his parents to Newark Valley, in 1839; and, obtaining a good common-school education, studied dentistry at Rochester, N. Y., and commenced its practice at West Winsted, Ct., in December, 1846. On the 8th of June, 1853, he married Helen Maria (daughter of Otis and Sarah Slosson) Lincoln, of Newark Valley, who survives him, with their four children, Anna, Lincoln Elliott, Sterling Woodford and Ralph Thacher.

While engaged in a successful practice at West Winsted, Dr. Patterson became interested in the study of American genealogy and local history; which so grew upon him, that finally, upon his removal to Newark Valley, in May, 1865, he abandoned dentistry, and thenceforth devoted himself (aside from the management of his small paternal farm) entirely to his favorite pursuits.

Of the great extent and value of his work, comparatively little is known even among his fellow-laborers in the same field; for most of it was done for others, and his share in the compilation of many of our best genealogies is indicated only by a line in the preface, or an occasional foot-note.* But the quality of that work, in the appreciation of those best qualified to understand it, will ever remain unchallenged. He was a most indefatigable and conscientious worker, pushing his researches with a systematic thoroughness and acumen which left almost absolutely nothing to be gathered by others who might, perchance, follow him over the same ground. One who knew him well, writing to me since his death, aptly speaks of "the relentless objectivity of his search." He seemed never anxious to "see himself in print"; his untiring Industry and perseverance found its most ample reward in the consciousness that his work was well done; and crowded with work as he always was, he was ever ready to help, from his own stores of information and experience, all who came to him-from the timid tyro in the field of genealogy, to the veteran with whom he had often measured the lance of criticism. Hence, it is perfectly safe to say that we have had, in America, during the past forty years, no genealogist whose work stands so absolutely unquestioned, or whose dicta in regard to any mooted point was so unhesitatingly accepted as Dr. Patterson's. There was, among his fellow-laborers in the field, a sincere conviction (1) of his personal conscientiousness, and (2) of the perfection of his peculiar methods of systematic research, record, arrangement and statement. In these details he certainly excelled—and, though some of them (such as his system of notation; or the "married with," upon which he so much insisted; or the manner of his preparation of MSS. for the printer) might, to some, appear "cranky," they were certainly substantiated by him with very convincing argument; and, whether in MS. or print, left no doubt in the reader's mind as to what was intended.

The character of Dr. Patterson's literary work was but the natural expression of his own nature—firm, plainly expressed, devoid of all pretence. His rugged honesty always found free expression; and his dislike of that which was mean or underhanded was never glossed over with smooth words, or cancelled by polite silence. Scrupulously honest and rigidly exact and correct in all his transactions; quick to resent a wrong, real or fancied, he was equally considerate of the legal rights of others. There was, withal, a wonderful degree of tenderness in his nature; his friendships were as strong as his dislikes; and his best friends were those who best understood and appreciated the nature of his work, and were in sympathy with his peculiar literary tastes. In all the relations of life, domestic, social, religious and literary, the man's positiveness was so little in accord with the conventionalism of ordinary society-that, together with his modesty, it debarred him from that full recognition of his value in the community to which his abilities and his works entitled him. Generous and helpful by nature, he was always "to the front" in the social, religious and higher material interests of the community in which he resided; still, in all such public affairs, he was (true to his nature) the advocate of those methods only which would produce the most thorough and substantial results. His religious views, while they might not, perhaps, have exactly squared with any church creed, were the outcome of a deep study of the Bible and of human nature; and we have reason to know, personally, that his was the faith of the humble Christian, looking forward to eternal salvation through the only atonement upon the Cross.

It is somewhat difficult, at the present time, to prepare a full and exact schedule of Mr. Patterson's genealogical work. From the best data available, however, we glean the following:

The only published works, avowedly his, are :-

1. A Letter of Directions to His Father's Birthplace, by John Holmes, with Notes and a Genealogy by D. Williams Patterson. 1865. 8vo. pp. 76.
2. John Watson of Hartford, Conn., and his Descendants. A Genealogy by Thomas Watson. 1865. 8vo. pp. 47.

These two works were respectively Nos. 1 and 3 of the issues of a private club of three members (D. Williams Patterson, then of West Winsted, Ct.; Francis S. Hoffman, Esq., of New York City, and the writer of this memoli. then resident in Brooklyn, N. Y.), styling itself the "U. Q. Club"—a name humorously suggested by Dr. P., with reference to the "unknown quantity which so often, in genealogy as in mathematics, puzzles the student; as well as to the non-identification of the membership of the club, now for the first time given to the public.

3. Memorables of the Montgomeries. New York. Printed for the King of Clubs. 1866. (Edition 40 copies in 4to, 60 in 8vo.) Bradstreet Press, New York. This, which included a Montgomery Pedigree, was prepared for and privately printed by Thomas H. Montgomery, Esq., of Philadelphia; the device used on its title, a "King of Clubs," was also, I believe, a suggestion of Dr. Ps.

4. Slosson Genealogy. By D. Williams Patterson. Reprinted from the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, of 1872. 8vo. pp. 20. A record of descendants of Nathaniel Slosson, born about 1696, Norwalk, Conn.

9. The Whitney Family, Connecticut, 1649-1878. Privately printed by the late S. Whitney Phœnix, of New York City. 3 vols. 4to. 916, 898, 826 pp. and pedigrees. Edition 510 copies. The compilation and arrangement of this work was the greatest monument of Mr. Patterson's industry and skill; and he prepared, also, enough more material (especially biographical) to have made arrangement. other large volume; which, however, Mr. Phænix did not see fit to publish.

10. To Mr. John Boyd's Annals of Winchester, Conn., Mr. Patterson contributed a large amount of genealogical matter and labor, which received due acknowledgment.

11. Susquehannah Association. Historical Notes. Compiled by D. Williams Patterson, for the Susquehannah Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers (reprinted from Congregational Quarterly). Notes on the "First" Susquehannah Association. Boston, 1874. 8vo. 8

In Manuscript form, he left many many valuable works, most of which are well prepared for printing; among these the principal are:—

In 1885 Prof. Edward Elbridge Salisbury, of New Haven and Lyme, printed his "Family Memorials," which consisted of a series of genea and biographical monographs of the Salisbury and allied families, with pe charts, bound in two quarto volumes. At that time it was probably the elegant work of genealogy which had appeared, and contained much ve and original matter; but now that elegant work is even surpassed by the effort of himself and wife, in three quarto volumes, bound in five, th being a supplementary volume of thirty-one pedigree charts. These graphs, which consist of about fifteen hundred pages, are printed in the superb style, and uniform with those of Prof. Salisbury's, and give the fa from which Mrs. Salisbury descends.

There have been several elaborate genealogies printed, as the Hyde, S Dwight, Wentworth, Whitney, Winslow and Pickering (first part only last), but none in so sumptuous a manner as these, or that contain such ex biographies; in fact they are mainly devoted to biography. It is hardly ble that there will be many such works issued, for we are told by the a that the expenditure has been about $16,000, not including their own to between seven or eight years (a labor of love), nor the large expendit money for obtaining information.

The authors state in their circular, as is so common to the enthu genealogist, that when they began their labors it was intended to pre single volume of some two or three hundred pages, which have been mul to the number above mentioned.

Lyme, the birthplace of Mrs. Salisbury, is the starting point of her eations, and embracing so many descendants of that ancient town, as I the book is almost a history of the place itself.

Prof. and Mrs. Salisbury have been fortunate in having such historic fain this country and in Europe, to work up, and the matter is so rich and im ing that persons not specially interested in genealogy or identified with families will find these volumes delightful reading.

The enormous amount of labor required on such an extended work, the nervous strain, the excessive care needed to prevent errors, are known those who have been similarly engaged, and Prof. and Mrs. Salisbury be congratulated on this monument of their patience and skill.

Transactions of the Royal Historical Society. New Series. Vol. vi. Longmans, Green & Co. And New York: 15 East 16th Street. 1892. pp. 366+16+7.

The articles comprised in this volume constitute a valuable addition to be cal literature. Many of them seem to be of special interest, particularly Publication of the Gascon Rolls by the British and French Governments sidered as a New Element in English History" (that great and hithertounexplored labyrinth of parchments, likely, it is thought, to throw great on the history of the British rule in Aquitaine—covering the period be 1242 and 1460). "The progress of Historical Research during the Se 1891-92," and the "Presidential Address."

Probably the far-reaching results wrought by this and kindred sociel Great Britain and her colonies and in our own land-and likewise in f countries—cannot be estimated. Among the many learned British societies Royal Historical Society holds a high position.

It is impossible in a short notice to give an adequate, hardly even a g account, of the rich and varied contents of the book before us. Of the paper only will time and space permit of more than passing notice, althou the articles seem to be well deserving of careful study. The address President, the Rt. Hon. Sir Mountstuart E. Grant Duff, is in many ways markable one; the matter is excellent, the style is clear and forcible, and is not wanting a touch of humor to enliven it. I cannot too heartily commend the author's glowing praise of historical studies; in fact this underlies the whole address. Would that a copy of it were accessible in every school-house In the land, to arouse and develop enthusiasm in this helpful (I had almost said the most helpful) branch of learning.

If there were only fewer studies in our preparatory schools, and more free-dom given (as would then be possible) in the choice of these studies, according to the special aptitude of each scholar, I feel sure that better results would be attained. And a much larger portion of time should be allowed, to those whose bent lies in this direction, for the study of history. History, considered as a mental discipline only, may be as good or better than the study of the languages, or mathematics, or even law and philosophy.

The author rightly lays stress on the desirability of having competent teachers to direct students in the study of history. How many have been taught to think, how many have had their desire for knowledge stimulated by the enthusiasm and wise direction of their teachers. How largely the personality of the instructors enters into the work of the student.

The author emphasizes the importance of acquiring a knowledge of general history before attempting to make a study of any particular period. Of course, in these days of sub-division in all branches of learning, the most exact work will have to be left to the specialists in each particular field; still, all have not time to become proficient in many branches, and none can well be unless they are first well-grounded in the broad and general outlines, the foundation principles of history. He well says: "Everywhere history, general history, history considered as one great continuous broadening river, should be present and appealed to."

It is pleasant to record that the author refers with warm praise to Dr. Pisher's "Outlines of Universal History," and Dr. Andrews's "Institutes of History," showing an appreciative estimate of the work of our men of letters, and thus doing something to strengthen the bonds between the two countries which are essentially one.

In regard to the controversy as to whether history is a science or not, the writer inclines to the view (and as it seems to me rightly) that it is not. It does not necessarily dignify history to apply to it a name which may be properly given to other departments of learning. I cannot think that so large and comprehensive a subject as history can be adequately measured and gauged by statistics and rules, even if they be numerous and varied. No, it is more than a branch of science; and its range and development are as limitless as the heart and soul of man. The writer says: "Much ink has been expended on the conroversy, whether history should be looked upon as a branch of science or as a branch of literature. It is the old story of the shield with the two sides; If we look at history from one point of view, it appears as a succession of problems; if we look at it from another, it appears a pageant, a succession of pictures—sometimes sad, sometimes brilliant. It is, however, from the side on which it looks like a succession of pictures that general history is approached with most advantage."

What source of instruction can be so fascinating as the wide and productive seld of history? What luxuriant harvests may here be reaped by the earnest and careful toilers. To learn what men have done is to know what men may do. And more than men have done, men may do. To read the lives of men who have made history (I mean not merely the lives of great captains and rulers, although they have their place, but those who through faith have wrought righteousness, who have in their day and generation done something make the world better), we see brightly shining all through the ages countless lives full of simple trusting faith in Jesus Christ; lives of men animated by high purpose, who dared to do and be, who cared not for success -that is what the world calls success,-but who have earnestly striven to

In the study of history the imagination is kindled, enthusiasm is stirred, natiment is aroused, and all the better faculties are brought into action. Hero-worship is not yet dead in the world, and it will never die. There will rays be a yearning in the heart of man in his better moments for the true, beantiful, the good. Who has not felt this influence? And as the learner ourneys on in the school of life, he cannot but wistfully turn to the great Hero of history, in whose perfect life all history centres, the Saviour of our souls.

Arthur Deloraine Corey. 1866-1891. A Memorial. Cambridge. 1892. 12mo.

With mingled interest and sadness we have read, carefully, the pages devoted to an account of the brief career of a promising young man, the only child of his parents, Deloraine-Pendre and Isabella (Holden) Corey, of Malden, Mass., who died in Malden, Aug. 17, 1891, in the 26th year of his age; a beautiful memento of parental affection.

Some account of his noted family connections, student life in this country and Germany, and other particulars to which we would call attention, may be found in the January number of the REGISTER, pages 108, 109; but in the nest and tasty volume before us we have more of the details of that life, his travels abroad, his visiting in the interim of his university studies, and before and after, the distinguished galleries, cathedrals, depositories of paintings, and numerous works of art; perfecting himself in a knowledge of the German language, and adding largely to his stock of information to be obtained only by a thorough study and analysis of the original productions of the old masters. so freely opened to him in those noble institutions there mentioned, in England, Italy, France and Germany, accompanied in many of these places by his beloved father.

Arthur graduated at Harvard College with honors, in 1886; went to Europe in the summer of 1887, and in 1891, after a course of nearly four years study at the Royal Friedrich Wilhelm University, in Berlin, Germany, received the highest literary degree of the institution, that of Doctor of Philosophy. In less than three months after his return home he passed away.

The Rev. Dr. Stuckenberg, Arthur's friend and pastor, in Berlin, writes: "Although his life was short, it was well worth while to live for the exercise of the noble qualities which adorned his soul and made his life beautiful.

Following the "Life," as written by his father, is a memorial sermon by Rev. Nathan H. Harriman, of the First Baptist Church, Malden, with an account of the services; and an extract from a discourse by Rev. Benjamin H. Bailey, of the Unitarian Church, closing with a few poems written by Dr. Corey, found among his papers, chiefly printed as the author left them.

The illustrations are, a portrait taken in 1877, when the subject was about it years of age, and another in 1891, the year of his death.

L'Intermédiaire des Chercheurs et Curieux. Lucien Faucou, Directeur. Paris: Paraissant les 10, 20 et 30 de cleaque mois.

This valuable repository of French "Notes and Queries" has completed its twenty-fifth volume, and entered upon its twenty-sixth. Therewith, it announces the early publication of a complete index of twenty-four volumes, covering sixty thousand titles of questions, queries, letters and documents, otherwise unedited with comprehensive replies and summaries. This was an immense task, and occupied the attention of the learned staff for two entire years. Its publication will be not only of the greatest service to the scholar and the savant, but will always remain a monument to the large capacity, industry and enterprise of L'Intermédiaire. As an encyclopedia, its collection will be most precious, of facts otherwise attainable only after great pains and difficult study.

Records of the Town of Plymouth. Published by Order of the Town. Vol. 2 1705 to 1743. Boston: Published by W. B. Clarke & Co., 340 Washington St. 8vo. pp. 365.

This volume, like the records of many New England towns, contains much miscellaneous matter. The records of the town-meetings of this period contain little but grants of land, and ascertaining of boundaries. Here, also, are recorded agreements under seal between individuals, the special mark for cattle and sheep of the townsmen, and many strays,—among the last "a Ten Shilling Rhoad Island Bill No (177)" and "The marks of a Whale struck by Joseph Sachemus Indian at Manument Ponds the 25th of November 1737." Evident the Plymouth of that time had its Four Hundred, for in the tax-rate 1707 is the following: "Item for the uper sosiety, 13 shillings." An old lish expression, very rare here, is found in 1702, "Ye Beatten Way That! is to ye Kings Rood yt lies Throughout Lakenham." In 1688, Joseph Ban

"in consideration of A certain youth Named Nedd and three pounds in money" made over and assigned to Ephraim Morton "A Certain Negro youth being A perpetuall slave whose name is Toney." The preface gives a short biographical sketch of the town clerks of the period, and in this and in the few foot notes, the editor, Mr. William T. Davis, shows his excellent judgment; evidently expecting that the book will be used by persons competent to understand it, and not burying the text under a profusion of quotations.

Landmarks in Ancient Dover, New Hampshire. By Mary P. Thompson. Complete Edition. Durham, N. H. 1892. Large 8vo. pp. 234.

In this remarkable volume Miss Thompson completes the work begun in her earlier edition, noticed in the Register for April, 1889. The little book of eighty-five pages, and of a limited scope, has been almost entirely re-written, some errors have been corrected, several hundred new localities have been added, and the result is a new work, containing two hundred and eighty-four pages; exhaustive, and most valuable to all those who are interested in ancient Dover. It forms a complete cyclopædia of all the noteworthy localities and landmarks, ancient and modern, in the whole original township of Dover, which included, besides the present city of that name, the towns of Durham, Lee, Madbury, Rollinsford, Somersworth, the greater part of Newington, and parts of Newmarket and Greenland. Besides which, it also embraces many places in Barrington, Nottingham and Rochester. About seven hundred localities are enumerated in alphabetical order; among them being more than sixty old garrison houses.

The information about all these hundreds of hills, rivers, creeks, brooks, swamps, islands, falls, bridges, mills, ponds, etc., has been obtained by the indefatigable authoress, with an amount of labor that only an investigator can appreciate, from the various early town records, from the County records at Exeter, from the New-Hampshire Provincial and State Papers, and from local and family tradition. The book is replete with interesting genealogical and biographical material, and will prove invaluable to any one who wishes to study carefully the early local history, or to interpret old deeds and records relating to the region.

The authoress has succeeded in establishing fully the locations of Canney's Creek and Hogsty Cove,—two ancient landmarks, hitherto of uncertain situation, but historically important, as marking the original boundary line between Portsmouth and Dover; in regard to the latter point, disproving the situation assumed as correct, in the late Charles W. Tuttle's Historical Papers.

The present volume is dedicated to the Dover Historical Society, at whose request it has been prepared. It is illustrated with a map of the region described, and two plans.

Miss Thompson is entitled to the gratitude of all the sons of old Dover for this unique and valuable contribution to the local history, and it is to be wished that other historic towns might find persons competent and willing to do a similar work for them.

Vital Record of Rhode Island, 1636-1850. First Series. Births, Marriages and Deaths. A Family Register for the People. By James N. Arnold, Editor of the "Narragansett Historical Register." Vol. 4. Newport County. Published under the auspices of the General Assembly. Providence: Narragansett Historical Publishing Company. 1893. Large 4to. Price $7.50.

We are pleased to see another volume of this great work, and also to learn that the two remaining counties of the State (Bristol and Washington) will be placed in type during the present year. Mr. Arnold informs us that Newport County (genealogically considered) is the best county in the State, and that the matters treated in this volume are far nearer complete than he expected. Newport, in colonial times, was certainly a place of aristocratic residences, and for more than a century gave law to the State, and had great influence in the affairs of New England. The old cemetery here has scores of tombs bearing coats of arms, and it reminds the visitor more of an old English church-yard than a burial ground in liberty-loving America. The records of this interesting community Mr. Arnold has here presented to the reader's eye. It will please any genealogist to glance over the names, especially one who has an interest in these families. A brief study of the pages here presented will convince the most sceptical of the great amount of patient, careful and laborious research needed to produce such a result; and as we have before remarked, Mr. Arnold deserves well of his State for his labors in her behalf; and now that the work is so nearly finished, we trust he may successfully complete it to his own desire and pleasure.

History of the Town of Canton, Norfolk County, Massachusetts. By DANIEL T. V. HUNTOON. Published by the Town. Cambridge: John Wilson & Son, University Press. 1893. 8vo. pp. 666.

This beautiful and well compiled volume is a worthy memorial of the town of Canton. The author did not live to see his work in print, though he left it completed in manuscript. He died in his native town—whose history he here so well commemorates—Dec. 15, 1886, at the age of forty-four. He was an active member of this Society, and a sketch of his life will be found in the Register, vol. 41, pages 328-9. He had rare qualifications for a work like this; and his labors in collecting and arranging his material and in writing out the history extended through many years. Every topic of interest in the history of Canton will be found satisfactorily treated in this work. The accounts of the Punkapoag Indians, the first English settlers, the churches, the schools, the war of the Revolution and its worthies, the salt works, the powder mill, the loyalists and other matters will be read with interest.

The book does credit to the University Press, at which it was printed, and it is well illustrated. A portrait of the author forms the frontispiece, and other portraits of persons distinguished in the history of the town are given. The book also has views of buildings, memorial tablets, tombstones and other objects of interest, besides several maps. It has a full table of contents and an excellent index.

Southern Historical Society Papers. Vol. xx. Edited by R. A. Brock, Secretary of the Southern Historical Society. Richmond, Va.: 1892. Pamphlet. 8vo. pp. 405.

In this collection of twenty-eight papers, with an index, is presented much valuable information regarding military operations, 1861-65, not otherwise easily attainable, which it is important to possess. 1642-1892. Legends of Woburn, now First Written and Preserved in Collected Form, with Twenty-three Full-page Plates and Eight Tail-pieces. To which is added a Chrono-indexical History of Woburn. By Parker Lindall Converse. Woburn, Mass.: Printed for subscribers only. 1892. 12mo. pp. 177.

Mr. Converse in this volume has given "a ramble in the fields of legendary lore." As he in the preface says, "every country has its national stories, historical and mythical, peculiar to itself; and every hamlet its local ditties, dear to its inhabitants, which, in very many places, have been written and preserved, as they ought to be in all others." These traditions are such as were recounted at the fireside of the fathers. The story-teller of Puritan times has given way to the newspaper reader. Mrs. H. B. Stowe, in "Old Town Folks" and Sam Lawson's "Fireside Tales," has preserved many of the stories of the pioneers of Natick. In this she wrought well. Mr. Converse has likewise rescued a few legends from Woburn's early settlers. There is in every community stories of the Indians, the pat and quaint sayings and characters of its pioneers and leading men. These traditions of the business, social, military and moral life of the locality are often rich, and open to the reader a realism which we cannot get from the pages of statistics and history. The fireside, the village inn, the country-store, belong to the past, and many are the thrilling tales which, if they could be rehearsed to-day, would render true service in picturing the actual life of the fathers and mothers, whose labors we have taken up. This book is finely illustrated by twenty-three full paged plates of homesteads, landscapes and localities of Woburn. The citizens of Woburn are under many obligations to Mr. Converse for this publication illustrative of their early history. By Rev. Anson Titus, of Natick.

A Family Genealogical Record .- Second Edition. Boston: William B. Clarke & Co., 340 Washington St. 1892. Large 4to. pp. 22. Price $1.25.

This work was first issued in 1885, and was commended by us in October of that year. It consists of a series of blanks for recording the ancestry of any person, and there is room in it for ten generations. The author is Miss Emma F. Ware, of Milton, Mass., the author of the Ware Genealogy, published in 1887 in the Register. She has made several improvements in this second edition. Those who wish to preserve a record of their ancestors in tabular form will find this a convenient book for the purpose. There is sufficient room to the second convenient book for the purpose. in the space allotted to each individual to enter the most important facts in his history. We commend it to all such persons.

History of the Old Dutch Church at Totowa, Paterson, New Jersey, 1755-1827.

By William Nelson. Baptismal Register, 1756-1808. Paterson, N. J.: Press Printing and Publishing Company. 1892. 8vo. pp. 169.

Mr. Nelson, in his "Forewords," says, "From the lips of the 'oldest inhabitant' the writer was wont many years ago to hear much about the Old Dutch Church at Totowa, till in fancy he could picture to himself the quaint square stone building with pyramidal shingle roof, and odd belfry; the box-pews, with doors carefully closed; the queer pulpit perched up at one end, over-shadowed by the huge sounding board; the sturdy Dutch folk who with reverential air listened to the Word as expounded by Dominie Marinus, Dominie Mayer, Dominie Schonmaker or Dominie Ettinge, and at intermissions strolled about the solemn 'God's Acre' where reposed their dead who waited the resurrection unto Life."

With reverent care Mr. Nelson has gathered, in the work before us, the history of the church from the first preaching at Towarda in 1735, and the organization of a church in 1750, to the burning in 1827 of the quaint old church edifice, of which an engraving is given. He has also furnished a full transcript of the church register, which is in the Dutch language. An appendix of historical documents and a full index are given. The author deserves great praise for this contribution to the history and genealogy of New Jersey. Only 200 copies were printed, all for private distribution.

Centennial Year (1792-1892) of the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Agriculture. Small 8vo. pp. 146. Printed at the Salem Observer Office. 1892.

This historical sketch of the Society named was issued in paper covers by the trustees last summer, at a date corresponding to that of the organization of the Society. A few volumes have since been issued in cloth binding for libraries, etc. The narrative contains, besides the main facts of the Society's experience daring the century, many incidental matters pertaining to the general progress of agriculture in this State, with interesting references to distinguished citizens who have in one or another way been identified with that progress. The book is compiled by Mr. Daniel W. Baker of Boston, and shows his thorough and conscientious research.

Special Holsteins in America from 1644 to 1892, comprising many Letters and Biographical matter relating to John Hughes, the "Stamp Officer," and friend of Franklin. With Papers not before published relating to his brother of Revolutionary fame, Colonel Hugh Hughes of New York. The Families of De Haven, Rittenhouse, Clay, Potts, Blakiston, Atlee, Coates, and other descendants of Matthias Holstein, of Wicaco, Philadelphia, are included. Thirty-five* family pictures, and fac-similes of letters of Benjamin Franklin and Rev. Nicholas Collin, D.D., are given. By Mrs. Anna M. Holstein, Upper Merion, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania. Norristown, Pa. 1892. 8vo. pp. 307, including indexes. Price 84.00.

Genealogists inquire for original research, new and valuable. This book meets these requirements. Franklin's remarkable letter, the Hughes family letters and Anthony Wayne's are of general historical interest. The Holsteins, one of the most ancient Swedish-American families, a substantial and reectable race, still survive in the ninth generation near the spot occupied in 544, perhaps earlier, by their forefathers. The Hughes, De Havens, Hulings (Huguenots, de Hulingues), Clays, Rittenhouses and Potts are names well known in Pennsylvania. The biographical notices of the Hepburns, Pollocks and Rockhills are of those distinguished in various ways, who married descendants. Thirty-eight excellent portraits add to the interest of this well-printed book, with a quaint and curious autograph letter of the Rev. Nicholas Collin, the view of Gloria Dei (Old Swedes) Church, Philadelphia, and the De Haven arms.

view of Gloria Dei (Old Swedes) Church, Philadelphia, and the De Haven arms. Page 252 is a photograph of Benjamin Franklin's letter, Aug. 9, 1765, to his friend John Hughes, the Stamp Officer, of the greatest public interest. Franklin expresses dissatisfaction with the rebellious colonies, advises Mr. Hughes to hold his office, with other details showing his action on this important question. Politically he would have been ruined had this letter appeared in his lifetime. The Sons of Liberty and James Otis received the ci-devant Stamp Officer with great courtesy on his visit to Boston in 1769. He was well received in other parts of New England, and in 1771 with special consideration in South Carolina.

This work is badly arranged; the REGISTER'S system should have been followed.

A more complete index would have been a great addition.

First Annual Report of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, together with the Several Addresses delivered at the Meeting held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 30, 1892. Philadelphia: Printed for the Society. Sm. 4to. pp. 56.

We are glad to see a new genealogical society taking its place among the learned societies of this country; and we trust that others will soon be formed in the several States of the Union. The first meeting of the projectors of the association was held at Philadelphia, at the residence of Mr. Charles R. Hildeburn, on the 13th of February, 1892, and on the 24th of that month this Society was organized by the adoption of a Constitution and By-Laws and by the election of officers.

The neatly printed volume before us, besides the annual report of the directors, contains the annual address of the president, Edward Shippen, M.D., U.S.A., and an address by Mr. Howard M. Jenkins. Appended are lists of the officers and members of the Society. We notice that the Society is making good progress in the collection of manuscript copies of church records in Pennsylvania and adjacent States.

We continue in this number our quarterly notices of recent genealogical publications.

The first book on our list, the Starin Family, is by William L. Stone, author of the Life and Times of Sir William Johnson, Bart., and other well-known historical, blographical and genealogical works. It is brought out in an elegant style, and is a fine specimen of the typographical work of Joel Munsell's Sons, who are worthy successors of their father. The Starin family is traced to the present time from Nicholas Ster, who was born on the borders of the Zuyder Zee in 1663, and emigrated to New Amsterdam, where he landed in 1695. Soon after the arrival of the immigrant in America, he changed his Dutch suname Ster (Star) to the German Stern, having the same signification, and a few years later to Staring or Starin; and these two surnames have been used interchangeably to the present time. Mr. Stone has been successful in obtaining material for his book, which he has arranged in a clear manner. The book has a good index, and is illustrated with fine portraits and other engravings.

The Pennypacker Pedigree is given in large folding charts, in which the ancestors of the persons named on the title page are traced in all lines. They include many historical personages. The work was compiled by Mr. James L. Pennypacker for his brother, Mr. Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia.

The next work, the Hazelton genealogy, is compiled by Dr. Lapham, of Augusta, Me., who has had much experience in compiling family and local histories, and is published by Mr. Franklin H. Hazelton, of Portland, Me., to whom the inception of the work is due. The book is well compiled, well indexed and well printed. It is illustrated with fifteen portraits and an engraved coat of arms.

The volume on the Stokes family is gotten up in a very handsome manner, and is illustrated with portraits and other engravings of a high order. It consists chiefly of a well written account of the life of Mrs. Stokes and her husband. An appendix of genealogical matter relating to their ancestry is given. It is compiled by Anna B. Warner for the children of Mr. and Mrs. James Stokes. We wish such family memorials were more frequent.

The Bulloch book contains much interesting matter relating to families from which the author is descended. It makes a handsome volume and is well compiled.

The Bartlett book contains much valuable and interesting matter about the Bartletts, and particularly about the line named in the title page; and the author deserves praise for the creditable manner in which he has performed his work. It is well indexed.

The Bailey and Weaver book is devoted to the ancestors of the persons named in the title. It is well compiled and handsomely printed. It is illustrated with portraits.

The Moulton book is by Mr. Augustus F. Moulton, a lawyer, of Portland, Me, and does credit to his research and taste. It makes a handsome volume, and is well indexed.

The Whittemore book is by the late Bernard Bemis Whittemore, of Nashus, N. H. It contains much valuable matter about the families of this name, which is to be distinguished from that of Whitmore, another early New England family.

The Scammon pamphlet is by Mr. Benjamin N. Goodale, of Saco, Maine. It gives a full record of one line of the Scammons of York County, Maine.

The White pamphlet is by Mr. Andrew C. White, assistant librarian of Cornell University. Roderick White, born 1788, died 1822, was the seventh generation in descent from Elder John White, an early settler of Hartford, Conn.; and his wife, Lucy Blakeslee, was the seventh generation from Thomas Blakeslee, of Branford, Conn. The line of each is clearly traced.

The Brownell book is by Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Spencer, née Atwood, of Ithaca, N. Y., who entitles it "Some of my Ancestors," it being a record of families from which she is descended. It was printed by a boy on his little printing press that would only print a sheet the size of the book. It is creditable to his skill. Mrs. Spencer is to be congratulated on obtaining so full records of her ancestors.

The book on Dr. Ayer, though strictly a biography, contains genealogical matter relating to the Ayer, Mason and Ayres families. It is handsomely printed, and illustrated with portraits and views.

The Dutton Family was printed over twenty years ago, but as it has never before been noticed in the REGISTER, we give its title and commend it to our readers.

The Noyes pamphlet gives one line of the descendants of the Rev. James Noyes, the kinsman and colleague of Rev. Thomas Parker as minister of the First Church of Newbury. It is well compiled and makes a fine pamphlet.

The Sargent book is well described in its title page. We think this is the first genealogy of the Amesbury Sargents printed. The Sargents here preserved settled in Vermont in the last century.

The Wellington book is by Mrs. Adaline W. Griswold, of Belmont, Mass. It contains the will of Roger Wellington, of Watertown, Mass., the emigrant ancestor of this family, and a brief genealogical account of some of his descendants. The book is well compiled and handsomely printed.

The Lippincott pamphlet has been printed from the manuscripts of the late James S. Lippincott, who spent many years on the work, and had he lived would, no doubt, have produced a fuller work. The matter here preserved shows much research. We hope that the friends who have preserved the manuscript in print will make it the basis of a larger work.

The Burritt book, or a portion of it, was read as a paper by Mr. Raymond, of Tarrytown, N. Y., before the Fairfield County Historical Society at Bridgeport, Conn., Friday evening, Feb. 19, 1892. It is a valuable and interesting paper.

The Putnam Family has reached the third number, and maintains its interest. It does credit to the compiler.

Mr. Churchill, the compiler of the pamphlet on the Churchill family, has been many years collecting material relative to the genealogy of that family. He has selected from his materials a portion relating to the ancestors and descendants of his grandfather, Asaph Churchill, of Milton, and has printed a small edition for his friends. It shows care in its preparation, and is handsomely printed.

Mr. Dudley has issued the eighth number of his valuable History of the Dudley Family. It maintains the interest of the work. He has also issued a report or memorial of the Reunion of the Descendants of Gov. Thomas Dudley, held at the Revere House, Boston, October 25, 1892. It is printed uniform with the History of the Dudley Family, and is illustrated with portraits, etc.

Four numbers of the genealogical periodical, "The Sharpes," namely, those for January, February, March and April, 1893, have been issued. They preserve much interesting matter relative to the Sharpe family.

Mr. Allen, the author of the pamphlet on the Lee family of Watertown, states in his work that the sketch is published to preserve material brought to light after much research, with the hope that some other member of the family will bring the work to completion.

Rev. Dr. Neill's pamphlet on the Ancestry and Early Life of George Washington forms No. II. of the 2d series of the "Macalester College Contributions." It originally appeared in the Pennsylvania Magazine of History for October, 1802, and has been reprinted in pamphlet form. It furnishes new and valuable facts about Washington.

The first number of the Historical Journal of the More family was noticed by us in July last. We are glad to welcome a second number.

The pamphlet on Lucy Keyes preserves many facts about the disappearance of of that child in 1755, but is unable to solve the mystery that surrounds it. It has some genealogical matter leading us to preserve its title here.

The Weaver Family and the Pemberton Family are both reprints from the REGISTER. The Weaver pamphlet is illustrated with portraits of John and Elizabeth (Weaver) Greenwood, and other illustrations.

GENEALOGICAL GLEANINGS IN ENGLAND.

8° Septembris 1686. Personally appeared Samuel Layfield of St. Michael Cornhill, London, goldsmith, aged forty years or thereabouts, the husband of Mary Oliver, niece of James Hall late of London, draper, deceased, by Mary his sister, and did depose that he went to visit James Hall deceased &c. on Tuesday the tenth of August last past, who was then very dangerously ill at his house, in Lamb Alley in the parish of St. Buttolph Bishopsgate, and there he staid and watched with him in his chamber until three of the clock in the morning, about which time the said James Hall departed this life, and this deponent assisted in the laying forth his body, and about five or six of the clock in the said morning he did send for Mr. John Hall, the said deceased's nephew, and he came thither about six of the clock and he immediately sent for Mr. Thomas Fige and Mr. Edward Johnson, two of the deceased's neighbors, and he the said Mr. John Hall did not go up the stairs into the said deceased's chamber until they the said Mr. Fyge and Mr. Johnson came, and then they went up all together and there agreed to search amongst the said deceased's writings for a Will, and this said deponent took out of the pocket of the breeches which the said deceased did usually wear and were then in his said chamber a bunch of keys and a watch, one of which keyes belonged to a trunk which stood in the chamber, which they unlocked (having searched two small trunks before) but in that trunk there were several writings of concern, a bag of money with a ticket upon it to be fifty pounds, a purse with a quantity of gold in it, being ninety nine guineas, and two broad twenty shilling pieces, in which said trunk there was also found, wrapt up in a paper upon which were endorsed these words The Last Will and Testament of James Hall, made the sixteenth day of November 1665, to be delivered to his executors Mr. John Hall and Mr. Robert Mordant, or one of them, which paper seemed to have formerly sealed but at the said finding was unsealed, which being opened they found eight sheets of paper fixed together on the top with red tape, and a seal thereupon, which was immediately, in the presence of all the said four persons perused and read, and they did observe and take notice that the words James Hall were subscribed to the bottom of every of the said sheets and they also took notice of the several obliterations (then follows a list of such obliterations). And they did observe that by the numbers of the sheets there were two wanting, viz' the 6th and 7th, but those that were so found the said Mr. John Hall took into his custody and locked up the said trunk again, and the said Mr. Hall also kept the key thereof, and immediately thereupon they searched and rummaged all trunks, boxes and other places where they could imagine any other will might be placed or laid because that which they had found was of so ancient a date. And this deponent doth further depose that by the order of the said Mr. John Hall he did remove the said trunk, wherein the said money was, and the said sheets &c., and also two other little trunks to his own house, for better security, and there locked them into his closet, the said trunks being locked and the said Mr John Hall having the keys in his custody, as aforesaid. And that, on or about the nineteenth of the said month of August the said Mr. John Hall and this deponent looking over the remaining papers in the said trunk, which had not been opened since the bringing the same to his, this deponent's, house, and there, towards the bottom of the said trunk, they found two other sheets numbered 6 and 7, with several obliterations and blottings, torn at the top and at the bottom, and that the said eight sheets, so fixed together as aforesaid, and the said two sheets "soe loose oblitered and torne," and annexed to this his deposition, were at the time of finding thereof as they now are. Then follows a deposition (of the same general purport) made by Thomas Fyge and Edward Johnson jointly 8 September 1686.

[The above will, which is undoubtedly the will referred to by John Hall as that of his uncle James, seems to place this family. In the Visitation of London (1633-4-5), may be found the following pedigree of Hall, of Bishopsgate:

James, the fourth son of John and Sarah Hall, was evidently the testator of the will of which I have just given an abstract. His mother, Sarah, had probably remarried — Wraxall; his brother John (the second son) was the one who went to New England and married the widow Rebecca Byley, by whom he had the son John who afterwards came to England and lived and died at Islington. Sarah, the eldest daughter of John and Sarah Hall, had married — Berry and had a daughter Sarah married to — Bewley. Mary, the fourth daughter, married — Oliver and had a daughter Mary, wife in 1686 of Samuel Layfield. Their cousins Humfrey and Daniel Hall, sons of Thomas and Benet Hall, seem to have been living in 1691, the former in Hertfordshire and the latter at Gravesend. In a future number I hope to give other wills referring to John Hall of Islington, and also to New England. Henry F. Waters.]

The rest of my plate I give to the children of my said cousin Lemuel Mason as followeth (i.e. to Alice Mason a great beaker, to Elizabeth a tankard, to Anne a tankard and to Abigail, Mary and Dynah all the rest of my plate, to be equally divided &c, and to Lemuel Mason the younger my best great ring. Five pounds apiece to Mr John Samuel, Mr. Thomas Gladwin, my said cousin Margaret Mason and Mrs. Mary Childe widow; and they to be overseen of my will. All the residue to my kinsman Mr Lemuel Mason in Virginia and he to be executor; and my said god daughter Margaret Mason to be executor in trust only for the use and benefit of the Lemuel her father. Proved by Margaret Mason.

[Lieut. John Chisman was of Elizabeth City in 1624 then aged 27, he had come out in the Flyinge Hart in 1621, and with him was Edward Chisman, probably his brother, aged 22, who came in the Providence in 1623* and, in the last named year, a Thomas Chisman was also of Elizabeth City.† Lieut. Chisman had a patent for 200 acres of land on South side of Elizabeth River in 1626‡ & was still living in 1635§ & was probably the same John Chisman who, 9 Nov. 1646, is witness to an agreement between Lieut Francis Mason & William Dounman.

William Gany was of Elizabeth City in 1624, aged 33, he came out in the George in 1616, his wife Anna, aged 24, came in the Bona Nova in 1620, their daughter Anna was born in Virginia before 1623¶ query if not the legatee of 12 d. in the will? Henrie Gany, aged 21, who came in the Dutie in 1619, is in the roll of servants of Francis Mason in the same Muster.** It is noteworthy that Alice & Margarie Gany where among the first names in Lieut. Francis Mason's list of Head Rights.††

But the most interesting portion of this valuable will lies in the clue which is affords to the probable English home of the Mason family and their connections. Elizabeth Theleball, as the writer has shown, the Ganey connection, before indicated, is made certain & the daughter Mason; the Ganey connection, before indicated, is made certain & the daughter Margaret accounted for. Thomas & George, sons, & Frances & Mary, daus. of Lemuel Mason, are not mentioned by name in the will, but were of course included in the gift of £10 to all the children "now living in Va." §§

The Registers of St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey, now in course of publication in the Genealogist, will no doubt afford information of very great value in this connection. They have at present, however, only reached the year 1604. [] J. HENRY LEA.]

To my daughter Lydia Jordan, wife of Thomas Jordan my new house lately built at Frampton Cotterill, Gloucestershire, and all lands and pastures thereunto belonging, which I lately bought of Humphrey Hooke, knight. This for her natural life and then to her husband Thomas Jordan, for life, and next to my grand daughter Bridget Jordan, my daughter Lydia's eldest daughter, and a portion to my grand daughter Lydia Jordan. To my daughter Mary Hollister my new house bought of James Hughes and Thomas Haynes, in Mary part Street (and the outlet or pavement before referred to), and other property. To my daughter Phebe Hollister half of my Inn called the Whitehart, in Broad Street, one fourth part of which was my wife's inheritance and one fourth I lately bought of Anne Yeomans deceased, and one other fourth part I lately bought of Edmond French, son and heir of Elizabeth French also deceased, and the other fourth part I lately bought of Henry Rowe and Judith his wife, which said Judith, Elizabeth, Ann and my wife were the daughters and coheirs of Edmond Popley, merchant deceased. To my said daughter (among other things) "my lesser silver belly pott." To my kinswoman Lydia, that lately served me and is now become the wife of Edward Hackett, one hundred pourds over and above what I have already given her towards her marriage portion. To "my Beloved ffriends George Fox, William Dewsbery, Alexander Parker, George Whitehead and John Storye ten pounds apiece and unto Thomas Brigges, John Wilkinson of Westmoreland, James Porke, Steeven Crispe and John Wilkinson of Cumberland five pounds apiece as a token of my love to them and the service they have done for the Lord and for his people, and to the intent none my claim any right to any of these legacyes last mentioned to whom I intended it not I do declare and my Will is that it be payd only to that Geo: Fox, Will. Dewsbery, Geo: Whitehead, Alex: Parker, John Story, John Wilkinson, Tho: Bridges, James Porke, Steven Crispe and John Wilkinson who hath often lodged at my house and eaten bread at my table and one well knowne to my Executors" &c. Bequests to Thomas Goulding of Bristol, grocer, and his wife Mary, and to John Love of Bristol and his wife Magdalen. To each of my natural brothers and sisters children that survive me, except Samuel Hollister, son of my brother Thomas, and Nathaniel Tovie, the only son of my sister Margery Tovie deceased, who, because they are ill husbands and are like to mispend it, my will is not to give it to either of them but to Samuel Hollister's wife, for the benefit of his children and to Nathaniel Tovie's children that are living in England at the time of my decease. To Nem Dawson, widow, Joane Pillerne, widow, Margaret Price, widow, and to Mary Evans, widow. My servant Joseph Smith. My daughter Phebe shall possess and enjoy my house and lands called Old Fields, at Urcott in the parish of Almesbury Glouc, held by lease of Edward Browne. My son Dennis Hollister and my two sons in law Thomas Callowhill and Thomas Jordan to be joint executors and Alexander Parker, George Whitehead, Walter Clements and John Story to be overseers.

Witnesses I. Chauncy, John Eckly, Rich. Hawksworth.

In the codicil he bequeaths to his grandchildren Hannah, Thomas and Elizabeth Callowhill a messuage at Westerleigh, with the lands thereunto belonging, held of the Dean and Chapter of Welles. He speaks of his grand daughter Lydia Jordan as "dead." He names Samuel Hollister, son of his brother William, Dennis Hollister son of Abel Hollister, Samuel Hollister, grandson of brother William and son of Jacob Hollister, Thomas Speed, and others.

To my grandchild jamin Fen, son to my eldest son Benjamin, the house, orchard and formerly Joseph Fenn's, in the town of "Norawake." To all the rest my grandchildren respectively I do give one ewe sheep to each of the My will is that my grandchild Benjamin should enter and possess his how and lands at Norawake at the end and period of the lease that it's now for. My two youngest sons Samuel and James shall come to enter and possess their legacies at their accomplishing of the age of one and twent years, but, in case my dear and loving wife should see it her way to dispose of herself in marriage before then, it's my will that they should enter upor the one half of their housings and lands at eighteen, and at one and twenty the whole but their mother's third. To my son Samuel my dwelling house, lands and meadows in the parishes of Chiddington, Masworth, Ivingho, Wing, all of them in Buckinghamshire, given to me by the will of the late deceased Agnis Seare of the same parish and Shire. My said son, if he comes to the full possession of it at one and twenty, to pay to his brother James forty pounds at one and twenty and to his sister Susanna twenty pounds at one and twenty, and twenty pounds to his eldest brother Benjamin within five years after his entrance and possession. All the residue, whether in New England or old, I give to my wife Susanna Fen and I make her executrix. My will is that within five years after my decease she pay to each of my three eldest daughters, Sarah, Mary and Martha, ten pounds apiece, to be laid out in old England in pewter and brass for money pay and sent over for their several and respective uses, they bearing the charge of transportation and the danger of the seas. I entreat my honored, loving friends Mr. James Bishop of New Haven, Mr. Robert Treat, Thomas Wheeler and Daniel Buckingham to lend and afford their best help, council and advice as overseers &c.

MATHEWE SILLESBYE of the town of North'ton in the County of North'ton gent 18 April 1662 proved 19 February 1662. To my worthy friend Salothiell Lovell of Northampton Esq., George Norwood of Nothampton, gent, and Lawrence Wollaston of the same town gent and to their heirs and assigns for ever all that my messuage, two yard land and close, with their and every of their appurtenances now in the occupation of Nathaniel Basely, within the town fields and parish of Duston in the County of Northampton, as also one close of pasture situate in St. James End, within the same parish, called Dove house close, and another close called Crowthorp close lying on the West side of Dallington Moor, within the parish of Dallington, and my meadow ground called Fleaten Holme within the parish of Hardingstone, and my hook of meadow called Bull's Hooke, lying in Cotten Marsh within the parish of Hardingston, and my yard land and close in Millton als Middleton Malsor in the said County, upon this intent that they shall with all convenient speed, immediately after my decease, make sale all my said lands and premises above mentioned for the best price they can get, and with the moneys raised shall pay and discharge all my debts, and the remainder shall be towards the payment of my legacies &c. I give to my son Matthew Sillesbye the messuage &c. wherein I now live, situate in the Drapery, in the town of Northampton, as also the tenement in the possession of Samuel Gibbs, next adjoining to the same, and a piece of ground, lying my backside, which I purchased of the town, being part of my walk there. And I give him two hundred pounds over and above what I have already given him. I give to my daughter Elizabeth four hundred pounds, to my daughter Rebecca three hundred pounds, to my son Samuel all my freehold land at Wellingborrow (my son Matthew to make surrender of the same). Also I do give unto the said Samuel my messuage in Northampton in the occupation of my sister Cricke, near the great Conduit there, and a messuage called Collingtree wood House and the three pasture grounds adjoining, and six acres of arable land within the parish fields of Road. And I give him one hundred pounds. I do give and bequeath unto my son Nathaniel Sillesbye my messuage or tenement called Thrupp wood House, with the several closes and little wood ground thereunto adjoining, lying and being in the parish of Roade, and six acres of arable land in the fields of Roade near unto the Hide there. And I give unto my son Namiel all my books, for my earnest desire is that if it shall please God to ake him capable that he be bred up a scholar. I give unto my sister martin five pounds. I give to my said trustees one messuage or tenement &c. in Bridge Street, in the occupation of Edward Martin, another messyage or tenement in a place called the New Lane, now in the occupation of Daniel Sanders, another tenement in the Horse Market, in the occupation of Edward Horne, and an orchard or garden in St. John's Lane, in the parish of All Saints, and a close of ground in St. Edmond's End, in the parish of St. Giles, both in the occupation of George Davies, upon this special trust that they shall convey the said messuage &c., now in the occupation of Edward Martin, to some honest person or persons in trust for my said sister Bethia Martyn during her life, and after her decease in trust for Thomas Martin her son and his lawful issue, failing such to my right heirs for ever; and, as for the other messuages, orchard and close, that they shall permit my said sister, during her natural life, to receive the rents &c. to her own proper use and behoof; and after her decease they shall convey the fee simple of the said messuages or tenements, orchard and close of ground &c. unto the Mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses of the said town, and to their successors for ever, to the intent and purpose that they shall fit and prepare the said messuage in the Horse Market for the comfortable habitation of two poor widows or widowers of good honest life and reputation, natives of the said town of Northampton, and more especially of the parish of All Saints, to be elected and chosen by the Mayor and Aldermen for the time being, or the major part of them and all the rents &c. of other the said premises to be granted as aforesaid to be equally divided between the said two poor people, for the time being for ever. I give and bequeath unto my aunt Clarke if living ten pounds, to my aunt Ungley if living five pounds, to my sister Harper fifty shillings, the rest of my goods, &c. to my soll Samuel and my two daughters Elizabeth and Rebecca. Juxon, 29.

[The above abstract was taken from the registers of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, Somerset House, Strand, London. A copy of the same will is also preserved in the Probate Registry at Northampton. The testator was baptized in All Saints' Church 17 February 1610(11), being a son Mr. Matthew Sillesbye, the elder, a scrivener who was chosen Mayor of Northampton 1631 and was buried (in All Saints') 29 March 1639. The son seems to have followed closely in his father's footsteps, for he too was a scrivener and was Mayor in 1649-50. The signatures of both of them may be found in many of the wills now preserved in the probate registry of Northampton and are so much alike that it would puzzle an expert to distinguish them apart. The elder Matthew was probably an apprentice of Mr. George Coldwell, common clerk of Northampton about A.D. 1596, and afterwards Mayor.

The property in Horsemarket left by Mr. Matthew Sillesbey (the younget) for the habitation of two poor widows or widowers, is described as follows in a case between Thomas Chadwick, of Northampton gent, petitioner, and the Mayor, Bailiffs and Burgesses of the said town of Northampton and the parishioners of All Saints' Parish in the same town, defendants, under date Saturday 26 April 1684.* The petitioner calls himself tenant by lease of a toft, piece of parcel of ground, with the backside or garden and the appurtenances, situate and being on the west side of Horsemarket, on which said toft stood formerly a messuage or tenement burnt down and demolished by the late dreadful free which happened in said town of Northampton, a tenement lying on the North formerly called the Three Tuns and certain parish land lying on the South; which said messuage or tenement, soe burnt down as aforesaid is in the front twenty and five foot in the length, with the garden or backside belonging to the same, and was and now is, parcel of the lands given by the last Will and Testament of Matthew Silesby, late alderman of the said town of Northampton deceased, towards the maintenance of two poor widows, to be appointed by the Mayor and Aldermen of the said town of Northampton. The other property dispute was the parish land next adjoining on the South. The Petitioner was dlowed to rebuild and hold by lease for ninety-nine years &c. This would seem to furnish evidence as to the age of the present building now devoted to that charity (No 35 Horsemarket). Through the courtesy of Mr. Samuel Hull I was mabled to ascertain that the estate in the New Lane (i.e. Newland) was sold in 1866 for £470 and the proceeds (less expenses) invested in Consols (£482 15s. dd.). The gentleman who bought this property built two houses thereon, now numbered 27 and 27a on the west side of Newland. The land in St. John's Lane was sold to the Bedford Railway Co. for £312 10s. I believe the Bedford and Northampton Railway Station stands on the site. The front part of the close n St. Edmund's End was sold off in 1869 to the Grammar School Trustees, who milt the School House thereon, and the back part is rented (at £10 per ann.) as a playground for the school. The proceeds of the sale of the front part £565 10s.) was invested in Consols. (£715 11s. 6d.) I understand that the neome of the Fund now supports three widows, two of them in the Horsemarket nonese.

Contemporary with the elder Matthew in the same parish of All Saints', and indoubtedly a brother, was a Henry Sillesby, sometimes styled linen draper and sometimes mercer, the baptisms of whose children (Matthew, John, Robert, Henry, Mary, Elizabeth, Samuel, and Thomas) are to be found in the Registers of that parish. In his indenture of apprenticeship (1593), enrolled in vol. xiii. In the Town Records, he is described as a son of Robert Sillesbye of Duston. Another contemporary was Anthony Sillesbie of Duston, whose will was proved 13 September, 1623. The name of his brother Henry appears as a witness. Still another was their brother William Silbbie of Harleston, whose nuncupative will was proved 15 April, 1626. Henry Sillesby was one of the bailiffs in 1622. His wife (and the mother of all his children) was Mary Randes (married 20 April, 1602, and buried 22 October, 1632). Their son Henry (baptized at All Saints', 20 May, 1613) seems to have emigrated to New England, and finally settled in Lynn, Massachusetts, where he died. From him are descended a family of Silsby, more or less scattered throughout New England, and the intential and highly respectable family of Silsbee of Salem, Massachusetts, one of whom, Mr. Edward A. Silsbee, is now visiting Northampton in search of the traces of these ancestors of his who were flourishing in Duston and Northampton nearly three hundred years ago.

The foregoing was communicated to Northamptonshire Notes and Queries last Fall, while I was visiting Northampton with my friend and townsman, Mr. Edward A. Silsbee, whose guest I was.

[By the kind permission of the town clerk, William Shoosmith, Esq., to whom I was introduced by Sir Henry Dryden, Bart, I made a rather extensive examination of the town records and documents in his keeping, and gathered a lot of interesting notes about the Sillesby family and other names of interest to New England genealogists. I have to thank Mr. Shoosmith and his sons for the great kindness shown by them during and after this search.—H. F. WATERS.]

In a Book of Orders of Assembly (from 1616 to 1744) appears the fol-

At an Assemblie of John Harbert, maior of the towne of Northampton, the Aldermen his brethren, lat. maiors of the same towne, the bailiffs, all those that have been bailiffs and the fourtie & eight Burgesses of the Com. Councell there assembled in the Guild hall the sixteenth day of Aprill in the Sixth yeare of the Raigne of our Souraigne Lord Charles now King of England &c. 1630, It is agreed and ordered that Henrie Sillesbie shall have a leasse of a part of Cap lane, now in his occupation, excepting passage for the heires of George Coldwell dec., for xxi years from the feast day of the Annunciation last, upon the Rent of viii<sup>II</sup> yearlie upon Covennts as shalbe thought fit.

At an Assembly 12 October 1635 I noted the election of Mr. Matthew Sillesbie one of the Auditors and Henrie Sillesbie Constable of the Checker

1637. It is agreed and ordered that Mr. Sillesbie, late Mayor of this town, who hath disbursed some moneys about the placing of poor boys apprentices in the time of his Mayoralty, shall have paid him the iiijii vi* viii he hath laid out.

Among the Leases and Conveyances possessed by the Town I found one in which Henry Travell of Coventry, gent assigned and Surrendered, 24 April 1622, all his estate &c. in and to the moiety of Gobions Manor (formerly belonging to the Harrisons) to Thomas Cowper, the then Mayor of Northampton, Henry Chadwick, Raphael Humphrey, Abraham Ventris, Thomas Bradforde, Thomas Martyn, Edward Collis, William Knight, Bichard Woollaston, Thomas Guttridge, John Harbert, John Fisher and Henry Syllesby, who have purchased the inheritance and reversion of the whole manor.

1621. Counterpart of a conveyance from the Mayor, Bailiffs and Burgesses of Northampton to Henry Sillesby of Northampton, linendraper, and John Scryven of the same, shoemaker, for £53-6-8, of a messuage, tenement and backside lying in the "Checkerwarde," on the E. side of the street or place called "the Cheker," sometime in the occupation of Thomas Burges, since in the tenure of Thomas Crasbrooke and now in the occupation of Margaret Ball widow, and abutting on the Street called the "Cheker" on the W., the land of said Margaret Ball on the S., a tenement of Joseph Brian gen<sup>1</sup>, called "the Holy Lambe," now in the occupation of Anthony Smith, on the N. and the land, sometime of John Brian the elder deceased and now of Edward Burrows and Elizabeth his wife, on the E. &c. &c. dat. 20 December 1621. Two seals attached.

Coldwell of Northampton, gen¹ (in consideration of £15.5°) of a piece of ground, part in the parish of All Saints and part in the parish of St. Sepulchre's, abutting upon a certain lane called "Sylver Street" and the land of the heirs of Abraham Ventries deceased and land of the said Samuel Coldwell and land belonging to the Hospital of St. Thomas in Northampton on the N. E. parts and a certain lane leading from the backside of an Inn called "The Lyon" leading to the Castle Hill and the land of one [—] Harris and the land of the heirs of Thomas Pilkington deceased on the S. and W. parts &c.; — which said piece of ground was sometimes a lane long since enclosed by the said Mayor, Bailiffs and Burgesses, called "Cap Lane," and was sometimes in the tenure of George Coldwell, Gentleman, deceased, and late was in the tenure and occupation of Henry Syllesby, also deceased, and now in the occupation of one Nathaniel Benbow. Conveyance made absolute. Dat. 10 May 1645.

I examined the Registers of All Saints and extracted the following entries

On my return to London I was able to make notes of the following wills of members of this family.

SAMUELL SILLESBY, Fellow of Queen's College in Cambridge, 18 October 1650, proved at London 9 November 1650. I give unto my sister Bathiah Martin, wife to Edward Martain of Northampton fifty pounds and unto her two children Thomas Martin and to John Martine the sum of ten pounds apiece, all which sum of seventy pounds my will is shall abide in the hands of my executors hereafter to be named, to be laid out for the use and benefit of my said sister and her two Children, according as they my said executors shall in their judgments and conscience shall think best for the advantage and benefit of my said sister and her said two children. I give to my brother Thomas Sillesby, Mr of Arts of Christ Church in Oxford, all my books and papers and clothes, with every other thing belonging to my chamber and study at Queen's College in Cambridge and the furniture of my chamber or whatsoever is mine in the Gallery thereto belonging, and what else I have lent to any in Cambridge or elsewhere (money only excepted). I give thirty pounds to Queen's College in Cambridge, whereof ten pounds is for the use of the Library, especially for the buying of those Greek fathers, in their own language, as yet are wanting there, and the other to be distributed to the poorest and most improving and pious scholars in the said College, according to the judgment of the President and Fellows of the said College. I give to my cousin Tymothy Rushbrooke and Ellenor his wife all the money which formerly I have lent them, together with a lease of theirs which is in my custody, which, my will is, shall be restored unto them. I give to the young "scholeboy of my Cozen Iues, shoomaker in Northampton" five pounds for his better education in learning. My will is that five pounds be laid out in plate to be given as a memorial of my true affection to my very good friend Mr Ofspring. I give to Judith Ball forty shillings, who hath attended me in my sickness. The rest of all my estate, my funeral charges and the legacies aforesaid being first paid and discharged, I give to my two brothers Matthew Sillesby and Thomas Sillesby to be equally divided between them, whom I appoint executors of this my last will and testament.

Wit: Charles Ofspring, Jeremiah Whittaker. Pembroke, 190. 1650, Oct. 21, Samuel Sillesby, vice-president of Queen's Coll. Cambr., Registers of St Antholin, London.

In the year 1644, according to an old parchment register of Queen's College, "M' Sillesby (was) chosen Proctor for y° yeere ensuing, beginning at Michaelmasse next, by y° Consent of y° President and major part of y° fellowes." The President at this time was Edward Martin D.D. On the 11th day of June 1644 the Earl of Manchester, under the authority of an Act of Parliament, appointed nine new fellows, to fill vacancies that had been created in April. Among these new Fellows was Samuel Sillesby. Another was William Ames. We are informed that all these new Fellows were from Emmanuel College, except John Hoare and Samuel Glover, who were from St Catherine's Hall. Mr. Sillesby was then styled Master of Art. He also obtained the degree of B.D.

November 1644. Tutor Mr. Sillesby. B.A. 1647-8.

I have not examined the Oxford records to find traces of him there. His will is as follows:

Memorandum that THOMAS SILLESBY of West Thurrock in the County of Essex, deceased, on or about the eighth day of September 1653 &c., did utter and speak these words following, or the like in effect, vizt, I give unw my brother Matthew Sillesby the moiety or one half part of all my estate; and I give unto my sister Bethia Marten and her children the other moiety or half part of my estate; and my will is that my said sister shall only have the benefit and increase of the said moiety &c. during her natural life; and after her decease that the same moiety &c. be equally divided between her two children, and that the same legacy given to my said sister and her children shall remain in the hands of John Sandford Esq. to their use, and she to have the yearly use thereof during her life, for her more comfortable maintenance: and my will is that my said sister's husband, in regard of his ill husbandry, shall not receive or intermeddle with any part of the suid legacy given to my sister and her children: and I make and appoint my brother Matthew Sillesby my sole executor and John Sandford Esq. and John Ashon my overseers: which words, or the like in effect, he the said Thomas Sillesby uttered and declared as and for his last will and testament nuncupative in the presence and hearing of the said Mr. John Sandford and Elizabeth Dickens, whom the testator desired to take notice thereof.

The above will was proved by M. Matthew Sillesby the sole executor, who in the registered probate act is wrongly called son of the deceased.

[The above name, well known to New England genealogists, caught my ere as I was examining the book wherein is contained the Inrolments of Indenture of Apprenticeship and Admissions to Freedom now preserved among the archive of the town of Northampton. The Indentures of apprenticeship begin with the early years of the reign of Elizabeth; the Admissions to Freedom begin A.D. 1606. Among the latter I found the following interesting items referring to another well known name:—]

1619-19 Gyles Corey maulster, P concessu colloquii i admiss. fuit xxijo die Januarii et solvit—x1e.

[I considered it not a bad day's work when I found two such names as those, to say nothing of others which I hope to present to the readers of my "Gleanings."

HENRY F. WATERS.

Mr. William H. Whitmore announced these discoveries in relation to Brown and Corey, in the New York Nation, March 9. In relation to the apprenticeship of Chad Browne, he says: "The year is A.D. 1570, and the apprentice was doubtless fourteen years old. It is well known that a Chad Browne came" to Boston "in 1638, in the ship Martha, when his oldest son John was eight years old"; that he settled at Providence the same year; "that he and his son and grandson were successively elders in the Baptist church, and that the liberality of his descendants is commemorated in Brown University. It is hardly probable that the apprentice, Chad, was the emigrant, as he would have been over seventy when his son was born. Coincidence of names makes it highly probable that the apprentice was father of the emigrant. As the general work of Mr. Waters for the Register does not allow of special searches, will not some of the graduates of Brown contribute the necessary funds to investigate the clue so that Mr. Waters may do for their founder what he has done for Harvard."

In relation to the admission to freedom of Giles Corey, Mr. Whitmore remarks: "Here we seem to be on the track of the father of that stout-hearted victim of the Salem witchcraft, Giles, who was born about 1616." We trust that both clues will be followed .- EDITOR.]

WALTER LIGHT of Radway, within the parish of Busshopper Itchington and County of Warwick, gentleman, 16 March 1596, proved 22 April 1597. My will is that my body shall be buried in the chancel of the parish church of Radwaye aforesaid, near where my wife lieth, with such convenient funerals as shall seem good to my executor. I give to the mother church of Litchfield twelve pence. I give towards the repair of the parish church of Radwaye ten shillings and towards the repair of the church of Chadshunte three shillings fourpence. To the poor in Radwaye twenty shillings, to be distributed by the discretions of my well beloved friends Richard Hill, vicar there, and my executor. Whereas my cousin Robert Washington maketh demand of divers things which he saith was given by his grandmother, in recompense and discharge thereof and of my further good will I do give to him ten pounds, to be paid within one year next after my decease. I give unto Christopher Washington my kinsman five pounds, to be paid to him within one year after my decease, as before. To my kinsman William Washington five pounds, to be paid in like sort. To Thomas Washington my kinsman five pounds, to be paid at his age of twenty and one years. To Amy Wakelyn, my kinswoman, seven pounds, to be paid to her within one year after my decease. To Ursula Adcocke, my kinswoman, ten pounds, to be paid in like sort and manner. To Walter Nicholls my godson five pounds, to be paid to him when he shall come to the age of twenty and one years. I do forgive Thomas Savadge, my kinsman, of Kyneton, all such debts as he doth owe me either by bill, bond or otherwise. I do give to all my servants that shall fortune to serve in house with me at the time of my scease, as well men servants as maid servants, to every of them three shillings four pence, to be paid to them at the end of their term. Furthermore I do give to every of my god children three shillings four pence.

Moreover whereas I have taken upon me to be executor unto my Mr. Christopher Light and have executed the same till this time, by whereof there are divers sums of money come into my hands more laid out, to the value of one hundred and fifty pounds or thereabowhich said sum there is ten pounds in the hands of Mr. Edward which I delivered to John Eborne and have no writing to show f same, now my will is that if Richard Lighte, son of the said Christ to whom if he shall live to the age of twenty and one years I am to accompte of the said money, do accept and allow of all such bills, reck and charges, as well about his pretended wardship as other wise, as I left in writing and is true that I have paid, and do accept of the said which shall appear by those reckonings to be due unto him in full dischar of all things to him by me due or payable or which I may be charged will as executor unto his father, without and contrariety or suit in law against my executor or executors, whomsoever they shall be, and do lawfully and sufficiently by his deed in writing discharge and acquit my said executor and executors of and from all debts, "dueties" and demands which were due by me unto him the day of my decease, then I do, of my own free gift, give and bequeath unto my said kinsman Richard Light all such plate which came and yet is in my hands which was his said fathers, and also such fine linens which be in a coffer in my house at this present, which were also his fathers, if he live to the said age of twenty and one years, then and upon performance of the premisses to mine executors according to this my will to be delivered to him and not otherwise. But if he shall contend in law or not accept of the said sum, as before, or refuse to allow of such bills and reckonings as my said executor or executors shall offer unto him, or not make unto him or them such discharge as is afore said, or if he shall die before his said age of twenty and one years, then my will is that the whole legacy or legacies to him by me given as aforesaid shall be utterly void and of no validity.

And also whereas my kinsman Lawrence Washington hath procured and gotten administration, after the decease of his brother Walter Washington, of the goods and chattels which were his said brothers, so that it is yet doubtful what the Law will determine of two leases of the farm in Radways (wherein I now dwell) the state whereof was in the said Walter Washington at the time of his decease, which leases in truth I always did mean and intend that he the said Walter and his wife and children should have and enjoy, by means whereof I rest uncertain what to give to my daughter Alice Washington the late wife of the said Walter Washington and to her two children John and Katherine Washington until the matter be decided either by law or other ways who shall have the said leases. Wherefore I do by this my last will and testament give and commit all my goods and chattels whatsoever to my well beloved friend John Murden of Ratley in the County of Warwick, who is natural father to my said daughter Alice Washington and grandfather to the said children, to the end and intent that when it is determined either by law or other ways what will become of the said two leases that then the said John Murden shall make such distribution, as well of the said leases as of all my other said goods and chattels and other things aforesaid, my debts and legacies being discharged, between my said daughter Alice and her children, according to the discretion of the said John Murden; which I mean shall be in discharge of certain covena and agreements which were made between me the said Walter Lighte a the said John Murden at the marriage of his daughter unto my kinsm washington. And of this my last will and testament I do conmake my said friend John Murden my sole executor and my beloved cousin George Warner and my very good neighbor and friend chard Aillmy overseers. And I give to either of them forty shillings.

is this family of Light were ancestors of our Washington, I give the following abstracts of wills which I have gathered from time to time. Let me, meanwhile, improve the opportunity by calling renewed attention to the error which slipped into the pedigree of Washington presented by me in 1889. In the Nation, Dec. 22, 1892, appears a letter from Mr. Ford, dated December 1st, in which he quotes from a communication to him by Mr. Waters, as follows:

"It is certainly (apart from its great value for the light it throws upon the

"It is certainly (apart from its great value for the light it throws upon the American family) the greatest discovery that has been made since I found that memorandum upon which my theory of the solution of the Washington problem

(i.e., as to the English connections) was chiefly founded.

"That theory undertook two tasks: first, to identify the Virginians, John and Lawrence Washington, with the eldest sons of Lawrence and Amphillis Washington, named in the will of Andrew Knowling of Tring; secondly, to identify Lawrence, the husband of Amphillis and father of the Virgianians, with Lawrence, the Fellow of Brasenose College and Rector of Purleigh. When the theory was published we did not know that there was any evidence existin show that the parson of Purleigh was married. Probably (as it appears) Chester knew; but, if so, his knowledge died with him. Then Mr. Conlooking up documents referred to in Chester's MSS., came upon evidence was ablished the fact that Lawrence Washington of Purleigh had a wife living as e as the latter part of September, 1649. Afterwards Miss Walford found a burial of Mr. Lawrence Washington at Maldon (the date being 21st of Janry, 1652). This was undoubtedly the burial of Lawrence of Purleigh, who ry, 1652). This was undoubledly the burns of miles from Maldon, to which d been holding a poor and miserable living a few miles from Maldon, to which ere was no parsonage attached. He was, therefore, in all probability, making aldon his headquarters. With these new facts it seemed evident that nothing ally stood in the way of eventually establishing a complete parallelism between e two. On the one side we had Lawrence, the husband of Amphillis, un-subtedly M.A., in all probability a clergyman, married probably in 1633 (if we ay judge from the age of his eldest son), deceased between 1650 and 1655; on e other side, Lawrence and Purleigh, M.A., a clergyman, married probably in 38, when he gave up his Fellowship, and dead in 1652.

"In addition, I was able to prove an interesting connection between Lawrence Purleigh and his family and Tring and Middle Claydon, the homes of mphillis and her brother. Then the negative testimony was of tremendous die. Not another Lawrence, with all our searching, could be found, except the Purleigh man, who could meet the conditions; and now more than three ars have elapsed, and we can still make the same assertion. M.A's do not ow on every bush. The records of Oxford have been ransacked, and we can concunce it impossible to find there another Lawrence Washington, M.A. (other an the parson of Purleigh); and those at Cambridge have been so well exnined that we can declare it altogether improbable that one will be found there. nd nowhere else can we look for that other Lawrence Washington, M.A. In ct, there was no other—so you may imagine I felt quite sure that whatever idence should turn up would be in confirmation of my theory, or certainly not

"Take the case of that sister of the two brothers in Virginia. We did not now what her name was until the will of her brother John was brought to ght. According to my theory, she must have borne one of three names—Elizath, Margaret, or Martha. If any other, then the worse for my theory. We smed from that will that she was Martha, who, according to my theory, was e youngest sister of John, and he, as the youthful head of the orphaned family, ould be likely to assist his youngest sister. Then came your discovery of that ther written in 1699 by John Washington of Stafford Co., referring to an Aunt oward. Of course, this must be that Martha whom we have been discussing ow comes your last discovery, showing us that this Aunt Howard (or Hayward, or they are one and the same) was that Martha Washington, the youngest sister the two Virginians. And she mentions sisters in England. Here would be nother danger to my theory if that had been a weak one. That theory deanded that Martha's sisters should be two in number, and named Elizabeth and argaret. Note the obliging way in which Mrs. Howard says 'my eldest sister, lizabeth' and 'my other sister, Margaret,' and the married name of the eldest ps the climax. The naming of Mrs. Elizabeth Rumbold clinches the matter. is the keystone of the arch we have been building, securely binding the two des together. When we find Mrs. Mewce, the known sister of Lawrence of meigh, calling Mrs. Rumbold 'neice,' and Martha Howard, the sister of John Lawrence of Virginia, calling her 'sister,' we can no longer doubt the scent of our Washington from Lawrence Washington, the Rector of Purleigh." The editor of the REGISTER trusts that further evidence bearing on this subet will be found in England or in this country.]

owe to my brother Waterhowse should be paid unto him; - that five and twenty shillings should be paid to the widow of Samuel Lemm (?) if she be living, but if she be dead then my will is that it be paid to her executors, if any can be found, and for default of them to be paid unto any of her poor kindred, but if none of them can be found then the money to be distributed to the poor according to the discretion of my executors the sword which I have, or five and twenty shillings in money should be delivered to the executor of Richard Wolfe, sometimes vintner on Lambath Hill near Old Fish Street London, but if no executor can be found then my will is that the said sword and money be delivered to Thomas Wolfe, the father of the said Richard Wolfe, dwelling at Norton by Dainntre, to take either five and twenty shillings or the sword at his discretion. To the poor of Long Boughby thirty pounds, to be disposed of for their benefit, according to the discretion of my cousin Gifford Watkyn, or his deputy, within one twelve months after that the said money shall be paid into his hands &c. And the money shall not be put out to usury after the rate of eight in the hundred &c. I give and bequeath unto my uncle William Hale and my aunt Roase to each of them five pounds to buy them rings, as a small token of my love and thankfulness unto them for their especial care of me from my youth, whom I pray God eternally to bless. To my cousin Richard Walcott five pounds to buy him a ring. To my cousin John Watkyn ten pounds to buy him a nag. To my cousin Gifford Watkyn of Watford forty pounds. And whereas he saith he oweth me ten pounds I freely forgive it him. To my cousin Elizabeth Watkyn, his wife, twenty pounds. To my cousin Elizabeth Watkyn, his daughter, ten pounds. To Abigail Watkyn, his sister, forty shillings. To Wenifride Reeve, his sister, forty shillings.

Item I give and bequeath unto Mr. John Ireton of East Hadden forty shillings to buy him a ring. To Katherine Ireton, wife unto the said John Ireton, forty shillings to buy her a ring. To my god daughter Elizabeth Ireton, his daughter, forty shillings. Item I give and bequeath unto Mrs. Anne Washington mother unto yo aforenamed Katherine Ireton forty shillings to buy her a ring. To Mr. Bourne, minister of East Hadden, forty shillings. To Mr. John Stringer and Mary his wife, to each of them forty shillings, to buy them rings. I give and bequeath three hundred pounds unto my sister Eliza Waterhowse her children, which money I will shall be paid out of my lease of Long Boughby, so soon as it shall arise out of the profits of my land, provided always that the King's rent be first paid out of the profits of my land before this or any other legacy whatsoever. My will is that these former legacies which I have given and bequeathed shall be paid out of the profits of my lease at Boughby, in order as they are set down, unless my brother William Watkyn do otherwise agree with the parties. The remainder of my Lease shall be wholly to the benefit and behoof of my brother William or his assigns. And I constitute and appoint him sole executor. I appoint and desire my cousin Richard Walcot of London and my cousin Gifford Watkyn of Watford overseers for the performance of this my last will and testament.

Northampton Wills, Book OE, 1626-30, 273.

[The pedigree of Watkyn is to be found in the Visitation of London, 1633-4, while that of Ireton, showing the connection with Watkin, appears in the Visitations of Northamptonshire (Metcalfe). Catherine Washington was the youngest (probably) of the children of Robert Washington of Sulgrave by his second wife Anne (Fisher). Her brother Robert was living at East Haddon, and, most probably, her mother also, who is referred to in the above will.—Henry F. Waters.]

REV. THOMAS RICKER LAMBERT, D.D.

THOMAS RICKER LAMBERT was a son of William and Abigail (Ricker) Lambert, and was born at South Berwick, Maine, July 2, 1809. His father, William Lambert, a son of Thomas and Apphia (Gage) Lambert, was born at Rowley, Massachusetts, July 22, 1772, and was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1798. He studied law with the Hon. Dudley Hubbard of South Berwick, and settled in practice there. After many years he went to Gloucester, Massachusetts, where he died December 11, 1824.

Thomas R. Lambert was the seventh generation in descent from Francis¹ Lambert, an early settler of Rowley, Mass., who was admitted a freeman of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, May 13, 1640; through Thomas² and wife Ednah Northend; Thomas³ and wife Sarah; Thomas³; Thomas⁵ and wife Apphia Gage, and William, above-named, his father, whose wife was Abigail, daughter of Capt.

Ebenezer Ricker, of Rollinsford, New Hampshire.

VOL. XLVII.

He studied at the South Berwick and Exeter academies, intending to enter Dartmouth College, of which institution his father was a graduate; but receiving an appointment as a cadet in the United States Military Academy at West Point, he exchanged his intended collegiate course for a military education. Ill health compelled him to resign his cadetship. He then began the study of law in the office of the Hon. Levi Woodbury, of Portsmouth, N. H., and remained with him till the spring of 1831, when Mr. Woodbury was called by President Jackson to his cabinet as Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Lambert finished his studies in the office of the Hon. Ichabod Bartlett. He was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced the practice of the law in Great Falls, N. H. "His debut at the Strafford bar was an argument in a breach of marriage contract in 1833, in Dover, which he brought for a lady, and won his case. A contemporary says: 'It was Mr. Lambert's first argument in a court of justice, and as such gave assurance of his future eminence as a successful and eloquent advocate.'"

After practising his profession for a short time, he studied theology with the Rev. G. W. Olney of Maine, and became a candidate for orders in the Episcopal Church. In 1834, Mr. Woodbury, who was then Secretary of the Navy, appointed him a chaplain in the Navy. In 1836, he was ordained by the Right Rev. Alexander Viets Griswold, D.D., bishop of the Eastern Diocese.

After his appointment in the Navy, he made many voyages in government vessels and saw much of the world. He served under Commodores Wadsworth and Rousseau and Capt. Wilkinson in the frigates Brandywine, Constitution and Columbia. During one of his vacations he instituted the parish of St. Thomas, at Dover, N. H. In a later and longer leave of absence he officiated as rector of Grace Church, New Bedford, Mass., for about four years, ending in 1845. He then resumed his chaplaincy in the Navy, serving at the Navy Yard in Charlestown. After ten years of service he resigned the chaplaincy and became rector of St. John's Church, in the same city. Here he officiated for twenty-eight years, resigning the rectorship in 1884, when he was nearly seventy-five years old. The later years of his life were passed in retirement, free from the cares of a parish. He was a member of the Standing Committee of the diocese of Massachusetts, and held the position at his death.

Dr. Lambert received the honorary degree of Master of Arts in 1845 from Brown University, and the same degree from Trinity College in 1852. The degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology we conferred upon him in 1863 by Columbia College.

He was an honored member of the Masonic fraternity. His friend, the Hon. Charles Levi Woodbury, of Boston, son of the Hon. Levi Woodbury, wrote a sketch of Dr. Lambert's life, which was printed in the Proceedings of the Council of Deliberation of the Ancies and Accepted Scottish Rite, June 28, 1892 (pp. 55-8). Mr. Woodbury sketches his career as a Mason as follows:—

At the age of twenty-one, in 1830, he was initiated in Libanus Lodge Great Falls, N. II. In the same year he was made a Royal Arch Massa in Belknap Chapter, Dover, N. H. He received the orders of Knighthood in De Witt Clinton Commandery, Knights Templars, Portsmouth, N. E. He held various offices in these organizations, and in 1848 was Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire. Oct. 24, 1849, he became a member of De Molay Commandery, of Massachusetts; was its Prelate two years; in 1851, was elected its Generalissimo, and was its Commander in 1853, 1854 and 1855. During the same period he was Chaplain of the Massachusetts Lodge, of St. Paul's Chapter, and for six years—1850, '51, '52, '53, '54, '58—was Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. He was the Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templars for Massachusetts and Rhode Island; and was Grand Prelate of the General Grand Encampment of the United States, 1868, '71. . . Dr. Lambert advanced through the degrees of the Scottish Rite until June, 1869, when he was crowned a Sovereign Inspector General of the 33d degree. In 1879 he was appointed Grand Prior of the Supreme Council for the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States, and performed its duties for about six years.

Dr. Lambert delivered a Fourth of July oration at Great Falls in 1833; an address before the Seaman's Widow and Orphan Society at Salem in 1842, and another before the New Bedford Port Society in 1843. "He was the orator of the Literary Societies of Brown University at its annual Commencement in 1845. He delivered also several lyceum lectures. His principal published discourses have been two on the Rebellion, one on his decade as rector of St. John's Church, and another on the death of his senior Warden, Peter Hubbell."*

Mr. Woodbury, whose sketch of Dr. Lambert has been quoted, has furnished at my request the following reminiscences:-

BOSTON, May 15, 1893.

My Dear Sir : - When I first knew Dr. Lambert, he had left West Point, and entered my father's office as a student at law (I should say it was in 1830); he was a slender, handsome blonde, about eighteen years of age, very fair, as I remember, and of polished and graceful manners, but retiring; I do not remember any very special anecdotes of him then, though forty or fifty years after he used to tell in a humorous way some about me; but I remember quite well talking often to him about life and its incidents at West Point. Later onward, when he had studied divinity with the Rev. Dr. Olney, and had received the appointment of chaplain in the navy, I often met him at my father's house in Washington, where he was a valued visitor and friend, and have heard him describe the incidents and impressions of his voyages up the Mediterranean. He had visited the Holy Land in the party of Hon. Lewis Cass, then minister of the United States to France, who with his family had been passengers in Commodore Elliott's flagship to the Levant, and had left her for this excursion. I am not sure whether he made the entire trip through Palestine with them, for I had several friends in the party, and cannot now distinguish what I gleaned from each.

Dr. Lambert had been stationed on the flagship, but at a late time in the croise was transferred to the schooner of the fleet; but whether Governor Cass and family were then on the frigate, I do not recall. The Levant was not then a thronged thoroughfare for ocean steamers, and he who had looked upon Olympus, Marathon and the Acropolis, had cruised through the Isles of Greece, and had breathed the air of Palestine, or swung at anchor in Acre and Rhodes, was a Palmer, a Hadji, or perhaps a Crusader in the eyes of us stay-at-home Western folk, who realized that light came from the East, and sought to gather more of its sparkles from the interesting conversation of one as apt to receive and as willing to communicate to

John T. Heard's sketch.

Years after this, when on a furlough he had taken charge of a parish in New Bedford, I met him there, the same kind and charming gentleman he had always been, and as I sooc found endeared to his parish for his Christian virtues and beloved for his sympathetic and social graces. Later on, when he had removed to Charlestown, we saw much more of each other, for we had ties that drew us closer.

I must not forego to say that when my father lay dying, wasting by rapid degrees, at Portsmouth, Dr. Lambert visited him as a friend, administered what of spiritual aid the mission of the church is to give, participated in the funeral services, and my mother and her children gratefully received the consolation which his kindly and long friendship dictated in our affliction.

As to his sorrowing Masonic brethren, I have expressed on record my opinion of his high character, talents and services; a repetition is not needed here. He was always good, faithful and loveable.

I am very truly yours,

CHAS. LEVI WOODBURY.

I will supplement this with another quotation from Mr. Wood-bury's sketch:-

The intellectual abilities of Dr. Lambert were of a high order, and his persuasive eloquence was reinforced by choice gleanings in the wide fields of observation that had been spread before him in his pilgrimage of life. It cannot be said that our deceased friend was ambitious of fame or power. His own family connections with statesmen distinguished in our annals during the last third of a century, would have opened avenues had he wished to enter them; but he sought no other paths than those he trod, and formed no aspirations that would bend him from the choice his reason and his heart had made.

Another friend of Dr. Lambert, Geo. A. Gordon, A. M., Recording Secretary of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, furnishes me with this estimate of his character:

Dr. Lambert was of a genial presence and agreeable manner. In many acts of humble benevolence and unostentatious piety he passed a long life, in which he filled various important stations with fidelity, ability, rectitude and uprightness. He was beloved by his associates and honored with the wide respect of every community among whom he was resident. His mildness and candor were united to a spirit of military firmness. In defence of his conception of truth, he was a tower of strength, yet, we think, he could not dispute high things for mere victory. If his arguments failed of conviction from ungenial soil, he never attempted to break the stubborn glebs.

In 1855, Dr. Lambert married Mrs. Jane Standish Colby, of New Bedford, a daughter of Hon. John Avery Parker and widow of the Hon. Harrison G. O. Colby, of New Bedford. Mrs. Lambert died some years before her husband. Their son, William Thomas Lambert, was born in Charlestown, January 28, 1856; and is now living in Boston.*

Besides the sketches by Col. Heard and Judge Woodbury, quoted in this sketch, the notice of Dr. Lambert in Rand's "One of a Thousand" has been used in preparing this sketch.

GEN. NATHANIEL PEABODY, OF ATKINSON, NEW HAMPSHIRE.

By WILLIAM C. TODD, Esq., of Atkinson, N. H.

ONE of the most eminent men in the early history of New Hampshire as a state was Gen. Nathaniel Peabody, whose reputation was national, and whose services were of great value at a trying period and deserve to be recalled to this generation by whom he is little known even by name.

He was born in Topsfield, Mass., March 1, 1741. His father was Jacob Peabody, a physician, and his mother was Susannah Rogers, a daughter of Rev. John Rogers, for fifty years minister of Boxford, an adjoining town. He never attended school, but received all his school and professional education from his father, who died when he was eighteen years of age. When only about twenty years old he settled in Atkinson, N. H., then a part of Plaistow, as a physician, where he married, March 1, 1763, Abigail, daughter of Samuel Little.

Active, energetic, with a mind easily mastering every subject to which he devoted himself, he soon gained eminence in his profession, and many young men resorted to him for study. But not content with his professional duties, he soon became interested in civil and military affairs, for a critical period in our history was approaching. He was commissioned a justice of the peace and quorum, April 30, 1771, by Gov. John Wentworth, and, Oct. 27, 1774, as lieut.-colonel of the 7th Regiment. In Dec. 1774, he went with Majer Sullivan, Capt. John Langdon, Josiah Bartlett, and others, who assaulted Fort William and Mary, confined the captain and five men, and took one hundred barrels of powder.

A convention of forty towns of Massachusetts and New Hampshire was held, Nov. 26, 1776, at the house of Major Joseph Varnum, in Dracut, at which he was a delegate from Atkinson, and was chosen clerk. The object was to discuss the state of affairs generally, but especially the condition of the currency and the high price of the necessities of life.

He was chosen, Dec. 1776, to represent Atkinson and Plaistow in the General Court, where he was made chairman of important committees. He was appointed one of the "Committee of Safety" with such men as Mescheck Weare, Nicholas Gilman, Josiah Bartlett, John Dudley, and others—a committee given almost supreme power.

VOL. XLVII. 26*

Josiah Bartlett and Nathaniel Peabody were appointed, July 18, 1777, to meet delegates from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York, at Springfield, in regard to paper money and its depreciation, and the same year he was made adjutant general of militia. He and Josiah Bartlett were sent to Bennington to look after the New Hampshire soldiers who had served at Bennington and Ticonderoga.

The Continental Congress recommended that a convention should be held at New Haven, Jan. 15, 1778, "to regulate the price of labor, imported commodities &c.," of which convention Roger Sherman and Robert Treat Paine were members, and Nathaniel Peabody and Jonathan Blanchard were appointed to represent New Hampshire. He was elected a member of the Continental Congress, March

The high price of merchandise and the depreciation of the currency, by which our army operations were retarded and general distress produced, were a cause of great anxiety at that time, and he was selected to meet other commissioners at Philadelphia, in Jan. 1780, to devise means of relief. In 1780 the country was apparently "on the brink of ruin," and he was appointed, April 13, 1780, with others, by Congress, a committee to go to Morristown and investigate any wrongs in the management of the army, and correct them. He wrote several letters of much ability to the President of Congress as the result of his inquiries. For this service, and for his diligence in the discharge of his duties as a member of Congress, he received the commendation of such men as Richard Henry Lee and John Langdon. Ill health compelled his resignation in Nov. 1780. In June 1781, however, he was again appointed a delegate to Congress, but he did not take his seat. It may be that he was deterred by the long journey to the seat of Congress, for he was that same year a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives, and also in 1782 and 1783.

In 1784 he was a member of the New Hampshire Convention to frame a constitution, and was chairman of the committee that drew it up. He was a member of the House in 1784, and also chosen counsellor by both branches in convention. In 1785 he was chosen representative and senator by the people, and counsellor by the legislature. He was a member of the House in 1787, 1788, 1789. In 1790 he was a member of the Senate, and was appointed with Jeremiah Smith and John Samuel Sherburne to revise the laws, that they may be "compiled in one volume," a marked compliment, certainly, to one not a lawyer. In 1791 he was elected state senator, and was vice-president of the convention to revise the constitution. In 1792 he was senator for Rockingham County, and in 1793 he was a member of the House and was elected speaker. He was appointed major general of militia the same year. In 1795 he was a representative, the last time he was a member of any legislative body where he had had such continuous service.

After that he held no public office unless as justice of the peace and quorum, his commission for which was renewed with but few omissions till 1821. He was not an old man, and his mental and physical powers had been in no way impaired, but he had become financially embarassed, and the modern ease of extrication had not been invented. It seems strange at this period of indiscriminate pensions that one so distinguished for his services should have spent the twenty closing years of his life in Exeter jail for debt. He had, however, what was termed the "limits of the jail-yard," which allowed him free communication over a large part of the town, and to some extent he practised his profession.

The Rev. Dr. Bouton, so familiar with New Hampshire history, said of him: "By turns he held almost every position of honor and trust in the state, and can truly be called one of the most distinguished men of his time." John Farmer said of him: "At the time he was speaker his influence was so great that by means of two or three associates he ruled the state." He had much wit and power of ridicule, so effective in debate.

He was a friend of education, and did much to establish Atkinson Academy, one of the oldest in the state. He was one of the founders of the New Hampshire Medical Society. In recognition of his services in the cause of education and in so many positions of trust, Dartmouth College, in 1791, conferred on him the degree of Master of Arts.

He was an excellent horseman, fond of dress and parade, and when he journeyed had fine horses and a servant, which in the end led to his bankruptcy.

It is not the modern custom in biography to allude to any defects, and a popular writer of such works once said to the writer: "You must not turn a man out into the world naked." A regard for truth, however, compels me to add that old persons who knew Gen. Peabody, while not questioning his ability and the value of his services, have spoken much of his lack of integrity, his business trickery, and his religious skepticism.

His home in Atkinson was the house nearest the brick meeting house. Ex-Gov. Bell, in his excellent history of Exeter, states that he lived there "on the eastern side of the river, not far from the Great bridge." He died at the great age of 82, June 27, 1823. His wife survived him several years. They had no children.

For most of the facts in this sketch, the writer is indebted to John Farmer, who wrote so much and so well about men and events connected with the early history of New Hampshire.

INSCRIPTIONS IN THE OLD PROTESTANT GRAVEYARD AT ST. AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA.

This graveyard is just without the old north gate of the town. It has for its southern boundary the town ditch or moat, eastwardly the shell road, a continuation of George St. northward, and north and west the grounds of the large (Saint) San Marco Hotel. Two lots outside (west side of its north-west corner) of the nearly square area of the yard proper are burial lots (one or both) for Jews, but containing no inscribed stones. The fence of the graveyard proper is of posts and boards, the entrance gate on its east side being mainly of wrought iron and upheld by cement posts. A hedge, additionally, of low cedars runs along and inside its east line. Scattered about within are various planted trees, the cedar predominating, some of which are hereafter mentioned as occuring close to graves. The yard and its contents are in very fair condition, though I am told without a care taken.

The list following, of the occupants of graves covered with inscribed stones, is complete. I have also noticed the graves indicated by fencing, or uninscribed boards, or stones, wherever such occur. The rows are somewhat irregular—being out of a straight line so that they allow of the insertion of half rows. A good many of the graves are without monuments, some of which must contain several bodies, if one may guess from the quite long list of interments between 1877 and 1884. During the latter year, the yard was finally closed as a place of interment. The previous list, or lists, of burials, I am told by Mr. G. T. Bunting, a resident of the town, was, or were, destroyed during the war. Many colored people, their graves unmarked with an exception or two, lie in this yard.

Since this yard was closed Protestants have buried in the cemetery on the outskirts of New, or West, St. Augustine. The old Catholic cemetery on Cordova St. within the ancient town lines is perhaps about the size of the old Protestant yard, but how it can contain the dead of 300 years, almost or quite, without placing them from 2 to 10 deep, I can hardly see. The new Catholic cemetery is outside the old gate, some distance, and to the east of the shell road. Near the Army Barracks (on St. Francis St.), south end of town, and connected therewith, a walled graveyard holds the victims of the Dade massacre, and a number of soldiers that have died at this post. An old graveyard, supposed to have been used by the Indians, perhaps those converted by the Catholic missionaries, is now covered by the Lynn House, south side of the Plaza. This ran out into the street, bounding the plaza on the south side.

In making the following list I began copying at the south end of the rows and worked northwardly. The commencement of Row 1 is in the yard's south-east corner. The work of copying was done early spring, 1892, and was reviewed February, 1893.

Margaret Hawtaine, or Hawtayne, was the widow of Gerard Hawtayne, described in the Herald's Visitation of 1574, as of the Ley, and also of Esington, which places are in Banbury, Oxfordshire. He was buried 19 June 1588. He was the son and heir of Edward Hawtayne and Margery, daughter of John Crocker of Hooknorton.

Gerard Hawthen (the name suffers curious changes) sold to Henry Johnson the manor of Sebford Gower (now Sibford Gore) in the parish of Swalcliffe, Co. Oxon, or the capital messuages called the "Bury Farme," where the said Gerard H. then dwelt, they having been conveyed by Robert Sapcott of Aylton, Co. Huntingdon, to one James Longworth, who sold them to Edward Hawthen, gent., father of Gerrard. Chancery proceedings were taken 14 Nov. 1590, by Johnson, to recover the deed from "one Margaret Hawthen widow of Gerard." Margaret, in her answer, avails herself of the ambiguity of the complaint pleaded by Johnson, and points out "that she knoweth not of the sale " and understandeth not the bill of Complaint * * for that she standeth seized in one of the Messuages by Henry Johnson's own shewinge, and he showeth not clearly which of them he alledgeth Gerrard Hawthen to have bargained and soulde to him and his Heires nor whether his Heires tooke jointlye as a purchase, or that the feoffement was in fee simple cannot be clearly knowne by the said Bill." How the matter ended I have not been able to ascertain.

In 1588 (July 23) a commission was issued to Edward Hawten, the father, and Thomas Hawten, a creditor of Gerrard Hawten of Banbury, deceased.

Margaret Hawtaine's "daughter Wallopp" was Margery, the wife of John Wallop of Bugbrooke,* Northamptonshire, whose children were five in number. Margaret Hawtayne's son Edward died without issue, and is mentioned in the will of his brother Henry (1618) as "living not in England." Henry Hawtaine, the eldest son of Margaret and Gerrard, described as of Banbury in 1606, claimed to hold of John Bishon of Lincoln, by indenture dated 12 Angust 1545, made to to hold of John Bishop of Lincoln, by indenture dated 12 August 1545, made to John Franchishe,† arable lands demesne in the fields of Colthorpe (Banbury) appertaining to the manor of Banbury or Esington Grange, near Banbury from the expiration of a former lease made to Wm. Pearson, 7 March, 6 Hea. VIII. (1515), for the term of 50 years. Henry married Mary, fourth daughter of Sir John Doyley of Chisselhampton, Co. Oxon, and Ursula, sister of Sir A. Cope, Bart.

With the exception of a reference to Close Roll, 3 James I., where it is stated that "Laurence Washington de Soulgrave gent. owes to Thomas Adkyns d Over Winchinton Bucks yeoman fifty pounds 18 Jany 1605," I do not think have other memoranda relating to the Washingtons. I have, however, a considerable store of notes as to my own family, in which mention is made of many persons whose names are no doubt borne by American cousins of the present

Lawrence Washington was admitted to Gray's Inn 1571. Gray's Inn Admission Register, p. 609. The will of Mary Beswicke of Spelmonden, Co. Kent. 6 Aug. 1653, speaks of her grandfather William Beswicke, who married Marths Washington (Waters, p. 39), and of her cozin Mr. Henry Haughton (another variation of spelling), the son of Margaret Washington and Gerrard Haytayne.

* By Indenture 30 Nov. 8 James I. (1610) Samuel Maunsell of the Middle Temple London in consideration of £3700 conveyed to Henry Hawtayne the manor of Bugbrooks ale Budbrooke Northants, and a house called Palmer's house.

† John Franchishe's daughter married Richard Danvers. Their son John Danvers & described as of Colthorpe, Banbury. His son, Sir Wm. Danvers of Colthorpe, was Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and died 1504.

WILLIAM HULL.

In February, 1812, Governor Hull being in Washington, war with England imminent, and the Indians threatening the people of Michigan, he urged the necessity of troops at Detroit to keep the savages in check. President Madison accordingly called upon the governor of Ohio for twelve hundred militia for that service, and Governor Hull was asked to lead them to Detroit. He declined, stating that he did not wish for any military appointment. Col. Kingsbury was then ordered to the command, but was taken sick, and was unable to go. Governor Hull being again approached, he, in his anxiety for the safety of the territory, in an evil hour accepted the command, with the rank of brigadier general, and retaining his office of governor, with the understanding that in case of war he was to be released from command.

Henry Clay and other congressmen were asserting that Canada, in case of war with England, could easily be conquered, but Governor Hull, knowing the difficulties of that enterprise, was less sanguine. The Canadian militia were twenty times as numerous as those of Michigan, and the force of British troops in Canada was equal to that of the whole regular army of the United States in 1812. Besides which, there was a strong British fleet on the lakes, and the Americans had only one brig, which was still on the stocks. Governor Hull had repeatedly warned his government of the necessity of a naval force, as whoever commanded the lakes commanded the shores; but nothing was done.

Convinced that the force entrusted to my command was sufficient for the protection of the frontier and the security of the Territory while we were at peace with Great Britain; and knowing that I had communicated what measures, in my opinion, would be necessary in the event of war, which communications had been approved by the government, I had little anxiety with respect to any consequences which might have attended my command.

General Hull found the three Ohio regiments of militia, 1200 strong, wholly undisciplined, half clothed, and so badly armed that he was obliged to provide blankets and ammunition, and hire armorers to repair the muskets; this at his own expense, for the administration had provided him with no available funds.

At Urbana, Ohio, on the 1st of June, three hundred regulars under Col. Miller joined his force, without whose assistance the militia could not have been marched to Detroit, as they were mutinous from the start, from colonels to privates. General Hull cut a military road for about 200 miles through the wilderness towards Detroit in twenty days. Bridges, block houses and causeways were built. The rapids of the Miami, where Toledo now stands, was reached on the 30th of June. War had been declared by Congress on the 18th, but no news of it had reached General Hull, although the British port at Malden had been officially notified of it two days before, and as asserted by John Armstrong in his Notices of the War of 1812, under the frank of the American Secretary of Treasury.

At the rapids of the Miami, the invalids of the army, with baggage, stores and important papers, were put on board a schooner for Detroit. In passing the British port of Malden this vessel was captured, and thus the first disaster of the campaign was directly caused by the negligence of the authorities at Washington. On July 5th the troops under Gen. Hull reached Detroit, after one of the most rapid and successful marches ever made by an American force through the wilderness—the latter part of it in the face of a British force on the lake, with swarms of Indians in the woods, watching an opportunity for an attack. But constant vigilance prevented any attack.

On the 12th of July, General Hull, in obedience to instructions, crossed the river into Canada, with about one thousand effectives, his forces diminished by garrisons left in the block houses along the route, by sickness among the militia, prisoners taken in the schooner at Malden, and by the mutinous spirit in the army, which induced nearly 200 men to refuse to cross the river.

General Hull established his camp at Sandwich, opposite Detroit, and proposed to attack Malden, but no siege guns had been provided for, and when he proposed an assault, offering to lead it himself, only Colonel Miller would answer for the conduct of his regiment, now reduced by sickness to 200 men, the other colonels, Cass, McArthur and Finley, although they and their men had been clamoring for an attack, now lost all stomach for it. So it became necessary to wait till guns could be brought from Detroit, and have carriages made for them. In the meantime detachments were sent out in different directions, to observe the enemy, and to procure supplies. Some encounters took place, in which the militia generally misbehaved, and were defeated with some loss.

General Hull issued a proclamation to the Canadians, first approved by his government, and afterwards disavowed, the authorship of which paper, many years after the death of Gen. Hull, was claimed for Lewis Cass. On the 20th of June, Henry Dearborn, the Commander-in-chief, had been directed by William Eustis, Secretary of War, to coöperate with Hull's army of invasion, but he did nothing. Orders were repeated, with no result. He still remained in Bostowatching the Federalists. July 9th the Secretary sent positive orders: "Go to Albany or to the lake."

Dearborn at Boston replied to these orders, July 13th, a few hours after Hull's army, six hundred miles away, crossed the Detroit into Canada, and challenged the whole British force on the lakes; "For some time past I have been in a very unpleasant situation, being at a loss to determine whether or not I ought to leave the sea coast."

July 26th, when Hull had already been a fortnight on British soil, a week after he wrote that his success depended on cooperation from Niagara, the only force at Niagara consisted of a few New York militia—while the Major General of the Department took it for granted that Niagara was not included in his command. The government therefore expected General Hull, with a force which it knew did not at the outset exceed two thousand effectives, to march two hundred miles, constructing a road as he went, to garrison Detroit, to guard at least sixty miles of road under the enemy's guns; to face a force in the field equal to his own, and another savage force of unknown numbers in his rear; to sweep the Canadian peninsula of British troops; to capture the fortress at Malden, and the British fleet on Lake Erie—and to do all this without the aid of a man or a boat between Sandusky and Quebec.*

In the meantime the British had captured the fort at Macinac, the savages had destroyed the post of Chicago, and had massacred most of its garrison; and General Dearborn, instead of supporting Hull's invasion, had made an armistice with the British commander-in-chief, Sir George Provost, in which General Hull's army was not included, which allowed General Brock, the governor of Upper Canada, to concentrate all his forces against Detroit-British regulars, Canadian militia, employés of the Fur company and Indians, besides a strong fleet on the lake which accompanied them. This news reached General Hull August 4th, together with dispatches from Generals Porter and Hall at Niagara, to inform him that no cooperation or assistance was to be expected from that quarter, and that large bodies of British troops were moving upon Detroit. Under these circumstances it was necessary at once to open communication with Ohio, from whence must come the needed supplies and reinforcements, and the attack on Malden was abandoned; and on the 7th of August General Hull re-crossed the river to Detroit. This was not a defensible post, being commanded by the British fleet and batteries at Sandwich, and General Hull proposed to fall back to the river Raisin, and wait for the promised reinforcements. But Colonel Cass assured him, that in the event of a retreat, all the Ohio militia would desert So he at once sent Colonel Miller with 600 of the best troops to open the way to the river Raisin, where cattle and other supplies were awaiting convoy to Detroit. About 14 miles out Colonel Miller found a body of British troops and Indians entrenched. He attacked and defeated them, but for some unexplained reason returned without reaching the supplies. These being absolutely necessary, on the 14th of August Cols. Cass and McArthur, with the effectives heir regiments, about 500 men, were sent by a back road through woods, to the river Raisin.

General Brock, on the 15th of August, appeared opposite to Detroit and sent a summons for its surrender. He estimated his forces at 1330 white troops and 600 Indians, but as it was the usual custom of commanders to understate their own number, and overstate those of their opponents, and as he claimed to have captured 2500 men in Detroit, when there were at most only 1000 there; more correct estimates make his force 1700 whites, with from 1500 to 2000 Indians. General Hull's effective force on that day was estimated by himself at 800 men. Major Jessup, his quartermaster, who testified

To this summons to surrender a refusal was sent, and a heavy bombardment was immediately opened by the British batteries across the river upon Detroit, which was replied to, and the fire was kept up on both sides until night, and several men were killed in the fort. During the night a body of the Michigan militia, 100 strong, deserted to the enemy. Next morning General Brock, hearing that Hull's force had been weakened by the detachment of Cass and McArthur with 500 men, crossed the river under the protection of his ships and advanced to the attack of the fort, having the night before sent over a large force of Indians to cut off retreat in the rear.

General Hull was now in the position in which, as he had stated before the war to the administration, Detroit must fall. His communications with Ohio were cut off by the Indians in his rear; the lake was occupied by British ships; and no help was to be expected from Niagara. His forces were much inferior to those of the enemy; his supplies of food and ammunition were very scanty, and there was no possibility of obtaining any more. If he were to fight, he would save his own reputation, but could not save the army or the territory; and the defenceless inhabitants of Michigan, committed to his charge as governor, would be exposed to all the horrors of Indian warfare. Battle could have few terrors for one who had taken part in most of the battles of the revolution, and had won promotion for his deeds of war, but he believed his duty to the people of Michigan to be paramount to all other claims, and he surrendered the post on good terms; the protection of the inhabitants in their persons and property, and the parole of the militia and volunteers. He himself with the regular troops were taken to Montreal as prisoners, and kept there until exchanged.

Great indignation for the capture of Detroit was felt all over the country, as the people had been assured by the government organs of a speedy conquest of Canada, and at first the administration was silent. But it soon found a man ready to assist it in throwing the blame upon the commander. Colonel Cass, taking advantage of his parole, hastened to Washington, and wrote his celebrated letter of Sept. 12, 1812, which has been the principal source of all charges against General Hull, and was even received as evidence at his trial. Its object was to throw the whole blame of the failure on heneral Hull; stating that he needed neither men nor supplies, and hat the British might have been defeated with ease. This letter, indorsed by the government, had its effect upon the public, which had not know that Cass had written to Gov. Meigs of Ohio and thers, a few days before the surrender, appealing for help, stating that the army was in want of everything, and must perish unless non assisted.

As soon as General Hull was exchanged he was put under arrest, with charges of capital offences against him. A court martial, with general Wade Hampton as president, with a board of respectable ficers, was summoned to meet at Philadelphia, where General Hull ppeared, ready for trial. But this court was dissolved by President dadison without reason assigned. After General Hull had been mother year under arrest, a new court was summoned at Albany, of which Henry Dearborn was made president. Mr. Henry Adams rites of this: "The impropriety of such a selection could not be enied. Of all men in the United States, Dearborn was most deeply nterested in the result of Hull's trial, and the President, next to Dearborn, would be the most deeply injured by Hull's acquittal." The composition of the court was equally unjust. The majority f the members were young men, lately appointed from civil life, with no military training or experience—a number of them memers of Dearborn's military family, and owing their positions to him. The methods of the court were similar to its composition. Horace inney, one of the first lawyers of his day, volunteered to defend eneral Hull, but he was denied the aid of counsel, while Dallas nd Van Buren were employed to assist the prosecution. Lewis Cass, be principal witness for the government, being first examined, the ther witnesses being allowed to be present, copied his testimony. he sittings of the court lasted for some months, and members of it ere allowed to come and go as they pleased, while those who had filed to hear all the testimony were allowed to participate in the erdiet. Hearsay evidence was also admitted. The accused reentedly remonstrated against these irregular proceedings, but was verruled by the court. The charges were: treason, cowardice nd neglect of duty. The first charge was founded on the fact of inding a vessel to transport the invalids and baggage to Detroit; at it being found that the treason, if anywhere, was in Washington, hence the British had been informed of the Declaration of War, efore General Hull was notified of that event, that charge wasandoned, Van Buren, the prosecuting officer, stating in his speech at it was not only unsupported but unsupportable. General Hull. se convicted of cowardice and neglect of duty principally on the inions of militia officers, few of whom had ever heard a gun fired -ar; and by a set of judges, most of whom were equally inexmenced and ignorant. These witnesses thought that General s appearance indicated alarm; and they believed that he ought to have attacked Malden-they being the same men who voted against the attack, and the same men whose mutinous conduct had all along impeded the course of the campaign. So ignorant were they of military duty, that some of them boasted of having plotted to depose their commander and put Col. Miller in his place. That officer however declining promotion of that kind, the plot was abandoned. They well knew, moreover, that the acquittal of General Hull would probably be followed by capital charges against themselves. They also saw Colonel Cass of the militia promoted over the heads of the colonels of the regular army to be a brigadier general, for these political services; and Captain Snelling, who on the morning of August 16th had left his post without orders and marched his men to the fort, promoted to a colonelcy, for similar services. wonder, then, that these men should prefer the winning side, and become swift witnesses against their chief! No one can read the proceedings of this packed court, without seeing that it was organized for conviction. It convicted General Hull on two charges, and sentenced him to be shot. The conviction having cleared the skirts of the administration, the sentence was remitted by Madison, lest the victim might become a martyr-as in the similar case of a British admiral who was put to death to save the credit of the British government.

Contrasted with the evidence of the Ohio colonels was that of other officers in Hull's army who had seen something of war. Colonels Miller and Watson, Major Munson, Captains Maxwell and Dysen, and Lieut. Bacon, saw nothing in the appearance of the General which might not have been attributed to fatigue and a high sense of responsibility.

General Hull labored under other disadvantages in this trial. Before he was taken as a prisoner to Canada, he put on board the brig Adams, at Detroit, trunks containing his personal property, and all his civil and military papers, under the care of his daughter, who with her children and other non-combatants were going under a flag of truce to the village of Buffalo. The passengers were landed at that place at night, and before merning the vessel with her contents were burned by a party of American sailors under Lieut. Elliot of the navy. In this way General Hull lost many papers necessary to his vindication, and when he applied at Washington for copies of them no notice was taken of his application. It is to be observed, that while most of the government witnesses received promotion, those who testified favorably to the accused were neglected. Lieut. Bacon, an officer of merit, was dropped from the army.

A veteran soldier, who had served with distinction through all the war of the revolution; who had led bayonet charges at Trenton, Saratoga, Monmouth, and Stony Point; who had twice received promotion for bravery in the field, and who had repeatedly received the thanks of Washington and of Congress—this man was convicted f cowardice and neglect of duty, by a body of judges, most of whom vere wholly unacquainted with war. The mere statement of the acts would seem to be enough to show the injustice of the verdict, ut for political reasons it was approved by Madison.

What has been the verdict of history on these transactions? The arbled accounts and falsifications of the government organs of the ay, which have been copied by partizan writers and compilers of the chool books, are not history; but what is said by writers who careally investigate causes and effects and consult public documents?

Although General Hull applied to every administration for copies f his papers, it was not until 1824 that his requests were attended a, when John C. Calhoun, then Secretary of War, ordered copies f all documents relating to General Hull's campaign to be made or him. Several important papers, known to have been in the ffice, were however missing. From such as could be obtained General Hull prepared and published his "Memoirs of the Campaign of the North Western Army of the United States, A.D. 1812," which, wherever read, generally turned the tide of opinion in his favor. Jared Sparks, in the North American Review, January, 1825, writes as follows:

We have no disposition to revive a subject which for the credit of the country had better be forgotten, yet if we were to judge simply by the public documents collected and published in these memoirs, we must draw the conclusion, unequivocally, that General Hull was required by the general government to do what it was morally and physically impossible that he should do; that he was surrounded by difficulties which no human agency could conquer; and whatever may have been his mistakes of judgment in any particular movement, he deserved not the unqualified censure inflicted on him by the court martial.

Benson J. Lossing, in his "Field Book of the War of 1812," page 295, writes:

Hull had warned the government of the folly of attempting the conquest of Canada without better preparation, but the President and his cabinet, lacking all the essential knowledge for planning a campaign, had sent him on an errand of vast importance and difficulty, without seeming to comprehend its vastness, or estimating the necessary means. The conception of the campaign was a huge blunder, and Hull saw it; and the failure to put in vigorous motion means for his support—was criminal neglect. When the result was found to be failure and humiliation, the administration sought a refuge. Public indignation must be appeased. General Hull was made the chosen victim for the peace offering, and the sin-bearing scape-goat.

J. H. Patton, in his History of the United States, p. 588, writes:

The difficulties of Hull's position was very great, and perhaps, while no one doubted his personal courage, he wanted that sternness of soul so necessary to a successful commander. Those in authority screened themelves by making the unfortunate general the scape-goat for their blunders, a sending him with a force and means so inadequate.

The remarks of Henry Adams on the desperate position of General Hull's army at Detroit have already been quoted. The latest historian of that war, Prof. McMaster, has this to say, vol. 3d, p. 559, History of the United States:

He (Hull) was indeed a hardly used man. Not he, but Madison, Eustis and Dearborn were to blame. Had the administration carried out the plan of attack; had Canada been vigorously invaded at the same moment from Detroit, from Niagara, from Sackett's Harbor, and from about Champlain, Brock could not have concentrated his forces about Malden, and Hull could not have been captured at Detroit.

Only a few months after the sentence of the court martial, General Hull met with a greater misfortune in the loss of his only son, Captain Abraham Fuller Hull of the Ninth Infantry, who fell in the battle at Lundy's Lane, July 1814, while leading his company in a bayonet charge on the enemy's guns.

Among the many falsehoods published by the government papers, was the statement that Detroit had been sold by General Hull for British gold, and that wagon loads of it had been heard in the night going to his house in Newton. He was in fact a poor man. When he went to Detroit in 1805, as governor, he invested most of his means in a house and lands in that village. After leaving Detroit, in 1812, he was obliged to sell his property there at a sacrifice. Large arrears of salary were due him for years, and the advances which he had made for the equipment of the Ohio militia were never repaid to him, owing to the loss of his vouchers by the capture of the vessel at Malden. He had little left except a farm in Newton, which he held in right of his wife.

This farm of 300 acres was part of the tract of 1000 acres bought by John Fuller in 1644, in the northwest part of Newton, known as the "Fuller Farm." When in 1680 his son Joseph married Lydia, daughter of Edward Jackson of Newton, the bridegroom was endowed with 200 acres of this farm by his father, and the bride with 20 acres by her father. On this 20 acres their house was built, and stood till about 1814, when it was replaced by one built by William Hull; this was removed after the place was sold in 1830, and the site is now occupied by the residence of Governor Classin. The great elm still standing near the house was planted by Joseph Fuller 200 years

Upon this farm General Hull maintained his family, and by skillful cultivation, by the use of irrigation and fertilizers, he raised good crops. He was one of the first in Massachusetts to feed his cattle and sheep on ruta bagas, and to get a hundred bushels of corn from an acre of ground. He was seldom seen abroad, but had many visitors from among the best people of his vicinity, and his old comrades of the revolution. His farm was the happy resort of his daughters and their children, and the General never looked so happy as when he was calling his grandchildren to partake of one of his big water-melons, or having the chestnuts shaken from his great trees for them to gather.

In the last visit of Lafayette to America he visited General Hull, and the meeting (witnessed by the writer) of these veteran soldiers of the revolution was interesting. The Marquis embraced his old comrade, and said, among other words of gracious welcome: "We have both suffered contumely and reproach, but our characters are vindicated; let us forgive our enemies and die in Christian peace and love with all mankind." Gen. Cobb, Gen. Huntington, Gen. Putnam, and other old soldiers, were present at this interview, which took place at the house of Gen. Hull's son-in-law, Mr. Isaac McLellan, in Winthrop Place, Boston. After the presentation of Gen. Hull's daughters and their children to the Marquis, the two old companions in arms took their last farewell.

After the publication of General Hull's vindication in 1824, a public dinner was given him in Boston by his fellow citizens of both political parties, to express their esteem and respect for him. It was held at the Exchange Coffee House, on Monday, May 30, A long account of the dinner was given in the Columbian Centinel, June 1. It shows that the leading men of both parties were prominent on that occasion. William Sullivan presided, with Major Daniel Jackson, Josiah Bacon, Jonathan Hunnewell, Francis Green, Benjamin Russell, Robert Williams, George Brinley, Henry Purkett, John K. Simpson, and David Henshaw, vice-presidents. Rev. Dr. Homer of Newton invoked the blessing, and Rev. Dr. Francis of Watertown returned thanks. Toast, by William Sullivan: "General Hull; let public opinion and history take charge of recent events, while we render honor to the Soldier of the Revolation." Toast, by Gen. Hull: "The highest tribunal of our country; our enlightened and independent fellow citizens." Toast, by David Henshaw: "The public voice; Americans are too honest to sacrifice the innocent to screen the guilty."

Not long after this testimonial, General Hull visited his native town of Derby, Conn., where he was received with attention, and a public dinner was given him by his old friends and fellow townsmen. The fatigues of this journey brought on disease, and he died at his house in Newton on the 29th of November, 1825, aged 72.

We extract from the "Centinel":

The pall was supported by six members of the Society of the Cincinnati. The procession was composed of family and friends, the reverend clergy from Boston, and many members of the revolutionary army.

The interment was made in the family tomb in the Old Cemetery in Newton, where four generations of Mrs. Hull's family had been laid, and whither she herself followed her husband within the year.

The last days of General Hull were soothed by this change in public opinion, and by the care and attention of his family, by whom he was much beloved. To the last, he maintained that he had done his duty at Detroit, and he believed that his countrymen would eventually do him justice.

His grandson, James Freeman Clarke, writes: "As a boy, I used often to visit his house, and nothing could be more cheerful, kindly and attractive, than his whole manner. I never saw a cloud on his brow; I never heard a harsh word from his lips. Nothing in his whole manner indicated that there was any cloud on his mind or heart."

General Hull was a man of medium height, of ruddy complexion, slender and active in youth, but rather corpulent in age; of accomplished manners, and of appearance dignified and commanding. He had in youth associated with Washington and his generals, and in later life with the leading men of Massachusetts and New York. Governor George Clinton was his particular friend, and had warned him against accepting military command under Madison's administration. "For," said he, "they will betray and abandon you." But General Hull, trusting and sanguine in temper, could not believe in treachery among his old military associates, and paid dearly for his trust.

He showed his unselfish temper when, in 1775, in joining the army, he declined taking any part of his father's estate, saying: "I want nothing but my uniform and my sword"; when in 1780 he declined the very desirable appointment of aid to General Washington, because he was convinced that he could be of more service to his country in another position; and finally in 1812, when he sacrificed himself to what he believed to be his duty to the people of Michigan.

RELATIVE TO INDIAN AFFAIRS IN MAINE.

Gentlemen,

I hope ere this you'l receive my L<sup>t</sup> by Capt<sup>n</sup> Heath in answer to your last, who sail'd yesterday Morning in Cap<sup>t</sup> Slocum. This incloses you m<sup>t</sup> Winslow's Acc<sup>o</sup> of the Indians proceeding at Sea & by this & Many other Accounts wee have of Other Tracks by Land & the Man they Killed at Spurwink you'll doubtless be of opinion that they have no honest intentions towards a Peace, as Yett & of the necessity (if it shall Please God to favour us) of Making some other Impressions on them & of retaliating the Injuryes wee have rec'd from the Penobscott Tribe, & without that I doubt whether wee shall ever make a good & honorable Peace. I hope Saunders is seeking those Privateers before now. I have sent by yr Land bearer to be Conveyed to Him, this intelligence, but if you have any opertunity of Communicating more directly you'l do well to do it.

I rece'd sundry of your Letters by Cap' Bourne by whome you'l receive this, & I refer you to my L<sup>rs</sup> by Cap' Heath, who sail'd with Slocum the 8th instant, by whome was sent you 29 Indians from Bristol County Comand by Leift Edw Southworth. I Cannot Consent to your Comeing to Boston till the March for Penobscott bee proceeded on, & then, If you should not go your selfe I shall bee glad to see you in Towne, but It would give me greater satisfaction to have that Important service Conducted by your selfe. I desire nothing May hinder or delay that March, but that the Forces May bee well on their Way by the 1st of August. The Gentlemen of the Councill to whome I have now mentioned It are in Great Expectation of the success of it, & the Province being at a vast Charge & the People generally well spiritted for a vigorous prosecution of the Warr It will become us to Strike while the Iron is hot.

You'l Put 50 of the Indians under the Command of Capt Bourne forthwith, & give orders to all the officers & Commiss not to Lett them Run in Debt for any thing but mere Necessaryes, for, otherwise, it will impead the getting Indians into the service in time.

You'l have a Sloop Loaden with stores of Provisions &c. with you in a few Dayes. The Treasurer have taken one up already for their service. Slocum brings 4 Whale boats & I shall order in a Little time.

If you have not sent to Newbury for those Deserters you may Defer that Matter till further Order.

You Will always remember that this matter must be kept an Inviolable secret and therefore you must make what Amusements You think proper for that end.

[WILLIAM DUMMER.]

Mass. Arch. 52: 218.

This incloses you an Acc of sum numbers of the Enterprises of the Indians upon your Coast. I have sent one to bee forwarded to Capt Saunders. If you have any opertunity you'l do well to send Him a duplicate. Keep a good looke out. The Indian will Certainly surprise you if they Can if it were onely to introduce an honorable peace for them.

Colli Westbrook.

This incloses you an account of news this Day of the Indian Enterprises at sea. I make no doubt but you'l do the utmost to finde & surprise them. You have now an opertunity, by the favor of God, to do some good Service. I have nothing more to ad but dependence on your Industry, Vigilance & Courage. I shall bee in hope every Day to receive some good Acc<sup>t</sup> from you here.

Sungamock,

We received Your Letter of the twentieth Instant New Stile, wherein you complain of unjust & unchristian Treatment You have received from Liev<sup>t</sup> Manvir.

We know of no Man of that Name, yet doubtless we shall be able when we arrive at Boston to understand who it is that hath perpetrated so vile an Action, and shall readily use Our Interest that the Man may be brought to Justice.

The Action as Represented by You is detestable, and ought not to be Countenanced by any Government, especially by those that profess Christi-

Whether You are rightly informed of the Facts we shall not be able to Judge until we hear what the Man can say for himself. We should more readily conclude that the Relation of the Action made to you was reall if We were assured that the French Man from whom you had it was not a Gainer by the War. But if you can produce Wrote Letters your Messengers inform us were sent on shoar by the Officer you Mention it will enable the Governments to convict him of his perfidious Dealing.

We do assure you that no vessell hath been sent by the Governments to Penobscot or thereabouts with a Flagg of Truce, and if any Man hath pretended to Set up such a Signal, he hath done it of his own mere Motion, which is an Abuse offered to the Governments, and tends-to bring the publick Faith in Question.

We were sent hither by the Governments of the Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire, as we informed you in our former Letter, and have with us Cap<sup>4</sup> Bane and Cap<sup>a</sup> Jordan, who are known to You, and have been seen by divers of your people.

We have already given you assurances of your Safety in Case you Come hither. We are desirous to make a Speedy return, yet shall make Our Selves easy Six days by which Time you may doubtless be here, you being at little Distance, which appears from your Letter's being dated yesterday, which was the twentieth, New stile.

This day, about Eleven of the Clock, one of my men, being at Little River, discovered ten Indians who run away from the Army, and thinking they were Enemies they came & made report thereof. I immediately sent for my men in ord to Pursue them, but while they were coming together they were discovered by some of them near the highway about a mile from my Fathers, whom wee presently secur'd, and took their arms from them. I askt them the reason why they Deserted from their Posts, they told me they were Encourag'd by Leiu Bacon, L' Hows, and En' Stanford, which was the reason of their Desertion, and further said, that En' Stanford promis'd to meet them at York. May it Please your Honour,

I Have Rec<sup>d</sup> a letter from Coll. Westbrook, of the first Instant, Wherein he says, it is your Honours Order That Upon Sight Thereof I should disband my Company of Voluntiers. These are therefore to pray you Honour to Allow me to Say, That it looks very hard, if it be so. That we should be disbanded almost as soon as Enlisted. Wee have put our selves out of the way to Serve the publick as Voluntiers Upon the Encouragement given by the Gen¹ Assembly; And we had Never been at the Trouble and Charge we have, to fit ourselves for this Service, were it Not that we Thought We had the publick Faith to Secure us, as I think we have in the late Act, Which Says, That the Encouragement (therein mentioned) is to Continue from the Enlistment to the first of November. We Expect the Benefit of this Act, the War Continueing, and Other Companys are Kept in the service, Else It will prove but a snare to us, & we shall Not have Justice done us.

I pray y' Honour to Countemand this Order for our Disbanding, And Allow us to make one Essay, at least, if it may be, after the Enemy, according to the Act, for we are In Debt, and I have given Reciepts to the Comissarys for what my Men were Necessitated to take up when at ye Eastwd to fit them for ye then Intended march und Col Westbrook; And Unless my Men Can Get som thing this way to pay me, I must loose it, as farr as I Know, Many of them being very poor men.

I pray y' Honours favour in this Matter, as farr as is Consistent with Justice, and the publick Good. I am

I have the Hon of y Letter of the 29th of June last, And cann't but be surprized at the Exceptions you take At y not being Advised of the two sloops fitted out here to cruize the Eastern Coast of this Province, since, at the Time of their Departure, Your Arrival in these Parts was not known here. Nor have you since, till on this Occasion, thought fit to Notify Me thereof, Or of y having his Majesties Commission for L Gov of Nora Scotia, W having his Majesties Commission for L Gov of Nora Scotia, W having his Majesties Commission for L Gov of Nora Scotia, W have I think would have been but agreeable to the Practice amongst Gentlemen in our Station & your Intentions express'd in your Letter, W duly considered, would have left no Room for Censuring me as wanting in Complaisance & Friendship. And you may assure y self Nothing shall be wanting on my Part to maintain a good Neighbourhood, & for Acting in Concert with you in such Matters as concern his Majesties Service & the mutual Advantages of the two Provinces, so long as I have the Hon to serve his Majesty in this Station.

I have communicated y" Lett' to his Majies Council of this Prov. & have taken their Opinion as to those Articles in it that are of a more publick Concern. And, with their Advice, I now inform you, That sometime is June last divers Indians of Penobscot came into the Fort at St Georges, under a Flagg of Truce, And in their Discourse with the Officers there manifested their Inclination to Peace & their Desire that some Gent. might be sent from this Governmt to confer further with them on that Subject In Compliance with weh & at the Motion of the Gen'll Assembly, I sent two Gent. to St Georges, with Instructions (of which you have a Copy enclosed). They mett a considerable Number of Indians, who all express's their Disposition to Peace, And sent two of their Chief Men to Boston w ask a Cessation of Arms till they could get all their People together & engage the Neighbouring Tribes to act in Concurrence with them in Sending their Delegates to Boston to make their Submission to his Majesty, & agree upon Articles of Pacification. The Issue of our Conferences with these two Men was our Granting them a Cessation in all Parts to the Eastwd of Kennebeck River, for the space of Forty Days from the Landing of these Messengers at their Return, As you will see by the sa Conferences weh I have also enclosed. What further Intelligence I may have of the Dispositions & Intentions of the Indians as to this Affair, I shall communicate to you, as I have Opportunity.

If you think it will be for his Majesties service & for the Benefit of y'' Government to send y'' Deputies to this Treaty We shall be very glad of their Assistance therein.

We thank you for the Regard you express for the Interests of this Prov. as well in the Protection & Encouragemt given to our Fishery (Weh will very much contribute to the growing & flourishing Estate of your Province under your Governmt & be for the Advantage of the Trade of Gt Britain (& therefore without Doubt a service very acceptable to his Majesty) As allso, for y" Suspending y" Treaty with the Indians, That so Deputies from this Governm' might act in Concert with you for the Safeguard of the Subjects of both Provinces. But forasmuch as our Treaty with the Penob. Indians is (in all Probability) so near, And yr at Annapolis so distant & uncertain. We have not concluded to send any Deputies to appear for us at Annapolis, Confiding in your wise & successful Managemt of that Affair, And that you will have a Regard to the Interests of his Majesties Subjects in Genn as well as of your own Province, &, at the same time, We promise you so have the like Care of the Governm' & People of Nova Scotia in our Treaty with the Indians here. As to your Proposal for sending 60 Indians to join with your Force to strike a Terror into the Enemy, We should very cheerfully comply with this Motion but for some invincible Difficulties that ly in the Way of it, For besides, That our Charter absolutely forbids the Marching any of the Inhabitants out of the Limits of the Prov. without their free & voluntary Consent, or the Consent of the General Assembly (who are not sitting at this Time) It will be esteem'd a Breach of our Truce with the Penob. Indians If we shd March an arm'd Force into any Part of Nova Scotia. As to the Supplys given to the French in y" Neighbourhood, This Governmt have it much at Heart & would be glad to come into any proper Measures to prevent that Trade, And I have not been wanting in my Endeavours to yet prevent that order pass'd for that Purpose, but unless the Governments of New Hampshire, Rhode Island & Connecticut from whence the greatest Part of the Supplies go, will join with us in this Affair, Nothing that We can do will be effectual. And for the Members of his Majesties Council I have no Reason to suspect that any of them are concern'd in this Mischievious Trade.* I have nothing further to offer at p'sent but with my hearty wishes for your Prosperity & the divine Protection over your p'son & Government.

[Mr. Drake (Book of the Indians, page 332, 11th edition, 1851), says, that "Wenamovet," as he writes his name, "or, as is sometimes spelled, Wenoggonet," one of the Abenaki Indians, "appears not to have been a war chief, or in any other way very conspicuous, except as councillor." He was a cousin and successor, as Mr. Drake informs us, of the celebrated Madokawando, who died in 1698; one of whose daughters married the Baron De Castine, by whom he had several children. Though Wenemonet was in reality chief, we are informed that he "was willing to let 'flerce Moxus' bear his well-earned title of thief in all matters of war." A notable exploit of the latter was the capture of Pemaquid, 2d of August, 1689. (See page 316.)]

LETTER OF ROBERT WASHINGTON, 1775.

Communicated by J. M. TONER, M.D., of Washington, D. C.

The continued interest everywhere in the study of the history and early Washington emigrants to Virginia, induces me to send you the following literal copy of a letter by Robert Washington, which was printed in John Dixon's Virginia Gazette of July 29, 1775. I am not specially proficient in a knowledge of the several members of the early Washington families in Virginia, but this name is almost wholly unknown to me; the letter is well written, and shows the author of it to have been a military man much of his life. Some of your readers may be able to indicate who the person was, and how related to the other branches of the Washington family.

TO THE PRINTERS.

GENTLEMEN, I AM a Man who has spent some Part of my Life between the Barracks and Camp, therefore have contracted a natural Love for Military Parade. To indulge my Foible, I went the other Day to see one of your Independent Companies go through the Prussian Exercise, as they called it; when, behold, all that I saw was their forming six deep, by the Rear Half Files facing to the Right about, and marching eighteen Paces w the Rear. This, with rest, order, open your Files to the Right and Let, with the slow Parade Motions of prime and load, was (as I understood) w constitute the Whole, and you may call it Prussian Exercise if you please; but, if I have any Judgment, it is meer Burlesque on all Exercise. Upon inquiry, why the regular Prussian Discipline was not adopted, I was tolk by the Man that was to teach them, that he could not tell off a Battalion; that is, he could not put them through their Firings. If this be the Case, at I have great Reason to believe it is (not only so with that Company, but many others in the Colony) that many who pretend to teach the Prussion Exercise never saw a Battalion told off in their Lives, according to the Prussian Method of firing, and, if they did, their low stations in the Ranks rendered it impossible for them ever to know any Thing but what belongs to their own Sub or Grand Division: If so what must those Companies propose to themselves by the Mode of Exercise they have adopted, in Case of Emergency. Each Company might be formed into a Battalion, and to lead a Body of brave men with such counterfit Discipline, to face a disciplined Enemy, would, in my Opinion, be downright Murder. Let us not Plane ourselves with this Conceit, that we shall always have the Bush to fight be hind; for, in the different Services of war in this Country, there will be Passes to be guarded or forced, Bridges to be crossed or defended, Trencha to be guarded or stormed, Streets to be cleared, and Sometimes Squares to be formed; in all of which Cases bushing it would be of little or no Use; and to send undisciplined troops on such Service would be absurd indeed. The native Courage of the Americans, and their Knowledge of the Woods, with an early Use of Fire-Arms, has rendered them superior in the Woods to any Troops in Europ; and if under regular Discipline, might be as famous in the Field. But it may be observed, and said, we want Men of Knowledge 93.7

such Cases to instruct us. First clear yourselves of those Caterpillars t poison the Military Blossoms of your first Endeavours, and leave only a bky Webful of Excrements behind. Next, advise those bookish corists to lay by their Christ-Cross-Row; for he that learns the Trade of r by Book will find himself to seek when on actual Service. Then proper Encouragement to Men of Abilities (for such there are amongst who may lay a Foundation for ye that may make ye one Day or other ome as great in Arms as Rome of old. Knowing I must rise or fall this Country in the general Struggle for Liberty, were I to lie dormant he Occasion, I should count myself highly culpable; for the gracious eptance of the poor Widow's Offering emboldens me to cast in my Mite. Station when in the Army in Europe, last War, rendered it necessary me to be thoroughly acquainted with all Parts of the Prussian Infantry Artillery Exercise; I therefore freely offer my poor Service to the lic. Those Gentlemen who choose to employ me may hear of me by cting a Line to the Care of Mr. Edmund Day of Southampton, or Mr. ha Copeland of Nansemond County, for Zenas<sup>5</sup> Crane (Stephen, Benjamin, Stephen, Henry), born May 9, 1777; living so near the mill, where much of the activity of the town centered, must have passed many of his boyish days in wandering about its yard and watching the different parts of the work, and thus gained knowledge which prepared him to enter his brother's mill at Newton; thence he went to a mill in Worcester, Mass., which was under the control of a very exact and efficient manager, General Burbank.

Having perfected himself in the work and its principles, and studied its needs, in the summer of 1799, he, being in a position to establish himself independently, left Worcester, and searched for a fitting site for his project to build a mill for himself. Crossing the Hoosac mountains, he reached the "waters of the upper Housatonic river and its branches. · Pioneer Paper Making in Massachusetts. By J. E. A. Smith, pp. 15, 16.

Here, Dec. 5, 1801, a deed conveyed to Henry Wiswall, Zenas Crane and Daniel Gilbert over fourteen acres of land with a paper mill, in which, up to this time, there had been a daily production of one hundred and twenty-five sheets of paper, and which became known as the "Old Berkshire Mill." Here the partners worked together until 1807, when Zenas Crane sold his share and tried a venture in mercantile life; but, in 1810, he resumed the paper making interest, first as superintendent and chief manager of a firm of four partners, of which he was one; then, in 1820, buying out the others and taking sole control.

Hampered by the strong prejudice for foreign products, he toiled steadily on, overcoming many obstacles, studying the improvement and perfection of his processes until 1842, in which year he transferred his interests to his sons, Zenas Marshall and James Brewer, who favored by conditions and circumstances, held the "Old Red Mill," as it was termed, until it was burned in 1870, when they built a finer and larger mill of stone, and became the bank-note paper makers of the United States; their specialty being the making of paper for government purposes, bonds, certificates, treasury notes and bank bills.

"In 1846, Zenas Marshall Crane was much inclined to inventing methods of improving and raising the art . . . . It occurred to him at that time that the introduction into the fibre of silk threads representing the denomination of bills by their number would prevent counterfiting . . . . . Conservative men discouraged Mr. Crane, so that he did not apply for a patent . . . . Nearly twenty years after . . . . practical men at the head of financial affairs of the nation deemed it expedient to adopt essentially the plan devised by Mr. Crane . . . . An Englishman appeared at Washington with claim as patentee." But Mr. Crane's claim was fully established by some of the home banks which had retained copies of their trial of his design.

Zenas Crane married Nov. 30, 1809, Lucinda, daughter of Gains and Lucretia (Babcock) Brewer, of Wilbraham, Mass., who died May 2, 1872, aged 84 years; he died June 20, 1845. They had

Mr. James Brewer Crane bequeathed $20,000 to the town of Dalton. Mr. Zenas Crane and Mr. W. Murray Crane added an equal sum to this, and caused to be built a Town Hall of blue granite, pressed brick and Longmeadow brownstone, which contains, besides town offices, a museum, a spacious library, to which the Crane family gave "the entire collection of books now in the Crane library, to be catalogued and used by the free public Library," and a beautiful upper hall fitted with stage scenery and accoutrements, while in the basement is a large hall for public purposes.

THOMAS CRANE (Joseph, Thomas, Ebenezer, Henry ) was born at Braintree, Mass., May, 1770. Shortly after his marriage he removed to George's Island in Boston Harbor; an island bought, as valuable for its timber and grazing lands, by James Pemberton, as early as 1632. Its second owner was Samuel Greenleaf, whose daughter Hannah inherited it, and sold it to Elisha Leavitt of Hingham, Mass., in 1765; from him it passed to Caleb Rice, its owner when Thomas Crane took his abode there. On the sea side is a high bluff which was protected by a fine wall before Fort Warren was built upon it. Here Mr. Crane lived with his little family, but, in 1810, bought a farm near his boyhood home on Quincy Point in "Old Fields," lying by Fore river and a stream still known as Crane's Brook.

Like many another New England farm of the period, it was self centered; the house standing aloof from the main travelled road, here a half a mile distant, but lying so in the heart of its acres that the thrifty farmer was in the midst of his fields and woods, and thus saved much wear and tear of body and machinery. Thus advantaged Mr. Crane became a prosperous, successful man; but died before he had completed fifty years of life.

Thomas Crane married Nov. 6, 1796, Sarah, daughter of Daniel and Prudence (Spear) Baxter, who was born at Braintree, 1771, died Aug. 19, 1824; he died Sept. 25, 1818. They had children:

- Mary, b. Oct. 20, 1798; m. Sept. 28, 1813, James Sherburne, Jr., of Quincy, who was b. April 19, 1797, d. Aug. 14, 1833; she d. May 15, 1859.
- JOSEPH, b. Feb. 24, 1801; m. July 2, 1826, Parmelia (Young) Adams, widow of Charles Adams of Quincy, who was b. May 28, 1798; he d. at Bowling Green, Ky., Sept. 21, 1863.

Тномаs, Jr., b. Oct. 18, 1803. Sarah, b. March 12, 1806; d. Aug. 2, 1843. Elizabeth P., b. June 4, 1808; d. Aug. 28, 1836.

CAROLINE BAXTER, b. Dec. 23, 1811; m. Jan. 8, 1833, Bryant B., son of James and Lucy (Baxter) Newcomb, who was b. March 11, 1810, d. May 12, 1857; she is still living at Quincy.

THOMAS CRANE (Thomas, Joseph, Thomas, Ebenezer, Henry), born on George's Island, Oct. 18, 1803, well nurtured by the happy, healthful life at the Island and at Quincy Point, was a sturdy, well developed, resolute lad of fifteen years when his father's death changed the course of the family living. The "district school" had been four miles away from his home; its advantages were but limited.

He supplemented the lessons of its "cyphering school" with ideas of his own, and invented for himself a book of problems which is held by his family; its pages lined with exactness and filled with carefully developed examples.

A change from the active, vigorous, open air life of a farmer's son to any indoor occupation could but be trying to him, and, naturally enough, he, a Quincy boy, saw his road to future fortune lying through the granite quarries, he directly began its foundation by learning the stone cutter's trade. But while his hands were that busied, his mind was striving and searching. Of a deeply religious nature, he wrought out for himself a system of theology which could find its best exposition in the liberal thought of the Universalist creed.

The nearest place where he could hear the discourses that were in sympathy with his conception was the church on School Street, Boston, where Rev. Hosea Ballou weekly stirred his adherents with his hearty, lively enunciation of his humane precepts. This church was some eighteen miles distant, and there was no public conveyance between the two towns at that early period. This did not deter Thomas Crane. Each Sabbath he quietly walked these eighteen miles; then, when the day was ended, had this long distance to cover before he could return to his weekly labors. Small wonder that such a youth should soon find his village home too narrow for his tireless energies. That was quickly outgrown, and an occasion offering, he removed to New York city in 1829, where he immediately began work on stone.

He soon joined an association of his craftsmen, and together they bought a stone-yard. His talents speedily carried him beyond his associates who could not appreciate his advanced ideas, and they made the whole yard over to him, as sole proprietor. As he became known in his profession, large contracts were given to him. He furnished the granite for the 42d Street Distributing Reservoir, the New York Custom House, St. John's Freight Depot, and the Grand Central Depot. This not only interested him in public constructions, but made him familiar with the city. He studied it attentively, and bought lands where he foresaw its spread. This followed as be divined, and his capital increased rapidly, with it his power of development.

But his own advancement was only one motor. The public well-being was his interest too. He became an active and efficient member of the Universalist Church to which Horace Greeley belonged, and Mr. Crane's sympathy with his advanced opinions and outspoken convictions led to a firm friendship between these two strong men. At that time an anti-slavery man was not caressed by society, but Mr. Crane sturdily stated his fullest acceptance of the principles of that party and labored with it resolutely and unflinchingly.

When the Universalists agitated the subject of establishing a college for their own special tenets, he favored the project and gare substantial aid in founding Tufts College at Medford, Mass., accepting the office of Trustee, in which duty he spent much time, thought and money all the rest of his life.

As his clear judgment, sagacity, practical skill, shrewdness and mental strength became known to his fellow citizens, he was sought for in various councils. He was elected in Banks, Street Railways and Insurance Companies, and was an important man in financial circles.

He ever kept a warm interest in his Quincy home, and although he developed a beautiful summer residence at Stamford, Ct., still he was fond of returning to the seashore where his healthful, happy boyhood was spent. In sympathy with this sentiment and in unison with his regard for the highest interests of his fellow-beings, after his decease, his widow and two sons, Benjamin F. and Albert, gave to the town a beautiful library, known as the Crane Memorial Hall. There on the main street it stands, one of Richardson's finest designs, with its smooth, grassed approach, "in itself an education in art," as Mr. Charles Francis Adams so aptly said in his address at its dedication. A beautiful building, with spacious, sunny rooms, illuminated by windows in which are some choice specimens of La Farge's works, where the books are fitly placed that are to be freely used by all who choose to call for them. A most fitting memory of the man who so highly employed all the advantages the homely village afforded his own youth, that the "pot hooks and trammels" of his early teachers became a graceful, flowing, bold writing of his own, and the "simple rule of three" advanced him to the mastery of higher mathematics applied to religious living.

Thomas Crane married 1st, in New York city, in 1832, Sarah S. Munn of Gill (now Greenfield), Mass., who lived but little more than a twelve-month; he married 2d, in Boston, Mass., Nov. 23, 1836, Clarissa Lawrence Starkey, who was born in Troy, N. H., March 3, 1813; he died in New York city, April 1, 1875. They had children:

THOMAS, b. Aug. 21, 1837; d. Jan. 26, 1875.
 BENJAMIN F., b. Feb. 14, 1841; d. Oct. 12, 1889.

vii. Ida Augusta, b. July 2, 1852; d. Aug. 21, 1853.

Albert<sup>7</sup> Crane (Thomas, Thomas, Joseph, Thomas, Ebenezer, Henry), of Rock Acre, Stamford, Fairfield County, Conn., born in New York city, Dec. 30, 1842, was graduated at Tufts College, Medford, Mass., with the degree of A.B. in the Class of 1863; at the Law School of Columbia College, New York city, with the degree of LL.B., and admitted to the New York Bar in 1866.

He married Jan. 24, 1884, Ellen Mansfield, daughter of Col. Mansfield and Martha M. (Brooks) Davies, of Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y. Mrs. Crane died Jan. 5, 1893, leaving no children.

Mr. Crane is a life member of the New York Historical Society, life member of the New York Oratorio Society and of the New-England Society in New York, lately a director of the New York Symphony Society, and resident member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society of Boston, Mass.; and this contribution to a history of the Crane Family has been prepared by his direction and under his personal supervision.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR OF THE REGISTER.

Mrs. Hannah Mather Crocker, author of "Observations on the Real Rights of Woman" and other works, was a daughter of Rev. Samuel and Mrs. Hannah (Hutchinson) Mather, and a granddaughter of Rev. Cotton Mather, author of the "Magnalia." She was born at Boston, June 27, 1752; married April 15, 1789, Joseph Crocker, H. C. 1774, born Feb. 24, 1749, died Nov. 13, 1797. She died at Roxbury, July 10, 1829. Her descent from John¹ Mather of Lancashire is through Thomas, Rev. Richard³ Mather of Dorchester, Rev. Increase, Rev. Cotton, and Rev. Samuel⁵ Mather, her father. She left in manuscript a volume of "Reminiscences and Traditions of Boston," now in the possession of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society. From this volume we quote the following:

"Mr. Richard Mather was born in Lancaster in a small village called Lowton in the year 1596. The family can be traced to John. Thomas was his son, and Richard was son of Thomas.

"The chair in the Antiquarian room [i.e. the rooms of the American Antiquarian Society, Worcester, Mass.] belonged to Thomas. Richard sat in it when a child. He was married in 1624; his children that were born in Europe sat in the chair before he came to this country—Samuel, Timothy, Nathaniel, Joseph The last named sat in it when he brought the chair to America. Eleazer and Increase were born in America. They both sat in the same chair. The chair descended to Increase, and all his children sat in the same. It came in line to Cotton Mather. His children all sat in the same. It descended to his son Samuel, and his children sat in the same chair. His youngest daughter [Hannah, the writer of these notes] was the only child that had any children, and she has had ten children sit in the chair, and several grandchildren.

THE MATHER CHAIR.

Said to have been brought to New England in 1635 by the Rev. Richard Mather.

'As the regular line of Mather has run out, she wished the chair to be desited in the antiquarian rooms with the venerable shades, that those who me after her may look to the rock from whence they were hewn, and find an cient seat to rest any chip of the old block. As she flatters herself, there may some future day a sprig spring from the root Jesse, and the tribe of Levi rem to their rest, when she is at rest in another world."

Rev. Increase Mather, in his "Life and Death of Mr. Richard Mather" (Camdeg, 1670), says: "There is in the Parish of Winwick, the County of Language, 1670).

ster, a small country town or village called Lowton, in which village Richard ather was born, Anno 1596. His parents, Thomas and Margaret Mather, were funcient families in Lowton aforesaid, but by reason of some unhappy mortages they were reduced to a low condition as to the World." He does not give he name of the father of Thomas.

fils son, Rev. Cotton Mather, in his "Parentator: Remarkables of Increase tasher" (Boston, 1724), does not give even the name of the father of Richard. here was a Jeremiah Mather in Boston in 1681, between whom and Rev. schard Mather no connection has been traced. See REGISTER, vol. 36, page 402.

THE ASPINWALL FAMILY OF MUDDY RIVER, NOW BROOKLINE, MASS.

Compiled by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOWEN, Esq., of Woodstock, Ct.

1. Peter Aspinwall came from Toxteth Park, now a part of Liverpool, England, to New England about the year 1630. It is not known whe were his parents. About this time (1630) there was living at Toxteth Park a Mr. Edward Aspinwall, who may have been the father of Peter Aspinwall. Rev. Richard Mather, when he first became a teacher at Toxteth Park, lodged for a time with this Mr. Edward Aspinwall,† and it is more than likely that he there became acquainted with Peter Aspinwall, whether Peter was the son of Edward or not. It is a curious coincidence that three sons of Rev. Mr. Mather and Peter Aspinwall should have had the same names: Samuel, Nathaniel and Eleazer.

For several years after coming to New England Peter Aspinwall lived in Dorchester; and while there, in May 1645, he was made a "freeman"; and, probably while living there, was married to Alice Sharp. An entry in the Parish Register of The First Church of Boston records: "Also o' sister Alice Sharp now y' wife of one Peter Aspinwall of Dorchester had lives of Recomend granted unto her to y' Church at Dorchester." "The 8' day of y' 4th Moneth 1645."

Mr. Lewis Tappan, a son-in-law of Doctor William Aspinwall of Brookline, Mass., wrote in his diary under date February 2, 1818, the substance at Dr. Aspinwall had told him relating to his (Dr. Aspinwall's) a part of which is as follows:

Aspinwall informs me that his ancestors lived in Dorchester before they Brookline. Dr. A. showed me the original deed of the family estate kline. It is given by William Coleborne to Peter Aspinwall, dated 14 (9) It is in the handwriting of William Aspinwall, Recorder or Register of in Boston at that time. One of the witnesses to the deed was Humphrey on, a Major General, and notable character, as appears by an inscription grave stone in Dorchester.

A. built his house (1660) as you go from Dr. A.'s old barn to brick-a the upper corner of the hollow.

William Aspinwall wrote, Sept. 16, 1767, a sketch of his ancestors eir children, from which extracts will be given in their appropriate In this sketch he writes of Peter Aspinwall:

- Morrill and lived with her 16 years without children, when d; and then he married Remember Palfrey.

house which Peter Aspinwall built and lived in is still standing . It is on Aspinwall Avenue, near St. Paul's Church, Brookline, er Aspinwall held several town offices; among them that of Surveyor, the years 1651-2, and 1661-2; and Constable in 1667. He was ted, April 24, 1676, with two other of his townsmen, a committee "preventinge of excessive drinkinge & disorder in private houses"; as elected, 25 March, 1677-8, "to oversee & regulate the ffences the comon ffield at Muddy River."

date of Peter Aspinwall's death is not known. His will is dated 29 aber, 1687; and the inventory of his estate bears date "9 desem" and was filed 20 January, 1691-2; at which time his widow and son

2. Samuel. Aspinwall (Peter1), eldest son of Peter and Remember (Palfrey) Aspinwall, was born in Muddy River, or Brookline, Mass., 10 November, 1662. He was a farmer, and the leading man of his day in town affairs. He was an office holder nearly all his life. He was elected Surveyor in 1690-1. Afterwards he was chosen Constable, Assessor, Fence-Viewer, Tythingman and Selectman—this last office he held at least thirteen years, between 1699 and 1718. He was also elected to view the town's treasurer's accounts; to a committee to make a new pound; to choose a burying place; "to manage the concern or affair of building" a meeting-house; "to seat the meeting-house"; "to treat with Mr James Allin who was chosen to be (our) gospell minister"; and was appointed guardian to orphan minors, etc.

He went as a lieutenant of militia in the expedition against Port Royal in the year 1690, and was present when Sir William Phips took the fort. He was afterwards chosen captain of the Brookline company of militia.

The following extract is from Lewis Tappan's Diary:-

"Some one recollected, and told his grandson, Dr. William Aspinwall of Capt. Sam'l Aspinwall notifying his company, on the public parade in Roxbury, to meet on a certain day to see about building a meeting-house in Brookline. He made the bricks to fill in the old meeting house. When it was taken down Dr. Wm. Aspinwall purchased these bricks, and filled the walls of the west room of his new house with them. Capt. Aspinwall also built the school house which stood on Esq. Sharp's land, nearly opposite the present school house in the lane leading to the Cambridge road.

He was of great strength. There is an anecdote related of him showing the presence and firmness of his mind. At a tavern on Boston Neck there was a lion kept which was tamed for exhibition. Some persons thought they might frighten Capt. Aspinwall with the animal. He had never seen a lion, and was conducted to his apartment, when at the management of his keeper the animal sprang upon him, putting his fore paws upon his breast, making a tremendous roaring. Capt. Aspinwall merely said, 'What is the matter with the beast?'"

This lion was advertised for exhibition in The Boston News Letter, March 31 to April 7, 1718, as follows:

"ALL Persons having the Curiosity of seeing the noble and Royal Beast the Lyon, never one before in America, may see him at the House of Capt. Arthur Savage near Mr. Colman's Church, Boston, before he is transported for London. But to prevent all disputes with the negro at the Gate who constantly attends each Person (whether seen him before or not) is desired to now to the said Negro six pence a piece."

or not) is desired to pay to the said Negro six pence a piece."
"Capt. Aspinwall planted the great elm tree (Aspinwall elm)." "Samuel, the present deacon Clark's great grandfather lived with him at the time, and saw him (S.A.) carry it in his hand and set it out. Clark was then about 10 years old."*

"The New York Aspinwalls proceeded from Samuel Aspinwall's brother Joseph."+

Capt. Aspinwall "married Sarah Stevens, sister to old Capt. Stevens, father to the late Dr. Warren's mother."§

Samuel Aspinwall married, about 1689. Sarah, daughter of Capt. Timothy and Sarah (Davis) Stevens of Roxbury, Mass. She was born 6 March, 1667, and died 1 April, 1710, and was buried in the old Roxbury grave-yard near the graves of her parents.

Samuel Aspinwall was drowned 6 September, 1727. "At his family devotions that morning he read the 27th chapter of Proverbs, beginning with 'Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."

prints the following from a Brookline correspondent:

"On Wednesday last the 6th currant Capt. Samuel Aspinwall of this place and three others went out in a canoe to a place where they might gather oyster shells, and leaving the company was coming to the shore alone in the canoe, but meeting with a paddle that stuck up in the mud he attempted to draw the same out but finding it difficult the tyde being against him, and unawares pitched over the canoe in the water and was drowned. He was seen to rise once and no more and no help could be afforded him . . . . They went to find him that night but could not. The next morning about 8 they found him not far from the place where he was drowned, and on Saturday he was decently interred. The Company he was late Captain of being in arms. He was a man well beloved among us and his death is much lamented by all that knew him."

The children of Capt. Samuel and Sarah (Stevens) Aspinwall, were:

3. Peter Aspinwall (Peter1) was born in Muddy River (Brookline) 4 June, 1664. He "took hold of the Covenant 1684 2 m 5 day." He was one of the first settlers of Woodstock, Conn. He married there, 24 March, 1698-9, Elizabeth, widow of John Leavens of Woodstock.†

"Peter the son of Peter was settled at Woodstock and married a widow with a large number of children, her and her children was Levens they and she always kept him low; he had by her one daughter and she married a Bateman and had a son and several daughters, said Peter was a meek sensible man and a Deacon.";

Peter Aspinwall's wife was not so meek as her husband; for while the wife of John Leavens she was fined for " rayling and Libelling." Peter Aspinwall was a man of note in Woodstock He held various town offices there. He was a scout, appointed to spy out the movements of hostile Indians. A letter of his is on file in the office of the Secretary of State, Boston, Mass., vol. 70, page

After living some years in Woodstock, Peter Aspinwall removed to Killingly, an adjoining town, and there led an active and influential life, as the records of that town and the state bear witness.

There is no record of the date of his death, the settlement of his estate, or the place of his burial. He died, however, after 4 June. 1749.

- 4. NATHANIEL2 ASPINWALL (Peter1) was born in Muddy River, 5 June, 1666. He removed to Woodstock soon after the settlement of that He was married, by the Rev. Nehemiah Walter, 11 November, 1698, to Abigail, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Johnson) Bowen of Roxbury and Woodstock. She was born in Roxbury, and baptized 21 August, 1670. She died in Woodstock, 16 April, 1736. Nathaniel Aspinwall served several terms as a selectman of Woodstock between 1704 and 1709. Dr. William Aspinwall wrote of him: he was "a very careful, sober, good Christian, an Israelite indeed." There is no record of his death. His will is dated Woodstock, 15 February, 1711-12; and the witnesses to it swear to their signatures in Boston, 4 June, 1713.¶ Children:

6. Joseph Aspinwall (Peter ) was born in Muddy River, 9 October, 1673. Dr. William Aspinwall wrote of him, 16 September, 1767, as follows:

"Joseph the son of Peter went to sea before he was of age and at last married at New York, had a vessel of his own and was taken several times and once carried into Port Royal when his brother Samuel was in the army besieging and once to France.

"He was burnt out at Seabrook in the winter where he kept shop. He was put in jail for debt and again went to the sea to the West Indies when he was made Lieutenant of the Queen of Spain which was in a negro trade from Jamaica to Carthagena & Porto Bello. He married a niece of Lord Bellamont. He lived with her while he was in the office of Lieutenant but she died and he came home master of a large ship consigned to M' Farweather; he went off with the vessel again, was put out of business and in about 2 years returned to Brookline to the Farm which belonged to Thomas Aspinwall son of Samuel, son of Peter where he lived many years and there married the widow of Samuel Smith the brother of Nat Smith the miser; he lived with her 5 or 6 years and then died about 70 years of age. Before he was married he lived in Little Cambridge in the house belonging to Mr. Larned nigh Cunningham's country seat. He was of a middling stature, well proportioned and very genteel and something handsome; he was very passionate very gay, facetious, good company and always loose and exceedingly careless of his own and childrens affairs."

On the 13th of July, 1700, he was granted at New York a license to marry Hannah Dean, I and on the 6th of June, 1710, he was made a freeman of the city of New York.**

In December, 1711-12, Capt. Aspinwall rendered an account to the Connecticut Assembly of the charges of Capt. Crane's funeral expenses. They amounted to £19. 11s. and 6d.††

In October, 1712, while living in Saybrook, Joseph Aspinwall petitioned the Connecticut Assembly, praying for an allowance "for a considerable sum in publick bills of credit of this Colony lost by fire some time in Winter last past at Wethersfield."## brother Peter Aspinwall, for £80, eighty-four acres of land lying in Killingly, Conn. He sold it back to his brother 20 December, 1728; and it is more than probable that he never occupied the farm, but bought it on speculation.*

No records of the marriages and death of Joseph Aspinwall, or records of either of his wives have been found; nor records of the births of his children or of their names.

Dr. William Aspinwall wrote that Joseph Aspinwall was "exceedingly careless of his childrens affairs." John Aspinwall, merchant, of New York City, was one of his children, for Dr. Aspinwall said that "the New York Aspinwalls proceeded from Samuel Aspinwall's brother Joseph"; and it seems most probable that Joseph Aspinwall of Dedham and Stoughton, Mass., was another son. Both John and Joseph Aspinwall were Episcopalians, and their father was Episcopalian enough to contribute towards building a steeple on Trinity Church, New York City. Children:

NOTE BY THE EDITOR .- Mr. Bowen, the compiler of this article, has prepared a MS. volume entitled "A Record of the Aspinwall Family of Muddy River, now Brookline, Mass.;" which he has deposited with the New-England Historic Genealogical Society. The record is brought down to the present century. The preceding article is extracted from that volume.

In the "Gleanings" which Mr. Waters contributes to this number of the REGISTER, will be found abstracts of the wills of several English Aspinwalls and their kindred. There is little doubt but that they were related to the Massachusetts immigrants.

PARENTAGE OF REV. NICHOLAS STREET, OF NEW HAVEN, CT.

Communicated by J. HENRY LEA, Esq.

In the opening sentence of the article with this title, in the REGIS-TER for July, 1892, page 257, the writer, by a transposition of dates, makes the statement that Rev. Nicholas Street was matriculated at Oxford, 21 Feb. 1624-5; as a matter of fact this was the date of his passing the degree of B.A., while his matriculation at the age of 18 years was 2 Nov. 1621. These dates are correctly given in the Tabular Pedigree on the opposite page, but the error in the text unfortunately escaped him in reading the proofs.

For the following items he is indebted to his friend Mr. A. J.

TAUNTON DEANE MANOR.

Before the time of Henry VIII. the Rolls of the Manor were kept at Winchester. After this duplicates were kept in the Exchequer at Taunton Castle, where they are now deposited. The earliest records of the Manor are in the possession of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

The Manor of Canon Street belonged to the Priory of Taunton before the dissolution of the monasteries. "The antient estate in Rowbarton near Taunton," referred to subsequently in the Will of Nicholas Streate of Bridgwater, gent., (dated 1 Nov. 1616) formed a portion of this Manor.

THOMAS FRENCH, OF GUILFORD, CT.

Guilford, Conn., July 15, 1890.

Dear Sir:

As you requested last winter, I have had copied all the notes of my grandfather [Hon. Ralph D. Smith] on the family of Thomas French, and have searched the records to see if anything concerning him had been overlooked. I am glad to have been able to be of service.

I am sincerely yours,

To A. D. WELD FRENCH, Boston, Mass.

THOMAS FRENCH was among the earliest settlers of Guilford. His name is not on the plantation covenant. At the commencement of Town Records, vol. A, page I, under date August 14, 1645, is the following record: "Mr. Samuel Disbrow." [Richard Bristow erased.] "Tho: Betts members of ye church" "Thos: French Planter took their oath." Charged agt. John Stone member of ye church ye particulars which he confest.

Savage says: "Thomas French, Charlestown 1638, removed to Guilford 1650 or earlier." He probably came to Guilford about 1643.

VOL. XLVII. 31*

Having no permission to make abstracts, I examined the record of this will and at a later date made a memorandum of its contents, hence the uncertainty. I think also that John Reyner was the father-in-law of John Bachelor of Amesbury, Wilts, who died after 1688 and before Feb. 23, 1590, when his (Bachelor's) will was proved at London. The will can be found at the Principal Probate Registry.

when Mr Whitfield's reasons were tendered to the church here [at Guilford] for his removal and read in public & enquiry made of every man in particular concerning his ability in paying to the ministers for the present and probability to continue according to ordinary Providence. Thomas French said he should be able to continue his present sum & said further he was willing to add 6 S. per annum.

he was willing to add 6 S. per annum.

It is probable that Mr. John Caffinge, when he left Guilford in the latter part of 1643, or beginning of 1644, got Thomas French to occupy his estate at Guilford. Mr. Caffinch sued French, April 1, 1651, at New Haven, for the use of his house, land and cattle at Guilford. Probably French took them when Mr. Caffinch left that place. II. New Haven Col. Rec.

took them when Mr. Caffinch left that place. II. New Haven Col. Rec. At a court Feb. 5, Anno 1651-2. Thomas French was called and admonished for saying in a clamourous & scandalizing way "yt he nor his family were not relieved according to their need—nor yt he could get any corn in the town for pay unless he came and offered them half so much more as it was worth, but when he did so, then they had corn enough for him, otherwise not, wherefore he was forced [to] go out of the town to get corn for his family "—or words to that effect. To which he acknowledged that this was only true of particular persons. The court out of tenderness to his family pass it over, at present, with an admonition, to take more heed to his carriage reports & speeches.

At a court May 3, 1655, he had two suits with John Everts with regard to hoggs, which were eventually arranged.

At a town meeting on ye 23<sup>d</sup> of June 1665 Tho: French propounding in way of Petition to the town to have some relief on account of his daughter who was not wright in her own mind. When the town considered the request, It was put to vote & the vote passed in the negative,—That they did not see themselves engaged either to him or his & therefore did expect he shd. be returned to the place whence he came.

And at a Town Meeting August 21, 1665. The town being informed yt notwithstanding Thomas French had been denied entertainment or admittance into this town either for himself or his daughter—yet he had hired lands of Benjn, Wright to settle on,—They did agree by vote as a prevention of him yt whosoever did any longer entertain either of them should give in sufficient security that they should be no damage to the town.

These votes are now inexplicable. Thomas French had been a planter for 20 years, had owned lands in the town, and was a man of property. This Thos. French was probably another man, or else the daughter was married to another man.

A Terryer of the lands belonging to Thomas French in Guilford as fol-lowith viz. I Prop. R. fol. 19.

Imps. One Home lot containing three acres & a halfe, more or less so allowed ffronting up to the Green by the Pound running back to the land of William Chittenden on the west, along by the rears of the Home lots of Edward Benton, Jaiob Sheaffe & in part of Will<sup>m</sup> Chittenden on the north the Home lots of Henry Goldam on the south. About 1650 he sold this lot to Thomas Stevens, son of John Stevens, and bought the homelot of Henry Dowde in Crooked Lane, described as follows, I. Prop. R. fol. 7.

Imps. One Home lot fronting to the street on the East & rearing back to the Home lot of John Stevens, bounded on the South with the home lot of John Mepham & on the North with the Home lot of Thomas Norton [then of John Norton & William Seward, Thomas dying in 1648] allowed for 2 acres more or less.

This last lot had been sold by Henry Dowde to Samuel Blachley about 7 who sold it to Thomas French who sold it to William Boreman about 6. Boreman died 1661, and his representatives sold it to Nathan Bradabout 1663, and Bradley sold it to John Chittenden May 20, 1667. I. Prop. Rec. fol. 19.

Thomas French hath sold and alienated all his houseing and house lot ch he bought of Samuel Blachley as abovesaid unto William Boreman"

Prop. Rec. fol. 14.

William Boreman hath with consent of ye Court bought all Thomas nech his houseing and house lot which was late Samuel Blachleys" &

lenry Dowde & William Seward & Nathan Bradley (who had bought whole estate of William Boreman, deceased) have sold and alienated house & home lot containing about 2 acres unto Nathan Bradley of Guil-Jan. 18, 1663, who sold it to John Chittenden as stated above May 1667.

The following entry is on the last page of I. Prop. R. fol. last Feb. 14. Thomas French & William Boreman entered an alienation upon an hange made betwixt them viz. The said French hath given & granted xchange all his rights in the upland and meadow to be divided at Athamassock unto the said William Boreman & his heirs etc for & in contration of the said Boremans now home lot with all his land there adjoint to the said Thomas French & his heirs forever.

tem one Home lot bought of Samuel Blachley late the lands of Henry wde lying next the house lot of John Norton on the North & containing n a Town meeting February 11th 1673. Thomas French desiring that son in law John Dudley might be accepted as a planter upon Thomas such engaging to give him 20 acres of land. The Town accepted John dley to be a planter.

FRENCHES OF IPSWICH.

Communicated by A. D. WELD FRENCH, Esq., of Boston, Mass.

THE following is an extract from a letter of John Bluette (who had been steward of Groton Manor, of which Gov. Winthrop was lord) to John Winthrop, Jr., of New England, dated Groton, March 4, 1632-3, and printed in the Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, 5th Series, Vol. I. pp. 199-200.

"My louinge comendations to John Sampford, goodman Pease & his company and to Anne Chambers, John Biggs, my schollars Thomas French and John Clarke."

Thomas French referred to is supposed to be the same as found anterior to the above date in the records of the First Church of Boston, where it appears between the name of John Winthrop and that of his wife. Thomas French was recorded a freeman on Nov. 6, 1632. The records of the First Church of Boston show that he had a daughter Mary, born 1631-2; she must have died soon after, as he had another daughter of the same christian name born in 1634, and from the fact that this christian name is perpetuated, it may indicate that the name of his wife was Mary. He removed to Ipswich in 1634, and in 1638 he was dismissed from the Boston Church to that of Ipswich, and he died before Nov. 5, 1639, as appears by another record, wherein it is stated that "The administration of the goods of Thomas French deceased is committed to his wife (a widow French appears in 1641 as commoner at Ipswich) and the land which he left is to be disposed for sale or otherwise by the advice of the Magistrates of Ipswich for the maintenance of his wife and education of his children, which are not yet get able w provide for themselves nor were disposed of in their Fathers life.'

The above record indicates that he had provided for some of his children. The name of Thomas French, Jr. appears in 1638, and again as commonst in 1641; he died in 1680.

Alice French, an early member of the Church of Boston, became the wife of Thomas Howlett. She was dismissed from the Boston Church to that of Ipswich, June 16, 1644. Alice Howlett, wife of Thomas Howlett, is mentioned in the will of John Robinson of Ipswich in 1657. There seems to have been two Mary Frenches, both married, but whose husbands' name are not mentioned. One was a sister of John Hanniford, who mentions her in his will of 1567 as follows: children of his sister Mary French-Another is found in the Visitation of Gloucester. By this Pedigree, William Scudamore of Herefordshire had a daughter Mary, wife of French of Boston in New England, no christian name being given. This pedigree states, that this son died circa 1637, aged about 40. So that the age of this Mary French must have been within a few years of that of her brother. William Scudamore's will was proved at London in 1636. In it he makes a bequest of five pounds each "to all the now children of Mary French his sister," but no reference is made to New England.

REPLIES.

KINGSLEY (ante, p. 215).—It is probable that the John Kingsley who married in Windham, Conn., Feb. 19, 1755, Mary Burnap, was the son of Amos and Ruth (Adams) Kingsley, of Windham, who were married Jan. 12, 1723, and had ten children as follows: 1, Amos; 2, Isaiah, b. June 11, 1725; 3, Nathaniel, b. 1726; 4, John; 5, Samuel; 6, Joseph; 7, Eliza; 8, Alice; 9, Abiah; 10, Ruth.

The Kingsley line is as follows: John,1 of Dorchester, Mass. and Taunton, Mass. He was in Dorchester in 1635, and he died in Rehoboth, Mass. His wife's name is not known. He was Nor John Kingsley of Milton, whose wife was a Daniels, though often confused with said John of Milton.

Rev. Edward D. Neill, D.D., of St. Paul, Minn., who has thrown much light on the Washington pedigree, brings this article to the attention of the readers of the New York Nation in a communication to that paper of the 18th of May ast, and shows the value of the documents, particularly as bearing upon Mr.

NECROLOGY OF THE NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

Prepared by the Historiographer, Rev. EZHA HOYT BYINGTON, D.D., of Newton, Mass.

THE sketches of deceased members prepared for the REGISTER are of necessity brief, because the space that can be appropriated is quite limited. All the materials for more extended memoirs which can be gathered are preserved in the archives of the Society, and they will be available for use n preparing the "Memorial Biographies," of which four volumes have been issued and a fifth volume is in press. The income from the Towne Memorial Fund is devoted to the publication of these volumes.

JOSEPH HENRY STICKNEY, a prominent and successful merchant, died at his home in Baltimore, Maryland, May 3, 1893. He was the son of Thomas and Mary (Ward) Stickney, and was born in West Brookfield, Mass., August 6, 1811. His father died in Boston in 1814, and was buried in the Coleman tomb in King's Chapel burial ground. The families of Stickney and Ward were both of the best New-England stock, and they have each furnished a number of eminent and useful men.

William Stickney and his wife Elizabeth were members of the First Church in Boston in 1638. Mr. J. H. Stickney believed that they came from the parish of Stickney, in Lincolnshire, England. Mr. Savage thinks they came from Hull, in Yorkshire, in 1637.* The family seems to have been well known in Lincolnshire, and the name is found in several parish registers. In the time of Edward III., John de Stickney paid taxes in old Boston.

William Ward, the maternal ancestor of Mr. Stickney, came to New England before 1639. In the records of the First Church in Boston, it is written that "William Stickney was dismissed ye 24th day of ye 9th Month of 1639 to ye gathering of a Church in Rowley, if ye Lord so please." The family lived in Rowley for a number of generations. It is related that the first William Stickbey brought with him from England a quarto Bible of the authorized version This Bible is now in the possession of one of his descendants in Bradford, Mass.

Joseph Henry Stickney was of the seventh generation from the earliest of the mame in New England. He left Hopkins Academy in Hadley to enter upon a business life when he was about twenty years of age. After a year spent in Boston as an apprentice, and a year in New York, he went to Baltimore in 1834, and entered into business as a commission merchant. For almost sixty years he was connected with the business of the monumental city. He was a stannch New-England man in a southern city. The fact that he lived outside New England may have developed his interest in the history and the institutions of the state of his nativity. Some years ago he prepared and published a pamphlet entitled "The Township System, with a Consideration of its Advantages." As many as five thousand copies were distributed by him in sections of the country where the township system was not understood. He also published pamphlets relating to the colonial period of New-England history. He succeeded in establishing in Baltimore a New-England church, after the faith and polity of the Puritans. For many years he furnished from his own means a large part of the money for its support. He was one of the generous and regular contributors to the various monuments to the Pilgrims. It has been his custom for many years to make an annual visit to Plymouth, and it was by his advice and pecuniary aid, in a large degree, that so much has been done to gather and preserve the memorials of the fathers of New England. He was much interested in the special work of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and in March. 1882, he was elected a corresponding member.

His estate was valued at $461,000. Of this sum $243,000 was bequeathed to a number of religious societies whose work lies within our own country. Among his other bequests was one of $1,000 to this Society; to the town of West Brookfield, for a library and bank, $4,500; to the town of Rowley $2,000 for the same purpose; for a column on Clark's Island, where the party from the Mayflower spent the first Sabbath, $4,000; for the purchase of land, and the extension of Coleshill, Plymouth, to Leyden St., $21,000; for the erection of a granite shaft to those of the Pilgrim fathers who died during the first winter, $12,000; to improve Burial Hill, $10,000; to improve the lot on which the moment to the Pilgrims is erected, $3,000; for the maintenance of Pilgrim Hall. Plymouth (the income only to be used), $10,000; and for grading and enclose.

ing the Standish monument, $4,000.

Mr. Stickney was never married.

George Chandler, A.B., M.D., died at his home in Worcester, May 17, 1893, at the ripe age of eighty-seven years. He was elected a resident member of this Society Dec. I, 1858. He was a native of Pomfret, Conn., where he was hom April 28, 1806. He was the son of Major John Wilkes and Mary (Stedman) Chandler. Major Chandler was a descendant of the fifth generation from William and Annis Chandler, who came to Roxbury in 1637. The records speak of Annis Chandler as a "blessed saint."

The father of Dr. Chandler was a well-to-do farmer, and his son remained at home until his seventeenth year, when he became a student in the academy in Dudley, Mass. We hear of him later in the academy in Leicester, Mass., and at Woodstock, Conn. He entered Brown University in 1826. Two years later he entered Union College, where he was graduated in the class of 1829. He received his medical degree from Yale College in 1831.

Immediately after receiving his degree he began the practice of medicine in the city of Worcester. The larger part of his professional life was devoted to the care of the insane, first at the State Lunatic Hospital in Worcester, when he was the assistant of Dr. S. B. Woodward from 1833 to 1842. In 1842 he was appointed superintendent of the State Lunatic Asylum in Concord. New Hampshire. In 1846 he was re-called to Worcester, to succeed Dr. Woodward as superintendent of the State Lunatic Hospital. He was at the head of this hospital for ten years. He devoted twenty-five years of his life to the care of the insane. His careful discrimination of the symptons of his patients, as well as his entire self-control, and his gentle and sympathetic dealing with them made him one of the most successful physicians with this class of patients.

He retired from professional service at a comparatively early age, and devoted the remainder of his long life to travel and to historical and literary pursuits. He made two extended trips to Europe, and the East, each of which kept from home about two years.

Dr. Chandler was a member of the American Antiquarian Society, and of Massachusetts Medical Society. In 1859 he was one of the representatives y of Worcester in the General Court. In 1862 he responded to the call unteer surgeons, and went to Fortress Munroe, where he did good ser-stories of the early settlement. These stories and whatever genealogical memoranda he could glean he collected and committed to writing while the aged people yet lived; and during his life evidently he kept adding to his store of information until 1871, when many of the townspeople, becoming aware of the valuable manuscripts which he had collected, took action, and at a town-meeting the sum of five-hundred dollars was appropriated to secure the publication of a history of Shirley. The compiler set at work immediately, and in a few months had completed the historical part of the work, which was what the town contenplated. But Mr. Chandler decided that a genealogical history also should be prepared, and this, with his other duties, delayed the completion of the work until 1883, when a fine volume of some seven-hundred and fifty pages was published. This volume will remain as a monument of the foresight, diligence and ability of the author forever. Besides this, Mr. Chandler's published works were few. "A Funeral Sermon upon the death of Stillman S. H. Parker preached February 1, 1841." Miscellaneous articles in newspapers, and six school reports. Neither Mr. Chandler's influence nor character can be adequately written here or elsewhere; it cannot be put into words. "During the two years that I supplied the pulpit at Shirley I formed an intimate acquaintance with Mr. Chandler, and became deeply interested in the man, and his long years of labor which were then drawing to a close. I esteemed a rare privilege to come into personal contact with one who represented, as he did, that old-time, unambitious, faithful devotion, which distinguished the life of many of the ministers of the past generation in our New England county parishes. The large library which Mr. Chandler had gathered and the extent of his information, especially upon historical subjects, proved him to have been a diligent student. He had not much sympathy with the modern, scientific view of the universe. His thought and language were moulded in forms familiar to an earlier generation. He had, however, a kindly interest in the younger men in the ministry, and was tolerant of the new views which most of them held, as he knew. His life and his ministry were both eminently practical; and both by example and precept he aimed to inculcate those homely virtues of industry, sobriety and purity of life which are our inheritance from our Purlam ancestry. With a small salary, never much in advance of that with which he began in 1834, he was content to live and labor in the one chosen field, putting his best into his work, satisfied if he could serve, even in a small way, the Master whom he loved and tried to follow."

The writer of the above was Rev. L. B. Macdonald, now of Boston. Mr. Chandler lived in a quiet pastoral way in the midst of his people in the beautiful village. He cultivated his own farm and garden, and loved his rural pursuits and surroundings.

Mr. Chandler married, August 16, 1631, Arvilla Tenney, who was the daughter of Joseph Tenney of New Ipswich, N.H., where she was born July 18, 1807. She was an estimable lady, and a "worthy helpmeet of a worthy minister." Mrs. Chandler died several years before her husband. No children were ever born to them.

Mr. Chandler was elected a corresponding member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society Sept. 3, 1845. He died at Shirley, October 4, 1889.

He married first, Susan Cotter, and second, in 1840, Catherine C. Glidden, hose death occurred about three years since. He had four daughters and three cas. John M. Glidden, the only surviving son, resides at the old home "Gladis-m" in Newcastle, Me.

Mr. Glidden was greatly interested in genealogy, and when in England spent arch time in tracing the lineage of the family, and in visiting scenes once uniliar to his ancestors, especially the "Glidden" at Hambleden, Hampshire, here is still standing the old manor house built in the style of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

He was elected a member of this Society June 1, 1870, the subsequent year scoming a life member. He was also a member of the Maine Historical ociety, Virginia Historical Society, Boston Marine Society, Pine Tree State lub, Union Club of Boston, and other kindred organizations.

In his native town he endowed a Protestant Episcopal church which was built pon land originally granted to his ancestors when they moved to Maine in 1750. He was a man of kindly nature, courteous bearing and fine appearance, and s resemblance to Mr. Gladstone has been frequently remarked during the last tirty years. He was considered "the soul of honor, loyal to his country and his friends," and was thoroughly respected by all who knew him, and especity appreciated by the hosts of friends with whom he was associated in his is liness career and in social life.

BENJAMIN HOMER HALL, a corresponding member of the New-England Hisric Genealogical Society, elected March 6, 1861, and a prominent and highly spected citizen of Troy, N. Y., died in that city, April 6, 1893. Mr. Hall was son of Daniel Hall, a native of Westminster, Vermont, and Anjinette Fitch of W York, who was a lineal descendant of Thomas Fitch, one of the last of the olonial Governors of Connecticut. John Hall, the founder of the family in is country, came from Coventry, England, and settled in Charlestown, Mass., 1630; and Lot Hall, the grandfather of the deceased, distinguished himself as a entenant in the privateer service of the colonial navy during the Revolutionary ar, was captured, and imprisoned in Glasgow. After his return to this untry he settled in Westminster, Vermont, where he practised law, and be-me a Justice of the Supreme Court of that State. Benjamin's father, Daniel, ent to Troy in 1806, and studied law in the office of William M. Bliss, having nong his fellow students William L. Marcy, afterwards United States Senator of Governor of New York. His son, Benjamin Homer Hall, was born in Troy, ov. 14, 1830. He received his early education in private schools in that city, id was prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., entering arvard in 1847 and graduating in the Class of 1851. While a student at Camidge he published a work entitled "A Collection of College Words and Cusms," of which a revised edition was called for a few years later. After his aduation he spent some time at the family home in Westminster, and in 1858 published "A History of Eastern Vermont from its Earliest Settlement to e Close of the Eighteenth Century," an octavo volume of 799 pages, of which e Rev. Andrew P. Peabody says, in the North America Review for July, in at year: "The author sustains himself throughout with unflagging spirit, and s book will be read with unwearying interest." In 1860 he contributed an haustive article on Vermont to the Bibliography of that state, and in 65 he edited "A Tribute by the Citizens of Troy to Abraham Lincoln." a was editor and proprietor of the Troy Whig for several years, and was a equent contributor to the Troy Times. Indeed, throughout his life he remed his interest in literary pursuits, delivering addresses, both in prose and verse, on various occasions, in his native city.

Mr. Hall studied law, and was admitted to the Rensselaer County bar in 1856. 1858 he was appointed city clerk, which office he held for one year. In 1874 was appointed chamberlain of the city, and served in that capacity till his mexpired in 1877; and again, in 1884, he was appointed chamberlain and rved till May, 1888. He was at one time a Director in the Vermont Central director, and also a Director in the old Bank of Troy, now the United National Bank; and for many years he was one of the leading spirits in the Young Men

Association, of which he was the president in 1859.

Mr. Hall, though not celebrated as an advocate, is said to have ranked high an office lawyer, and he held some very important trusts. "The perplexities of his legal profession," says a writer in the Troy Daily Express, "did not do the fine points of his literary culture, nor lessen his love for study. His char acter was pure, upright, and unsullied in every particular, and he emphasize with pronounced force, in his own career, the character of a Christia gentleman."

Mr. Hall married, June 1, 1859, Margaret M. Lane, a daughter of Jacob I

Lane, who, with two sons and two daughters, survives him.

WILLIAM LEE, M. D., was elected a resident member Nov. 7, 1883. He was born in Boston, March 12, 1841, and was the son of William Barlow Lee an Ann (Whitman) Lee. His early education was in private academies in Boston From 1858 to 1860 he was attached as civil assistant to a corps of United State Topographical Engineers, and in this service was, in 1859, one of the first part of white men who crossed the great American desert from Salt Lake City Genoa, Nevada, south of the sink of the Humboldt. In April, 1861, when th Massachusetts troops passed through Baltimore, their wounded were taken t the then Washington Infirmary, later the Judiciary Square Hospital. Her Dr. Lee, whose home was now in Washington, was one of the first to voluntee to dress and care for their wounds, and continued in this service for six month as acting medical cadet of the United States Army. He received the degree of M. D. from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York in 1863, an was resident physician at Bellevue Hospital from 1863 to 1865. Soon after thi he established himself in the practice of medicine in Washington. In 1872 became professor of Physiology in the medical department of Columbia University in Washington, and filled that chair with signal ability for more than twenty years, to the time of his death. He was associate editor of the Nation Medical Journal in 1872, and in 1883 was associate editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association. He married, April 9, 1885, Mary Augusta Gadsby of Washington.

Dr. Lee was president (1892-93) of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, and was a member of the Philosophical, Anthropological and Blological Societies of the District, also of the Medical Association of the District and of the American Public Health Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Archæological and Numismatic Society. He was also connected with the Cosmos and other clubs in Wash-Besides several pamphlets and contributions to medical publications he published in 1888 a volume of 499 pages, entitled "John Leigh of Agawam (Ipswich), Mass., 1634-1671, and his Descendants of the name of Lee."

Dr. Lee died in Washington, March 2, 1893, and his body was cremated at Loudon Park, Baltimore. He left a widow but no children. By the Rev. George M. Adams, D.D., of Auburndale, Mass.

EDWARD CHASE WILSON, elected a member of this Society February 1, 1865; died in Brookline, Mass., April 19, 1893. He was the son of John and Sarah (Chase) Wilson, and was born in Dover, N. H., Feb. 19, 1815. Mr. Wilson was descended from Michael Wilson, born May 4, 1721, whose son Miles, born June 7, 1765, was the father of John above named, who was born in York, Malae, June 18, 1791.

The family removed from Dover, N. H. to Brunswick, Maine, and thence to South Berwick, where at a very early age Mr. Wilson commenced his business life. About the year 1840 he removed to Springfield, Mass., where, although but twenty-five years old, he opened the largest dry goods store then to be found in the western part of the state. Relinquishing this business in 1849, he removed to Boston, where he found a wider scope for his business activity, and became a member of the firm of Turner, Wilson & Co., wholesale dealers in dry goods, subsequently Wilson, Hamilton & Co. In 1866 he retired from active business life. For over forty years his home was in Brookline, although he travelled extensively in Europe a portion of the time.

Mr. Wilson was a man of integrity, unusual sagacity, of quick perception and excellent judgment, all contributing to his marked success in business life and to the esteem in which he was held by his associates. Although he did not have the opportunity to obtain a liberal education, he kept well informed in all matters. He read, observed and reflected, and thus acquired a large store of information and a well-trained mind. A quick insight into the relations of things also gave weight to his opinions upon any subject. The cause of education found in him a ready support, and to all forms of benevolent effort he was a judicious and liberal contributor.

To the end of his long life he maintained his interest in the current events of the day, political, social and religious. He was closely identified with the interests of the Baptist denomination while in South Berwick, Springfield and Brookline, and it has been said of him, that "the peculiar traits of mind, the foresight, energy, perseverance and intimate knowledge of men, which crowned with success almost every effort in his business career, were, from first to last, devoted to the interests of the church he had chosen as his spiritual home."

He married in South Berwick, June 15, 1841, Emmeline Griggs of Brookline, by whom he had four daughters and one son, William G. Wilson, now residing in New York.

By Francis E. Blake, Esq., of Boston.

Rowland Ellis was elected a resident member Nov. 5, 1884. He was born in Boston, Nov. 26, 1807, and was the son of Joshua and Sarah (Lewis) Ellis. His education was in private schools in Boston and in the Boston High School, which he entered at its opening, May 1, 1821. The most of his life was passed in the city of his birth, which he served in various capacities,—on the old Primary School Board, in the City Council, and as one of her Representatives in the Legislature.

Mr. Ellis had an unusually retentive memory of persons and places. He was authority on all subjects relating to historic Boston. He lived many years on Hanover Street, and knew every street and alley at the "Old North End," and could tell the history of every family that had made its permanent home there during the century, and point out the exact location of every historic building. When a boy he attended the same church as Paul Revere, and could accurately describe him as he used to stride up the church aisle.

Mr. Ellis married in Boston, Oct. 30, 1831, Eliza Ann Coburn (daughter of Thomas). The children of this marriage were Eliza Ann Coburn, Sarah Frances, Anna Cornelia, Martha Josephine and Adelaide Louisa. His second marriage was at Pepperell, Mass., Aug. 16, 1849, with Harriet Green (daughter of John). She died, leaving no children. Mr. Ellis died at Newton Centre, Mass., Feb. 16, 1893, leaving two daughters.

BOOK NOTICES.

The History and Genealogies of Ancient Windsor, Connecticut; including East Windsor, South Windsor, Bloomfield, Windsor Locks and Ellington. By Henry R. Stiles, A.M., M.D. Hartford, Conn.: Press of the Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company. 1893. Two volumes, royal 8vo.; Vol. I., pp. 950; Vol. II., pp. 867. Price, 820.00. To be obtained of Miss Ruth T. Sperry, East Windsor Hill, Ct., to whom correspondence should be addressed as the author is absent from the United States.

Of these two volumes the first contains the history, and the second the gencalogies, of the ancient town of Windsor. The two are an enlargement and revision of the History of Windsor by the same author, issued in 1859, and a genealogical supplement, published in 1863. The genealogical record then presented comprised 334 pages; it is now expanded to 867 pages. This fact, as remarked by the author in the preface to Vol. 2, certifies to a notable increase of interest in this branch of inquiry, on the part of readers, within the period indicated. He says, "In 1859 but two town genealogies of considerable magnitude had been published, Bond's of Watertown, Mass., and Cothren's of Woodbury, Conn. At that time I found but few who sufficiently appreciated the nature and value of my labors to assist in perfecting them. In the preparation of my present edition I have almost suffered from a plethora of material. Since the issue of the original History more than thirty genealogies of original Windsor families, some of them being works of great extent and value, have appeared, and fully as large a number are now in active preparation. From these, both in print and in manuscript, this revision has received much incidental help." It may be predicted, accordingly, that the two volumes now issued will have a substantially equal interest to readers identified by ancestry or residence with

The field, both as respects territory and the number of topics touched upon or elaborated, is considerably larger in the present than it was in the original History. The towns on the east side of the Connecticut river which have been cut out from the original Windsor township, viz., East Windsor, South Windsor and Ellington, are here more amply discoursed upon. The same remark is applicable to the modern towns of Windsor Locks and Bloomfield, on the west side of the river, which have been in like manner set off, while, as to old Windsor Centre itself, whatever the zealous study of thirty years has brought to light has been made available for expansion, correction or more perspicuous restatement. The call for a new edition had its origin in part from what that study has yielded of truth and fact, old indeed in one sense, but new in another, and vital to the purposes of the historian. Moreover, the original volume has long been out of print, and a new generation of would-be readers has grown up. The new work has accordingly been published upon the commercial basis of a given number of copies subscribed for in advance, and was thus assured of a welcome before its arrival. Others, outnumbering the list of subscribers, however long that may be, stand ready to take off their hats in salutation as it shall appear before them.

The work appeals primarily, of course, to such readers as are identified by ancestry or residence with the place. But it is Windsor's good fortune in New England history to be among those marked as extraordinary and not in the roll of common towns, making its record to be one of special interest to readers without the border. It was settled in 1635 by Massachusetts men, and wis recognized for a time as being within the jurisdiction of that colony. A party of Plymouth colony men had already established themselves there when the Massachusetts explorers arrived. A controversy ensued, in which the magistrates of the two colonies eventually took part, and thereupon was "much ado," as the History minutely relates. Simultaneously with the appearance of the Massachusetts men arrived the advance guard of other claimants of the teritory, certain "lords and gentlemen" of England, who would fain have ousted both parties. Besides these was a party of Dutch traders, who claimed for their principals everything thereabouts within an eagle's sight, if not within an eagle's flight. The issue of it all was that the Massachusetts men (who were chiefly from Dorchester) acquired by occupation and by purchase, partly from the Plymouth people and partly from the Indians, all the desired territory, excepting about 43 acres, which lot was reserved by Plymouth and sold to Hartford man, under whose title it came into the jurisdiction of Windsor. The English lords and the Dutch were otherwise disposed of as the narrative shows. The possessors called their settlement at first, "Dorchester," but in 1637 the authorities of Connecticut changed the name to Windsor, "undoubtedly," as the History says, "in honor of Windsor, the royal abode of the English sovereigns." Although it is a mooted point, the History gives Windsor rank as the first settlement on the river, relying partly, and perhaps chiefly, on the nearly contemporary manuscript of Samuel Maverick, recently discovered by Mr. E.

Considerable discussion has been had in Massachusetts at various times by historians and others as to Windsor affairs of early date, the questions in brief being: Did the Dorchester people behave well or ill towards the Plym people, in taking possession of lands on the Connecticut river? Did the chester church, as an institution, go to Connecticut, so that for some mot

Dorchester in Massachusetts had no church? The facts and documentary evidence discovered down to date, or all which are of importance, bearing on these questions, are in detail or in substance set forth in the History, with candor and frankness, so that it seems not too much to say that each case is here adequately made up, leaving free scope for the "consensus of opinion" by its slow methods to pass final judgment. A full consideration of the church question requires, however, that the preface to the printed volume of Dorchester First Church records be read.

It would be impossible to give within reasonable space a proper synopsis of the History. In one view it is not a book but a library of books, treating upon diverse though correlated subjects. Something appears of the ecclesiastical history of the original and each of the later parishes of the old town; of Windsor's action in the Indian wars, especially that with the Pequods, the French war, the war of the Revolution, that of 1812, the Mexican war and the Civil war, with very full lists of the soldiers in several instances; something concerning the public schools of different periods, of business growths and prosperities, of topography, of the notable men of the several generations, of times and manners as illustrated by anecdotes, and of the lore of epitaphs.

Every page gives evidence that diligence and enthusiasm have attended the preparation of the work. Dr. Stiles is the author, but he has had numerous helpers, to whom, severally, in his preface, he makes due acknowledgement. To the principal and eldest of these he pays this graceful tribute: "I esteem it a most fortunate circumstance that the same kindly Providence which has spared my life and health, so that I might, at this time, revise and perfect the work of my youthful years, has also spared that of my venerable and beloved friend, Mr. Jabez H. Hayden, of Windsor Locks, Conn., to whom was due so much of the value of the first edition. Nature certainly designed him as the historian of his native town, but the multiplicity of his business cares, conjoined with his modesty, has prevented him from forestalling me, as by right he should have done, in this historical work. I have only to thank him for the help which he has rendered, as earnestly and freely to this revision, as he did to the original work." Elsewhere the author refers to Mr. Hayden as "the highest living authority on Windsor historical matters." All this being so, it sufficiently attests Dr. Stiles's skill and fidelity that Mr. Hayden preferred to let things begin and proceed as they have done. It will be a hypercritical reader who will express anything less than satisfaction and praise for the work as it comes from Dr. Stiles's hand. The first volume contains 42 illustrations, views, portraits, maps, etc., and 25 fac-simile autographs; the second has 61 like illustrations, one fac-simile military commission.

An Account of the Celebration of the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the Second Society of Universalists, December 18, 1892; also of The Proceedings of the Parish Social Banquet, Jan. 26, 1893. Boston Universalist Publishing House. 1893. 8vo., pp. 129.

This volume, printed at the University Press, is a creditable book in every particular. Paper and type are agreeable to the eye, and the contents are interesting and have decided historic value. The occasions of which it is the record were evidently arranged in a thoughtful and thorough manner, with a realization of their importance and significance.

The morning service of December 18th was given to an historical sermon by A. A. Miner, D.D., who for forty-four years had been pastor. It is a remarkable fact, that the entire period of seventy-five years is practically covered by two pastorates: Hosea Ballou being pastor from 1817 to 1852, and A. A. Miner, D.D., from 1848 to 1892. There were indeed two attempts to find colleagues for Hosea Ballou, neither of which resulted in fixed and permanent relations; It is true also that E. H. Chapin, D.D., the eloquent orator who for so many years made his pulpit in New York a centre of influence and power, was for two years associate pastor; but he resigned to enter upon his New York settlement, while Hosea Ballou lived and retained his connection with the parish. Dr. Miner's settlement, therefore, laps over that of Hosea Ballou, and the two set-nents fill out the seventy-five years, a fact creditable alike to pastors and pple. This fact gives the sermon a special interest and importance: for it ikes it the personal record of one whose life largely entered into the period which he is historian.

First,—An Estimate of Hosea Ballou, by Rev. O. Cone, D.D., President of Buctel College.

Second,—Review of seventy-five years, by I. M. Atwood, D.D., President of the Theological School, Canton, N. Y.

College Divinity School.

Dr. Cone's estimate of Hosea Ballou is marked by thoroughness of investigation, judicial discrimination and accuracy of statement. It is cool, dispassionate and authoritative, and will take high rank as an historical and biographical study. Dr. Atwood's writing has a distinct literary flavor and a bright and sparkling quality, which in less serious vein would amuse by its wit, but which, with the proper restraint which the Doctor generally observes, is effective, entertaining, while at the same time instructive. Dr. Leonard's essay is fine in spirit, apostolic in tone, and full of that wisdom which comes from long experience as pastor and teacher. In construction it is a model of conciseness and logical sequence. It could be studied with profit by every society in the Protestant church, without regard to sect.

The social banquet which completed the celebration added a series of seven addresses, excellent in presentation of parish affairs and duties, but with the exception of the response for Hosea Ballou by his grandson, they had to do with the present and the future.

It will be seen that the interest of the anniversary centres largely in the work and influence of the first pastor; and that in the series of services we have three different estimates of his character and life labors,—the first by his associate, Dr. Miner, who gives us the historical facts; the second by his grandson, who opens to us the loving and personal estimate of a daughter; and the third, the judgment of an historian, who, three generations removed, has as a student investigated the environment of the man, analyzed his record, and established his standing and influence.

When the history of New-England theology is impartially written, Hossa Ballou will occupy a prominent position as an influence and power in its reconstruction.

One hundred years ago the sombre creed of John Calvin dominated this region. Under its shadow Ballou was born; his father a poor country parson who accepted and preached its terrors. Hosea Ballou had hardly arrived at manhood when his study of the Bible opened to him a milder and gentler faith. God, in place of a stern judge, became to him a loving father, and soon he realized the necessary conclusion that the absolute rule of a good God must necessarily result in the salvation of all his children. Full of enthusiasm and faith, he boldly attacked the foundations of orthodoxy, challenging its premises and denying its conclusions. His personality was strong, his voice was winning, his logic was direct and masterly, his illustrations apt and forcible, his eloquence captivating; wherever he went he made friends; whenever he preached he made converts, for he appealed with power to the hearts of the people.

It is remarkable also that while young Ballou united with the Universalists, "he seems to have meditated upon the principle of central importance in every system of Christian theology, and stood almost alone in holding opinions alverse to the doctrines of the Trinity, vicarious atonement and original reprobation. The fundamental Unitarian doctrines were elaborated by this solitary young thinker from a study of the Bible alone, and to some of them he gave as definite and radical an expression as Channing and his school afterwards

What a change in the attitude of New-England Protestantism the century has wrought. Not only has Ballou's own church grown in numbers and influence, but at the same time the fundamental principles which he promulgated have overstepped the boundaries of sect, and are recognized by Unitarians, liberal Othodox and broad-church Episcopalians in the interpretation of their respective creeds. God's love is preached oftener than God's hate; and the worth of divine favor and a world-wide redemption season more sermons than theories of endless woe and unpardonable sin. The Puritan disciple of Calvin has given place to a gentler student of the gospel, who is content to trust more to scriptures and less to the grim theologian of Geneva. In effecting this chart Hosea Ballon, first pastor of the Second Universalist Church of Boston, has prominent and influential part under the guidance of the good God.

ort on the Custody and Condition of the Public Records in the Parishes, and Counties. By ROBERT T. SWAN, Commissioner. Boston: Wright Printing Co., State Printers. 1893. 8vo. pp. 50.

an, the Commissioner of Public Records for the State of Massan his fifth report, now before us, gives the results of his work last in he says are "gratifying in that an increased interest has been in the records, and much has been done towards improvement, as haps, as could have been expected in a matter which has lain comdormant for forty years. The annual burning of town records which place for the past three years has been kept up; but there is some congratulation, that in one town the records had just been removed clerk's house was burned. The number of cities and towns reporting runed now reaches forty-five. Twenty-five churches report records of r another burned, and, as in early years the church and parish records ality the town records, part of these can be added to the list of town runed."

ort of Commissioner Swan of the work done by him, and the inforich he has obtained of the condition of the public records and the care XLVII. 33 bestowed upon them by their custodians, shows the importance of the office. Mr. Swan recommends the printing of the records. This is the only sure way of preserving them. The report of 1891 contained a list of the cities and towns which had printed their records or portions of them. An additional list is given in the present report. The commissioner renews this year his recommendation that the State establish a standard for record ink. He cites instances where records in the last half of the present century are gradually fading out, and in some instances had to be retraced.

Society of Colonial Wars. Constitution and By-Laws. Membership. New York: January, 1893. Sm. 8vo. pp. 106.

Constitution and By-Laws of the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames of America. 18mo. pp. 22.

In this number of the REGISTER we have noticed some recent publications of Societies of the Sons and the Daughters of the Revolution. The societies which have issued the publications whose titles are given above are formed to keep in remembrance the virtues of our ancestors of an earlier date. We quote the preamble of the Constitution of the Society of Colonial Dames:

"History shows that successive generations are awakened to truer patriotism and stimulated to nobler endeavour by the contemplation of the heroic deeds of their forefathers, and that the remembrance of a nation's glory in the past is essential to national greatness in the future; therefore, recognizing the responsibility which rests upon the descendants of those men and women who, in the Colonial period and in the struggle which secured for us our liberty and our Constitution, sacrificed their all for their country, to emulate the virtues of our forefathers, we do hereby associate ourselves under the title of 'The Colonial Dames of America,' and we do declare that our Organization shall have for its object the commemoration of the brilliant achievements of the founders of this great Republic, to the end that the women as well as the men of this land may be stimulated to better and nobler lives."

The Society of Colonial Wars is composed of men descended from those who have rendered military service to their country in the several American colonis and provinces. The constitution of the Society sets forth the objects of the organization in these words:

"The objects of said society are social and patriotic, and the said society is to be formed for the purpose of perpetuating among their descendants the memory of those brave and hardy men who assisted in establishing the colonis of America and periled their lives and interests in the French and Indian Wars from May 13, 1607, to April 19, 1775, which, preceding the Revolutionary struggle, tended to form the glorious, free and independent United States of America; and for the collection and preservation of Historical Relics and Documents relating to that period."

The objects of these associations are worthy of commendation, and we wish them success in their undertakings.

A Report of the Record Commissioners of the City of Boston, containing the Selections's Minutes from 1769 through April, 1775. Boston: Rockwell & Churchille City Printers. 1893.

In this twenty-third Report of the Record Commissions of the City of Bostov, the Minutes of the Selectmen are laid before us in print to the 19th April, 1775, the day when the Battle of Lexington was fought. At this point, the editor, Mr. Whitmore, informs us that the record is suspended until May 20, 1776.

We have often spoken of the value of the records and documents which the commissioners are preserving in the print, and we congratulate them on having accomplished so much, in the eighteen years since the board was organized.

The Lady Mowlson Scholarship at Cambridge. By Andrew McFarland Davis.

Worcester, Mass.: Press of Charles Hamilton. 1893. 8vo. pp. 9.

Mr. Davis, of Cambridge, has devoted much attention during the last few years to the investigation of obscure points in the history of Harvard College One of his articles in this line, on "The Exhibitions of Harvard College prior to 1800," was printed in the REGISTER for July, 1892. The two pamphlets before us elucidate other points.

itor of this work, the Rev. Silvanus Hayward of Southbridge, Mass., reface, informs his readers that the author of this history, the late McDuffee of Rochester, "in 1865 began a series of historical sketches McDuffee of Rochester, "in 1865 began a series of historical sketches mount of material for a town history. The minute and thorough of his work is seen in the early history, and especially in the record ster in the Rebellion. The carefully prepared sketches and other papers cattered notes, suggesting changes and additions indicative, in some f his general plan. His lamented death left the work unfortunately te. His father, John McDuffee, Esq. (now recently deceased), took erest in the matter, and expressed his desire to put the money, which ould have expended in marble or granite, into the History of Rochester, ter and more enduring monument to the memory of his son. At his undertook the task of editing and completing the work. It has proved a labor than was at first anticipated. Every sentence has been careewed and re-written in the desire to make it as nearly as possible what re himself would have wished. Much has been added, and many parts sively my own."

r. Hayward has performed his task faithfully, and the book does great his ability and zeal. It treats of the Indian and Proprietary history; of the early settlers, its leading men in the revolutionary period, its story, its professional and business men, and other matters of interest er's poem of "Barbara Fritchie" is well known. Soon after it aploubts as to the facts on which it was founded were expressed, and existence of the heroine herself was questioned. Mrs. Dall has deach time to investigating the subject, so that she could give to the world a true version of the story of Barbara Fritchie. In November, contributed to the New Vork Independent an article on the subject, and fuller account was contributed by her in March, 1878, to a magated at Springfield, Mass., called the Sunday Afternoon.

half has conducted her research in a thorough manner, and deserves much credit for the light she throws on a subject which interests us all. She tells us that Whittier, not long before his death, told a Baltimore friend that he regretted the ballad, as he was doubtful of the story. "But," Mrs. Dall adds, "Whittier had no occasion to regret his ballad. Noble-hearted Stonewall Jackson neither loses or gains by the story, and would willingly spare a laurel leaf in the brave old German's honor."

The book is well printed, and is illustrated with a portrait of Barbara Fritchie

The Early Records of the Town of Providence. Vol. II. Being the Second Book of the Town of Providence, otherwise called the Old Town Book, the Short Old Book, the Old Burnt Book, and sometimes the Book with Brass Clasps. Printed under the Authority of the City Council of Providence, by Horatio Rogers, George Moulton Carpenter and Edward Field, Record Commissioners. Providence: Snow & Farnham, City Printers. 1893. Sm. 4to. pp. 219.

This is the second volume of the Early Records of Providence, Rhode Island, printed under the direction of Messrs. Rogers, Carpenter and Field, commissioners, under a resolution of the City Council of Providence, approved March 6, 1891. The first volume, issued a year ago, contained "The First Book of the Town of Providence, otherwise called the Long Old Book with Parchment

The present volume contains the record of the doings of the town from July 27, 1642, to March 25, 1661. The commissioners, in their preface, give an account of the condition of the original book, and the means they have taken to reproduce it. A transcript was made in 1800, which has assisted them in supplying deficiencies which have occurred since that time. The commissioners inform their readers that "their effort has been to present to the possessor of this volume, as nearly as possible, the same information which he would receive from a perusal of the original book. . . . . The following method has been pursued in making the copy, as in the case of the first volume: In the first place a careful copy of the original was made under the direction of the commissioners. They then personally compared this copy, letter by letter, with the original, and at the same time with the transcript of 1800, for the double purpose of assisting in the interpretation of doubtful words, and also of supplying letters or words which are wanting or illegible in the original. The copy thus produced being sent to the printer, the commissioners have personally read all the proofs, comparing every letter therein with the original, and also with the copy previously prepared by them, and in every case receiving and reading revises until a proof sheet was received in which such vigilance as they were able to exercise could detect no error."

The early records of Providence have great historical value, and are worthy of the extreme care which the commissioners have taken to obtain a reliable reproduction of them. The book is well printed, and a fac-simile of the compact of the "twenty-five acre purchasers" is given.

William and Mary Quarterly Historical Papers. Editor: LYONG. TYLER, M.A. Williamsburg, Va. Published quarterly. Subscription price $3 a year, of 75 cents a number. No. 1, July, 1892; No. 2, October, 1892; No. 3, January. 1893; No. 4, April, 1893. 8vo. pp. 211.

Of great historical interest and value are these volumes issued by William and Mary College, the oldest institution of learning in the Old Dominion (founded in the year 1692), and, after our own Harvard College, the oldest in our land. This quarterly certainly shows a reason for being in the judicious selection of historical material contained in its pages. May it have a long and prosperous existence. The editor, Mr. Lyon G. Tyler, is the president of William and Mary College, and the author of a valuable life of his father, the Hon. John Tyler, noticed in the REGISTER (vol. 39, page 206), at the time of its publication.

Space will permit of reference to but few of the articles. In a terse and vigor ous style, Mr. Tyler, the editor, gives graphic sketches in a paper entitled "Early Presidents of William and Mary," of James Blair, D.D. (that courageous servant of the church militant in his generation, in whom there was character stuff enough to give great impetus to the work), the founder of the College, and its president for fifty years; and of John Camm and James Madison, other able ous friends of the College, who succeeded him in the presidency. The drawn of the Royal Governors, Sir Edmund Andros (not unknown to usetts people in colonial days) and Sir Francis Nicholson, are far from At last, however, came Alexander Spotswood, a man of a stronger o administered more wisely the affairs of the colony. It is gratifying hat very early in the history of this ancient College, provision was made ducation of the Indians. In 1723 a large building was erected for them s of the Robert Boyle fund, for "pious and charitable uses," on the grounds. Our New England forefathers at even an earlier day were indful of their obligation to the original owners of the soil. Probably carried out at William and Mary College was better than that adopted instead of sending out missionaries to the Indians, they educated and fixed Indian youths and sent them back to instruct and convert their ple. The original feature of this publication, which has since been followed in part by the Society in Massachusetts, is the valuable list, which is a bond of unity: "Persons Represented in the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New Jersey. Including names of personrepresenting them, in the Societies in the States of New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania."

Samuel Meredith Dickinson, of Trenton, is the president; Clement Hall Sinnickson of Salem, vice president; John Alexander Campbell of Trenton, secretary. The registrar, Mr. Foster Connarroe Griffith, of Trenton, deserves praise for this creditable piece of work. The object of the Society of Sons of the Revolution, to study the past, to keep alive "the American idea," to promote a purer Americanism, Irrespective of party, should commend it to the respectful consideration of our best citizens.

Two organizations known as the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution have grown out of the celebration of the Centenary of American Independence in 1876. The members consist of descendants of those who did service to their country in the American Revolution. Each has a General Society, with branch societies in the several States. The headquarters of the Sons of the Revolution are at New York city, and those of the Sons of the American Revolution are at Washington. A later society, the Daughters of the American Revolution, has been formed. At the head of this notice we give the titles of various publications issued by societies connected with these organizations, of which copies have been deposited in the library of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and which have not previously been noticed in the Register. These societies bid fair to do much good by keeping in memory the acts and sufferings of the Revolutionary patriots from whom we are descended. We quote the preamble to the Constitution of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution:

"It being evident from the steady decline of a proper celebration of lational holy days of the United States of America, that popular concern intevents and men of the War of the Revolution is gradually declining, and the such lack of interest is attributable, not so much to the lapse of time and the such lack of interest is attributable, not so much to the lapse of time and the such lack of interest is attributable, not so much to the lapse of time and the such lapse of time mpidly increasing flood of immigration from foreign countries, as to the neglect, on the part of the descendants of Revolutionary heroes, to perform their duty in keeping before the public mind the memory of the services of their ancestors, and of the times in which they lived: therefore, the Society of the Sons of the Revolution has been instituted to perpetuate the memory of the men who, in the military, naval, and civic service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress, by their acts or counsel achieved the independence of the country, and to further the proper celebration of the anniversaries of the birth-day of Washington, and of prominent events connected with the War of the Revolution; to collect and secure for preservation the rolls, records, and other documents relating to that period; to inspire the members of the Society with the patriotic spirit of their forefathers; and to promote the feeling of friendship among them."

Descendants of Jonathan Gillet of Dorchester, Mass. and Windsor, Conn. By the late Salmon Cone Gillette. Arranged and enlarged by the Rev. Henry Clay Alvord. Boston: David Clapp & Son, Printers. 1893. We continue in this number our quarterly list of recent genealogical publications.

The Upham Genealogy is by Capt. Frank Kidder Upham, U.S.A., who has been for many years collecting materials for the work. John Upham, the ancestor of this family, came to New England in 1635 with the Rev. Joseph Hull, and the names of himself and other members of his family are to be found in the list of passengers printed in the Register, vol. 25, pp. 13 to 15. The book before us seems to be very thoroughly and carefully compiled. Over four hundred pages are devoted to the descendants of the emigrant John Upham, and there is a supplement of about a hundred pages "showing the ancestry of John Upham of New England with an English Upham Genealogy." An index of about seventy pages carries the book up to 572 pages. We congratulate the author on being able to compile a volume so creditable to the family and to himself.

The book on the Johnson families of Ipswich and Andover is by the Rev. William W. Johnson, the compiler of "Records of the Descendants of David Johnson of Leominster, Mass.," and "Records of the Descendants of Thomas Clarke of Plymouth." The present work is in reality an enlargement of his first work. That began with David Johnson of Leominster, born Aug. 20, 1715, and died Nov. 10, 1799. The book before us carries the record back to his great-grandfather, John Johnson, who settled at Ipswich as early as 1635. The author thus writes of the difficulties that attended the preparation of his first work: "Living in the West far away from the great Libraries of the country, which contain rich stores of historical and genealogical information, and not having access to the records of those towns and counties where the early generations of the family resided, he was not able to trace the line beyond the said David." The present work gives a very full record of the descendants of the immigrant ancestor of the family. The book is well printed and indexed, and is illustrated with many fine portraits.

Mr. Morrison's "Lineage and Biographies of the Norris Family in America' is a well compiled and handsomely printed book. The immigrant ancestor of the family was Nicholas Norris, who settled at Hampton, N.H., near the middle of the seventeenth century. The author has had much experience in writing books on local and family history. He has given us in the book before us a very full record of the descendants of the Hampton immigrant. The book is well printed and illustrated with numerous portraits. It is well indexed.

well printed and illustrated with numerous portraits. It is well indexed.

The Cilley Genealogy is by Jonathan P. Cilley, a graduate of Bowdoin College, and a member of the Maine Historical Society, whose father, Hon. Jonathan Cilley, was a classmate of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and Nathaniel Hawthorne at that institution, and a victim of a duel with W. J. Graves in 1838, while a member of Congress from Maine. The book, though a small one, seems to be carefully compiled.

Mr. Backus's Chart of the Chester Family, besides that family, preserves a genealogical account of the compiler's ancestors of other names. Among the families from which Mr. Backus is descended are many that have an honorable record in this country and in England.

The Alden tabular pedigree gives some lines of the descendant of John Alden and of his wife Priscilla Molines, the heroine of Longfellow's famous poem "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

The tabular pedigrees of the Hunnewell and Welles families are by Mr. Ruggles of Wakefield, Mass. The Hunnewell Family is descended from Roger Hunnewell, who came to New England at an early date, and died in 165t; and the Welles Family from Thomas Welles of Hartford, an early governor of Connecticut. They seem to be carefully compiled, and are handsomely printed.

The children of Edward Tompkins, senior, to whose ancestry and kindred the next pamphlet is devoted, were descended from John Tompkins, an early settler of Concord, Mass. The work is well compiled, and a number of tabular pedgrees make the descent and kinship clear to its readers.

The Howes pamphlet is by Mr. Sanford, 404 Ostrom Avenue, Syracuse, N.Y. John Howes, whose branch of the Howes family he here traces, was a descendant of Thomas Howes, who settled at Yarmouth, Mass. in 1639. The genealogy is well compiled.

The pamphlet on Capt. John Daves contains an interesting account of that revolutionary patriot. A genealogy of his descendants is appended.

The Benjamin Brown Memorial traces the ancestry of Dr. Brown, who was descended from Chad Brown, who settled early at Providence, R. I. The pamphlet gives an account of the life of Dr. Benjamin Brown, and a full record of his descendants. The work is carefully compiled and handsomely printed.

The fourth part of Eben Putnam's History of the Putnam Family is just issued. It contains the record of children of the sixth generation.

DEATHS.

SIEL CLEMENT COLESWORTHY died residence in Chestnut Street, a, Mass., April 1, 1893, in his ar. He was the second son of Pecker and Anna (Collins) worthy, and was born at Port-Me., July 14, 1810. An obituary father is printed in the REGISTER, pp. 389-90, and his pedigree in 5 of this work, page 320 Ho of this work, page 330. He d the trade of a printer of Arthur y, who printed the Christian a religious newspaper still pubin Portland. Soon after attains majority he opened a printing in Middle street, and began the ation of a juvenile weekly called abbath School Instructor. He hed other newspapers, the best a of which was the Portland as, a weekly literary paper which inded in 1841. He edited and hed it for four years, and then t to others who continued the ntion. About this time he opened store in Exchange street, which fterwards removed to the baseof the Mariner's Church in Fore In 1850 he removed to Boston, and opened a bookstore in ill, where he continued to carry e bookselling business till his He lived to be the oldest bookin Boston. His bookstore was ented by many men of note. He ed among his personal friends am Lloyd Garrison, Neal Dow, miel P. Banks, Elias Nason, John ont, Elizabeth Oakes Smith, e Henry Preble, Wendell Phillips ohn Neal.

began early to write in verse and and continued to employ his e in literary composition to the f his days. He was a frequent butor to literary and religious sapers, and some articles were to editors just before his death, and were printed after he died. He was a voluminous writer and published many books. Many of his shorter poems had a wide circulation in the newspapers, and some found their way into hymn books and school readers, often anonynously. Some have been attributed to other well known authors. This was the case with "Little words in kindness spoken," and "Never say fail." His poem "Don't kill the birds" is said to have had "great influence in arresting the slaughter of those innocents by inculcating in the minds of children a sentiment of mercy towards them."

Among his published works may be named "The Old Bureau and other Tales"; "Sabbath School Hymns"; "Chronicles of Casco Bay"; "A Group of Children"; "A Day in the Woods"; "School is Out," and "John Tileston's School." In Duyckinck's "Cyclopædia of American Literature (ed. 1875, vol. 2, page 514), this estimate of him as a writer is found: "His writings in prose and verse are adapted to the people, and are generally on topics of familiar domestic interest. His tales, of which he composed many, illustrate the moralities of common life somewhat in the school of Franklin; while his poems, written with ease and simplicity, embrace the ever-enduring themes of the affections."

Mr. Colesworthy married, at Portland, Miss Mary Jane, daughter of John and Prudence (Richardson) Bowers, who was born in Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 26, 1812, and died at Chelsea, May 27, 1874. Their children were: 1, Daniel Clement; 2, Mary Jane; 3, Charles Jenkins; 4, Ellen Maria, m. Charles W. Cochrane; 5, George Edward; 6, Harriet Ann, m. Thomas L. Hallworth; 7, Alice Elizabeth, m. Frank E. Woodward; 8, William Gibson. All the children are living except the oldest, Daniel C., who died April 1, 1867.

MRS. MARTHA JOANNA LAMB died in New York city on Monday morning, January 2, 1893, aged 63. She was the daughter of Arvin and Lucinda (Vinton) Nash, and was born August 13, 1829. She married Sept. 8, 1852, Charles A. Lamb of Maumee City, Ohio. They removed to Chicago, where she resided eight years. In 1886, she took up her residence in New York City.

Our American republic of letters has met with a distinct loss in the death of Mrs. Lamb. Although residing for many years past in New York city, she was born in Plainfield, Massachusetts, and doubtless owed much of her love of learning to her long line of New England ancestry, and also, perhaps, to the strain of Gallic blood in her family, giving warmth and enthusiasm, or more properly speaking, the expression of these attributes, to the more solid and staying qualities of her English blood. At a very early age she was an ardent lover of books, especially of historical studies, and this increased and developed as the years went on and she gradually gathered rich stores of knowledge which she dispensed in her writings. Hers was eminently a literary life, and she loved literature for its own sake and for the great results wrought by it. She not only acquired much knowledge but produced the results of her researches for the benefit of others. She wrote many stories and several books for children, thus, like Miss Alcott and others, showing a peculiar gift, for it must ever be remembered that it is a great thing to be able to interest and therefore to stimulate and instruct the child-mind, a mind far more acute and imaginative in many ways than many are willing to admit. Who can measure in after life the results of seed-thoughts early sown in the mind?

It is estimated that she wrote about one hundred magazine articles on historical and other subjects. She is also quite well known in a somewhat limited circle, by her books entitled "Historic Homes of America," "Wall Street in History," and her "History of the City of New York." But probably her best and most far-reaching work has been done as contributor to and later as editor of the "Magazine of American History," that admirable periodical which has rendered such useful service in disseminating knowledge of American history throughout the land, than which (next to the implanting of the principles of christianity itself), there can hardly be a more praiseworthy work. Mrs. Lamb was quite proficient in mathematics, and perhaps owed considerable of her mental development, her accuracy as an historian, to the training she derived from this source. Neither must it be forgotten that during a residence of several years in Chicago she did much toward the founding of the Home for the Friend-less and Half-Orphan Asylum in that city. She also rendered efficient help to the cause of the Union during the civil war. I must not omit to acknowledge my indebtedness for material for the preparation of this sketch to the Rev. Daniel Van Pelt for his excellent biographical notice of Mrs. Lamb which appeared in the Magazine of American History for February last.

DANIEL ROLLINS.

MRS. REBECCA EDDY (WHEATON) SAR-GENT, wife of Homer Earle Sargent, at Chicago, Ill., January 16, 1893; 55 years, 5 months and 5 days. She was daughter of John Robert and Rebecca Miller (Eddy) Wheaton of Warren, R. I., and through both parents traced back to prominent Rhode Island Revolutionary stock.

Mrs. Sally Maria (Adams) Sargest, wife of Asron Sargent, Junior, at Somerville, Mass., January 11, 1893; 68 years, 1 month and 25 days. She was daughter of Joseph and Phebe Preston (Moore) Adams of Charlestown (now Somerville), and a descendant of John Adams, one of the earlier settlers in Cambridge.

Mrs. Sarah (Nichols) Sargent, widow of Aaron Sargent, Senior, at Somer-ville, Mass., July 23, 1892; 92 years, 2 months and 26 days. She was daughter of Capt. Nathan and Dorcas (Smith) Nichols of Malden, Mass. (now Everett).

All those two messuages (in St. Lawrence old Jewry) now in my own occupation and in the tenure of John Wells, I give and devise unto my loving nephew William Aspinall, minister of God's Word in Lancashire, for and during the term of his natural life, and after his decease to Peter Aspinall, eldest son of the said William, and to the heirs male of his body &c, remainder to my nephew Thomas Aspinall of Chester &c. then to the right heirs of the said William Aspinall forever. Another messuage to kinsman Silvester Sutch. Other two messuages to kinswoman Jane Comberbatch, for life, then to Silvester Sutch and his heirs forever. The two messuages given to cousin William Aspinall shall be chargeable with the payment of two several annuities, to my sister Alice Fletcher, spinster, ten pounds for life, and to my sister Jennet Hunt, wife of Thomas Hunt, five pounds for life (both by quarterly Payments). I am interested in several messuages in the minories without My two kinsmen Thomas and Samuel Aspinall sons of my Dephew Thomas Aspinall of Chester (under 24). My niece's son Henry and I start and the Moorcroft now of Ormskirke. My cousin Hngh Fletcher now (as I conceive) in the Barbados Islands. My cousin Jane Fletcher son of Miles Fletcher of Islington. John Fletcher, brother of the said James. Others. All the rest of my estate, real and personal, to the poor of Ormskirke. My very loving and cordial friend Mr. John Hatt, attorney, and my loving kinsman Mr William Aspinall, minister &c. to be my executors and my cousin Thomas Aspinall and John Hough (sometimes my servant) to be my overseers.

[The foregoing half dozen wills must be considered by all New England genealogists a very valuable group of wills, as they show the English connections of the families of Ambrose, Aspinwall, Henshaw, Ryal (Royal), &c. The wills of William and Ciceley Ambrose I have had by me a great many years, hoping to come across that of the brother Peter Ambrose referred to. Fortunately I was saved from the trouble of a direct search for it by the kindness of our friend Mr. William S. Appleton, who found it and gave me the reference.

P.S. I find that there was a Nicholas Haspinall, rector of Stepney 30 May 1652.

HENRY F. WATERS.

H. F. W.

There were two early New England immigrants by the name of Aspinwall. William came in 1630 and settled at Charlestown, removed to Boston, was banished as a supporter of Mr. Hutchinson, lived awhile in Rhode Island and New Haven, and about 1643 returned to Boston, where he was cierk of the writs and member of the artillery company. He returned to England, and published at least two books, besides reprinting Cotton's "Abstract of Laws" for New England with a preface. Savage says that his wife Elizabeth was "somehow sister of Christopher Stanley, more probably of his wife Susanna, who became wife of Lieut. William Phillips."

The other emigrant, Peter Aspinwall, came here from Toxteth Park, and settled first at Dorchester, and finally in Muddy River, now Brookline. An article on him and his descendants, by Mr. Clarence W. Bowen, is printed in

Dame Katherine Barnardiston wife of William Towse Sergeant at the Law, 25 February 8th of Charles, proved 19 March 1632, confirmed by sentence 2 March 1633. At time of marriage of the said Dame Katherine with the said William Towse she had assigned certain goods &c. unto Richard Deane, now citizen and alderman of London, by the name of Richard Deane citizen and skinner of London, John Banckes citizen and mercer of London and Robert Tytchborne citizen and skinner of London, upon Trust &c. to this intent &c. that the said Dame Katherine might at any time devise, give, bequeath and dispose the same at her will and pleasure. This with the full consent of her now husband. Reference to the present dwelling house of the said Dame Katherine and her husband as at Witham in Essex. To William and Nathaniel Matthew if dwelling with me &c. six pounds for blacks. To other men and women servants. To Mrs. Nicholls of Witham for blacks five pounds. To Katherine Banckes, George Banckes' daughter, three pounds. To the Lady Fishe and her daughter Barnardiston Fishe and her man, for blacks, fifteen pounds. To Mary Banckes, my uncle Christopher Banckes his daughter, for blacks, five pounds. To Alice Banckes her sister for blacks five pounds. My desire is that my body be decently kept till my funeral and if George Dunn be then living that he does then "imballe me" as he did my late brother Banckes, not diminishing or opening any part of my body by any means, allowing him linnen of all sorts and for his pains and charge otherways and for blacks I allow him twenty pounds. To my husband's grandchild William Towse five pounds and to his daughter Towse eight pounds. And to his grandchild Margaret Towse eight pounds. To my son Skott and his

IZABETH BINGHAM of St. Martin le Grand, London, in the parish of St. Leonard in Foster Lane, spinster, on or about the second or third days of November 1636 declared her will, nuncupative, proved 20 May 1637. She gave and bequeathed to her master, James Lindell five pounds, to her Mrs., Mary Lindell five pounds, to Joshua Lindell five pounds, to Caleb Lindell five pounds, to Thomas Benn five pounds, to Susan Smith three pounds, to Margaret Harvyy fifty shillings. And she did give and bequeath to Francis Butcher threescore pounds. Her estate was in the hands of Mr. Thomas Boyland, gent. The remainder to him. Which words, or to the same purpose, she uttered and spake in the presence and hearing of Mary Lindell, Susan Smith and Joane Swanstone.

Commission issued (as above) to Francis Butcher, the principal legatee, to administer the goods &c. according to the tenor of the will, no executor having been named, and sentence was passed to establish the will, in a case between Francis Butcher, on the one part, and Thomas Bingham, Elizabeth Browne als Bingham and Bridget Bingham, next akin.

John Bradshawe of Westminster, Middlesex, brewer, 3 November 1606, with codicil added 20th of the same month, proved 6 March 1606. Wife Elizabeth. Eldest son and heir. My brewhouse and other my houses in Westminster. My wife shall have the government of my five younger children. I have now two sons scholars in the University of Cambridge. To each of my clerks, the master brewer Pasco, Margaret and goodwife Person, my nurse, twenty shillings apiece, and to all the rest of my servants, both men and maids that have "bene" with me by the space of one year last past, ten shillings apiece. I desire mine executors to deal kindly with Henry Wood, one of my ancient clerks, and that he might still continue his place and that my executors pay unto him yearly the sum of five and thirty pounds for his service therein whiles he possesseth the said place. To my mother Emson twenty pounds and to her two sons Thomas and William Empson ten pounds apiece.

Item, I give and bequeath to Nathaniel, Benjamin, Ephraim, Josuah and Elizabeth Child and to Abigail Warren, all the children of my sister Warren, forty shilling apiece. Fifty pounds (five pounds apiece) to ten ministers, vizt Mr. Egerton, Mr. Wilcockes, Mr. Wotton, Mr. Bamford, Mr Jacob, Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Smith, Mr. Bradshawe, Mr. Lewes and Mr. Witheman. Whereas I have in my hands ten pounds of one Fortune, a kinswoman of mine, and certain stuff in a chest that did belong unto her my will is that notwithstanding the said Fortune is dead yet that mine executors pay the said money and deliver the said stuff to the next of kin to the said Fortune on the mother's side. To Evan Bridgett, my kinsman, five pounds. I make and ordain my beloved and Christian friends George Pope of the Inner Temple, London, Andrew Wilmore of Stratford Bow, Midd., gentleman, William Fynch of Watford, Herts., tanner, Andrew Ellam and Symon Gereing of London, merchants, my joint executors, to whom, in token of my love, I hereby give and devise five pounds apiece over and above such charges and expences they may be at &c. I earnestiy entreat them to continue the trade of brewing in my said brew houses (in Westminster) and to maintain my other stocks for the term of four years after my decease, and, because some of mine executors be "unexpert" in that course and dwell far from my said brew houses and other stocks, my request and desire is that the disposing and managing of the said businesses may be principally acted and effected by my brother Simon Gereing, one of my said executors, and for his pains he shall have forty pounds yearly, with his house room, meat and drink for himself, his wife and children as long as as he shall inhabit there and take upon him the special charge and care of the said brewing and continue faithful in effecting my will therein. Direction made for yearly balance sheets. Property to be divided when youngest son Abraham comes to the age of one and twenty years. Ten pounds a year for four years to be paid to sister Ellen Rowe for her proper maintenance. Further conditional bequest to her. Reference made to "my" five sons (not named). Again a reference to "my" seven children. Anne Geringe one of the witnesses.

In the codicil he refers to his dwelling house as over against his brewhouse in Westminster. He calls Henry Wood one of his chief clerks, "my cozen." He desires to be buried in the new churchyard as near as may be to M' Rogers, sometime my faithful pastor at Stratford Bow.

[The names of Benjamin, Ephraim and Josuah Child are so suggestive of one of the New England families of that name that I have felt it my duty to preserve the foregoing will. The will of Simon Geering of Lachlade, Co. Gloucester, registered in the same volume (Hudlestone, 46), mentions a son Symon and a son John as of London, a daughter Elizabeth Evans, and others.

To the poor of St. Martin's forty pounds, to be distributed as my brother in law Mr John Breedon, Mr. Robert Burgh and Mr Samuel Maurice shall think fit, none having under ten shillings. The poor of Kew Green. My god daughter Rose Preston, Charles, Thomas and Elizabeth Robinson. To M' Charles and Mr. Robert Breedon, to the use and for the benefit of such children of Mr. Stephen Sedgwicke when and as they shall think fit, forty pounds with what proceeds or advantage can be made thereof in the mean time. To my god son Robert Breedon all those goods or adventure and advantage thereby arising which I lately sent to New England and came safe to the possession of his father, Captain Thomas Breedon. To my good friend M' Francis Throckmorton five pounds out of the money he owes me on bond. Mr. Dodington, clerk, and Mr. St John, clerk. To my worthy good friend Mr. Volentine, clerk, to distribute to such of his children as he shall think fit, fifty pounds, out of and as soon as my executors shall receive five hundred pounds (or satisfaction for the same) remaining still due to me by obligation from Col. William Legg, and not otherwise. To my honored friend Mrs Markeham twenty pounds she had of me for a friend. To my worthy good friend Mr John Markham, for the use of his daughter Mrs. Mary Markham, fifty pounds (on the same conditions as the bequest to Mr. Volentine). To my good friends Mr. Stephen Sedgwick and his wife, Mr. Zacheus Breedon, Mr. Charles Breedon, Mr. Johnson and his wife, Mr. Richardson and his wife, young Mr. Thomas Breedon, Mr. Sampson Harborne, Mrs. Elizabeth Evans, Mrs. Burgh, Mrs. Maurice, Mrs. Wakefield, cousin Helme and his wife, Mrs. Fenney and his wife twenty shillings apiece, or rings to that value. To my dear nephew Thomas Brumpsted, the eldest son of my [brother] Brumpsted, two hundred and fifty pounds, and to my other dear nephew, Charles Brumpsted, brother of the said Thomas Brumpsted, the like sum of two hundred and fifty pounds, to be paid unto them, with interest and proceeds thereof, from the time of my death when and as they shall attain his or their several and respective ages of one and twenty years &c. To my worthy good friends Mrs. Elizabeth Griffith, Mrs. Elizabeth Leigh, Mrs. Elianor Bust and Mr. Maurice Griffith rings to the value of twenty shillings apiece. To my said nephew Thomas Brumpsted one table diamond ring that was his grandfather Harborne's and to my said nephew Charles Brumpsted one silver plate and eight spoons. I make and constitute my said brother in law Mr. John Breedon, Edward Edkins, Esq. Mr. Edward Noell executors and give to them for their care and pains ten pounds apiece, and ten pounds apiece more for mournings. I make Mr. Robert Burgh and Mr. Samuel Maurice overseers and give them for their pains fifty shillings apiece. To my brother Brumpsted and my sister Breedon ten pounds apiece for mournings and to my said nephews ten pounds between them for mourning. The residue to my executors in trust for my said nephews &c. And I earnestly desire, according to their late dear mother's chiefest care, that both my said nephews be brought up and instructed, in their youth, in the fear and love of God &c.

Wit: Peter Griffith, Rich: Flexney, Robt Breedon.

Commission issued, 12 July 1666, to Thomas Brumpsted, senior, natural and lawful father and lawfully appointed guardian of Thomas and Charles Brumpsted &c. to administer &c., the executors first renouncing.

SYMON SMITH of Stepney, formerly citizen and merchant of London, aged fourscore and two years, 3 October 1665 proved 2 January 1665. To my loving wife Martha, with whom I have lived fifty five years in wedlock all my goods and household stuff and my rents in Seething Lane and Stepney for her better maintenance during her life, she having twenty pounds annuity settled on her by her mother Mrs. Thomazine Oldfield, deceased, and twenty pounds annuity settled on her by M' George Payne. I give her also my tenement in Robinhood Lane in Poplar. To my grandson Thomas Smith fifty pounds. To my grand daughter Thomazine Jaye fifty pounds and to her husband James Jay twenty pounds. To her son Symon Jaye twenty pounds and to his brothers James and John Jaye ten pounds apiece. To the five children of my cousin William Seaman that married my niece Judith Pearce, the daughter of my sister Katherine Pearse deceased, fifty pounds, to be equally divided unto them.

Item I give and bequeath unto my cousin Judith Toozer, the wife of Richard Toozer, the daughter of my son Thomas Smith, now at New England, the sum of fifty pounds, to be equally divided to and amongst her children. To my daughter Emma Smith the wife of my son Symon Smith, my executor, twenty pounds. To ten poor families in Stepney and five poor families in St. Olave's Hart Street. To my son Symon, my executor, all my rents in Seething Lane and Stepney, after his mother's decease, to be employed towards the maintenance and education of his children and raising of portions for them, share and share alike. To poor prisoners &c. My friends Mr. William Greenhill and Mr. Henry Barton to be overseers.

Owing to me by Squire Dennis Gawde, his majesty's victualler of the Royal Navy, on account of my wharf and buildings at Deptford, the lease whereof I have sold him for 1600£, whereof he hath paid me 500£, so there remains due to me 1100£.

Among the debts of the testator was one to Samuel Elliott's estate. So his guardian, 300£. Mico, 14.

[The will of Thomasine J:anson, already published (see REGISTER for April last, p. 282), shows clearly enough to what family Mr. Symon Smith's wife Martha belonged and her relationship to the Glovers, the Winthrops and the other families mentioned in the group of wills presented in that number of the REGISTER. In Savage's Gen. Dict. (vol. iv., p. 320), will be found some account of Richard Tozer. Mr. Savage suggests that Simon Tozer of Watertown may have been a son of Richard. This is now rendered more probable by the discovery of the foregoing will, which shows that Simon was an ancestral name-

I would add that, so far as my observation goes, Tozer seems to be a Devonshire

Since gathering the above I have come upon the following will, which, by its mention of Robin Hood Lane in connection with the fact that the testator had an "uncle Mr. Symon Smith," becomes of importance to all interested in this Tozer family of New England.

JOHN ELLIOTT (will drawn in his own hand writing) 1663, proved 3 February 1663. I nominate and appoint Mr. Henry Johnson and Mr. Robert Mordant and my uncle Mr. Symon Smyth my full whole executors &c., and, in case any of those three shall die, to take in his room Mr. Richard Whittall. To my son Samuel Elliott all my land and "housen" at Sibelliningame (Sibell Hedingham?), called by name of Brookehouse, and my house in Robin Hood Lane and twenty hundred pound in money. To my son John thirteen hundred pounds. To my daughter Mary Elliott thirteen hundred pound. To my daughter Hannah Elliott ten hundred pound. To my daughter Margaret Elliott ten hundred pound. And as for my household stuff and plate and linen, which is six hundred and eighty pound, I desire it may be equally divided amongst them, part and part alike, either in goods or money, as my executors shall see to be best for their good; the particulars I have in my book or journal in my study at Ilford. Further, it is my will and desire that if my son Samuel Elliot should die before he come to the age of twenty one years all the land and housen I give to my son John Elliott, and the money and goods as did belong to him to be equally divided among the other four, part and part alike; and if John should die &c. &c. then their estate in land and goods to be divided and sold and parted among my three daughters, part and part alike. Provision also in case of death of any of the daughters before marriage or age of twenty years. Ten pounds to the poor of Poplar. Ten pounds to the poor of Ilford and ten pounds apiece to each of my executors.

Die Mercurii 3tis Februarii 1663, etc. Which day &c. personally appeared Mary Elliott, spinster, aged seventeen years or thereabouts, being the daughter of John Elliott late of Barking in Essex deceased, Henry Osbaston, clerk, of Little Ilford, Essex, aged forty five years, or thereabouts, John Lovell of Barking, Essex, gent, aged sixty four years or thereabouts, and George Fenney of Stepney, Middlesex, mariner and did

By the deposition of the daughter it appears that her father died 28 January 1663, English Style. On the other hand Messrs Osbaston and Lovell and Mary Elliott herself did depose that upon Wednesday in the evening, being the twenty seventh day of February 1663, they were with the said John Elliot at his house in Ilford, who had the said day received a hurt and was in one of the lower rooms of the house. Again, George Fenney and Mary Elliott deposed that upon Friday morning the twenty seventh of February 1663, being the next morning after his death the will was found in a screetore in the closet &c.

The above is the strangest muddling of dates I think I ever met with. I venture to suggest the following as the correct statement of the events as they He received his hurt on Wednesday the twenty seventh day of January, 1663, and his friends were with him that evening; he died the next day, (Thursday) 28th January; they found his will on Friday morning, 29th January 1663, being the next morning after his death; and they all made their depositions and probate was granted Wednesday 3d February 1663.

CHARLES LIDGETT, late of Boston in N. E., but now of the City of London Esq., 9 April 1698, proved 16 May 1698. Before and at my marriage with my dear wife Mary I confessed a judgment of six thousand pounds, or some other considerable sum, to her father William Hester of the Borough of Southwark, soapmaker, since deceased, "defeasanced" for the payment of three thousand pounds sterling to my said wife at my death. I give my said wife all my lands, tenements &c. in New England and all my other estate, real and personal, except what is hereinafter given to my brother in law John Hester of the said Borough of Southwark, soapboiler, for the present support and maintenance of my children. My said wife shall first pay and satisfy herself the said sum of three thousand pounds and then the overplus of my said real and personal estate shall be paid to and equally divided amongst my three children, Peter, Charles and Ann, whom I do heartily recommend to the care and kindness of my said brother in law, their uncle, John Hester, until my said wife shall send for them or dispose of them. And whereas I expect some money or effects to be suddealy remitted from New England I do hereby order the same, when they arrive, to be paid and delivered to my said brother in law for the support and maintenance of my said children, and do make my said brother in law executor of all my goods and chattels in England until my said wife shall arrive from New England, and I do hereby recommend my said wife to the advice and kindness of Mr. Francis Foxcroft of Boston in New England, in whose justice and friendship I have always had great satisfaction; and lastly I do make my said wife full and sole executrix of all my goods and chattels in New England and also of my goods and chattels in England, after her arrival here.

Wit: Tho: Richards, Jnº Joursey, Wm Wharton.

The will was proved by John Hester at the date already given, with power reserved for Mary Lidget, the relict of the deceased, when she should come to demand it. She took probate 24 May 1701. Lort, 126.

[The above will I was quite prepared to find, sooner or later, for I brought over with me the recollection of a letter which I had seen in the Massachusetts State Archives years ago. It was written by Thomas and Ann Smith to John Wiswall and his wife, their daughter, and is to be found in Vol. 57, No. 4 of the State Archives. I hope some good antiquary, possessed of sufficient lessure, will have the goodness to append a copy of it to this note. I recall that a reference was made to Wiswall's son Munninge.

will have the goodness to append a copy of it to this note. I recall that a reference was made to Wiswall's son Munninge.

Henry F. Waters.

The letter of Thomas and Ann Smith referred to by Mr. Waters, is dated "May the 11th 1660," and is printed in the Register, vol. 7, pp. 273-4. Reference is made to goods sent from Mr. and Mrs. Smith to Mr. and Mrs. Wiswall by Mr. Woodgreen in the ship Prudent Mary. In the trunk containing the goods was a letter dated April 18, 1660. A packet from Mr. [Henry] Ashurst for Henry Webb was also enclosed. Mention is made of your brother Cliffe, sister Wison, brother Adam, brother Jonathan, and brother Abiel, and of Mr. Glover,

Mr. Withington and Mr. Waldo. Reference is made to the drowning of "your sonn Munnings." This was Mahalaleel Munnings, drowned Feb. 27, 1659-60. An abstract of Munnings's will is printed in the REGISTER, vol. 10, pp. 176-7. For a genealogy of the Wiswall family see REGISTER, vol. 40, pp. 58-62. THOMAS SLAYNE of Kings Linne in the County of Norfolk merchant, 20 November 1648, proved 7 June 1649. My body to be buried in the churchyard of Margarets in Lynne, by my dear and loving wife deceased. To my eldest son John Slayne my house and garden &c. wherein my son in law Daniel Goodwin, merchant, now dwelleth, bought of Henry Robinson and Lawrence Collins, being near Margarets church in Kings Linn. To my son John Slanye my warehouse in Kingstaire Lane, bought of Mr. James Grennaye, mariner, provided he let my loving daughter Sarah Lynge, wife of Thomas Lynge, merchant, take and enjoy the rent of the tenement wherein one Sparrow now liveth, being part of the house before bequeathed him, during her natural life. I give to the daughters of my son John Slayne the eight acres of pasture ground both of Sampson Cleathers lying in South Lynn abutting upon Hardwick Common, and the tenement and close bought of Thomas Dunham in the parish of Roumton, my said son to take the rents as long as he liveth and after his decease both to be sold for the portions of his said daughters, to be equally divided amongst them. I have been offered one hundred eighty five pounds for both. To my said son John ten pounds. To my son Thomas Slavne and his heirs forever all the free and copyhold land and dwelling houses, barns, stables, orchards &c. in Islington bought of Thomas Smith of Herefordshire wherein one Howling now dwelleth and payeth twenty pounds per annum. The whole farm is about thirty three acres; he to enjoy the same at four and twenty. To my said son Thomas, at twenty four, the messuage with fourteen acres of ground &c. bought of Robert Sparrowe of Watlington, clerk, now in the occupation of Thomas Palmer, lying in Terrington St Johns. I give to my said son Thomas Slayne my mansion house wherein I now dwell in Kings Linn, in the street called Woollmarket, bought of Beatrice Waters, with the malt houses, warehouses, yards and gardens belonging, to enjoy the same after the decease of my wife Mary Slayne, and the iron cradles and other household stuff in the same, he to pay unto my daughter Mary Slayne fifty pounds of current money, if she be living; but if not then he to pay ten pounds apiece to my daughters or their children, vizt, Joane King ten pounds, Annie Goodwyn ten pounds, Anne Hudson ten pounds, Sarah Linge ten pounds, and to my daughter Slayne, wife of John Slayne ten pounds, all for the use of their children; to be instead of twenty five pounds given him by my brother William Atkyn deceased and of ten pounds given him by his dear mother. To my youngest son Samuel Slayne my lands in Terrington or elsewhere, copy and free, being about fifty five acres and a half bought of William Champney of Lynn, merchant, and the six acres and three roods &c. in Terrington, bought of Thomas Adamson, clerk, and the piece of pasture ground in Terrington, bought of Dorothy Robbinson lately containing two acres and one rood, to have and to hold the same at the age of twenty and four years. To my daughter Amye Goodwyn twenty younds, to my daughter Anne Hudson twenty pounds, to my daughter Sarah Linge twenty pounds, and to my daughter Slanie wife of John Slanye twenty pounds, for the use of their children. Other bequests to them. To my wife Mary Slanye one hundred and fifty pounds and one third part of my brass, linen and pewter, the other two thirds to be divided equally between my daughters, viz' Amye Goodwin. Anne Hudson, Sarah Linge and my daughter Slanye. My wife shall have and enjoy all her own house hold stuff that is in the house which was her own before I married her. I give to my daughter Sarah Linge the sum of twenty five pounds which was the gift of her uncle Mr. William Atkin. I give to her also that which I promised her husband in marriage and which he now hath the possession of, the mansion house &c. in South Lynne wherein one Leonard Bowe now dwelleth, bought of one William Furnish.

I will and desire that the sum of forty pounds be paid to my daughter Joane Kinge according to a bond entered to her husband before marriage for payment of fifty pounds, according to the condition of the said bond; there being ten pounds paid of it in New England already, so there is forty pounds remaining if my said daughter be living at my decease; and if she depart this life before my decease then my desire is that her children may have the said forty pounds. To my daughter Amye Goodwyn twenty five pounds, the gift of her uncle Mr William Atkin. To my daughter Anne Hudson (a similar gift of her uncle). My daughter Kinge hath had ber part, and John Slanye and William Slanye. To the children of John Newborne dwelling in Essex forty shillings apiece. To my sister Hodgekya twenty shillings to buy her a ring. To John Jackler and Mary Jackler, the two children of my wife twenty shillings apiece to buy rings. To four of the poorest people in Snailwell where I was born five shillings apiecs. To Mr. Horne twenty shillings and I desire him to preach at my funeral I make my son in law Thomas Linge of Kings Lynne, merchant, and my friend Thomas Moore of Wisbitch executors and my friend Mr John May, Fairfax, 82. alderman, overseer.

JAMES GOFFE of Clements East Cheap in London, citizen and leather seller of London, 17 January 1656, proved (with Codicil of 18 January) the 4th February 1656. Upon marrying with my dear and loving wife Anne Goffe I did settle and convey upon her for life, in case she did survive me, my farm and lands in New Alresford, Southampton, of the yearly value of four score pounds or thereabouts. I give her five hundred pounds besides, she not to claim any further part, either by law or by the Custom of the City of London. Of all the rest my four children, James, Elizabeth, Mary and Deborah, shall have one full third part, according to the Custom of the City of London (personal estate). And the rest I leave as follows &c. To wife the lease of my house at Peckham, Surrey, and the goods, household stuff and furniture in said house, except the wrought cabinet and the several things in the same, which I give to my three daughters, only my watch therein, which I give to my son James. To wife certain goods in my now dwelling house in Cannon Street, except goods &c. in the shop &c. To son James my farm &c. in Alresford, Co. Southampton, after the decease of my wife. To son James, towards his education and breeding abroad till he shall attain his full age of sixteen years, the yearly sum of fourteen pounds out of the rents &c. of my farm called Shuttlehurst, Sussex To my eldest daughter Elizabeth, for and towards her maintenance and education, the lease of my farm which I hold of William Marsh in Prittle well Essex, taken in the name of my brother Nicholas Adv (for me). I make my loving brothers Major General William Goffe, Nicholas Ady, and Edward Bovery executors &c. and give them five pounds ten shillings apiece to buy them diamond rings therewith, to wear for a loving remembrance of me. In the codicil he refers to a former wife and gives to Elizabeth the chest of drawers that was her own mothers. Ruthen, 63.

[Major-General William Goffe, the Regicide, mentioned as his brother by the testator, came to New England with his father-in-law, Col. Certain property to be sold or disposed of for the best advantage of my three daughters in New England, namely my daughter Margaret Mountague, my daughter Melcas Snow and my daughter Mary Lane, by equal portions. Reference to grandchildren now in New England and to grandchildren now born in old England. My grand child Elizabeth Kelway. My grand child John Roper. As for my two houses which I have in Rayleigh in Essex, which by right belongs to my two daughters Ruth Caunte and to my daughter Mary Lane of Boston in New England, for which two houses I have taken order that my two daughters shall yield up all their right that they have in the two houses to me to dispose of them, and then, if I can sell them in my life time, I will the moneys for which they be sold it shall be divided into three parts and shall be for my three daughters in New England before mentioned; but if I cannot sell the two houses in my life time then it must rest to be disposed of by my daughter Mary Lane after my death, and she must take the two houses for her portion if no more will fall to her share. But yet in the meantime I give and do bequeath to my three daughters in New England twenty pounds apiece. To my grandchildren in New England already born before this 1 October 1650 four pounds apiece. To my grandchild Elizabeth Kelway, the daughter of my son Jonathan Kelway deceased, for her better bringing up, twenty pounds, and three pounds of this twenty the mother of the child has already received, and twenty shillings more every quarter shall the mother of this my grandchild receive &c. To my grandchild John Roper four pounds. To the poor of Chelmsford and Moulsham. Wife to be executrix and Mr. Richard Holbrough to be my overseer.

[The reference to the above will was given me by our friend Mr. W. S. Appleton.

Since Mr. Waters has mentioned my name, I will add that I noted this will in 1888, and lately asked him to include it in the "Gleanings," as possibly interesting to three families in this country. According to Savage the three daughters were evidently the wives respectively of Griffin Mountague, Thomas Snow and William Lane.—WILLIAM S. APPLETON.]

CHARLES FROTHINGHAM of Birchhanger Hall in the Co. of Essex, gentleman, 24 July 1652, proved 22 May 1656. To wife Margaret twenty pounds (over and above the benefit of the two hundred pounds during her life in her brother Rant's hand) and the annuity of forty pounds a year for life. To son Charles my leases of the manor and mill of Birch hanger. To son Christopher two hundred pounds at four and twenty. If he die before attaining to that age then it shall go to my eldest son and executor. To second son Stephen a yearly sum of twenty pounds for life &c. To daughter Anne Evans, wife of William Evans an annuity of twenty pounds for life. To grandchild Charles Evans ten pounds to bind him an appren-To my sister Elizabeth Frothingham five pounds. To Bridget Frothingham twenty shillings. To Peter Frothingham twenty shillings. To Katherine Stampe, wife of Martin Stampe living at Heddington near Oxford, twenty shillings. To my two sisters in Yorkshire five pounds apiece if it be demanded. To my friend Robert Abbott of London, scrivener, five pounds and to his wife twenty shillings for a ring, as a token of my love. To Stephen Rant of Quie (Quy) in Cambridge, clerk, twenty shillings in token of my love and respect. To my cousin M' Goldsmith twenty shillings. To my friend Richard Tisdale, taylor, in Gray's Inn Lane ten shillings. To my brother John Frothingham, if living, ten pounds, to be paid when he shall demand the same. The residue to my son Charles Frothingham, whom I make executor, and I desire my said brother Stephen Rant and my friend Robert Abbott to be overseers &c. Berkley, 181.

[The recurrence of the name Peter Frothingham in the above will made me deem it worth preserving. Henry F. Waters.]

Tobias Fellgate being in Westover in Virginia and having been for the space of eight days or thereabouts, sick in body and so then continuing, but of sound and perfect memory, being requested by one Mr Jeremy Blackman and others then present, made his will April 1635, proved 23 April 1635. To his eldest son William Fellgate one hundred and fifty pounds, to be paid upon demand. To his daughter Sarah Fellgate two hundred and fifty pounds, to be paid at her day of marriage and if she died before she were married (sic) then the said legacy to be paid to the said William his son. If William should die before demanding his legacy then he bequeathed the said one hundred and fifty pounds unto Sarah his wife. And if both children died then the said two hundred and fifty pounds to come to his wife. To Mrs. Elizabeth Minifie dwelling in Virginia ten pounds. To a youth called Tobias of Berry forty pounds. Wife Sarah to be sole executive and William Fellgate and Mr Greene his overseers.

The witnesses were Jeremy Blackman, Peter Swyer, James Jones and Robert Page, in the presence of Salomon Smith. Sadler, 38.

John Dersley of Stepney, Middlesex, shipwright, 2 June 1634, proved 19 January 1634. To my reverend friend Mr. Richard Sedgwicke, preacher of God's word in Wapping, five pounds. To the poor of the hamlet other five pounds. My wife Frances shall hold and enjoy the tenements and gardens in Wapping which I hold by five several leases, according to the agreement between her and me upon our marriage. This for her life; and after her decease I bequeath to my son Thomas my interest in my now dwelling house &c. which I hold of Mrs. Heard and my interest in the garden which I hold of one Tibballs, and my interest in the tenements in Gun Alley in Wapping now in the several occupations of John Hughes, widow Clawson, goodman Minstrell, goodman Salter, goodman Webb, goodman Bromage and one Mills. To son John, after my wife's death, my interest in the Gun Tavern in Wapping and in the tenements now or late in the occupation of John Taylor and the shops under it and in the two tenements in the plank yard &c. I am part owner in divers ships and vessels. Composition money to be paid for the houses dock and wharfs &c. now in the occupations of John Dersley and Thomas Hawkins, out of the sale of some of the shipping. Of the rest of my shipping, tackle, furniture &c. I give one moiety to my wife and the other to my two sons. The rest of my goods &c. to my wife and sons. As touching the disposing of my freehold lands, tenements &c. in the several occupations of my son John Dersley and the said Thomas Hawkins, lying between the tenement of Sir John Winter, in the occupation of John Brady, on the West and a tenement of the Hospital of Si Thomas in Southwark, in the occupation of one Dogget on the East, one third thereof I give to my wife Frances for term of life, in lieu of her dower, and the other two parts I give to my two sons.

And my will and mind is that the assurances of my said freehold lands &c. which are to be made upon the said composition shall be taken in the names of my son Ting and of Mr Syse and Gibbs and others, according to a book and directions already drawn by my counsel to the uses specified in this my will. I make the said Frances my wife sole executrix and my friends Thomas Wright of Ipswich and my brother Robert Risley overseers. And whereas I have demised to Thomas Hawkins a plank yard &c. for which he pays me twenty pounds per annum, I give the said plankeyard w my wife and my two sons. I give to my overseers five pounds apiece, w my sister Bowle forty shillings, to Captain Edward Johnson my watch, to my brother Bowle my seal ring, to my son William Ting and Anne his wife fifty shillings apiece, to Thomasine Humfrey the sawyer's wife twenty shillings. Son Thomas under twenty one. Sadler, 4.

To her four children, vizt Thomas, Dorothy, Robert and Elizabeth Chyld, to every of them thirty shillings, in one year and a half &c. To my brother Robert Johnson's four children, John, Elizabeth, Robert and Katherine Johnson forty pounds, to be equally divided &c. when they shall [have] accomplished their ages of eighteen years apieces To wife Katalyna for her jointure, out of my lands, six score pounds by

Item, I geeue and bequeath unto my sister Susanna Locke's fower children, viz. Ann, Mary, Susanna and Margaret, to every of them the sum of five shillings. To my sister Elizabeth Asquew's two daughters two shillings and six pence apiece. The child my wife now goeth with. To my said wife the household staff which I now possess and was sent down into Kent unto me and my said wife by my mother in law Ann Cole. To her also my brown nag with the side saddle. To my brother in law Alexander Chyld forty shillings to make him a ring. I do in duty which I do beat unto Thomas Johnson, my father, make him my said father, Thomas Johnson, my sole executor, and he shall bestow one hundred pounds upon my funeral and my brother Alexander Child shall help to manage the same business. If my father do happen to depart this life before my child, if it be a man child, do accomplish the age of eighteen years then my brother Edward Johnson shall take and have the executorship.

A codicil added 6 November 1627 (affecting the jointure).

Proved by the father, Thomas Johnson; but on the 8th of June 1630 probate was granted to Edward Johnson, by reason of the death of the father.

WILLIAM LOCK of Wimbledon, Surrey, gent, 10 June 1661, proved 7 June 1664. Certain houses, with their appurtenances, standing and being in the parish of St. Savior's Southwark given and bequeathed by Mr Roger Cole, my father in law, to Susanna, my well beloved wife, and her children. My three eldest daughters, Hannah, Susanna and Margaret, I have bestowed in marriage. I shall leave an estate in land for my son Thomas and by this my will provide for my daughter Elizabeth. To my daughter Sarah Lock five brick tenements and another house, known formerly by the name of the Gaden House, all standing upon the ground given by Mr Roger Cole. To my daughter Jane Locke two houses next the Thames, in the said parish, now or late in the tenure of Mr. Robert Bowes or To my wife Susanna that parcel of land with four brick tenements thereon built, commonly called the Beane Acre, in Lambeth, Surrey, she to give two hundred pounds to my daughter Elizabeth, towards a portion for her. And I also give and bequeath to my wife all other my personal estate &c., she paying my debts and legacies and discharging my funeral; and I make my said wife Susanna full and sole executrix. To the poor of Wimbledon three pounds.

On the margin is written—"7 Junii j664 Recepi testament originat. Su: Lock." (This signature is evidently in her own handwriting).

JANE LOCKE one of the daughters of William Lock, gent, deceased, having one hundred pounds in money at my own dispose, make my last will and testament 19 March 1669, proved 25 October 1670. I give and bequeath the sum of twenty pounds to my dear and honoble mother Mrs. Susanna Lock. I give and bequeath the sum of ten pounds to my brother Mr Thomas Lock. I give and bequeath the sum of twenty pounds to my sister Mrs. Hannah Bragne. I give and bequeath the sum of ten pounds to my sister Mrs. Margaret Willoughby. I give and bequeath the sum of twenty pounds to my sister Mrs Elizabeth Lock. I give and bequeath the sum of five pounds to be divided between the two children of my sister Willoughby, that is to say, to Francis and Susanna fifty shillings apiece. I give to Susannah Lock and Hanna Lock, children of my brother, twenty shillings apiece and also to the children of my sister Stephenson, Susanna and Mary, twenty shillings apiece. I give the sum of five pounds to be paid to some poor, honest people as my brother, Mr Thomas Bragne shall see fit, desiring him to distribute it. I also give the sum of forty shilling to be distributed to the poor of the parish of Wimbledon at the discretion of my executrix. Lastly I give and bequeath the little remainder of my hundred pounds, not herein given, to my dear mother Mrs. Susanna Lock, whom I, with her leave, make full and sole executrix of this my last will and testa-

[The four preceding wills have a value as bearing on the connections of our Deputy Governor, Francis Willoughby. The two Johnson wills may also acquire an additional interest hereafter if we are so lucky as to trace any connection between them and our famous Captain Edward Johnson and Dr. Robert Chyld, who were both men of Kent.

HENRY PEYTON of Lincoln's Inn, Middlesex, Esq. 10 December 1655, proved 6 May 1656. To my faithfully loving and dearly beloved wife Katherine four thousand pounds and the lease of my house wherein I now dwell in Chancery Lane, which I hold of Magdalen College in Oxford, and all my estate, right, title and term of years therein to come, for her better support and livelihood. To my daughter Mary Peyton one thousand pounds at eighteen or day of marriage. To my sons Vallentine, Laurance and John five hundred pounds apiece within four years after my decease. To my sons Sandis Peyton and Charles Peyton eight hundred pounds apiece, to Sandis at six and twenty and to Charles at one and twenty: and my executrix to allow to my son Charles thirty pounds a year for his education and maintenance at school, out of the proceeds of his said portion, until he shall accomplish his said age. To my daughters Margaret Raven and Bridget Humphry a hundred pounds apiece, to buy them and their husbands mourning. To Mistrese Mary Bateman, my wife's sister, one hundred pounds, in one year, but her husband to have nothing to do with it or any part of it To my grand children John Raven, Henry Raven and Edmund Humphry fifty pounds apiece, at eighteen years of age respectively, and to Katherine Humphry, daughter of my said son and daughter Humphry, fifty pounds, at eighteen or day of marriage. To my brother Master William Peyton twenty pounds, to buy him and his son William mourning, and to my cousins William and Henry Peyton, sons of my brother Edmond, ten pounds apiece, to buy them mourning or rings to wear for my sake. The rest of my estate to my wife Katherine, whom I make and ordain to be sole and only executrix.

GILES DAVIS of Chippinge Sodbury, Co. Gloucester, yeoman, 5 January 1640, proved 27 May 1641. Wife Margaret. Two daughters Mary and Anne. My loving father Tobias Davis and loving brother Robert to be executors of my will and guardians of my children. William Ellery one of the witnesses.

[This, I think, is the only will in which I have found the name of Tobias Davis, well known in New England. Understanding that Mr. J. H. Lea was taking notes of the name I gave the reference to him, and called attention to the mention of Tobias as a christian name. Afterwards I learned from him that he could not get any more light on the question of a possible connection of this family with our Roxbury family of Davis. The will of Robert Davis of Little Sodbury was proved 1680 (Bath, 78). In both cases the signature was written Davis, although in the copy of the above will it was written Davies.

PHILIP HAMPSON, citizen and merchant tailor of London, 2 June 1654, proved 4 July 1654. My body to be buried in the parish church of St. Michael Queenhithe London. To Samuel Hampson, my eldest son, one hundred pounds, at twenty one, together with fifty pounds more of the debts now owing me by Sir William Killigrew, if the same debts shall be had and received. To Jonathan, my youngest son, one hundred and twenty pounds at twenty one, and fifty pounds of the same debt &c. Household effects to each.

Item, I give and bequeath unto my daughter Beatrice Josselyne the wife of Abraham Josselyn the sum of five pounds and unto the said Abraham Josselin I give ten shillings and all such debts and sums of money which he oweth me except one of thirty one pounds that he oweth me upon bond. I give and bequeath unto Abraham Josselin and Philip Josselyn my grand children five pounds apiece, to be paid unto them when and as they shall severally and respectively attain unto the age of twenty one years. To my daughter Hannah Philipps twenty shillings and to Hugh Philipps her husband ten shillings and to Hugh Philipps my grandchild five pounds at twenty one. To Anne Webb my wife's kinswoman five pounds at her day of marriage. To my sister Mary Delfe twenty shillings. To my sister in law Elizabeth Talbott twenty shillings. To John and Nicholas Hampson, the two sons of my late brother Richard, ten shillings apiece, if they come and demand it, and to Margaret and Anne daughters of my said late brother Richard twenty shillings apiece. To my brother M' Robert Bedford of Coventry and my friend M' Henry Madocks, dyer, my overseers &c, twenty shillings apiece as a remembrance of my love unto them. The rest to my wife Anne whom I make sole executrix.

[Abraham Josselyn of Hingham, Mass., supposed to be a son of Thomas of the same place, had a wife Beatrice (See Savage's Dictionary). It is not known whether this family is related to Henry Josselyn, "the first and only Royal Chief Magistrate of Maine," whose pedigree with an account of himself will be found in the Register, vol. 40, pp. 290-4.—Editor.]

JOHN FRY of Combe St Nicholas, Somerset, gent, 2 January 1635, proved 20 November 1638. To be buried in the parish church of Combe St Nicholas. The children of my sisters that are now living. My wife Dorothy. My kinsman Robert Chute and Julyan, his wife. My servant John Luffe. Lands in Combe St Nicholas lately purchased of Edward Rossiter, gent, deceased. Brother in law John Richards. Cousin David Yea.

[George Frye of Weymouth, Mass. was from Combe St. Nicholas and March 5, 1673-4, being then about 58 years old, testified in relation to William Torrey and his son Samuel who were of Combe St. Nicholas and came in the same ship with him in 1640. See Suffolk Deeds, viii. 392, and Gleanings in the Register, vol. 45, page 302. John Frye of Newbury and Andover, Mass. from Basing, Hants., who came to New England in the Bevis of Hampton in 1635, is not known to be related to George. A tabular pedigree of his descendants is printed in the Register, vol. 8, pp. 226-7.—Editor.]

Jonas de Peister, born at Ghaunt, at present dwelling at London, son of late Jooas de Peister, also of Gaunte, 5 December 1638, proved 29 December 1638. "Findinge myself weakned with an Ague." Wife to be executrix. Poor of the Dutch Congregation. Poor of the Congregation at Haerlem. My cousin William de Peister that dwelleth with me (at 24). Peter de Peister, brother of William, "because he is sickley." Elizabeth de Key, my niece, daughter of my sister Mary, begotten by Jacob de Key, the son of Michael. George Barker, serving with me. Our daughter Anne. Wife, if with child. At death of child or children and marriage of wife to my right heirs, viz', John, James and Lieuen de Peister the children of Joos de Peister, the children of Mary de Peister. My wife's brothers Peter and Josias Crosse. I most friendly require my brother James and Lieuen de Peyster and first my father in law William Crosse, Mr. Nicholas Corselis, cousin William de Peister and George Barker for to be overseers of this my testament. [Among the names of witnesses was that of George Parker (not Barker). The widow's name not given in Probate Act.]

PRISCILLA HARRIS of Northam, Devon, spinster, 11 January 1650, proved 12 September 1651. The poor of Northam and of Barnestable. I give and bequeath unto my sister Agnes living in New England twenty pounds and to her children thirty pounds, equally to be divided amongst them. My sister Mary Gribble. My dwelling houses in Budporte in Barnstable. My cousin Priscilla Baker. My cousin Bartholomew Strabridge. My brother Richard Harris his daughters. My cousin Rebecca Harris. My sister Philip Greade. My master and mistress Leigh and their son in law Mr. John Berry. My brother in law John Gread and sister Philip his wife. Mr. William Berry and his sister Honor. The rest of their brothers and sisters. Bartholomew Shapton the younger and his two sisters and brother John Shapton. My master William Leigh. Brother Richard Harris to be sole executor.

JOHN COOKE of Sprowston, Norfolk, yeoman, 29 January 1650, proved 13 November 1654. To my wife Elizabeth all my houses and lands in Norwich, which I bought of Erasmus Alesson, clerk, lying and being in the parish of St. George, Colgate; also two closes in Burston for her natural life. To Dorothy wife of Edward Potts of Cambridge all my houses &c. after the decease of my wife Elizabeth, subject to certain legacies. To Elizabeth Parlet wife James Parlitte of Hingham ten pounds, to Anne the wife of Edmund Pitts in New England, if she come to demand it, ten pounds, to Mary Pitcher daughter of Isaac Pitcher the elder, of Hingham, ten pounds and to Sarah (another daughter) ten pounds. To Isaac Jyssoppe (Jessopp?) son of Thomas Jyssoppe the elder my two closes in Burston he to pay to his brother's four eldest children five pounds apiece at eighteen years of age. Wife Elizabeth executrix.

JOHN SMITH of Southwold, Suffolk, gentleman, 4 November 1650, proved 8 February 1650. To John Smith, my eldest son, at his age of four and twenty years, the house called the Lyon in Southwold, he to pay out of it ten pounds apiece to my daughter Anne and my son Robert and to my daughter Mary. My request is Mr. Harrison should give a release of the Lyon according to his promise, otherwise that the two hundred pound bonds due to me from him should be prosecuted for the good of my children. To my daughter Anne, after the decease of my wife, those houses that were lately Webb's and Cockerell's, and my wife shall pay out of those houses three pounds every year during her life to my daughter Anne. To my daughter Phebe the house upon the Common after the decease of my wife. To my son Robert the house in the Lane that was lately Pinne's, after the decease of my wife. To my daughter Mary the house that was lately Mason's after the decease of my wife. To my wife all my movable goods, stock, shipping, for the payment of my debts and for the bringing up of my children. And after her decease my daughter Anne shall have out of the same ten pounds, my daughter Phebe ten pounds, my son Robert twenty pounds and my daughter Mary twenty pounds. I give and bequeath unto my wife a house and all debts in estate in New England during her life, and after her decease to be equally divided amongst my children. To my sister Phebe Smith a gold ring and twenty shillings. I make my wife Hellen Smith executrix and desire Mr Thomas Spurdance my son in law and Mr. William Smith my cousin to be supervisors.

CLAREE THATCHER of Woolsackaller in Hounsditch, St. Buttolph's without Aldgate, London, widow, 9 April 1656, proved 19 April 1656. To my loving sister Mary Langham, wife of Richard Langham, twenty gilders sterling money. To my loving friend and brother in the faith, Anthony Trayford, five pounds of lawful money of England. To my nurse Margery Beale forty shillings. To Elenor Shilcock twenty shillings. To my daughter Sarah Hancocke, wife of Robert Hancock of Amsterdam, silk dyer, the sum of five shillings and no more. All which legacies my desire is shall be paid unto the several and respective legatees aforesaid within six months next after the death or departure out of this mortal life of me the said Claree Thatcher. I give, will and bequeath unto Mary Moody daughter of James Moody of Stepney, mariner, a debt of forty shillings due unto me from her said father. All the rest and residue of my goods &c. to my loving son Humble Thatcher, whom I ordain and make sole executor &c.

[I would suggest that the testatrix of the above will was the widow of Anthony Thatcher referred to by his brother Thomas as "in the Seperation" (see Reg. vol. 47, p. 131). The rather odd name Clarey (Claree), the bequest of twenty "gilders," the reference to a friend as a "Brother in the fayth," and to a son-in-law as "of Amsterdam," all seem to show this. Let me say, too, that I have had the references to those Thatcher wills already printed, for nearly ten years, and only refrained from publishing them long ago for the reason that I felt so extremely doubtful as to the identity of Anthony Thatcher. I could not believe that the Anthony Thatcher who was "in the Separation" was our man who was wrecked off Cape Ann.

JOHN BURTON of London, gent, 7 December 1626, proved 23 June 1627. I give and bequeath my manor of Barons in Essex and all messuages, lands, tenements &c. thereunto belonging, situate in the parishes of Purleigh and Haseley, Essex, unto my son William Burton for life, and then to the heirs male and female of his body &c., next to John Russell &c., then to Henry Rawlinson, clerk &c. And for default of such issue &c. I give the half part of the said manor, messuages, lands &c. to the Company of Vintners, and their successors forever; and the other moiety I give and bequeath for and towards a yearly maintenance of such preachers which shall from time to time preach at "Powles Crosse" London, and also for a yearly maintenance of the poor of St. Brides als Bridget, London, equally to be divided. Other bequests to son William (including a messuage or tenement called the Three Tuns, on the Bankside, Surrey). Also my sword and inlaid musket and bandileers and my horsemans pistol and all my Latin and French books, together with my Prayer book which my father left unto me as my whole legacy. To wife Elizabeth my lease of certain tenements on the millbank at Westminster, and of a lease of certain cellars under the long Armory in Milk Street (and other property). To my brother in law William Handcorne five pounds (for a ring) and to his two daughters twenty pounds apiece, at sixteen or days of marriage. The Company of the Vintners ten pounds to buy them a cup in form of a Tun, with a burr on the top of it.

Item, I do give and bequeath unto the Knot of my cousins, viz' Mr. Henry Fryer, Mr. Windevor, Mr. Mavericke, Mr. Symon Younge, Mr. John Burton in Gracious Street, London, Mr. Paul Chapman, Mr. Thomas Wentworth, Mr. Walter Meeke, Mr. Lowe, Mr. Haughfen, Mr. Richard Hewlett, Mr. Carre Coventry, Mr. Richard March and Mr. Andrew Burton, four pounds to pay for a supper for them to meet together. To every one of my said cousins ten shillings apiece to buy them bandstring rings to wear in remembrance of me. Two hundred pounds to the said John Russell if he live to the age of one and twenty years. To Mr. Felix Wilson of the White Friers, London, forty shillings (for a ring); also to Mr. George Vernon and his wife. My wife's now daughter by her former husband. My son William to be sole executor and the said Mr. Henry Fryer, Mr. Felix Wilson, Mr. Edward Wendover, Mr. Symon Younge citizen and embroider of London, Mr. John Lane of London haberdasher, Mr. Andrew Burton of Gray's Inn and Mr. Thomas Wentworth the younger overseers.

Commission issued 23 June 1627 to Elizabeth Burton the relict to administer during the minority of the executor, who took upon himself the executorship 22 May 1640.

Moses Maverick, on board the good ship Phæneas and Margaret, 6 January 1678-9, at 9 or thereabouts of the clock at night, proved 23 July 1679, by Elizabeth Downing als Dunning. To my landlady M" Elizabeth Downing the sum I owe her (seven pounds eight shillings), and a ring of the value of one "Ackye" and a half. To M' Thomas Nelson the sum of two pounds I owe him and a ring of two "Ackyes" and a half. A ring of tame value each to M" Deale and her two daughters. To my father and mother, brothers and sisters, each of them, one ring of the value of one "Acky" and a halfe. To every officer in this said ship Phineas and Margaret a ring of the value of two "Ackyes" and a half. To Mrs Ligh two tings of that value. To Robert Hall one ring of the value of two "Ackyes." Upon sundry occasions to myself best known I make my landlady Elizabeth Downing my heir and executrix and to see this will performed within ten lays of the arrival of the ship at London.

JOHN LOWERS of Darnth, Kent, husbandman, 8 June 1645 proved 5 February 1650. I give and bequeath unto Thomas Lowers half my part of Roxly Wood, which I hold, and my sister Scudder and Henry Scudder her son, of M' Bugings in lease, paying yearly for that part the sum of four bounds ten shillings during the full term thereof. To my sister Scudder's tons, Thomas, Henry, William and John Scudder, twenty shillings apiece and to her two daughters, Elizabeth and Martha Scudder, ten shillings apiece, to be paid within one year after my decease by my executor. To my cousin Thomas Lowers twenty shillings within one year &c. Wife Mary to be full executor and John Umphrey of Darnth yeoman and Thomas Lowers of Dartford husbandman to be overseers.

Grey, 27.

[Since our Thomas Scudder of Salem (1648) had children named John, Thomas, Henry, William and Elizabeth, I can not but think I have found traces of his family in the above will. If that should turn out to be correct, the following will should also be saved.

H. F. W.]

November 1607. My body to be buried "solempely," according to the custom of the church of England, within the parish churchyard of Darenthe, as near as may be unto my father's grave. To wife Margery all my lands and tenements whatsoever and whereever, during only her natural life. After that to Parnell Scoodder, my eldest daughter, my lands in Dartford and Wilmington now in the tenure &c. of James Pinden, with remainder to Mary Scudder, my youngest daughter. To my two next daughters, Margaret and Joane Scudder, my messuage of tenement called Frog Lane (with mault houses &c. belonging), now in the tenure of John Ellis &c. in Sutton at Hone. To daughter Mary a parcel of land called Pricles Meade (six acres or more) in Sutton at Hone, with remainder to Parnell, my eldest daughter. And if they two both happen to die without issue &c. then to my other two daughters. If all my four daughters shall happen to die without heirs of their bodies lawfully begotten then I give Parnell's Portion to Henry Scudder, son of John Scudder, my natural brother decised, and to his heirs forever. The lands and tenements bequeathed my Margaret and Joane I then give to Henry and Thomas Scudder, sons of my natural brother Henry Scudder deceased, equally to be divided. The land bequeathed to Mary I give to John Scudder, the son of Henry Scudder my natural brother deceased &c. To my eldest daughter, Parnell, one hundred and twenty pounds. To my second daughter, Margaret, fifty pounds. To my third daughter Joane fifty pounds. To my fourth daughter, Mary, one hundred pounds. These to be paid at their respective ages of one and twenty years or days of marriage. To Judith West daughter of Will: West six pounds at age of eighteen. If she die before that then three pounds of it to Thomas Austyn of Darenthe and the other three pounds to my executrix. To John Johnson the elder ten shillings; to John Johnson the younger twenty shillings; both of the parish of Wilmington. To the children of Will: Gascoine begotten of his wife Bridget Walter twenty shillings. To the poor of Darenthe twenty shillings, of Sutton at Hone ten shillings and of Horton Kyrby ten shillings. The rest to Margerie my wife, whom I ordain full and sole executrix &c., desiring and entreating my trusty and well beloved cousins and neighbors Robert Walter, John Humfrey and Thomas Scudder to be overseers and assisters &c., and, for their care &c., I give them twenty shillings apiece.

Hudleston, 85.

HENRY ATKINS (without date) proved 6 November 1630. To my nico Margaret Wildon sixty pounds at the one and twentieth year of her age, and if it please God to call her out of this life before she come to age it is my will that the said legacy be given to my nephew George Wildon, her brother. To my nephew George twenty pounds at one and twenty, and if he die before he attain to those years my will is that it be given to my nicos Margaret Wildon his sister. To Jane Pate ten pounds. To the three under cooks in the kitchen, to each of them ten shillings. Small bequests to M' Ralph Catlyn, M' Francis Patrick, Mr. George Neale, Gilbert the butler and Elizabeth Kemball. To the poor of Northampton ten shillings. To Edward Lawrence one silver porringer and one silver spoon. To Mrs. Elizabeth Mewce two silver dishes, two saucers, one silver bowl, one silver gilt salt, five spoons, one down bed, one down bolster, one down pillow, one pair of Holland sheets, one Holland pillow beer. I give to Mrs. Francis Washington the sum of twenty pounds. To William, the Keeper of Althorpe Park, my bedfellow, forty shillings. To Edward, Mr. Mewce his man, ten shillings. To William, Mr. Mewce his man, ten shillings. And I make my loving and worthy friend Mr. Francis Mewce my sole executor.

These words were spoken by the Testator the night before his death, while he was in perfect memory &c.

MEMOIR OF JEREMIAH COLBURN, A.M.

By the Editor of the REGISTER.

JEREMIAH COLBURN was born in the town of Boston, Massachusetts, January 12, 1815. His father was Calvin Colburn, a native of Leominster, Mass., whose father, Nathan Colburn, was a soldier in the war of the Revolution. His mother's maiden name was Catharine Sybil Lakin. She was the youngest child of Isaac and Mary (Lawrence) Lakin, and was born at Groton, Mass., May 20, 1780. They were married at Groton, April 20, 1800.

Mr. Colburn received his education at the public schools of his native town. His first attendance was at a primary school in 1820, when he was five years old. He continued in the primary and grammar schools till the year 1830. Among the schools which he attended were the Bowdoin in Derne street, and the Mayhew in Harking attents.

Soon after leaving school he became a clerk in the store of Seth J. Thomas, a dealer in hats, at No. 60 Washington street, on the eastern side, a few doors north of State street. As a clerk he made himself useful, was attentive to his duties, and endeavored to acquire a thorough knowledge of the business. In the year 1840, Mr. Thomas gave up his business to engage in other pursuits, and Mr. Colburn, then a young man of twenty-five years, succeeded him. He was strictly honest in his dealings, and made it for the interest of purchasers to trade with him. They found that he consulted their interests as well as his own. They became friends as well as customers. He carried on the business successfully for over twelve years.

On the 8th of March, 1853, Mr. Colburn was appointed by President Franklin Pierce one of the United States Appraisers in the Custom House for the port of Boston. Accepting the office, he gave up his business to attend to it, and entered at once on its duties, performing them with scrupulous fidelity. He won the confidence of the merchants of Boston who had dealings with him, as well as that of his fellow officials. He was faithful to his trust, but performed his duties in a courteous and conciliatory manner.

He retired from the office in June, 1861. After this he engaged in no regular business, but spent much of his time in literary and antiquarian pursuits.

He early developed a taste for collecting coins, minerals and shells. The "Cyclopædia of American Literature" says of him:

At the age of fifteen he began to form a collection of coins, which was, at first, as might be expected, of a miscellaneous character. Subsequently, without abandoning his former pursuit, he turned his attention to minerals and shells, and lastly to books, autographs, manuscripts, portraits and engravings relating to America, including colonial and continental money, supplemented by early and recent issues of paper tokens, from one penny upwards. At the suggestion of Joseph G. Morris of Philadelphia, who was lost at sea in the steamer "Arctic" on her passage from Liverpool in 1854, he began a collection of bank notes, including those of broken banks and the counterfeit bills of the period, his friend believing the day to be not far distant when paper money would be among the things of the past, or at least of great rarity.*

His collection of coins and medals in 1863, after spending a third of a century in gathering it, had become extensive and valuable. It included some of the finest and rarest of early American coins. Of Greek and Roman coins he had also a valuable collection. His medals included some of the rarest specimens, and those of the most elaborate workmanship. In that year Mr. Colburn disposed of a large proportion of his collection. He retained, however, many choice pieces, to which from time to time he made additions.

The gathering of these coins and medals was a good school for him, as he was thereby led to study the history of the nations by which they were struck, and particularly of his own country. He acquainted himself with the leading events commemorated by the coins of Greece and Rome. The faces of the old emperors, as portrayed by their mint-masters, became familiar to him. The medals and coins of the mother country led him to study her annals, and the leading events in the lives of her heroes and statesmen, especially as related to his favorite science.

His library of historical books and pamphlets relating to America was large, but his collection of autographs and prints was more remarkable. It was especially rich in American specimens, and was very valuable in a historical point of view.

Mr. Colburn became an expert in the subject of his studies, and was looked upon as an authority on the rarity and value of coins and medals. His opinion was also sought as to the value of autographs, historical documents and rare Americana. This was cheerfully given, and as he made no pretence to knowledge which he did not possess, his opinion could safely be relied on. He knew either personally or by correspondence the most eminent collectors.

In 1860, he and some of his friends interested in numismatics associated themselves together for the study of that science, and took the name of the Boston Numismatic Society. The society was organized March 3, 1860. Winslow Lewis, M.D., was chosen the president, and Mr. Colburn the vice-president. In 1865 Dr. Lewis resigned, and Mr. Colburn was elected president. He held this office over a quarter of a century till his death, when he was succeeded as president by the Hon. Samuel Abbott Green, M.D., who now holds the position.

In the spring of 1870 he was one of a committee of the Boston Numismatic Society to assume the publication of the American Journal of Numismatics. This periodical had been begun by the American Numismatic and Archæological Society of New York city, and till this time had been published by that society. The Journal had then been published four years, the first number bearing the date of May, 1866. The work was originally issued as The American Journal of Numismatics and Bulletin of the American Numismatic and Archaeological Society. In May, 1869, the sub-title was changed to Bulletin of American Numismatic and Archaeological Societies. While issued by the projectors and original publishers four volumes were completed. They then relinquished it to the committee above named, which consisted of three persons. Mr. Colburn's associates were William Sumner Appleton, A.M., and Samuel Abbott Green, M.D. They continued the publication for twenty-one years, their first issue being dated July, 1870, and their last April, 1891. Mr. Colburn was the business manager as well as one of the editorial committee. It was by his persistent energy and industry that the Journal was able to be issued so regularly for that long period of time.*

The twenty-one volumes of the Journal issued under Mr. Colburn's charge are a monument of his zeal and devotion to the science. The Journal, both before and after his connection with it, has been a very useful periodical. It has been, and remains, a medium of inter-communication for the many collectors scattered throughout this country, and has brought their writings to the attention of the numismatists of Europe. It has advanced the study of numismatics by bringing out able articles from the pens of specialists, and by collecting a mass of valuable matter illustrating the various phases of a science which numbers so many learned men among its disciples. A writer in the REGISTER for July, 1871, speaks of the Journal as of the highest authority in its department, and adds: "It aims to impart elevation and dignity to the study of coins and medals, by giving due prominence to their historical character and value."* It has given special attention to descriptions of medals, particularly those relating to American history, including lists of Washington, Franklin, Lincoln and other personal medals; while its catalogues of Canadian, Masonic and Medical medals are frequently referred to by collectors in this country and abroad. Some of these were undertaken at Mr. Colburn's suggestion, and all with his hearty sympathy.

In January, 1857, the Historical Magazine, a monthly periodical devoted to the antiquities, history and biography of America, was commenced in Boston, and Mr. Colburn was an early contributor to its pages. At the request of the writer of this memoir, who was the editor of the magazine, he prepared for it a number of articles on American coins and coinage. These were supplemented by valuable historical documents drawn from his rare collection of autographs and other manuscripts. For several years he furnished short articles for the department of "Notes and Queries," which were highly appreciated.

On the 4th of November, 1857, he was elected a resident member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and took an active part in its affairs. He served on the committee on finance from 1859 to 1862, on the library committee from 1862 to 1877, and on the committee on publication from 1874 to 1889. He was chairman of the committees on finance and the library. For twenty-seven years, from 1862 to 1889, he was a member of the board of directors, whose duty was to conduct the prudential and executive business of the Society. He was a member of the Register Club during the whole period of its existence, from 1865 to 1874. This Club for ten years bore the financial responsibility of publishing the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register.

He was a contributor to the Register for more than a quarter of a century, and many valuable articles by him appear in its pages. "In 1866," says Duyckinck's Cyclopædia of American Literature, "at the request of the Rev. Elias Nason, then editor of the Register, and other fellow members of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, he commenced the compilation of a catalogue of works on the local history of Massachusetts, which was published in successive numbers of the Register, and was subsequently issued in a royal octavo volume of 119 pages, under the title of "Bibliography of the Local History of Massachusetts."† The first number of this series appeared in the Register for January, 1867, and the last in that for April, 1871. Finding that the work proved a great aid to those investigating the history of the state and its several towns, Mr. Colburn began collecting materials for a new and much enlarged edition of the work, but he did not find time to prepare it

He was one of the founders of the Prince Society, organized in 1858, whose object is the "preserving and extending the knowledge of American history, by editing and printing such manuscripts, rare tracts and volumes as are mostly confined in their use to historical students and public libraries." The Rev. Dr. Slafter thus speaks of the advantages of such a society:

Every careful historical student is fully aware that there exists in this country and in England a mass of matter in the form of legal documents, charters, tracts and letters, which are inaccessible, or of very great rarity, but nevertheless indispensable to a correct knowledge of our early history. While these papers are scattered, and some of them perhaps unknown, they are not only liable, but pretty sure to be overlooked, and in consequence the historian is equally sure to fall into error. It is the object of this society to collect together these papers, fragments of a complete whole, and print them in volumes, carefully and fully annotated, so that the historical student may have the whole subject before him at once.*

Samuel G. Drake, A.M., the historian, of Boston, was chosen the first president. Mr. Colburn was chosen a vice-president, and held the office from 1859 to 1863, when he was chosen treasurer. This office he held till 1873, when he resigned. He was the publishing committee for the second volume issued by the society, namely, Wood's New-England's Prospect, a foolscap quarto of 131 pages. Mr. Colburn lived to see twenty volumes of the society's publications issued, and several others in preparation by competent editors.

He was one of those who met in 1879, by invitation of Mr. Whitmore, to form the "Boston Antiquarian Club." He continued a member of this Club till its dissolution in December, 1881, a new association called the "Bostonian Society" having been formed under its auspices by the members. Of this society, whose object is "to promote the study of the history of Boston, and the preservation of its antiquities," he was an original member. The government of the city of Boston in 1882 placed the control of the Council Chamber and the Hall of Representatives in the Old State House in the custody of this society. The society took possession of these halls in June, 1882, with appropriate ceremonies. It has gathered within those historic walls a remarkable collection of articles illustrating the history of this city. Mr. Colburn was a life member of this society, and a liberal contributor to its treasures.

Mr. Colburn was either an honorary or a corresponding member of the following state Historical Societies, and probably of others: Virginia, New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. He was a corresponding member of the Numismatic and Antiquarian Society of Philadelphia, and was elected an honorary member of the American Numismatic and Archæological Society of New York, Dec. 23, 1867. He was also honored by an election as "Foreign Associate" (Associe étranger) of the Royal Belgian Numismatic Society. In 1869 Williams College conferred upon him the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

We do not know the politics of Mr. Colburn's father, but his employer, Mr. Thomas, was a democrat, and numbered among his intimate friends most of the leading democrats of the state. Mr. Colburn when a boy saw much of them, and secured their friendship and regard. He became a firm and zealous believer in the principles of the democratic party as interpreted by the supporters of Gen. Jackson, and held them with tenacity to the close of his life. But he was never a bigoted partizan, and many of his political opponents were his personal friends. He studied and became familiar with the politics of the country, state and town. He had a fund of anecdotes of prominent politicians in the middle of the present century with whom he was acquainted, and it was interesting and instructive to listen to his reminiscences.

Mr. Colburn was a keen observer of men and manners, and the events of his earlier years were firmly impressed in his memory. His recollections of the Boston of former days were extremely vivid. and he often entertained his hearers with descriptions of the customs which prevailed when he was a boy and young man. He could describe the celebrities with rare skill, and place them and their peculiarities distinctly before your eyes.

The biography of Jeremiah Colburn may be written in a few words, yet much good may be said of him. I knew him from his boyhood to his death. He had no place with the conspicuous. He was not an orator who tried to persuade others of what he did not believe; nor a general whose merit was that he never fought a battle; nor a politician whose success was better than his cause; nor an inventor who obtained many patents for what was not useful. He did not travel much. He neither sailed to the North pole nor under the Southern cross; but he early sought wisdom and found it right here at home. He was honest in the bone. In act and speech he was sincere. His nature was kindly. He loved his friends, and he had not an enemy on the earth. With his other getting he got understanding. His insight was clear. He saw virtue in riches honestly acquired, and he got rich honestly. He cared for his widowed mother and his younger and dependent brother, and they called him blessed. He lived frugally and soberly. He saved a part of what he earned. He was careful in his investments. He was fond of art, of paintings, statuary, and good books. He was acquainted with ancient coins. He loved whatever was loveable, and the most loveable he loved most. His home was beautiful; his grounds charming, and his house a pattern of elegance and refinement. If one asked, how is it that one with so small an income became rich, the answer was: He saved every year a part of what he earned. This was all the secret of his wealth. As an appraiser in the Customs his salary was only two thousand dollars a year. Appointed under the administration of President Pierce, he held that place eight years, and was removed early in the administration of President Lincoln. As an appraiser he was attentive, intelligent, impartial and just, and always a gentleman; but the exigencies of party, and not unfitness, were supposed to require his removal. He took no pains to retain his place, but left to those who deny all belief in the theory that the spoils belong to the victors, to practice it, nevertheless, without complaint, upon him; since, although he never believed in that theory himself, he did believe, as a man of sense, that an administration, to be successful, is entitled to have its friends in positions to aid it.

One morning, unexpectedly to others, but not so to him, he departed. Whither? Dr. Brown-Séquard said to me, "There is nothing vital which is not material." "Well," said I, "suppose that be so, is there nothing material which is not visible?" Dr. Brown-Séquard was in a hurry and did not wait to answer. But I ask: Who has analyzed the human mind on its way to God? I am of the year 1807, and I suppose I know as much about this matter as most men. I cannot say that I know, but I believe; and that, I suppose, must suffice to me. But I also believe a day will come when men will know. It was once said: "The wind bloweth where it listeth; we hear the sound thereof, but cannot tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth." But now we know that the wind does not blow where it listeth, but is governed by a law; and we can tell from whence it cometh and whither it goeth, and how fast it goes; and since it is not uncommon to infer more than is proved, I think it is not unwise to believe in the existence of more than we can see. That is my case. I commend the thought to others.

The Hon. Samuel Abbott Green, M. D., formerly mayor of Boston, farnishes these reminiscences:

My acquaintance with Mr. Colburn began, nearly fifty years ago, at Groton, of which town his mother was a native, and where, too, he had a married sister (Mrs. Woolley) then living. I was considerably his junior in age, but I remember well the kindly interest he took at that time in my boyish tastes. Later I used to meet him often, during my college days, at the shop of John Warren, an elderly Englishman, who was a conchologist, of some local note, and the author of a little book on Shells. Mr. Warren's place of business was in School Street, and, besides specimens in his particular line, he kept for sale coins, autographs, engravings, and Indian relics; and here my further acquaintance with Mr. Colburn was continued, which lasted without interruption till the day of his death. During this long period our relations were often close, and at no time was there ever a shadow of difference or dispute between us. In all our dealings together I was impressed with his strict integrity and honesty of purpose, and I felt that his decision in the various matters with which we both were connected, was correct and final. He had also a kindliness of disposition, which was continually asserting itself; and he never was so happy as when doing a favor for a friend, which he always did in such a way as to leave the mpression that he himself was the person under obligation.

Mr. Colburn was a born "collector" and a true antiquary. He did not gather his treasures and then hoard them, but always tried to place them where they would be appreciated, and where they naturally and rightfully belonged. If he had an autograph or an engraving of special interest to anybody else, he was almost sure to give it away to such a person. He ever kept in mind the golden rule of doing unto others as he would have them do unto him, which after all is the true test of a gentleman.

George A. Gordon, A.M., of Somerville, Mass., recording secretary of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, writes of him as follows:

Mr. Colburn was city bred, and his urbane politeness was a marked feature in his character. Genial and hospitable, the same entertaining welcome was extended to all. A North-end boy and youth, his memory retained in vivid recollection not only the principal events in Boston's entire history as a city, but could reproduce in clear descriptive portraiture the chief citizens, locate their homes and their places of business. Gifted largely with the antiquarian spirit, he collected widely, and became an authority on manuscripts, autographs, coins and other memorials of the past. Mr. Colburn was no aristocrat. His ancestry had been upon Massachusetts soil since 1635, out of which they had earned comfortable and honorable living by industrious, personal toil. They subdued the wilderness, fought the Indian, the French and the British, with zeal and effort to advance popular liberty, but without malignity. Devotedly attached to his native city and state, he viewed with abhorrence the fanatical zeal which shaded the glorious events in their histories, undermined the sacredness of public obligations, and corrupted the generous impulses of the people.

John S. H. Fogg, M.D. of South Boston, who shares Mr. Colburn's tastes, says in a brief note received since this memoir was written:

He was one of the very few men whom I have met in my life-time in whom I felt that I could confide without reserve. I always felt that my reputation and character would find in him a vigorous defender, if attacked in my absence. He was the same true friend behind my back as before my face.

Mr. Colburn died at the Copley Square Hotel, Boston, where he was temporarily residing, on Wednesday, December 30, 1891, in his 77th year. A biographical sketch was printed in the American Journal of Numismatics for January, 1892. This sketch was reprinted in pamphlet form. An obituary of him appeared also in the Revue Belge Numismatique, published at Brussels, the second number

He married April 30, 1846, Miss Eliza Ann Blackman, daughter of Mr. John Blackman of Dorchester, a descendant of John Blackman who settled in Dorchester in 1654, and bailiff of that town in 1662. Her mother's maiden name was Eliza Thurston Pollard. Mr. Blackman died when his daughter was a young girl, and his widow married Mr. Edward Asa Raymond of Boston, who died at Brookline, August 1, 1864. Mrs. Raymond, the mother of Mrs. Colburn, died in that town August 24, 1891. Mr. and Mrs. Colburn had one son, John Blackman Colburn, who died an infant March 19, 1849. Mrs. Colburn survives her husband, and is living on Longwood Avenue, Brookline.

Mr. Colburn was an honest and upright man in every respect, as was shown in all his business transactions. He had generous impulses and was ever ready to aid those whom he believed were deserving of his assistance. His keen common sense and knowledge of human nature, however, prevented him from being a dupe of designing men. He was a man of strong attachments and always loyal to his friends. He was much consulted by persons in search of facts relating to family or local history and other antiquarian subjects, and at all times his services were readily and cheerfully given. His charming manners and agreeable ways will long be remembered, and his loss felt in many circles. In his death a gentleman of the old school passed away.

Row 10.

A raised tomb of coquina — one of the blocks forming its roof broken from place. Against this tomb there is an old and large sized cleander. No inscription.

George Bartlett, a native of the State of New Hampshire — and a member of the fraternity of Ancient York Masons — who died in the city of St. Augustine, of which he had been for ten years a respected inhabitant, on the 29th of June, Anno Domini, 1844, aged 40 years. This tribute placed over his sleep'g remains by his bereaved and affectionate mother, Martha P. Bartlett.

A broad horizontal marble slab on a coquina base - 24 inches high.

Lillie S. Johnson, died Aug. 8, 1879, aged 4 years. Wooden head and footboard enclosed within a paling fence.

An oblong cement block, covering perhaps a child's grave — without inscription — to the eastward of the Carpenter grave.

East of the centre of the Dummett-Madison lot of Row 11 there stands a water oak, 14 or 15 inches in diameter, and 8 feet eastward of it the centre of a depression, 4 feet across and 8 or 10 inches below the surface. East of the north line of the D.-M. lot a youngish cedar, with a group of lilies at its base, and 7 feet still further east a large magnolia grandiflors with a trunk 18 inches thick near the base, and in a circle around this narcissi or jonquils. Here we have, without doubt, one or two graves without other mark. The magnolia is 10 or 12 feet slightly east of north of the oblong cement block.

East of the mound, north of the W<sup>m</sup> Thomas, Jr., grave, there is a wooden headboard, but the inscription is absent.

and respectable trade of cooper. The artist has not, however, delineated him with his adze and drawshave as pictorial accessories to aid in the counterfeit presentment of the man and his occupation, but the instrument in his hands is an instrument of death. It is to hew down the enemies of the millenium, and not to shape barrel staves; for whatever he may have been here as a citizen and a theologian, it is certain that, after he left us, he developed certain qualities of belief which made him, for a brief space, the terror and the talk of London.

s Venner first appears in New England at Salem, and was to the church there 25 February, 1637-8, and became a xLVII. 38

freeman the next month.* He was a juryman 1638 and 1640,+ and was sworn as a constable the "10 of 6 mo., 1642." He had a lot of forty acres in the town, and pursued there the trade of cooper,§ but early evinced that restless religious spirit which was so conspicuous in his later career. Felt says that "he endeavored, as the head of a company, to persuade others to leave Massachusetts for Providence, Bahama Islands, to sustain the churches there." | What was the moving cause of his departure from Salem does not appear. Perhaps, finding himself in the ecclesiastical frying pan at Salem, he had the temerity to tempt the puritanical fire at Boston, into which he jumped about 1644, and from thence he may be found at his "new house" on the water front, on land purchased of Edward Tyng, near the present Custom House at the foot of State street. He describes his house as a "mansion sixty-two foot long and twenty foote wide" on the "high street." \ He became a member of the Artillery Company in 1645,** where he perhaps gained his first knowledge of the art of warfare which he put into execution sixteen years later. Nothing of record appears worthy of note for some years concerning him, except as an occasional witness to deeds, or the bringing of a child to baptism. He pursued his vocation of cooper, and doubtless provided the barrels for the brewery of Edward Tyng, his landlord and next neighbor. On October 18, 1648, "Thomas Venuer, John Mileham, Samuel Bedfield, James Mattuck, Willi: Cutter, Bartholo: Barlow, and the rest of the coopers of Boston & Charlestowne," were granted leave to "meete together" for the purpose of incorporating themselves into a guild for mutual protection and for the benefit of the public, and to prevent abuses in trade. This act was to remain in force three years unless sooner terminated. + The recital of his name at the head of the list is a recognition of his leadership among the coopers, and not an accidental priority, for he was, as subsequent events showed, a leader of men. He remained in Boston three years longer, but from an entry in the First Church records, as late as 1649, he was still held aloof from church membership, being called "from the church of Salem." t Undoubtedly the Boston brethren had known of Venner's schismatic tendencies in Salem, and were not anxious to become sponsors for him in Boston. It may be supposed that he found himself among an unsympathetic people, and failing to leaven or be leavened, he threw down his tools and left us for good. The date of his final hegira is determined by the following document: §§

This document was dated 12 October, 1651, and the General Court then in session took the following action upon the petition two days later:

"In answer to the petition of Thomas Venner, for the hearinge of a case betweene M<sup>r</sup> Gayner & himselfe, that so he be not hindred in his voyage, but have both himself & shipp cleared, it (is) ordered, that the s<sup>d</sup> shippe be freed, & y<sup>t</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Venner, or whom else it concernes, give in securitie of one hundred pound to the county court, to be responsall to answer M<sup>r</sup> Gayner in the action in a court of justice."*

And so Master Venner, in October, 1651, sailed away to England. The General Court said of him some years later, "Venner (not to say whence he came to us) went out from us because he was not of us."+ Probably his talents were not appreciated here, and after his arrival in England no sound of him is heard in London for five years more, when a deed recorded in our registry describes him as a "cooper" still, from which we are to infer the industrious pursuit of his work among barrels, casks and tuns in the English capital. But this peaceful situation is not for long. In 1657 he had, by gradual force of his strong character, attained leadership in a band of fanatical religionists worshipping in a "conventicle" in Coleman street in the great metropolis. They called themselves "Fifth Monarchy Men," or were so described by the writers of the period, because they held the belief that the four great kingdoms, Assyrian, Persian, Macedonian and Roman, which had successively possessed the dominions of earth, had passed away, and that their duty was to proclaim and establish the new Kingdom of Christ upon earth, or the Millenium, according to the mystical chapters in the Book of Revelation. Venner preached this doctrine to his followers and roused them to a pitch of frenzy by his fiery zeal for this fantastic doctrine. To such an extent did he carry his denunciations of the Protector and his government, that he began to be taken seriously, and after a publication of the intentions of his party in a printed pamphlet, Cromwell had him arrested as a conspirator against the peace of the Commonwealth. At this time Royalist plots for restoration were being exploited, and it was deemed advisable to stop any fomentations of whatever character in their incipiency. Rev. William Hooke, in a letter to John Winthrop, Jr., dated 13 April, 1657, thus describes the incident:

"The other conspiracy was discovered the last week. It was carried on by tumultuous, outrageous, discontented men, pretending to fifth monarchy, but discovering in their declaration (which is in print) a bloody spirit, though under a specious shew. Some of them were lately apprehended as they were praying, ready to set forward in a hostile manner to gather together in a body, having accordingly furnished themselves. In this design, one Vennour, not long since dwelling in your Boston, a wine cooper, is a principal actor, who, being brought before the protector, spoke and behaved himself with as great impudence, insolence, pride and railing as (I think) you ever heard of."*

Probably Venner was not judicially tried, as no record of it has been found by me. Cromwell, who had been dealing with ecclesiastical and political "cranks" for many years, doubtless saw in this cooper's visionary "railing" the evidence of a mild religious mania rather than a royalist conspiracy, and Venner presumably escaped with a few morsels of friendly warning from "Ironsides." events, this interview served to keep Mr. Venner and his followers quiet for three years, during which time the great Oliver was followed by the little Richard, and he in turn by the motley cabal which finally invited Charles Stuart to resume the throne of his ancestors. It was a period of political, moral and social unrest, and such seasons always develop or afford the opportunity for monstrous doctrines of every kind to develop in all their virulence. It gave an opportunity for Venner to display himself once more at the head of his little band of Coleman street conventiclers, and he held up to them in his public address that the restoration of the Merry Monarch was a distinct elevation of an Antichrist. This time he led them to their fatal "Dance of Death." About the first of January, 1661, the Fifth Monarchists had been approaching a climax. Venner was preaching with unrestrained license amid fasting and prayer, and they determined to follow his campaign by going forth armed and proclaiming the establishment of the Kingdom of Jesus, and killing those who made any resistance to their programme. They sallied forth about midnight of the 6th, less than half a hundred in number, though from the noise they made, the damage they did to life and limb, and their faculty of ubiquitousness, Pepys thought they numbered "at least 500."* Their war cry was, "Live King Jesus," and following a banner bearing the motto, "For the Lord God and Gideon," they rapidly rushed from street to street, interspersing their war cry with shouts of "Their heads upon the gates!" This startling cry, together with the manner and temper of the men, had what seems now an absurd effect. Everybody fled from before the vicious band. The stupid old night watchmen, with their lanterns on poles to light the dingy streets, abandoned their beats to the shouting crew. One unfortunate person, wending his way homeward, was pounced upon and questioned as to his allegiance, and replied, "I am for God and King Charles." + The Coleman street crew proceeded to establish the Millenium by murdering the man instantly; and so on they went in their fanatical career, killing innocent citizens during their mad rush towards the city walls. London was taken by surprise, and before it could be aroused to resistance half a dozen of its inhabitants were murdered by Venner and his followers. The Fifth Monarchists had now a reason for their faith that Christ was their invisible leader and would suffer them no harm, for as yet they had not lost a drop of blood. But they did not gather reinforcements as expected, and finding that the train-bands were being assembled to meet them, Venner retreated in good order through Highgate to Caen wood, then a dense forest without the city walls, near Hampstead. That day and the next the Lord Mayor, Sir Richard Browne, marched about the city at the head of the municipal troops and volunteers to the number of 40,000, and failing to find them pulled down the meeting house in Coleman street. Meanwhile the "Fanatiques," as Pepys calls them, were planning fresh onslaughts in the security of Caen wood. They did not emerge till the early hours of the 9th, when a general alarm was sounded. Pepys says, "I rose and went forth, where in the street I found everybody in arms at the doors." He provided himself with a pistol and strolled down to the Exchange with a friend, and learned that these "rogues" had killed about a dozen more people during their sally into the city that morning, and had "put the King's life-guards to the run" and spread consternation throughout the entire collection of train-bands. "The shops shut and all things in trouble," writes the diarist. The King was absent in Portsmouth escorting his mother and sister to their embarkation for France, and the military management of the riot fell to the Duke of Albemarle, but it is not probable that Charles would lave handled the matter with greater vigor. Again on the 10th hese insane men broke through the city gates for the second time, and started out anew on their bloody work. They traversed nearly every street of the great metropolis, defending themselves with coolness and bravery, but were finally overwhelmed by numbers and were driven from street to street till they took their last stand in a house which they had entered in their desperation.* The Lord Mayor, at the head of the city militia, did not approve of the plan of firing in upon them, perhaps because of the innocent inmates who would be the victims of such a course. "At last one Lambert, a seaman, persuaded some of them to follow him and get up on the top of the house,"+ and after untiling the roof they "forced an entry that way." No quarter was asked or given. Venner, who was described as a powerful man, fought like a fiend incarnate, killing many before he fell exhausted with no fewer than nineteen wounds. It was with great difficulty that he was kept alive for the punishment that was shortly after meted out to him. When these desperadoes were all killed or disarmed they were counted, and numbered thirty-one! "A thing that never was heard of," says Pepys, "that so few men should dare and do so much." The formality of a trial was accorded them immediately, and under due process of law they were arraigned for murder and treason. From a contemporary tract the following account of the legal proceedings sufficiently describes their trial:

"On Thursday (January 17) twenty of the prisoners taken in arms were arraigned together in justice-hall in the Old Bailey: the rest, being dangerously wounded, were put off by the court for a future trial. These twenty arraigned were Thomas Venner, Roger Hodgkins, Leonard Gowler, Jonas Allen, John Pym, William Oxman, alias Orsingham, William Ashton, Giles Pritchard, Stephen Fall, John Smith, William Corbet, John Dod, John Elston, Thomas Harris, John Gardner, Robert Bryerly, Richard Marten, John Patshall, Robert Hopkins and John Wells. These were brought to the bar together; the wounded men had chairs allowed them; and after the indictment read (for murther and treason); first Thomas Venner was call'd, who, when he had held up his hand, being ask'd whether he was guilty or not guilty, began an extravagant and bottomless discourse about the fifth monarchy, and his having had a testimony above twenty years in New England (we'll never deny his New England testimony, which has made old England smart, having been the nursery and receptacle of sedition too long; though Hugh Peters be dead, Gough and Whalley are there alive). And Venner could not deny he was guilty of the late rising, but not (forsooth) of treason, intending not to levy war against the King (as if to murther both King and subject were no treason, and to destroy their own and all Christian monarchs by open force were no levying war against the King). Afterwards he confessed he was partly guilty and partly not; but being press'd by the court to give his positive answer, whether he was guilty in manner and form of the indictment, he answered, Not guilty, and at last submitted to a trial by God and the country."‡

The following is some of the essential testimony:

"At the meeting-house in Swan-alley in Coleman street, Venner, Tufney and Cragg, (which two latter were slain in this rebellion) [in the skirmish and Brierly were temporarily reprieved. , Chronicles, 473; comp. Josselyn, Two Voyages, 270.

"Thus ended," wrote a Jacobite author in the early part of the next century, "this rebellion of the Whiggish saints," and their terrifying descent on London was remembered for many years after. Dryden, in his Annus Mirabilis, draws a poetic picture of the great fire of 1666, and introduces the ghosts of the regicides and of Venner's fanatics as rejoicing during the conflagration:

> The ghosts of traitors from the Bridge descend, With bold fanatic speeches to rejoice, About the fire into a dance they bend, And sing their Sabbath notes with feeble voice.

Of the family of Thomas Venner there is but little to be said, as no known descendants reside in this country. His wife, whose name was Alice, may have come over with him, and they had the following children baptized at Salem and Boston:

i. THOMAS, baptized 16 (3) 1641 (Salem).

ii. HANNAH, b. 16 (11), baptized 2 (12) 1644 (Boston). iii. Samuel, b. 23 (11), baptized 4 (12) 1649 (Boston).

As these three were all under 10 years of age when he left Boston, it is scarcely possible that any one was left behind; nor is the name met with again in the early records. His wife survived him, and without much doubt is the person referred to in the following entry in the Parish Register of St. Dionis Backchurch, London: Venner, widow, carried away to be buried to Tindell's ground, 24 February 1693." I have found a slight reminiscence of the fanaticism in Sewall's Diary under date of January 31, 1701, when he records: "William Parsons of 88 years is buried. Was in the fifthmonarchy fray in London, but slipt away in the crowd."+

Of the origin of Venner, the following satirical account, taken from one of the ephemeral pasquinades of the Restoration period, may serve as a fitting conclusion to the story of the fanatical winecooper of Boston:

"Now you must know that in those days there lived a Vandal in a wood, who was hight Vennero, for when he was born his mother left him in this wood, being pursued by two blood-thirsty satyrs, who would have done something to her, that, it seems, she would not have them do. Now being so left there, this samen young Vandal was suckled by a wild mare, and he grew up and fed upon the barkes of trees. Now it came to passe, that in processe of time there came a christian wandering to the wood, and he rushed forth, and slew him, and drank up his blood, and liked it wondrous well, so that he desired to have a whole ocean full, some to keep in hogheads, for the winter, and some to draw out in bottles for the summer."I

He [Castin] withdrew into the Woods before ever he was Attack'd, or knew what we was. As to my Calling him back, I could not, for he was too farr off. But I sent the Pilot in our Boat to talk to him and Ordered him to Decoy them on Board (if possible), I believing they were Indians. As to my Hoisting a Flagg of Truce it was only for the time the Pilot was talking to them, which was about a Quarter of an Hour, and when he came on Board it was Haul'd down. That Signifying that I had a Truce with them for the time the flagg was up, and no Longer. This was Two hours before any thing of a Skirmage happened. We will State the Case thus, I am in a Ship of Warr and send my Boat on Shoar with a Flagg of Truce to the Enemy to Demand such or such things. (They Refusing my Demand.) When the Boat comes off I haul down the Flagg of Truce, and am at Warr with them, again, according to the Laws of Nations, and this was the Exact Case with us. We never fired under the Flagg of Truce. He says, we promised him safe Conduct under Writing which I never did nor gave no such Orders. He says, thus thinking my self safe, I came back on Board my Vessel with my Indian & English Man. I wish he had, for by that means we should have got something by the Cruise, But as It is, we have got only our Labour for Our Pains. She Was Condemned and Apprised at One hundred pounds & Odd Money of this Currency, And was Delivered up to the Owners of her. There was some Beavers, and Other Skins, which was sold together for about 20 pound, which Money I Shared among the People, which was but a Trifle among 60 Men, And scarce enough to enable them to Drink Your Honours Health. JNº PRITCHARD.

[The above letter of Lieut. Pritchard's seems to be a denial of the statements made by Mons. Joseph Dabadis de St. Castin, in his letter written at Pentagouet, July 23, 1725, as printed in the Register, xiv., 139, 140, the original of which may be found in Mass. Archives, vol. 52, pages 226–229, in which he says, that being at anchor in his vessel on the 9th of that month, in a small harbor, about three miles distant from "Nesket," having with him but one Indian, and one Englishman (Samuel Trask), the latter redeemed by him from "the Salvages," was attacked "by an English vessel, the Commander of which called himself Lieutenant of the King's ship." This was Lieut. Pritchard. Being thus attacked, he says, and unable to defend himself, he withdrew into the woods, forsaking his vessel. He then states, that the commander of said vessel called him back, promising not to wrong him at all, saying he was a merchant, a trader, "not fitted out for war, especially when there was a talk of peace," and presently set up a flag of truce, even giving him, the said Castin, "a safe conduct" in writing, which he had "unhappily lost in the fight." He further says, that he went back on board the vessel, with his Indian and Englishman, whom he had redeemed from the Indians, as well as the vessel itself, thinking he was in a place of safety. As he was about putting on some clothes, to dress himself "more handsomely," the commander told him he was no longer master of anything. "They held forth to me," he says, "a bag full of bisket that was given to me, they said, as a payment for my Englishman." He betook himself to his arms, "and after several voleys I kil'd the man" who kept the Indian, and got the latter "safe with me." Castin enumerates the losses for which he desires to be reimbursed, namely, "the vessel that costed me 80 French pistoles," "the Englishman 10 pistoles," 51 pounds of beaver in the vessel, otter and other skins, shot, powder, tobacco, a pair of scales, cloth blankets, bear skins, sea wolf skins, axes, kettles, "and

I have Yours of the 21st Instant, which came to me by Express, Whereas there was nothing in the Letter that required such a Charge but it might have come as well by the Ordinary Post. I think well of the Disposition You have made of Your Men, and I hope they will be Vigilant & faithfull in their Duty, otherwise, they may Depend, the Enemy will make some Incursions upon Us. It was very Absurd for any Body to Spread Report of 500 Indians being come from Canada, especially for such who Pretend & ought to know the Indian Affairs. I observe the soldiers make a handle of it for Cowardice by * * * * * * * every small Party they meet with afterwards. I have a full Acc' of the Indians that are come out from Canada, which I rec'd from Albany, &c. And they are in all 130, part of which made Directly to the Western frontiers, where we have heard of them Divers times lately, And the next March'd East, amongst You, some of Whom I am still in hopes You will give me some good Acc' of. Unless Your business be very Urgent, it won't be proper to leave Your Command at this Juncture, but in that Case I Allow of it. You have never yet sent me any Acc' of the Examination of the Officers of the Indians, pursuant to my Directions. It will be necessary to Set that Matter in a true light, for they Complain of Great Injustice.

[Gov. Dummer. in a letter to Gov. Tallcot, of Connecticut, 29th Sept. 1725 (Mass. Arch. 52: 290), says: "It is not strange that there st be among us as well as in other Places, those that either from Weakness or Design are forward to censure & reproach the Proceedings of the Governm, be they never so reasonable & just, But I am sorry any Thing of this Kind should make Impressions on the Persons that are in Power in your Colony. As to the Causes & Provocations of the War, That subject has been so often repeated & so fully discuss'd already, as to Leave me nothing to my further, on that subject. However, I shall send you the Conference with the Indians at Arrowsick & any other Papers that I can think of, that have not yet been sent. As to the other Charge, of our being loath to come into a Peace, It is very barbarous & unjust, For there is Nothing this Governm' is more desireous of, & have accordingly carefully improved every Appearance of an Advantage to effect, so that nothing more could be done, without making base & Abject submission to the Indians, or, which is much worse, to the French, & making them the Arbiters of Peace, We none that have his Majesties Honour or the Prosperity of these Provinces at Heart can think reasonable."]

May it Please your Hon'

I rcc<sup>d</sup> your Hon<sup>m</sup> Letter of the 24th on the 28th of last month. How mine of y<sup>c</sup> 21th came to hand by Express I cannot tell unless Gov<sup>r</sup> Wintworth made such a mistake in that as his Hon<sup>r</sup> did in not sending Cap<sup>t</sup> Canady's Letter with mine of the 16th of last month to your Hon<sup>r</sup>. I sent it by a private hand and desir'd him to send a line or two to your Hon<sup>r</sup> of his mistake, which I hope your Hon<sup>r</sup> has rec<sup>d</sup>. I never believ'd that there was 500 Indians come from Canada, but inasmuch as it came from Cap<sup>t</sup> Jordan to my hand, I look't on it as my Duty to forward it to your Hon<sup>r</sup>. I always caution every body to make less rather than more of what they hear or see relating the Enemy, notwithstanding some make the most of every thing. If my Affairs did not more than ordinary want me at home, I wou'd not have desir'd it after I rec<sup>d</sup> your Hon<sup>ro</sup> Orders to have the Officers of the Indian Company & the Witnesses face to face. I immediately sent for the Officers from Richmond in order to examine them, but the Indians were out in the woods pursuant to your Hon<sup>ro</sup> Orders, so that I cou'd not bring them face to face, Doctor Bacon complaining that it wou'd be a great damage to stop him till the return of the Indians. I permitted him to wait on your Hon<sup>r</sup>, as your Hon<sup>r</sup> will see by the Enclosed, which is a true Copy. Capt Moulton is return'd from his march, a Journal of wh<sup>ch</sup> is herewith sent your Hon'. The Indians are uneasy, wanting to be dismiss'd, and threaten, if they are not, to run away.

GRIFFITH BOWEN OF BOSTON.

By EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOWEN, Esq., of Woodstock, Conn.

GRIFFITH BOWEN, of Boston, belonged to the family of the "Bowens of Slade," in the parish of Oxwich, Gower, Glamorgan, Wales. I have found three pedigrees of this family. The one deposited in the College of Arms, London, begins with Beli Mawr, King of Britain, 55 B.C., and ends with the generation of "Griffith Bowen of Barryhead." The pedigree in the Golden Grove Books, at the Public Record Office, London, begins with Griffith Gwyr and ends with "Griff: B: of Buryshade." The "I. H." pedigree, possessed by the late Joseph Joseph, Esq., F.S.A., of Brecon, is as follows:*

BOWEN OF SLADE,

IN THE PARISH OF OXWICH, GOWER, GLAMORGANSHIRE.

Griffith ap Owen = An. d. of — Berry of Berrymerbert in Devon.

Phillip Bowen of Slade m. Elsbet. d. & Heir of Hopkin John Vychan of Kilvay.

Francis Bowen =

Gr. Bowen md. the d. of Henry Fleming.

Francis Bowen of Pembroke, 1698. Wm. Bowen of Bristol.

The first that we know of Griffith Bowen is, that in 1632 he was one of a "jurie" in a survey of Oxwich and Nicholaston;† and in a survey of Penrice, in the same year, it appears that "Gryffith Bowen, gent. houldeth freely of sayd mannor one messuage and tenem" of land called Mount y brough, conteyninge about 16 acres."‡

VOL. XLVII.

This pedigree was sent me by Rev. J. D. Davies, M.A., Llanmadoc, Glamorgan, Wales.
 † Surveys of Gower and Kilvey and Several Mesne, Manors, etc., by Charles Baker and G. G. Francis.

While living on the Gower, 1 May, 1638, Griffith Bowen sold two small estates, and his deed to the property describes the parties and the lands as

"Griffith Bowen of Oxwich, gent and Margarett his wife and Ellen Francklyn ats Row of the parish of Langenith widdowe of the one partie and Samuell Mathewes of Westminster, gent. of the other partie - - in consideracon of the some of Three hundred poundx - - - confirme unto the said Samuell Mathewes - - - two severall messuagx and Tentx with divers parcells of landx - - - comonly called and known by the severall names of Coolme and Burry conteyning together by estimacon two messuagx two barnes two gardens one orchard fifty and five acres of pasture - - - Within the parish of Langenith - - - ."*

An agreement was entered into on the 17th day of September, 1638, between Griffin Bowen and Margaret his wife, and William Bennett, by which Griffin and Margaret Bowen covenanted to sell to William Bennett "two messuages, two barnes, two gardens, one orchard, twenty-four acres of land, three acres of meadow, six acres of pasture, four acres of wood and six acres of furze and heath with appurtenances in Penrice."

Griffith and Margaret Bowen came to New England shortly after the date of the foregoing agreement. They may have sailed from Bristol, Eug-land, and, probably, brought with them five or six children.

The first trace we have of them in the New World is, that on "The 6t of ye same 12th moneth [1638] Griffyn Bowen & his wife Margarett" were "Taken in for members of ye Congregation" of the church in Boston.‡

On the 25th of March, 1639, "Mr Gryffen Bowen" had a "great Lott granted unto him at Muddy River;" $ two months after, he "was one of the Persons made free."

There is a Bond, recorded among the Deeds of Suffolk County, Mass, which is dated 15th day of May, 1640, and by which Henry Bowen of Haraden in the County Glamorgan, gentleman, and Henry Morgan of Llougher in the "county aforesaid," gentleman, bound themselves to pay Griffith Bowen, "late of Langenith, in the county aforesaid, gentleman, fiftye pownds vpon the twentieth day of October 1641, and Three score & Eighteen pownds more vpon the twentieth day of October 1642."

It is a fortunate thing that this Bond was recorded, for it is the only clue we have in America of the place of Griffith Bowen's residence before he came to New England.

At a Town meeting held in Boston "This 29th day of 11th Mo. 1643," it was voted that "There is granted unto Gryphen Bowin Gent., an howe lot, if any yet remaine to be disposed of."**

The only public office Griffith Bowen was elected to while in Boston was that of perambulator: "9: 2 mo: 1649 Mr Bowin & Petter Oliver is chosen for perambulation at Mudye River; "†† and it is the last record we have of him before his departure for Wales. He must have sailed for Eurland soon after this, taking with him his wife and some of his children.

Griffith Bowen's name next appears in a Survey of Gower Wallicana, in 1650, as a "Freeholder" in the "Parcell Clase: The same for a tenemt in the hands of Griffith Bowen of oo of "*

Griffith Bowen was a witness to a deed, dated 17th December, 1650, by which his father-in-law, Henry Fleming, conveyed to Col. Philip Jones

"two parcels of land in the liberty of Swansea."†
In "Docket Book, No. 1, 1647 to 1654, Glamorgan," deposited in the Public Record Office, London, is this entry: "Fines leavyed & acknowledged this Session Betweene Phillip Jones Esq Plt Griffin Bowen ffrancis Bowen & William Bowen deforc of ten[ements] in Lanmadoc." The Fines for this Session (Spring, 1652), are missing, so the particulars of this transfer of property cannot be given.

Griffith Bowen and Robt. Williams farmed the excise of Glamorgan, Carmarthen, Pembroke and Cardigan, from the Commissioners of Customs, for one year, expiring 25th December, 1653, at £270.‡

Afterward (in 1660-1?) Griffith Bowen was imprisoned at "Southwarke," at the instance of the "Right Honoble Charles Lord Gerrard of Brandon," because while Collector of Customs, at the "Port of Swansey," by his account for the last quarter of the year there appeared to be a balance of £388. 4s. due the Commissioners of Customs, which sum he had already "returned vp" to London by Bills of Exchange.§ How long he was imprisoned, and what were the conditions of his discharge, have not been discovered.

On the 30th of May, 1654, the "honoble Collonell Phillipp Jones of Swansey in the County of Glamorgan Esquire and one of the Counsell to his Highnes the Lord Protector of England, Scotland and Ireland" entered into a covenant with Griffith Bowen of Swansey, gentleman, by which "the said Collonell Phillipp Jones ffor and in Consideracon of £524 -- to him paid by the said Griffith Bowen - - - sold and confirmed - - - unto the said Griffith Bowen - - - those several respective mesuages or Tenem's Cotages Milnes lands hereditamts & p'misses -- scituate -- on the Hill within the parish of St Maries comonly called St Maries Hill in the Libtie of Pembroke within the County of Pembroke. Also all that parcell of arable of Land adjoining called Goodylake - - - Also all that water Corne Grist Milne knowne by the name of Milton Milne lying in the parish of Carew in the said County of Pembroke. And also all that mesuage or Tenemt lying in the parish of Hodgeston in the said County of Pembroke."

Griffith Bowen "for some very short tyme only enjoyed" his Pembroke estate, for in 1656, "not onely the Commonalty of the City of London made theire clayme unto the - - - premises but al'soe the University of Oxford made there clayme unto the Fee Farme Rent of" £19. 6. 8. and "It was tound that these lands of right belonged unto the City of London, and that the Fee Farme Rent belonged unto the University of Oxford, and the sale made by Phillip Jones became absolutely void." Whereupon Griffith Bowen "made his addresses unto Phillip Jones and acquainted him with the proceedings." Phillip Jones promised "either hee would make good the estate, or would repay him all the purchase money;" this he afterward refused to do, and Griffith Bowen brought, in 1661, a suit in Chancery.*

The suit went against him, and after being beaten in another "Accon att Law against the said Philip Jones" Griffith Bowen twice appealed "To the Right Honoble the Lords Spirituall & Temporal Assembled att the High Court of Parliament." In one of these petitions he complains that he is "altogether destitute of Reliefe att Law or Equitie or elsewhere than before yo' Lordshipps in Parliament Assembled." The first petition is endorsed "Griffith Bowen his Peticon Read 10th January 1670 Rejected;" the other is endorsed "1672-3 Mar 11 Pet. Book."

While living in "Swansey," 20th of July, 1661, Griffith Bowen executed a formal surrender to the King of the property bought of Colonel Philip Jones. He did this "in pursuance of an order made by the Lords and other His Maiesties Commissioners - - - And for other considerations: "I one of which may have been due to what follows:

On the 19th of August, 1661, "The King§ - - - by advice of the Earl of Southampton, High Treasurer of England - - - and Lord Ashley, Chancellor of the Court of Exchequer," granted and devised unto his "beloved subject Griffith Bowen All that water grain mill in Milton," in the County of Pembroke, "of the yearly rent of xll All that fulling mill there (now in decay) hitherto in the tenure of John Perrott Knight, of the yearly value xxvj viijd sometime parcel of the possessions of Rice Griffith Esq. attainted - - - And all buildings structures barns stables orchards gardens curtilages mill-dues tolls soc commodities whatsoever to the said mills - - - appertaining To have and to hold - - - from the feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary last past - - - for the term of 31 years thereafter Paying therefor to us and our successors xjli vje viijd."

On the 7th of April, 1669, "Griffith Bowen sometimes of New England now resident in London - - - in consideration of a contract of marriage now consumated betweene Isaac Addington of Boston in New England chirutgeon, & my daughter Elizabeth Bowen - - - confirme vnto my sonne Isaac Addington aforesjd All my right interest & title in two parcells of land scittuate in Boston at preent in occupation of Capt. William Dauis --- one parcell being three quarters of an acre, lying neere to the dwelling of M Jacob Elliott - - - the other parcell (about half an acre) lying something distant from the land aforesajd."

"For the more cleare and full confirmation of the premises" Griffith Bowen "nowe resident in the City of London sometime of Boston in New England" gave, 28 March, 1671, Isaac Addington a second deed to the two parcels of land in Boston.

On or about 16th December, 1669, "Griffith Bowen of St Saviours Southwark in the County of Surrey" brought suits in Chancery against Francis Bowen, John Bowen and Edward Wooldridge.

In his complaints,** Griffith Bowen states that "in 1662, living with his family in Swansey and having urgent business that required his presence at the City of London," he deposited in the hands of Francis Bowen, his son, "several deeds and other writings goods chattels implements of household stuff and other personal estate to be safely kept until he should demand the same;" that afterward he went to London, and being "wholly unprovided of monies" he applied to "John Bowen of Swansey a kinsman" who was then in London "that he would use his interest with one Edward Wooldridge a scrivener," with whom John Bowen had placed "Nehemiah his son an apprentice," for procuring a loan of £100 "upon a mortgage of a mill known by the name of Milton Mill lying near the towne of Pembroke;" that John Bowen and Edward Wooldridge, by a combination between them, had never paid over to him the £100, although it had been promised him, and they had got into their possession the Milton Mill.

Griffith Bowen further complains that John Bowen pretending he was engaged for him (Griffith Bowen) and Francis Bowen to Mr. Wooldridge and others in the sum of £305, prevailed upon him to assign over all his "right title and interest of in and to a certain lease of ninety nine years of and in all those burgage messuages lands tenements and hereditaments scituate lying and being in Treckbeck the Hill Good Lake alias wood Lake Hodgiston alias Hogston in the county of Pembroke," and that the said Francis Bowen in consideration thereof would forthwith pay "these several sums of money following (that is to say) To Edward Wooldredge of London Scrivener of £116. To Lady Vaughan of Terrahvyd £159. To William Jones of Swanzey £30. To Cornelius Price of the city of London £21. 16 and the further sum of £20 unto your Orator. And your Orator in the year 1666 Did by his Indenture assign and let over the premises unto the said Francis Bowen but the said confederates have not paid the sums of money above mentioned wherefore your orator prays that the said Francis Bowen John Bowen and Edward Wooldridge may be commanded to appear before the High and Honorable Court of Chancery to make a true and perfect answer to all and singular the premises."

Francis Bowen "gentleman" in his answer to the Bill of Complaint of Griffith Bowen, states that "the Complainant did leave in his hands some implements of household stuff, part whereof he afterward delivered to the Complainant in Loudon, and what remains he is willing to restore provided the Complainant do pay the cellarage rent of the chamber where they remain, not being in his custody."

He denies that the deeds to the lands named in the Bill were settled upon him in trust, but for good and valuable consideration.

He confesses that "he did enter into a Bond of £600 penalty to pay unto the Complainant and the several creditors mentioned the several debts, and he has since paid a great part of them, and is ready to pay what yet remain."

He states that "the other defendant, John Bowen being bound with him, and security for the several sums of money, he did convey and assign over the premises for the security and satisfaction of the said John Bowen, as in justice he ought to do. Nevertheless, he is willing, if the Plaintiff will first pay and satisfy the said several debts and keep harmless this Defendant and the other Defendant, John Bowen, to reconvey the said premises unto the Plaintiff, merely to satisfy this honorable Court of the Defendants inclination to pay to the Complainant, being his father, and to avoid all Chancery Proceedings. Bridges, before 1714. Part 96, No. 447. Public Record Office, London.

"John Bowen one of the Defendants to the Bill of Complaint of Griffith Bowen" in his "several Answers" goes into all the details of his money transactions with Griffith and Francis Bowen. He states, in part: "whereof this Defendant borrowed to lend unto the Plaintiff to set his son Peniell Bowen an apprentice in London the sum of £40 of Charles Bowen Esquire --- the same £60 being due unto the said Francklen by bond as aforesaid from the plaintiff and his sons Francis and William - - - whereof the Plaintiff - - - stood in extraordinary want to pay the said Francklen and to supply himself being then in London in great want of money to prosecute a suit he had against one Col. Phillip Jones - - - the Plaintiff had the 14th day of October Anno 1662 by his Deed under his hand and seal well executed in presence of Moses Longman Christopher Rogers and Peniel Bowen conveyed all his right in and to the premises and Mills unto the Defendant Francis." This answer of John Bowen is dated "Swansea decimo die Octobris Anno 1671."*

I have not discovered any traces of Griffith Bowen later than "1672-3 Mar 11," which date is endorsed on his second petition to the House of Lords. He may have lived in London up to the time of his death. Something further may be disclosed by examining the records of the town and county of Pembroke, or the records of London and Glamorgan.

Griffith Bowen's New England estate was not divided among his heirs until 1683, nearly eight years after notice of his death had been received by the Court at Boston. It may be that this delay was owing to difficulties in settling his entangled Welsh estate, or to some other cause not yet

The Court in Boston granted, April 17, 1676, "Power of Administration unto the Estate of Mr Griffith Bowen formerly of Boston (who died in England) unto Henry Bowen his son in right of those whome it may appear

On the "6th of Novembr 1683" the County Court appointed "L" Samuel Ruggels & Mr John Bowles of Roxbury and Mr Jacob Eliot of Boston a Comittee to make division and sett out the sd Estate," instructing them to give "a double part thereof to Francis his eldest son."

They accordingly divided it, as they wrote, "In ye Best of our Prudence With the consent & to the satisfaction of those concerned viz Mr William Bowen, Mr John Weld, widow Child & Henry Bowen." They gave "Mr ffrancis Bowen and Mr William Bowen ye North end of the ffarme with the Houseing & orchards - - - half the salt marsh" and part of the "wood lott."

GRIFFITH BOWEN, by wife Margaret Fleming, had children:

- Francis, born in Wales. All that is known of him is contained in the "I. H." pedigree, the Chancery Suits, and in another Chancery Suit dated 27 January, 1692, in which "francis Bowen of the Towne of Pembroke" complains that Mallett Bateman has violated his contract to furnish him "two thousand and four hundred strickes or Winchesters of oats etc."
- iii. WILLIAM, born in Wales. The "I. H." pedigree states he was "of

The only other records of Peniel Bowen, yet discovered, are in John Bowen's answer to Griffith Bowen's suit in Chancery, already noticed. Peniel Bowen probably died before his father, for his name does not appear in the settlement of his father's estate.

A CONTRIBUTION TO THE EARLY HISTORY OF STONINGTON, CONN.

By GEO. A. GORDON, A.M., of Somerville, Mass.

THE southeastern corner of Connecticut, lying within the Pequot territory, was early called Southerntown, and held to be within the limits of Suffolk County, Massachusetts. When, however, Connecticut obtained her charter, in 1662, the settlement was included within her limits and, in 1666, was named Stonington. The territory was

"Seuerall inhabitants of Stoneington petitioning this Court for their approbation that they might setle themselues in Church order, this Court grants them their petition."

JOHN MOUSALL OF WOBURN.

By W. R. CUTTER, Esq., Librarian of the Woburn Public Library.

JOHN MOUSALL* was one of the first settlers of Woburn, Massachusetts, and to him belongs the credit of building for his own use the first house erected in the limits of the present city in 1641.† He was one of the thirty-two signers of the original town orders of 1640 for the founding of Woburn, and his name was the third in the order of signing, Edward Johnson and Edward Converse (the latter the builder of the first house in the original limits of Woburn) preceding him. He was one of the seven male members from the church at Charlestown, who constituted the church of Woburn at its gathering, Aug. 14 [24, N. S.] 1642; and afterwards one of its two original deacons, till his decease. He was one of the selectmen of Woburn for 21 years in succession. He died in Woburn, March 27, 1665, leaving his widow, Joanna, a son, John Mousall, "who was likewise a distinguished citizen in his day," and a daughter, Eunice, wife of John Brocks; "but the name of Mousall, as a surname, is now extinct from the place."

The following is an abstract of the will of the first John Mousall, which is not only characteristic of the man, but of the times in which he lived. It will be noticed that he refers in the will to his "old house," showing that another house existed on his estate in 1660, or earlier. The newer house was probably the house described in the town records, under date of 1673, as the "Hopewell House," owned in common by John Mousall, 24, and John Brooks, being a part of their inheritance from their father

Will of the Senior John Mousall. [Abstract.]

The 19th of ye 4th month, 1660. That I, John Mousall, senior, of Wobers, husbandman, being in perfect memory, also "weake in body" ---- and my two sons John Mousall and John Brooks I make joint executors. Gives to wife Joanna Mousall all movables; "only three iron pots" I give to my Brooks's three children after her decease, and to my grandchild, Sarah Brooks. I give my "booke" of "Mr. Hildersham upon the 51 psalme" ; and I give my grandchild Unis [Eunice] Brooks, "my booke tituled Mr. Norton's Orthodox Evangelist 1; and I give to my son John Mousall, my best "sute of apparell." To my wife Joanna Mousall, I give two of my best cows and two even sheep, and my executors are to keep these cows and sheep for her, winter and summer, so long as she liveth, and all her firewood and four pounds a year to be paid by my executors, either in money or corn. I give to my son John

The Mr. Hildersham whose work on the 51st Psalm is mentioned in the above was Arthur Hildersham, an English author. His exposition of this psalm was entitled.

"CLII. Lectures upon Psalm il.," 1635, fol., and was a work highly valued by the Paran oks, one cow and one sheep toward the furnishing of the new room joining is house, and my wife is to have a peaceable living in it, providing she stay.

I give to Ephraim Bucke and Hannah Lepinwell, either of them, a ewe b, at or before the end of their time, provided they carry it respectfully to wife, at the judgment of the overseers of my will; and I give to my Reverend for, Mr. Thomas Carter, one ewe sheep, and I give my great meadow my two sons equally; but in case he die without children, then he can give be his wife for her life; and after my son John Mousall's decease, and his leaving no heir, it shall return to my son John Brooks's children. I give my wife the third part of the fruit of the orchard for her life, and the little p-yard and garden the back side of the old house. To my grandchild, Joanna oks, my little bible. The rest of my lands I give to my two sons equally, hey have agreed, and have in possession. I also make my brother James mpson and Allen Converse, overseers of my will. Probated April 4, 1665.

he inventory of the "estate of John Mousall, senior, Deacon of the rch of Christ at Woburne, deceased," contains this item: To housing lands ---- £200.

The allusion in the above will to the "furnishing of the new room" ing to the son John Brooks's house, and the widow's having a peaceable of in it, "provided she stay in it," is an interesting statement, showing more than one house existed on the premises when the will was made, John Mousall, 2d, did die without children and so some of the property rned to John Brooks's children, as stated in the will. When Joanna,

he house of John Brooks is alluded to in an agreement between John oks and John Mousall, Jr., in 1660, wherein there is a mutual release of is; Brooks resigning his interest to Mousall in certain land that he and usall had purchased of their father, Henry Brooks, - Brooks having chased this piece for them of Daniel Bacon: Mousall resigning his of the "old sheep pasture" joining to Brooks's orchard, and his part he "upper meadow"; he to enjoy all the land from his housing "that now possesseth"; the bounds being settled. Brooks to possess all from s housing" downward, by the same bounds, till he reaches the great dow; he also to enjoy all the land in his possession lying in the lower I. What land remained undivided was to be equally divided between m; and for the land that lyeth between the two, they agreed that it all be common to the bridge, for the use of both houses, forever and a It was also provided that Brooks was to have a woodyard by a line a the corner of "his house," to the "stone wall by his little garden"; a driftway, or common-way, over which cattle were driven, through undivided land on the east of Mousall's field into the lower field onging to Brooks: "and the line shall stand forever between us, - both he yards as it now stands, from the street gates to the lower gates at head of the lane." Acknowledged April 4, 1665. Recorded same 2. Middlesex Registry of Deeds, B. 3, p. 135. See The News, burn, Sept. 5, 1891, for a fuller abstract. John Mousall, 2d, married daughter of Henry Brooks, and hence a double relation between the brothers was formed.

In the last clause of the above agreement, is an undoubted reference to historic way in Woburn, known as "Mousall's Lane," which passed ween the two houses of the old Mousall estate, beginning at the "street es" on present Montvale Avenue, and continuing to the "lower gates" where the barn of the late S. W. Russell estate formerly stood, or ere the building of the Woburn Electric Light Company now stands, near it. These "lower gates" marked the entrance to the "head of the lane," and were in existence till a comparatively late period. The opening of the present Prospect Street its entire length, about 1868, changed the entire appearance of the locality, and there is nothing now to show its former appearance, or condition. This new street practically covers the route from the "street gates" to the "lower gates," and continues its course onward in the lane mentioned in 1660, all traces of which are now obliterated.

The word "housing," in the above statement is undoubtedly designed to cover all the buildings of a separate establishment, and we have above an equitable agreement between two brothers, — doubly brothers-in-law, — holding the estate of their father in common — the estate known as the original Mousall estate — consisting, in 1673, for one moiety, of the dwelling-house, with barns, stables and outhouses, with 60 acres of land belonging, known as the "Hopewell House"; situated at a place called Hilly Way, being part of an inheritance from Deacon John Mousall [John Mousall's part] — bounded north on the highway. The other moiety [John Brooks's], with a larger number of acres [80] was also a part of his inheritance from his father-in-law, Deacon John Mousall, and was "formerly known" by the name of the Hopewell House.

John Mousall, Jr., having married a sister of the John Brooks whom we have so often mentioned, and Brooks having married the only sister of John Mousall, Jr., the above John Mousall would be a son-in-law of the Henry Brooks, already mentioned, who bought a piece of land of Daniel Bacon, in which John Brooks transferred his interest to the younger Mousall, in consideration of another interest in the Mousall estate, as we have already shown.

To trace the estate from this point for a number of years is not difficult, the following being its record in brief:

1694. The second John Mousall grants to his "loving cousin" Joseph Wright, Jr., and to Elizabeth, his wife, his homestead, with some woodlands and other estate. He says, referring to Elizabeth Wright, "having experience of her respects and care of me and my wife for many years together, and now also in our age the said Joseph Wright and Elizabeth his wife, have engaged themselves to take care of me and my wife, during our natural lives," I do, "in consideration of love and good will," convey the homestead and other property.

The homestead of about 40 acres was situated near Woburn Meeting-House, and the bounds were in brief, John Brooks east, Ephraim Buck, John Brooks and Jabez Brooks south-east, the King's highway south-west, and Jonathan Thompson and John Burbeen partly on the north-west, at the north-east end, next the meeting-house, it abutted on the town highway.

The deed also continued with this statement: "I also give said Joseph, my dwelling-house, barn, cider-mill and press, these all belonging to my homestead: he to have all after the decease of me and Sarah, my now married wife."

The above document dated Feb. 19, 1694, was recorded Midd. Reg., b. 12, p. 90, and the original is now in the collection in the Woburn Public Library.

The above John Mousall left no children, and with his wife's decease the name became extinct in Woburn. His property then passed into the name of Wright, in which name it remained a number of years.

The following genealogical particulars may be of interest.

Eunice Mousall and John Brooks were married at Woburn, Nov. 1,

John Mousall and Sarah Brooks were married at Woburn, May 13, 1650. This was John Mousall, the second, who died April 2, 1698, four years after the date of the preceding deed.

Deacon John Mousall, the father, died March 27, 1665. He was aged about 63 in 1658.

The date of death of Sarah Mousall, wife of the second John Mousall, does not appear. It was probably before 1706.

The following transfers relate to the Mousall estate or lot:

1706. Joseph Wright, Jr., to Jacob Wright. Conveyance of homestead, house and barn and outhousing, near the meeting-house.

1707. Jacob Wright. Re-conveyance of the same to Joseph Wright.

1732. Joseph Wright died.

1737. Homestead mentioned as bounded north-east by town-way leading from Woburn Meeting-House to Richardson's Row. Evidently this highway was the present Montvale Avenue. West end of dwelling, with privilege of 12 perch of land, also garden in front of house, 66 perch of land, and other lands set off to Joseph Wright's widow Rachel, 1737.

1751. Dower of Rachel divided among the heirs of Joseph Wright, and Mousall Wright, her son, acquired the dwelling-house, with barn and land adjoining, also 60 rods of land called the garden.

There was considerable complication and trouble in the settlement of Joseph Wright's estate, which is evident from the papers to be found at the office of probate. The reasons cannot be entered upon here.* There are two original deeds relating to the interest of Mousall Wright preserved in the archives of the Woburn Public Library, under the following dates:

1733. Mousall Wright to Jacob Wright, of all his interest in the estate of his "honored father" Joseph Wright.

1736. Heirs of Joseph Wright quit-claim to Mousall Wright, all their interest in several pieces and parcels of land in the township of Woburn, one being "the east end of the dwelling-house and west end of the barn, corn-house, etc., with the remaining part of land, about 3 acres, whereon the buildings stand"; N., town road; E., Timothy Brooks; S., the widow's 7\frac{3}{4} acres meadow, etc., with liberty of passage between said Mousall's land and that of said Timothy Brooks from the town road. Mousall Wright was dead before Nov. 3, 1770, see below.

The following deeds have a bearing on this estate:

 VOL. XLVII.

Whereas said Timothy Brooks some time since gave his son Timothy Brooks, Jr., gent., a deed of sale of one half of his messuage in Woburn, as the same is therein bounded, the same being then undivided, and the said Timothy, the son, hath since conveyed his half aforesaid still undivided unto the said Samuel and William, now the said Timothy, the original grantor, grants to and covenants with the said Samuel and William, and their heirs, that the lines dividing the messuage shall be as follows, etc.

The above Timothy Brooks, Jr., removed from Woburn to Salem about 1777.

1770. Zebadiah Wyman of Eleazer Carter, 1770, — one piece of part upland and part meadow, containing one acre, being part of the house lot, which was formerly Simon Thompson's near Woburn Meeting-House, — E., Thomas Belknap and Wid. Susanna Wright; S., by land formerly belonging to Isaac Brooks; W. and N., by thirds of Wid. Betty Flagg. Susanna Wright was widow of Mousall Wright; see above.

Zebadiah Wyman, trader and retailer, acquired an interest by deeds from the following persons on account of his having married the widow of Nathan Brooks, son of Nathan Brooks, whose estate he desired to possess himself of. There is considerable information of genealogical interest in the names of the residences of the various individuals.

1774. John Brooks, housewright, and William Brooks, blacksmith, of Hollis; Seth Brooks, of Acton, housejoiner; and Zachariah Brooks, of Woburn, tailor, release to Z. W., right in estate of Nathan Brooks, late of Woburn, blacksmith.

1775. Giles Johnson, "now resident at a place to the Eastward, known by the name of Major Bagadoose,"* with Elizabeth, his wife, release to Z. W., all title "we now have unto the estate of which our brother Nathan Brooks, retailer, deceased, died siezed of, or which ought to have descended to us as heirs, or by virtue of last will of said Brooks."

1782. Jonathan Brooks, of New London, Conn., cabinetmaker, releases interest in estate of his brother, Nathan Brooks, deceased, to Z. W.

These papers are supplemented by many other Brooks family papers now in the possession of the authorities of the Woburn Public Library.†

The title from Mousall Wright has not yet been thoroughly traced. His widow seems to have owned the estate after 1770.

The title from Timothy Brooks, a descendant of the first John Mousall, has been already mentioned in "Old Houses and Homes" [Woburn, 1892] as passing from John Brooks [died 1733], son of John and Eunice [Mousall] Brooks, to him, a son of the last named John Brooks. Timothy Brooks and Nathan Brooks, already mentioned, were brothers. Timothy died in 1786, and his mansion house is mentioned as on the road leading from Zebadiah Wyman's brick store to it, in 1794. It was standing fill about 1835. It came into Zebadiah Wyman's possession, in part, before 1794, and was occupied by two families for a long period. In 1798, one half was owned by Elisha Tottingham, with Hiram Flagg as occupant. The Flagg family occupied it in following years in the recollection of many persons now living. The other half was owned by Mary Wyman, a minor, 1798, a daughter of Zebadiah Wyman, who had then lately deceased. She died in 1804. Her mother, Eunice Wyman, was her guardian, in 1798, and the occupant was Jonathan Tyler at that date. The house was cribed as an "old house." Previously, in 1794, it was called in a of Zebadiah Wyman's property, the "Brooks Place," being half a alf a barn, and half a corn-house, with the garden, yards, and d 63 acres of land in two divisions. The home lot contained and this place with a part of the above land was set off to Mary Zebadiah Wyman purchased the "Brooks Place," of Timothy neirs of Zebadiah Wyman also owned, in 1794, the "Mousall another estate than the above, set off to his widow Eunice as a ner thirds. This included 5½ acres of land, bounded "northward and leading by the schoolhouse to the Brooks place." This was a he original Mousall estate, but not the lot on which the Mousall bod. This was nearer the present street in front of it. Nathan son of John, grandson of John and Eunice [Mousall] Brooks, was Zachariah Brooks [died 1792], whose widow Susanna Brooks, he original house in 1798, having Samuel Watts for occupantse was then old and poor, with ½ acre of land on which it stood. books soon married David Dexter, 1799, and living long as his the house, it became known as the Dexter house. The house and in 1833 or 1835, having become uninhabitable; and this was of the first house erected within the present limits of the city of on the estate now known as 23 Montvale Avenue.

34 certain members of the Wyman family mentioned conveyed a this property to James Tweed, George W. Reed, and Sylvanus r., bounded north on present Montvale Avenue; east by a lane ge way; west partly by the burying-yard, etc. In 1835 Wood interest to Reed and Tweed, who built a house on it and lived in it for many years.

54 a conveyance from George W. Reed and James Tweed to yman, of 5 acres, 22 poles, was bounded north on Railroad Street ontvale Avenue 3 rods, 15 links; west by land formerly of Zebaman - - - - by the burying ground in part, and by land owned selves" and the heirs of Rufus Wyman and Eunice Stone and alled the "Dexter place," to said Railroad Street. Thus an old is held on, but the name of Mousall, though early extinct in as a family, has held on as a living entity in the community to the time in the names of Mousall lane, Mousall place, and Mousall and the good name, fame, and influence of the original Mousall, It the first house in this thriving community, has held on in nts of the female line till a goodly company of estimable and eople, generation after generation, has peopled the land. The of his three books, his "Hildersham," his "Orthodox Evangelist," le Bible," has not been lost. Many names extinct by family tation for nearly two centuries have perished, but his name is still red and cherished in the New England community in which he home.*

wiedgment is due to the assistance of Judge Edward F. Johnson, a member of England Historic Genealogical Society, in the preparation of this article. Judge ade the necessary researches at the offices of probate and registry of deeds.

REMICK GENEALOGY.

For several years queries have appeared in the Boston newspapers about Christian Remick, an artist, sea captain and officer in the Revolution, in the Massachusetts State and Continental navies, etc., and it is the purpose of this article to give a short account of him and his ancestors. This Christian Remick was the son of Christian Remick of Eastham, Mass., who was a son of Abraham Remick of Kittery, Me., and Eastham; and Abraham was the son of Christian Remich of Kittery, the emigrant to this country.

1. Christian' Remich, the emigrant, was born in 1631, probably in Holland or England, as the name is of German extraction, and there are many of the name now living in Holland and Germany. There is a town named Remich in the Duchy of Luxemburg, which was so named in the time of the Roman occupation; and probably the Remicks came from this town. Christian' came to America when young, as he was living in the town of Kittery, Maine, in 1651, and continued there until his death, about 1710. He was one of the Proprietors of the town, and was granted a great deal of land in what are now the towns of Kittery, Eliot and South Berwick, amounting to about 500 acres; the most of which still remain in possession of his descendants and name.

VOL. XLVII.

He was a smart and bright man for the times; was the town's surveyor for many years, treasurer, selectman (of which board he was chairman most of the time), and representative to the legislature. There are many of his letters and papers still preserved in possession of courts, towns and individuals. Mr. Walter Lloyd Jeffries, 126 Beacon St., Boston, has a letter which was written by Christian' as chairman of the board of selectmen of the town of Kittery, to John Usher. It is dated June 29, 1688, and is about the taxes for that year of the town. His occupation was that of planter and surveyor. He married about 1654, Hannah had 9 children, all born in Kittery, as follows:

- HANNAH,2 b. April 25, 1656. ii.
- iii.
- Mary, b. August 7, 1658. Jacob, b. Nov. 23, 1660; d. June , 1745, in Kittery. Sarah, b. July 16, 1663; d. in 1722, in Berwick. Isaac, b. July 20, 1665; moved to South Carolina. iv.
- ABRAHAM,2 b. June 9, 1667.
  - vii. MARTHA, <sup>2</sup> b. Feb. 20, 1669. viii. Joshua, <sup>2</sup> b. July 24, 1672; d. in 1738, in Kittery. ix. Lydia, <sup>2</sup> b. Feb. 8, 1676.

These four sons of Christian Remich were all fairly well educated for the times, as appears by their letters and signatures; and their descendants have filled many positions of usefulness in the town, state and nation. One of the most distinguished was the late Chief Justice Morrison Remich Waite, but others will also be now mentioned. A granddaughter of Joshua2 married Gen. Sullivan of the Revolution. David Remick, a grandson of Jacob, was a captain in the Massachusetts line at the capture of Ticonderoga and Crown Point in 1759, and was the great-grandfather of Gen. David' Remick, who served in the Union army, 1861-5. Major Timothy4 Remick, who served all through the Revolutionary war in Massachusetts regiments, and was on Washington's staff, was a grandson of Joshus above. Captain Benjamin's Remick, who served in the Massachusetts and Continental navy in the Revolution, was a great-grandson of Jacob above. Benjamin's Remick was also a celebrated naval constructor and shipbuilder in New Hampshire and Maine. Among the more celebrated of his vessels was the sloop of war "Ranger, built at Kittery, Maine. She was the first man of war commanded by Capt. John Paul Jones, and sailed from Kittery, Dec. 2, 1777, and was the first American-built war ship to show the national flag in Europe, where it was saluted by the French Admiral, Feb. 13, 1778, in the Bay of Quiberon, being the first salute in Europe to our national flag by a foreign power. Capt. Benjamin' was the master builder of over 50 vessels in his time.

2. ABRAHAM<sup>2</sup> REMICK (Christian<sup>1</sup>), son of Christian, married in 1692 or 3, Elizabeth Freeman, in Eastham, Mass. She was born June 26, 1671, daughter of Samuel and Mercy (Southworth) Freeman. Abraham<sup>2</sup> settled in Eastham; was a planter, farmer and mariner. and died about 1705, probably in Eastham; his widow married Joseph Myrick in 1712, by whom she had one daughter.

CHRISTIAN,3 b. Dec. 16, 1694; d. 1783, in Eastham.

- ABRAHAM,3 b. May 20, 1696; d.
  - MERCY,3 b. July 29, 1698; m. Joseph Higgins, an ancestor of Chief iii. Justice Morrison Remich Waite.
  - ELIZABETH,3 b. Sept. 12, 1700; m. Knowles.
- B. CHRISTIAN<sup>3</sup> REMICK (Abraham, Christian<sup>1</sup>), born Dec. 16, 1694; lived in Eastham, and probably followed the sea most of his life, dying in Eastham in 1783. He married 1st, Hannah Freeman, in Eastham, Oct. 10, 1717. She was the daughter of Lieut. Edmond and Sarah (Mayo) Freeman of Eastham, and died in Eastham, July 7, 1751, in her 54th year. Children of Christian' and Hannah, all born in Eastham:
  - MERCY, b. Nov. 30, 1718; m. Cooke.

  - HANNAH, b. Nov. 21, 1721. ELIZABETH, b. January 2, 1723. iii.
- Christian, b. April 8, 1726. Daniel, b. July 11, 1729. Isaac, b. Feb. 9, 1732-3. iv.
- - vii. Joseph, b. March 21, 1738-9; died in infancy. viii. Sarah, b. April 9, 1742.
- JOSEPH, 4 b. June 8, 1744.

Christian Remick married 2d, Sarah Freeman of Harwich, Mass., August 27, 1752. She was born in 1720, the daughter of Benjamin Freeman. No children probably by wife Sarah.

4. ABRAHAM® REMICK (Abraham, Christian), born May 20, 1696, a soldier in New Hampshire in the Indian war of 1712, was a sailor and master mariner, and one of the founders and original members of the Boston Marine Society, joining Feb. 17, 1743. He sailed out of Boston as master for many years, and lived in Boston and on Cape Cod, dying about 1755.

He seems to have married 1st, Abigail Wedget in Durham, N. H., April 11, 1728 (this is doubtful). He married 2d, Ursula Parker of Boston, Jan. 14, 1738-9, in King's Chapel. They probably had no children.

5. CHRISTIAN REMICK (Christian, Abraham, Christian), born April 8, 1726, is the artist concerning whom inquiry has been made. He seems to have been a sailor, and master mariner also; and probably learned the art of navigating from his uncle, Abraham3 Remick, before mentioned. He married Sarah, daughter of Nathaniel Myrick, and they probably lived in Boston most of their lives, although they also lived in Eastham and Harwich, Mass.

He seems to have been engaged in painting and drawing in water colors, also making geographical plans of harbors, sea coasts, etc. His advertisement in the "Boston Gazette and County Post Boy and Journal," of Oct. 16, 1769, and subsequent issues, is as follows:

"Christian Remick, lately from Spain, Begs Leave to inform the Public, That he performs all sorts of Drawing and Water Colours, such as Sea Pieces, Prospective Views, Geographical Plans of Harbours, Sea Coasts &c. Also Colours Pictures to the Life and Draws Coats of Arms at the most reasonable Rates. Specimens of his Performances, particularly an accurate View of the Blockade of Boston, with the landing the British Troops on the first of October, 1768, may be seen at the Golden Ball and Bunch of Grapes Taverns, or at Mr. Thomas Bradford's, North End, Boston."

Christian Remick painted several copies of this view of the landing of British troops in Boston in 1768. The New-England Historic Genealogical Society and the Essex Institute each owns a copy, and one belongs to W. H. Whitmore of Boston, being that formerly owned by Miss Otis. These are respectively dedicated to Gibbons Sharp, Jonathan Peal and John Hancock. These pictures are each 54 inches by 9. A reduced engraving therefrom is in Stark's "Antique Views of Boston."

A picture of Boston from the water, showing this landing of troops, was engraved by Paul Revere. A copy of it colored by Christian Remick, hangs in the Old State House in Boston; it be longs to ex-Mayor Green.* Remick probably did not make much money at this business; and so we find him in September, 1777, sent on shore with other prisoners at Townsend and Sheepscot River, Maine, from H. M. S. "Rainbow." He had undoubtedly been captured from some privateer or Massachusetts State vessel.

He was Pilot and Lieutenant of the brigantine "Tyrannicide" of the Massachusetts State Navy in 1778; and was Prize Master and Lieutenant with Captain John Manley on the Continental frigate "La Hague." He served throughout the war, and was alive in July, 1783, when he was probably living in Eastham, Mass. I have been unable to learn anything about him since 1783, and have also been unable to obtain an account of his children; but the following is thought to be nearly correct.

HANNAH,5 m. Joshua Emmes of Boston, there, Nov. 20, 1773.

FREEMAN, b. 1755; d. Nov. 30, 1826, in West Brewster; m. Abigall

Sears, May 15, 1777, in Harwich, Mass.

ELKANAH, b. 1758; d. Jan. 22, 1830, in Eden, Me.; m. Phebe Doane iii. of Cape Cod.

Sally, 5 m. Patrick Christopher of Boston, June, 1774.

Daniel, 5 bapt. March 9, 1766, in Boston. Probably never married.

Freeman<sup>5</sup> and Elkanah<sup>5</sup> were both soldiers in Massachusetts regiments during the Revolution, and were in many hard fought battles. Freeman lived on Cape Cod, and Elkanah on Mt. Desert Island, Me., in the vicinity of which are many of his descendants.

6. Daniel Remick (Christian, Abraham, Christian), brother to Christian before mentioned, was a soldier in the 8th Massachusetts regiment in 1745, in the expedition to capture Louisburg, C. B. He was a mariner and lived in Boston; married Priscilla Johnson of Boston, there in May, 1758. He was probably burned in the large fire in Boston in 1760. His widow, Priscilla Remick, married Nathaniel Gray in Boston, Dec. 17, 1761. Probably no children.

7. ISAAC REMICK (Christian, Abraham, Christian), another brother, moved to and settled in Rye, N. H., was a mariner and farmer; married and raised a large family in Rye; several of his sons were in the Continental army from 1775 to 1883.

His children, all born in Rye, N. H., were (probably) the following:

- DAVID, Revolutionary soldier; lived in Rye, N. H., and Adams,
- Moses,5 d. in 1808 in Rye; m. and left one child; lived in Rye. iii. THOMAS, b Revolutionary soldier, and probably killed during the war.

8. Joseph Remick (Christian, Abraham, Christian), born June 8, 1744, youngest child of Christian<sup>3</sup> and Hannah, was a mariner and farmer; lived in Eastham, Mass., and was probably drowned at sea. He married Sarah Lincoln Paine, and they had three children, all born in Eastham.

This completes the sketch of Christian<sup>8</sup> Remick and his relatives. There may be some mistakes in regard to relationship and dates, and if any are noted the writer wishes to be informed, as he is engaged in writing a history and genealogy of the Remick family in the United States, and would be very glad to receive any thing of interest regarding Christian<sup>1</sup> Remich, the emigrant, or of any of his descendants. It will be observed that the writer spells some of the names Remich and others Remick; the rule has been to spell it as the persons mentioned did, although the emigrant always spelled his name with a final h, instead of k; but nearly all of his descendants spell it with the final k.

OBITUARY OF THE HON. THOMAS HUBBARD, 1773.

[From the Massachusetts Gazette, Boston, July 26, 1773.]

On the 14 Instant died, and on Monday last was buried, the Hon

THOMAS HUBBARD, Esqr: in the 71st Year of his Age.

Perhaps no Person has passed through Life with more Reputation to himself, or more Usefulness to the Public, than Mr Hubbard: His exemplary Conduct, both in public and private Life, merits universal Approbation: He was not insensible that every particular private Connection brought with it its particular Obligations: This led him to shew himself the kind and faithful Husband, in the conjugal Relation; As a Parent, he was tender and indulgent: To his Domestics, he was generous and condescending: To his Neighbors obliging: The native Integrity of his Heart made him strictly just and upright in his Dealings: If Sincerity, Candor, and an uncommon Openness of Heart, joined with a real Desire to please and oblige, are some of the most solid Principles in true Friendship, he justly deserved the Character of one of the best of Friends.

Merit, like his could not long lie unnoticed: Upon his first Appearance on the Stage of Life, he was introduced to some very important civil Posts in his native Town: These were discharged with such uncommon Fidelity and Exactness by him, as to open the Way for the Honors of his Country to be poured on him with a liberal Hand: For many Years successivity, he held the Chair in the Honorable House of Representatives for this Province: This he filled with so much Reputation to himself as to open the Way for a Seat at his Majestys Council Board where he continued to to the Year of his Death: These public Places he considered as chieffy valuable, because he might become more extensively useful: He felt the Obligations of a public Character: and many can witness with what Assiduity and Diligence, with what unshaken Firmness and Integrity, he acted in these several Departments.

Posessed with a benevolent Heart, he was a Friend to Human Happiness, and therefore was a Friend to Learning and Science, which w greatly conduce to promote it. He was attentive to the interest of Learn ing in general, but the College in this Vicenity became the Object of his peculiar Affection and Regard: He considered its Interests as his own: For many Years past he sustained the Office of Treasurer for that respectable Society, and was a Member of the Honorable Corporation: In these Places he ever acted with the Care and Assiduity of a Parent: By this means, the public Funds happily increased under his careful Hand: Not content with acting the Part of a College Treasurer, he destinguished himself as one of its liberal Benefactors: He made it the Object of his Bounty in Time of Life, and bequeathed it a handsome Legacy at his Death.

But if there was any one Virtue more conspicuous in this good Man, than another, it seems to have been the Charity and Liberality of his Heart: a more soft and tender, a more sympathizing or more liberal Disposition, no Man, perhaps, ever experienced: He employed his Riches, as he did his Time and Talents for the Good of Mankind: Blessed with an opulent Fortune, and a liberal Heart, he became, in a sense, a public Almoner: He was in the most proper sense, "Eyes to the Blind, and Feet to the Lame": His House was a Temple of Hospitality: Oft did fill the Hands of the Indigent, oft wipe away the Tears of Poverty and Distress—and how often has he caused the "Widows Heart to sing for Joy."

We should by no means do Justice to his Character, unless we attend to to the most valuable Part of it; If our Lord has fixed the true Criterion of his Friends and Followers in saying "by their Fruits ye shall know them" he justly deserved the Character of an exemplary Christian: His Mind was deeply impressed with a sense of Religion in early Life; He ever discovered a firm Belief of the excellent Doctrines and Precepts of Christianity: was a constant and devout Attendant on public Worship; was a strict Observer of the Sabbath; ever kept up religious Exercises in his Family and Closet; and did not fail to instruct his Children and Servants in the important Truths of the Gospel — So that he was a most

His Constitution of Body was originally good; but a universal Languishment and Decay of Nature, seemed of late to have seized him: The Obstinacy of his Disorder baffled the Efforts of the medical Art; He was sensible of his Danger; but the Principles of that Religion which directed him in Life, gave him the most substantial Support in the Hour of Death: He calmly acquiesced in the Will of Heaven; and we have reason to think is in full Possesion of Heavenly Bliss and Glory: The Death of so valuable Person, must sensibly affect, not only his Family and Friends, but also the Church and Town to which he belonged, as well as the Public in general.

His Remains were interred with every possible Mark of Esteem and Respect, having a very respectable Train of Followers, and a numerous valuable Man of Church as well as State.

M' Hubbard sustained the office of Treasurer of Harvard University for many years, with great honor to himself and benefit to that institution.

He was also Deacon, and Treasurer of the Old South Church in this City; holding both offices for a long period with great judgement and fidelity.

To his beneficence and care The Poor Fund of that Church and Society was greatly indebted for its usefullness, and since his death the accuracy of his accounts, eminently contributed in the late trial before the Supreme Court of Chancery, towards the re-establishment of that most excellent Charity, and a restoration of a part of its funds.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.

Hon. Thomas Hubbard "lived in a fine mansion in Summer street, which had been built by Leonard Vassall on land formerly owned by Simeon Stoddard. He left £200 to the poor of Boston and £50 to the Charitable and Pious Fund of the Old South. His executors were: William Blair Townsend, his son-in-law, and Thomas Fayerweather. His daughter Mary, wife of Mr. Townsend, died in 1768 soon after marriage. His daughter, Thankful, married in 1770 Dr. Thomas Leonard, and died in 1772. Phillis Wheatley addressed some touching lines to the parents on the death of this second daughter. Mrs. Hubbard (Mary daughter of Jonathan Jackson) died February 15, 1774. Mr. Hubbard's portrait by Copley is in the possession of Harvard College."—Hill's History of the Old South Church, vol. 2, p. 150.

South Church, vol. 2, p. 150.

A description of the house in Summer street, Boston, where Thomas Hubbard lived, will be found in an article entitled "A Home of the Olden Time," by the late Hon. Thomas C. Amory, in the REGISTER, vol. 25, pp. 37-52. On page 45 Mr. Amory gives a sketch of Mr. Hubbard's life.

Mr. Hubbard was treasurer of Harvard College from 1752 till his death in 1773. His successor was Hon. John Hancock.

STATE TREASURERS OF CONNECTICUT.—I have been at work for the past four years procuring photos of the ex-Treasurers of Connecticut to be hung in the Treasurer's office in Hartford, and have succeeded in procuring them as far back as 1769 with only one missing, that of Peter Colt, who served 1790–1794, four years. This will make over thirty already obtained up to date.

Now, at the request of Mr. Gay, secretary of our Historical Society in Hartford, who advised me to write you and through your magazine ask of your many readers if they can give any information where a painting, steel plate or any picture of the following persons could be found, and request them to write me at Vernon, Conn., in regard to them, which will carry us back to the formation of our State government.

Scott and White.—In Vol. II., p. 175, of the N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record. Mr. M. B. Scott, in an article on the Scott Family, speaking of John<sup>2</sup> son of Richard<sup>1</sup> Scott, states he married "Rebeckah ——, her maiden name is not positively known, but there is a strong circumstantial evidence that she was the daughter of Sylvanus White, son of Peregrine White who was born on bond the Mayflower."

He places the birth of John<sup>2</sup> Scott 1640, his marriage 1661, and death 1677. Peregrine<sup>1</sup> White was born 1620, married 1648, and consequently Sylvanus would not have been born before 1648, and in that case would have been thirteen at the time of his daughter's alleged marriage. We think the nathevidence would outweigh the circumstantial in this case.

QUERIES.

WHICH RICHARD JACQUES KILLED FATHER RALE AT NORRIDGEWOCK IN 1724?

—Lieut. Richard Jacques was a native of Newbury, Mass. There were two of this name, cousins, of nearly the same age. One became a minister of the Gospel, and settled at Gloucester. A recent writer has suggested that this man was the slayer of Rale. Who can tell?

Abbot.—Is anything known of the Abbot family of New England (said to have come from Yorkshire) prior to their settlement in this country?

REPLIES.

Perkins of Hampton, N. H.—In the Register for 1858 (xii., 82), there is an account of the family of Isaac and Susanna Perkins of Hampton, who were the parents of the following children: Lydia, m. 17 Oct. 1659, to Eliakim Wardhall; Isaac, drowned 1661; Jacob, m. 30 Dec. 1669, Mary Phillbrook; Rebecca, m. 21 Sept. 1659, John Huzzey; Daniel, d. 1662; Caleb, m. 24 April 1677, Bethiah Phillbrook; Benjamin, d. 1670; Susan, m. Isaac Buzwell and William Fuller; Hannah, m. 1 Dec. 1674, James Phillbrook; Mary, m. Isaac Chase; Ebenezer, m. Mary; Joseph, m. Martha. Some uncertainty appeared as to Lydia, Rebecca and Caleb being children of the above Isaac.

Jacob's children were, Isaac, b. 1671; Jacob, b. 1674; ?Alice, m. John Marden,

Ebenezer's children were, Daniel, b. 1685; Abigail, b. 1687; Jonathan, b. 1691.

Joseph and Martha had Joseph, b. 1689; John, b. 1691; Caleb, b. 1693. The later history of these three brothers appears to have been unknown.

The following facts may serve to throw some light on the family history: Eliakim and Lydia Wardell, after sharing in the persecutions experienced by many of the Quakers, removed to Monmouth Co., N. J., prior to 1670. John Hussey, "late of Hamp Town in New Hampshire, near piscatoway in New England," by deed of 1 July 1695, purchased 340 acres of land near New Castle, Del., and here he died in 1707. His mother-in-law probably accompanied him to the Delaware, as we find that administration on the estate of Susanna Perkins was granted 17 July 1699, to John Hussey, principal creditor.

Ebenezer and Joseph Perkins, both late of New England, husbandmen, were purchasers of land in Brandywine hundred, New Castle county, on Delaware, by deeds dated Oct. 14, 1693. The will of Ebenezer Perkins, of the county of New Castle, husbandman, is dated 20 July 1703, and proven 16 Sept. following. To his youngest sons, Isaac and Ebenezer, he gave all his real estate; to eldest son, Daniel, £30; to daughters Abigail and Elizabeth Perkins, £15 each, to be paid by Isaac and Ebenezer after the sons became of age; sons Jonathan and David to be bound apprentices to some trade. There seems to be some confusion as to whether his wife's name was Marcy (Mercy) or Mary, as may also be noticed in the Hampton records. The sons Isaac and Ebenezer sold the land inherited from their father, to Thomas Cartmell, in 1725. In Hanson's "Old Kent of Maryland," there is considerable Perkins genealogy, beginning with Daniel, m. Susanna Starton, 1715, and David, m. 1723, Sarah Reding. They are said to have been Quakers from Wales, but they were doubtless the sons of Ebenezer of New Castle county; Daniel having a son of that name.

The will of Joseph Perkins, dated 4th of 11th mo. (Jan.) 1706-7, and proven 19 Aug. 1707, gave to eldest son Joseph all the real estate, he paying legacies to the other children, John, Caleb, Humphrey, Joshua, Mary and Martha. In 1724 Joseph, Jr. sold the land to Caleb Perkins, blacksmith, who m. 1721, Ann Beakes.

Isaac Perkins, doubtless the son of Ebenezer, m. about 1723, Mary, dau. of Charles Booth, and removed to the Shenandoah, Va., where the most of their

Oct. 28, 1693, Isaac Marriott of Burlington, New Jersey, merchant, conveyed about 330 acres of land on the Delaware river, below Burlington, to Jacob Perkins of Burlington county, planter, for £105. This land Jacob divided in 1711, amongst his three sons, Isaac (the eldest), Jacob and Benjamin, reserving a life interest therein, and while no will or administration appear, circumstances point to 1731 as about the time of his death. Prior to this his son Isaac had removed to Kent county, Md., where he died in or before 1746, leaving a son Wright Perkins. It is conjectured that Isaac married Elizabeth Wright, dan. of Joshua and Elizabeth (Empson) Wright, b. 1670. Robert Powell and Mary Perkins were married at the house of Thomas Revell, in Burlington, 10 Dec. 1696. Isaac, Jacob and Elizabeth Perkins were among the witnesses. The suppositional Alice, who married John Marden in 1699, doubtless belonged to some other branch of the family. The birth of Benjamin in 1693 looks questionable, both from the lapse of time after the birth of his sister, and from the fact that in the churchyard of St. Mary's P. E. Church at Burlington we find the tombstone of a Benjamin Perkins, who d. 5 July 1755, aged 73 years. His wife, Elinor Cox, to whom he was married about 13 June 1731, d. 27 Oct. 1781, aged 74 years.

The records of St. Mary's contain the baptisms of Isaac, Jacob, Benjamia and Mary Perkins, 20 Nov. 1703. Hannah, dau. of Jacob, Jr. and Sarah, was bapt. 7 Sept. 1710, and Bathsheba, her sister (who had the same name as one of the daughters of John Hussey), 26 July 1719. Jacob, Jr. died about Dec., 1731, and in his will names his children, Abraham (eldest son), Rebecca, David, Mary, Ann, Susanna, Hannah, Sarah, Bersheba, Martha. David died about three months after his father, unmarried.

Benjamin Perkins is supposed to have been the father of Major Jacob Perkins of Wellingborough township, Burlington county, who died 6 Oct. 1792, aged 61 years, 26 days.

There was a William Perkins of Alloways Creek, Salem county, N. J., who died 1729, leaving wife Mary, and children, Mary, m. to James Vance, Matthew, Jane, Susanna, David, John and Ann Perkins.

William Perkins, a passenger to Burlington, N. J., on the Kent, 1677, died at sea, leaving wife Mary, and children Thomas, Mary and Abigail. The son died without issue in 1694, and was inherited by his sisters, Mary, wife of Henry Grubb, and Abigail, wife of Thomas Raper. This William was from Selby in Leicestershire, the son of Thomas Perkins, a Baptist minister, and grandson of Rev. William Perkins, of a well known family.

The writer would be pleased to know whether any thing further has been discovered as to the antecedents of Isaac and Susanna Perkins of Hampton; whether their grandson, Benjamin Perkins, was certainly born in 1693, and whether the births of the sixteen children of John and Rebecca Hussey are of record.

GLEERT COPE.

West Chester, Pa.

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE.

Prince's Pamphlet on Rosier's Narrative of Weymouth's Voyage.—In 1860 Mr. George Prince printed at Bath, Maine, a pamphlet in which he gave reasons for believing that George's River was the river explored by Weymouth Mr. Prince has lately presented to the New-England Historic Geneological Society a bound copy of that work, with additions in manuscript and print. In the pamphlet published in 1860 he re-printed James Rosier's first edition of his narrative, originally printed at London in 1605. Mr. Prince, in the prefact to the volume presented to the Society, says of Rosier and the 1605 Narrative:

to the volume presented to the Society, says of Rosier and the 1605 Narrative: "He calls these minutes from his sea-journal, a brief summe, a brief relation, and says distinctly that he purposely omitted certain parts which might inform foreign nations of the locality. I printed this, thirty-three years ago. I have now had printed Rosier's second edition, which he calls Extracts. It was prepared by him and copied from his sea-journal in 1625 for the great work of Samuel Purchas in five large quarto volumes. It will be seen that they are very similar, as of course they would be, on the same subject and from the same pen. This second edition contains some of those items that he omitted from his first edition, the latitude, the variation, the direction in which his discovered river lay from Monhegan, and other items of much interest to the public."

Town Histories in Preparation .- Persons having facts or documents relating to any of these towns are advised to send them at once to the person engaged in writing the history of that town:

Deerfield, Mass.—Hon. George Sheldon of Deerfield is revising his History of

will bring it out in two large volumes. He has added several hundred pages.

**Rittery and Berwick, Maine.—Dr. William B. Lapham and Mr. John F. Hill of Augusta, Me., purpose to publish a history of the town of Kittery, to include a history of Berwick from the first settlement of the Pascataqua country to the time of the separation of Berwick as a town in 1715, and to contain the history of Kittery, including the town of Eliot, down to the present time. They intend so far as possible to give an account of all the early settlers, both biographical and genealogical, and of all prominent citizens to the present time. The history of Kittery dates back to early colonial days when a settlement was made at Newichwannock within the limits of ancient Kittery under the authority of Capt. John Mason and his associates of the Laconia Company. The work will be published in parts, of 112 octavo pages each, and will be consecutively paged, so that when completed the numbers can be bound into volumes. The price will be seventy-five cents a part, payable on delivery. The edition will be limited to a very few copies above the number subscribed for, and persons desiring to secure the book should subscribe at once. The book will be printed on the best of paper, and will be illustrated, but as illustrations, and especially portraits, must be furnished without expense to the publishers, the number cannot now be stated.

LIST OF THE EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE BODIES OF VIRGINIA.—The Richmond Dispatch has a department devoted to "Queries and Answers," which is proving very useful to historical students. We copy from the issue of July 16 the following communication from the indefatigable Mr. Brock, which shows that he is doing good service in collecting material for the history of Virginia.

We hope some of our readers may be able to help him:

"My thanks are due to you again for a number of gratifying responses to my query under the caption 'Virginia Almanacs' in your issue of the 25th ultimo. ## SOCIETIES AND THEIR PROCEEDINGS.

NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

Boston, Massachusetts, Wednesday June 7, 1893.—A stated meeting was held at the Society's House, 18 Somerset street, this afternoon at three o'clock, the president, the Hon. William Claffin, LL.D., in the chair.

42* VOL. XLVII.

The monthly report of the Council was presented.

The recommendation of the Council that the society appropriate a sum not to exceed ten thousand dollars from the Wilder Subscription Building Fund for an extension of the society's house on land belonging to the society, according to plans and specifications exhibited, was taken up and debated. Further consideration and action on the subject was postponed to a special meeting, which was ordered to be held on Wednesday, June 14th, at 3 o'clock, P. M. at Jacob Sleeper Hall.

Rev. Anson Titus of Natick, Mass., read a paper on "Thomas Foxcroft, Pastor of the First Church, Boston, 1717-1769."

The monthly reports of the corresponding secretary, the historiographer, and the librarian were presented.

Four resident members were elected.

Wednesday June 14.—A special meeting was held at three o'clock this afternoon in Jacob Sleeper Hall, 12 Somerset street, President Claffin in the chair.

After discussion the society voted to approve of the action and recommendation of the Council in reference to the extension of the society's house, and to appropriate for the extension from the Wilder Subscription Building Fund a sum not exceeding ten thousand dollars.

MAINE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Brunswick, Tuesday, June 21, 1893.—The annual meeting of this Society was held this day. Two sessions were held, morning and afternoon, and a large number were present.

The President, Hon. James P. Baxter, presided, and the various annual reports were read and accepted.

The Board of Officers were re-elected, and Mr. S. Clifford Belcher of Far-ington was added to the Standing Committee. Mr. L. B. Chapman was mington was added to the Standing Committee. appointed editor of Vols. VIII. and IX. York Deeds.

A new volume of the Documentary Series was announced as in press, and attention was called to the new Index Volume recently issued by the Society.

The president suggested the advisability of encouraging the organization of county historical societies throughout the State, and Hon. J. H. Drummond recommended a recodification of the Society's By-Laws.

It was voted to hold the field-day excursion at Kittery and vicinity, and Mr. M. A. Safford of Kittery was appointed the chairman of the Committee of Arrangements.

Six corresponding members were chosen.

At the close of the afternoon session Mr. Lewis Pierce, as attorney for Mrs. Anne Longfellow Pierce, announced that it was the intention of Mrs. Pirece to present to the Society her mansion house and grounds on Congress st., Portland, formerly owned by Gen. Peleg Wadsworth, and once the home of the Post Longfellow, provided the Society would accept the gift and occupy the house after her decease, and which was to be kept as nearly intact as possible for the term of fifty years at least.

The Society voted to accept the gift.

RHODE ISLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Providence, Monday, July 3, 1893.— A quarterly meeting was held this afternoon at three o'clock, the president, Gen. Horatio Rogers, in the chair.

Amos Perry, LL.D., the librarian, made his report. During the last quarter 78 volumes, 20 miscellaneous articles and 308 pamphlets have been given.

A resolution was passed on the death of Henry Truman Beckwith, a member of long standing, who held the office of secretary for ten years, and had been a member of some of the standing committees for about forty years. It was adopted by a standing vote.

A report by the librarian led to the adoption of a resolution appointing a committee to move for the purchase, by the State of Rhode Island, of the original manuscripts and papers of Gen. Nathaniel Greene of the Revolution, now in the

epared by the Historiographer, Rev. EZRA HOYT BYINGTON, D.D., of Newton, Mass.

CHE sketches of deceased members prepared for the REGISTER are of essity brief, because the space that can be appropriated is quite limited. the materials for more extended memoirs which can be gathered are served in the archives of the Society, and they will be available for use oreparing the "Memorial Biographies," of which four volumes have n issued and a fifth volume is in press. The income from the Towne morial Fund is devoted to the publication of these volumes.

BEOTT LAWRENCE, A.M., LL.B., was elected a resident member of this lety November 4, 1874. He was born in Boston, September 9, 1828, the son abbott and Katherine (Bigelow) Lawrence. His father was United States ister to England, 1849-52. His Puritan ancestor, John Lawrence, came to tertown in 1635, from Suffolk County, England. The family of Lawrence existed in England from the 11th century, and has produced a large number nen of distinction and of usefulness.

bbott Lawrence was of the seventh generation from John Lawrence. Among American ancestors there have been great merchants and manufacturers, a distinguished in political life, at the bar, in medicine, and in the pulpit, well as in diplomacy and in literature. One who turns the pages of the ealogy of John Lawrence, from 1635, for two centuries and a half, and eight erations, will find everywhere evidences of the sterling excellence of the dish Puritan stock.

bbott Lawrence was graduated from Harvard University in 1849, having a prepared for college in the Boston public schools. He took a course in the v School, but did not engage in the practice of the law. For about ten years was a member of a firm that was engaged in manufacturing. He has been many years president of one of the largest manufacturing corporations in city of Lawrence. He was also a director in several other corporations, gave a large part of his time to a careful supervision of their affairs. A years ago his name was put forward by his friends for the office of Collector the Port of Boston. The letter, which commended him for this position, e the signatures of a large number of the leading business men of Boston, it is a striking testimonial to his standing among business men.

In his earlier life Mr. Lawrence spent several years in foreign travel, and he since been abroad a number of times. He found time for some literary rk and for historical investigations. He edited the Diary of his maternal ndfather, Timothy Bigelow, a noted lawyer of Groton. This was published 876. He was a member of a number of historical societies.

r. Lawrence married, April 12, 1853, Harriette, only daughter of J. W. Paige, of Boston. They had six children. His residence in this city was on amonwealth Avenue. He had a summer cottage at Nahant, where he died, or a long illness, July 6, 1893.

T. REV. WILLIAM INGRAHAM KIP, D.D., a corresponding member, elected uary 4, 1871, died at San Francisco, Cal., April 6, 1893.

The family of DeKuype (Kip) is of French extraction, although immediately m Holland. The first mention of the name in the City of New York is of adrick DeKuype, the grandson of Sir Ruloff DeKuype, who fell at the battle Jarnac about 1570, in the army of the Duke of Anjou. Mr. DeKuype was to this country in 1635, by the Foreign Country Co., for the exploration of north-east passage to the Indies. He soon returned to Holland, but left ee sons in this country, who all became large landed proprietors. They purchased the property at Kip's Bay, N. Y., and erected a mansion, the family

Wm. Ingraham Kip was the son of Leonard Kip (a descendant of Hendrick DeKuype) and Maria Ingraham, and was born in New York City, Oct. 3, 1811. He was educated at Yale College, where he graduated in 1831, and took up the study of law. His tastes subsequently led him to study theology, and four years later he graduated from the General Theological Seminary, New York. He was first called to St. Peter's Church, Morristown, N. J., and later served as assistant at Grace Church, N. Y. In 1838 he became rector of St. Paul's Church, Albany, where he remained until 1853, when he was chosen missionary Bishop of California. He was the first bishop of that State for nearly forty years, and saw the wild land turn to one of the gardens of the Lord.

He married Maria Lawrence, a daughter of Isaac Lawrence, president of the United States Bank, New York. Her grand-uncle was Capt. James Lawrence, who said "don't give up the ship" as he fell upon the deck of the frigate Chesapeake when defending it against the British ship Shannon, June 1, 1813.

He died on the 6th of April, 1893. His wife and two sons survive him. Lawrence Kip, his older son, resides in New York, and William Ingraham Kip, the other, in San Francisco. Bishop Kip had decided literary tastes, and his book entitled "The Double Witness of the Church" has reached its 23d thousand edition, and is held in high regard among Americans. Other books of his are "Christmas Holidays in Rome," "The Lenten Fast," "Early French Missions in North America," "Catacombs of Rome," etc. etc.

EDWARD RUPERT HUMPHREYS, A.M., LL.D., was elected a resident member Oct. 3, 1860. He was born of English parentage in Dublin, Ireland, March I, 1820, and died in Boston March 20, 1893. His father was a distinguished clergyman of the Church of England.

After passing through the usual public-school education of England, he entered the University of Cambridge where he attained distinction as a classical scholar. On graduating from the University he studied surgery and medicine, but soon devoted himself to the occupation of his life-that of an educator and educational writer. In 1844 he was made Director of Education of Prince Edward's Island. He became head-master in classics in Merchiston Castle Academy near Edinburgh in 1848, and held a similar position in the ancient grammar school of Cheltenham from 1852 to 1859. In the last named year be came to Boston, and soon took a high place among scholars and educators. He was for three years an assistant editor of the Boston Post. But his chief work was the preparation of young men for college. His "Collegiate School" in Boston gained a high reputation, and he sent out from it in the long period of his educational career many boys who are now prominent in public and professional

Dr. Humphreys was an accomplished and accurate classical scholar. He was authority on any point concerning Hebrew, Greek or Latin literature. He enjoyed an extensive acquaintance with scholars on both sides of the ocean.

Hon. W. E. Gladstone was one of his warm personal friends.

While at Prince Edward's Island Dr. Humphreys published an edition of Horace and some minor classical works. While in Scotland and Cheltenham he published "Lyra Latina, or Translations from Modern English and American Poets into various kinds of Latin Verse;" "Lyra Hellenica, or Translations from Modern Poets into Greek Iambic Verse;" "Exercitationes Iambicæ, or Original Exercises in Greek Iambic Composition;" "The Third Decade of Livy, with Notes and Illustrations" (London, Longmans, 1857); Manuals of "Latin and Greek Prose Composition," of "Civil Law," of "Political Science," of "Moral Philosophy," etc., mostly published by Longmans in several editions. After coming to America he published "Lessons on the Liturgy of the Protestal Episcopal Church" (Boston, 1860); "Essays on the Education of Military Officers" (1862); "The Higher Education of Europe and America" (1870); "America Past, Present and Prospective" (1870). He was a prominent continuous to the continuous continuou tributor to the National Quarterly Review and other magazines.

Dr. Humphreys received the degree of LL.D. from King's University and King's College, Aberdeen, in 1850. He left a widow, several sons, and one married daughter.

The History of the Centennial Celebration of the Inauguration of George Washington as first President of the United States. Edited by Clarence Winthrop Bowen, Ph. D., Secretary of the Committee. New York: D. Appleton and Company. 1892. Folio; pp. 673.

This volume is both a memorial of a highly interesting event and a permanent addition to the library of history. It serves to mark in a fitting manner the date of the completed century of our national government, and, as such monument of the progress of time, may outlast any like symbol of stone or bronze. As a volume of history it gives an authentic account of the current event of the centennial celebration, and also of the circumstances and ceremonies with which the government began. Under the latter head are comprised much biographical information (some of which has hitherto failed of publication) and certain descriptive accounts of the event of President Washington's first inauguration, contained in letters written at the time by ministers resident to their respective governments, and which have recently been excerpted from the archives of those governments. The volume is profusely illustrated by engravings, most of which have been produced by the aid of photography, with results highly satisfactory to the connoisseur in art. Besides portraits of great historical interest, the illustrations comprise much that relates to the period of the organization of the government and to the celebration itself, which took place in New York city on April 30 and May 1 and 2, 1889. As respects the celebration the artist photographer seized every point of vantage, and gives us scenes from life at the most interesting stages of the great demonstration. It is to be noted that all this is also history, and that, as far away into the centuries as these pictures shall endure, the event, in its minute lineaments as well as its general aspects, may be visually known.

The table of contents numbers twenty-two chapters, each having its special topic. For the present purpose, however, the contents may be summed up as a historical sketch of the inauguration; brief biographies of the members of the First Congress; a short account of the semi-centennial observance, which occurred in New York, April 30, 1839; a description, at length, of the celebration of 1889, and a chapter of "notes on portraits." The chapter on the inauguration was written by the editor. The story is told in a consecutive way, with numerous touches of detail, and in a manner to give a unity of impression. The chapter of biographies contains, as already intimated, much new matter, and it is, for reference, of special value in the way of supplement to the dictionaries and formal works of biography. The writer is Paul Leicester Ford. In regard to his work the editor says: "Nearly a year was spent by him [Mr. Ford] in preparing the chapter, so difficult was it to obtain the dates of the births and deaths of all the members of the First Congress under the Constitution." The fidelity in research thus suggested extends to other matters no less, as is evinced by various foot notes, which signify extensive correspondence for ascertainment of facts from original sources. The names of each State delegation are alphabetically arranged in the text,

Five of the topics in the account of the centennial celebration have been treated upon by the editor and the others by chairmen of the several committees. One topic is the "Literary Exercises," in which are given in full, among other things, the poem by J. G. Whittier, the oration by Chauncey M. Depew and brief remarks by Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States. The chapter on "The Banquet" contains, among others, verbatim reports of the speeches of President Harrison, Chief Justice Fuller, ex-Presidents Hayes and Cleveland, Gen. W. T. Sherman, President Eliot of Harvard University and James R. Lowell.

An important part of the commemorative doings was an exhibition of works of art and personal relics, illustrative of the period of the Revolution and that which succeeded. These were largely original portraits on canvas and in sculpture, and engravings of early date. The catalogue contained 1,374 numbers, some of which were newspapers of the periods named. The chairman of the committee in his report ventures the opinion that this exhibition (the "loan exhibition") "will stand as the best achievement of the centennial celebration." The remark seems warranted if the collection be regarded as the basis, or nucleus, of the total art exhibit here given, in exact similitude, in the engravings of the centennial volume. By photography the art treasures (that is the historical portraits) of many public and private institutions, and of many homes, as well as those contained in the exhibition itself, are reproduced, and these faithful copies may be said to bring us into immediate contact with Washington and his renowned contemporaries. Thus, the volume supplies what no art gallery can do, the several portraits, both those of the greatest and those of lesser fame in the art catalogues, of these illustrious personages. student, whether of history or of art, with these various portraits of a particular person assembled before him, is advantaged in having opportunity for instant comparative criticism, and, as a historical student, especially, he has the satisfaction of acquiring in mind, a true, or at least approximately true portrait

The possibility of thus acquiring such a portrait ceases when the concrete examples are but few, and these much at variance. But of personages of chief renown the number here is ample. Of Franklin there are 53 different portraits in the volume; of Washington, 29; of Jefferson, 21; of Hamilton, 16; of John Adams, 14; of John Jay, 10. One portrait, at least, of each of 78 of the 96 members of the First Congress has been obtained. A considerable number are of the wives or other female relatives of distinguished Americans of the period. In all there are 529 portraits in the volume, many being repetitions or duplicates. A considerable number are photographs of busts.

The great value of this array of portraiture is much enhanced by the "Notes on Portraits," which make up the closing chapter of the volume. This chapter, which is of 135 pages length, was written by the editor, and consists of a historical account of all the more celebrated portraits. It is at once a storehouse of information and a monument of painstaking, and amounts to an authoritative text book on the subject. The writer frequently mentions the sources of his knowledge, strengthening the proof of authenticity; and, as to the identity of the artist, and like points, defers, in several instances, to the judgment of Charles Henry Hart, of Philadelphia, who was of the art committee of the Exhibition, and who, he says, is "an acknowledged authority on historical portraits." The volume is supplied with an excellent index of 121 pages, the work of Robert H. Kelby, of the New York Historical Society. The printer and the bookbinder have contributed in their special ways in making the volume a work of art. But 1,000 copies have been issued, and a donation of one copy has been made to the United States government, to each State and Territory of the Union, to the city of New York, and to the governments of England, France, Spain, Holland and Sweden, whose representatives were present at the inauguration and sent home official accounts of it.

The Rhode Island Historical Society, at its meeting held April 4, 1893, passed a resolution that the proceedings of the Society should be published quarterly, the first number to consist of the usual annual transactions and the subsequent numbers for the year to consist of such matter hitherto unpublished as the publishing committee should select. The two first numbers have been issued. The first or April number contains a report of the proceedings; the address of the president, Gen. Horatio Rogers; the reports of the committees; the reports of the librarian and the treasurer; the annual necrology and some other matters. The publication committee are Rev. Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, and Messrs. John G. Vose and Amasa M. Eaton. Wilfred H. Munro is the assistant editor. The work is well printed. We wish the Society success in its new departure.

The second or July number is devoted to Librarian Perry's valuable report on the nature, extent and condition of the town and city records of Rhode Island. This subject has engaged the attention of the Historical Society and other students of history for ten years or more. Dr. Perry refers to the various plans that have been proposed and considered, among them one for procuring "accurate copies of all the colonial town records with a view to their publication." Finally, at the quarterly meeting of the Historical Society held in October, 1892, the librarian was authorized to issue circulars to the several town and city clerks, asking information in regard to the condition of their records. Replies were secured from all the clerks, answering a series of questions which had been sent to them. Dr. Perry in the work before us prints the answers of the town clerks or abstracts of them. They are arranged alphabetically under the towns, and the compiler has prefixed to each town a brief summary of its history. In Rhode Island the town records include the probate records and the registry of deeds, as well as the doings of the town and the records of births, marriages and deaths. The work of Dr. Perry is similar to that done by the Record Commission of Massachusetts, His introductory report contains many matters of interest, particularly to antiquarian students, on the state and colony as well as the town records. "It is a matter of regret," says he, "that while the records of our civil war are well preserved, admirably arranged and cared for, the records of the Colonial and Revolutionary wars, and of the war of 1812, are meagre, detached and scattered, and no properly organized efforts have yet been made to collect, arrange and index them, with the view of honoring the memory of the men and women who risked, if they did not lose, their lives and fortunes for the freedom and independence of their state and country." A Commission, he adds, "cannot too soon be organized with this object in view."

The annual report of the librarian, Amos Perry, LL.D., has been reprinted from the Proceedings in the April number, and its title will be found at the head of this notice. Dr. Perry gives a list and description of the buildings and rooms which have served as cabinets of the Society since its organization, a period of more than seventy years, and a full report of the condition of the library and museum. The Society has some valuable paintings illustrating the history of Providence, which Dr. Perry has described, and he has been able by his research to give an account of the painters and other interesting facts concerning them.

Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica. Second Series. Edited by Joseph Jackson Howard, LL.D., F.S.A. Vol. V. No. 18, June 1893. London: Mitchell & Hughes, 140 Wardour Street, W. Price, 1 shilling. Annual subscription,

Dr. Howard's "Miscellanea" was begun in July, 1866, and there have been completed ten royal octavo volumes, namely of the first series 2 volumes; of the "New Series" 4 volumes; and of the "Second Series," 4 volumes. A fifth volume of this series is in the course of publication, of which the number before us is the eighteenth. It contains an instalment of the Registers of Bardwell in Suffolk; Notes from the Church and Churchyard of Folkestone, Kent; the Page Family; Irish Bookplates, illustrated; the Fonnereau family; Monumental Inscriptions from the Burial Ground of St. George, Hanover Square; and Genealogical Notes and Queries.

A vast amount of genealogic and heraldic information is preserved in the en volumes and upwards of this periodical.

History of Hesborough, Maine. By John Pendleton Farrow, Master Mariner. Bangor. 1893. 8vo. pp. 313.

About ten miles in a south-easterly direction from the pleasant city of Belast, Waldo County, Maine, on the beautiful Penobscot Bay, may be seen an land of about 6,000 acres, formerly called Long Island, now known by the re-enphonious name of Ilesborough. Nearly thirteen miles, we are informed, es us about the extreme length of the land, while in width it varies, singularly, m three rods to something like two miles. One portion of the territory, led "700 acre island," was visited by Capt. Benjamin Church in 1692. He found French and Indians there, often seen together in those troublesome times. They sharply eluded the Captain's vigilance, who obtained, as we learn, more property than persons; his attempts being futile to catch the "salvages" or their companions.

One-fifth of the often described Waldo grant, of nearly one thousand acres, including a great part of the now known Knox and Waldo counties, passed by inheritance into the hands of Mrs. Knox, wife of Washington's War Secretary, Henry Knox, who afterward purchased the remaining rights, and became owner in full, in his own right, and that inherited by his wife, except such portions as had been previously alienated. An agreement, printed in the book, was made between said Knox and the Long Island settlers on the 3d of August, 1799, at the house of Major Philip Ulmer, in Ducktrap.

The early settlements of the island ante-date the Revolution, the author of the book deciding, differently from some others, that Shubael Williams from Connecticut was the first settler, in 1764, his purchase being about three hundred acres. "Without doubt," says Mr Farrow, "Samuel Pendleton came with Shubael and settled on the east side, on what is known as Little Island, in the

In the year 1788, a petition was sent by the inhabitants of the place, to the General Court, desiring an examination of the claim of General Knox to the ownership of the island, and asking for incorporation as a town. A commission was accordingly appointed in 1797, "to settle and declare their rights." The result of these measures is given, dated May 24, 1800, but the act of incorporation passed Jan. 28, 1789.

A plan of the town, as originally surveyed by Warren, with locations and names of first settlers, forty-five in all, faces page 93. Thomas Ames, their first minister, began to preach at the island about 1789. Thomas Waterman was representative to the General Court for North Haven and Vinal Haven, originally Fox Islands.

Between the years 1792 and 1837, twenty-two schooners, two sloops and one brig were built in Hesborough; a list of the names, tonnage, masters and owners of these vessels being here printed.

There has been a decrease in population in Hesborough, the number in 1860, as published, having been 1276, and 1006 in 1890.

It is a singular fact that in 1819, when the question came up before the inhabitants of the town to give in their votes "for or against dividing the State of Massachusetts from the District of Maine," two voted in favor of separation, and twenty-five against it.

Islesborough is considered a good summer resort, with attractions and conveniences suited to the desires and means of seekers after rest and enjoyment

This work contains a number of illustrations, portraits, views and generalogies, the latter taking up more than one-half of the book, which is gotten up in fine taste, with heavy glazed paper and good type, a credit to all concerned Besides an abstract of contents there are indexes of names and illustrations.

Catalogue of the Collections of the Bostonian Society in the Memorial Halls of the Old State House. Boston: Feb. 1, 1893. Prepared by Samuel Arthur Best, Clerk of the Society. By Authority of the Directors. Boston, 1893. 800-pp. 91.

The proceedings of the Bostonian Society at its twelfth annual meeting have been printed and distributed to members and others. The pamphlet contains the annual address of the president of the society, Mr. Curtis Guild, the annual report of the Board of Directors; the reports of the committees on the Rooms and on the Library; a list of accessions to the Library; the reports of the treasurer and the nominating committee; a list of the officers for the current year; the Roll of Membership and the By-Laws. The pamphlet shows that good progress has been made during the year 1892 in carrying out the objects of the society.

The next pamphlet contains a catalogue of the historical relics which the Bostonian Society has collected in Old State House, since its organization is 1881, in pursuance of its object "to promote the study of the history of Boston and the preservation of its antiquities." A mere glance at its pages will surprise those who examine the list, at the vastness and the variety of its collections. The society is preserving much that will enable visitors to carry themselves back in imagination to the Boston of past days; and much that will be useful to the future historian.

A Brief History of the Town of Unity. Written and Read by EDMUND MURCH at a meeting of the Harvard Moon Grange, Thorndike, 1892. Belfast: G. W. Burgess, Printer. 1893. 12mo. pp. 18.

This brief history of the town of Unity, in the State of Maine, preserves many interesting facts in relation to the town, particularly concerning its early history. The town lies in the north-western part of Waldo County.

Record of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines who served the United States of America in the War of the Rebellion and Previous Wars, buried in the City of Portsmouth, N. H., and the Neighboring Towns of Greenland, Newcastle, Newington and Rye, May 30, 1893. Prepared by Joseph Foster, Paymaster U. S. Navy, Portsmouth, N. H. Printed at the office of the Portsmouth Journal. 1893. 8vo. pp. 76. A copy will be mailed to any address on the receipt of 50 cents by Paymaster Joseph Foster, U. S. N., 26 Middle Street, Portsmouth, N. H.

This Memorial Day pamphlet has been prepared by Paymaster Foster for Storer Post No. 1, Department of New Hampshire of the Grand Army of the Republic. It gives "an alphabetical list of the 402 veterans of the Rebellion and previous wars buried in Portsmouth and vicinity, with the military record of each, and, whenever obtainable, copies of the notable inscriptions on the gravestones, and much additional information gathered from many sources."

The Adjutant General of the state of New Hampshire, in a letter to the author dated June 1, 1893, says, "I beg to thank you for a copy of the Record of the Graves Decorated by Storer Post. It is a valuable work, and I assure you I appreciate it, and can understand that a large amount of labor has been put into the record. You have reason to be very proud of it."

Fressingfield Porch and Pews. By Rev. John James Raven, D.D., F.S.A., Vicar of Fressingfield, with Witherdale, and Honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral. 1892. 8vo. pp. 5.

This is a paper reprinted from the proceedings of the Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History. "The object of this paper," says the author, "is to draw attention to certain indications of a memorial of Agincourt, as it would appear, in the porch of Fressingfield church, and likewise to the detail of that almost unique set of mediæval pews which have already attracted so much notice." Michael de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk, of the neighboring parish of Wingfield, who married Catherine, daughter of Hugh Stafford, earl of Stafford, died of disease at the siege of Harfleur in 1415, and, within a month, his son Michael fell in the battle of Agincourt. Dr. Raven thinks he finds in the porch of Fressingfield a memorial of the widow to her spouse and son who died in their country's service.

Views of the porch and of a section of the pews are given, with a description of the pews which bear elaborate carvings. "The hand of the destroyer" is said to have "been painfully active, the saw having been ruthlessly applied to many of the figures," but most of them have escaped his destructive hand.

The Sharpes. Devoted to the History, Genealogy and Literature of the Sharpes.

Published monthly. Price $1 a year. Each number contains 8 pages. Address, W. C. Sharpe, Seymour, Conn.

We continue in this number our quarterly list of works relating to genealogy recently published.

The Parker genealogy makes a volume of over five hundred pages. The emigrant ancestor of this family was Thomas Parker, who embarked for New England in the Susan and Ellen in April, 1635 (Register vol. 14, page 309). He first settled at Lynn, and removed thence to Reading, where he died August 12, 1683, aged about 74. His son Hananiah had a son John born at Reading, August 3, 1664, who removed to Lexington, where he died Jan. 22, 1741. To his descendants this volume is chiefly devoted. The book seems to be compiled in a very thorough manner, and is well printed and well indexed. "Some of the features of the volume are a twenty-five page biography of Rev. Theodore Parker, the world-famed theologian; also an interesting description and history of the Lexington Parker homestead from 1712, from the able pen of Theodore Parker himself. Another part contains the copies of the official Massachusetts Revolutionary records of the service of all the descendants of Den. Thomas Parker mentioned in the book; the value and regard for which records should appeal to all patriotic descendants." The book is embellished with thirteen engravings, mostly portraits.

The book on the Family of John Sullivan of Berwick, Maine, is compiled chiefly from papers collected by the late Hon. Thomas C. Amory, an industrious antiquary of Boston, by his niece Miss G. E. Meredith, who says in the preface to the work: "In 1889 I was requested to arrange the papers left by my uncle, the late T. C. Amory. I had been accustomed for years to hear him talk of the genealogical questions in which he was interested. On making, at the suggestions of two of my cousins, the present book from his Sullivan collection, I have tried to put his materials in convenient order for any member of the family who may share Mr. Amory's taste, and may wish to complete what he began." The compiler has done her work in a very satisfactory manner, and the book, which is handsomely printed and bound, is a fitting monument to a family which has borne a high place in the history of this country. John Sullivan of Berwick came to New England in 1723, from Limerick in Ireland. He had sons Major General John Sullivan, president of New Hampshire, and James Sullivan, governor of Massachusetts. The pedigrees by Sir Bernard Burke, printed in this volume, traces the family back to the O'Sullivans of Ardea. A few copies of the book, we understand, remain undistributed and may be purchased at three dollars each of Miss Meridith, P.O. Box 3324.

The Dolbeare Family is by Mr. Arthur Dimon Osborne of New Haven, Com-John Dolbeare, to whose descendants the book is devoted, was the son of Edmund Dolbeare, who came with his family about the year 1678 from Ashburton in Devonshire and settled in Boston. A genealogical letter about the family was communicated by Mr. Edward D. Harris to the REGISTER for January last (ante pp. 24-7) and is reprinted in this book. The compiler has visited Hereford Cathedral and obtained extracts from the register and a rubbing of the brass of Sir Richard Dolbeare. A photograph of this brass and other illus-

The Woolworth Genealogy, as stated in the title page, is devoted to the descendants of Richard Woolworth, of Newbury, Mass. and Suffield, Conn.

Mrs. Woolworth, the principal compiler, has been engaged for thirteen years in collecting material for the work. She and her daughter have been very successful in collecting material and compiling the volume. They have made a very useful and handsome volume.

The Howes Genealogy has quite a full record of the descendants of Thomas Howes who came to New England about 1637, settled at Nebscussett in Yarmouth, Mass. in Plymouth Colony, in March 1639, and died in 1665 aged 75. Thomas Howes brought with him his wife, whose maiden name was Mary Burr. They are said to have come from Norfolk County, Eng. A large number of descendants of this couple have been collected by the compiler and their records are printed in this book. Much credit is due to Mr. Howes.

Mr. Deacon, of Bridgeport. Ct., in his book on the ancestors of Rodman Stoddard (who was the maternal grandfather of the author's children), gives brief accounts of the families of Stoddard, Ware, Downing, Wiliis, Curtis, Walker, Judson, Winthrop and Sherman. He dedicates his book to his children "in the hope that the contemplation of the zeal, fidelity and patriotism of their ancestors may inspire them to a useful life and faithful citizenship." The book is well compiled and is illustrated with engravings and a tabular pedigree.

The account of the Doolittle family by Mr. Allen gives many of the descendants of Abraham Doolittle, one of the original settlers of New Haven, Ct. Mr. Doolittle's wife was Joane, daughter of James Allen of Kempton, Beds. (see REGISTER, vol. 46, p. 330). The compiler has done his work in a creditable manner. The pamphlet is reprinted from the Magazine of New England History, and is embellished with portraits.

The pamphlet on the Avery family is well compiled, handsomely printed, and is illustrated with several fine engravings. It is "not published."

The Supplement to the Magoun Memorial, by Brevet Brig.-Gen. Samuel Breck, U.S.A., is intended for an appendix to his volume entitled "Descendants of Aaron and Mary (Church) Magoun," noticed by us in April 1892 (Register, vol. 46, pp. 202, 204). It contains interesting matter.

Two numbers of "The Sharpes," heretofore noticed, have recently been received, namely Nos. 6 and 7 for June and July, 1893. Items of interest relative to the Sharpes are solicited by the compiler, Mr. W. C. Sharpe of Seymour, Ct.

To son John three hundred pounds within three months after he shall be made a freeman of London or shall have attained to the age of six and twenty years, which first shall happen. To my daughter Mary, wife of Richard Jennye, eight pounds a year. To the poor of the Dutch church five pounds.

Item I give and bequeath unto my son in law Roger Glover forty shillings to make him a ring; also I give unto him a mourning gown. Item I give and bequeath unto Susan Glover a white pepper box of silver. Item I give and bequeath unto Ellen Glover two gilt spoons. To Anthony Guy a debt of forty shillings which he oweth unto me by his bond. To Richard Jenny, my son in law a debt of thirty one pounds which I paid to Ballard for him and also another debt of ten pounds which I paid to Sir John Wattes for him. To the Company of Salters, whereof I am a member, that shall accompany my body to the church, ten pounds to make them a dinner at Salters' Hall. Item I do give and bequeath unto my daughter Glover a mourning gown and forty shillings to make her a ring. Other bequests to children and other individuals. My son Peter Goodwin to be my full and sole executor and my friend John Highlord to be overseer. Wingfield, 91.

Robert Pemberton of the Borough of St. Albans in the County of Hertford, gentleman, 25 May 1628, proved 3 July 1628. Lands in Shenley, Herts, in the tenure of Henry Sharpe, and my messuage and fields in Shenley in the tenure of William Carter, and my fields &c. in Shenley late in the tenure of William Harris shall be sold by my brother in law John Glover of Lincoln's Inn, Middlesex, Esq. and by my brother Raphe Pemberton gentleman, now mayor of the Borough of St. Albans within convenient time after my decease for and towards the payment of such moneys as is now or hereafter shall be due unto my father in law Roger Glover of Bewcott in the Co. of Berks Esq., upon a Mortgage of my houses and tenements in Bow Lane in the parish of St. Mary le Bow London, and unto Roger Marsh for the discharging of the debts which shall be due unto him for the Mortgage of certain lands in Shenley Herts. Any overplus shall go towards the performance of this my will &c. My wife Susan shall have one hundred pounds yearly out of my messuages &c. in Bow Lane, for and, during her natural life. And the rest of the rents &c she shall take and receive during all the time she shall remain sole and unmarried, until my eldest son Roger shall accomplish the full age of twenty and one years, for and towards the maintenance of my three children Roger, Robert and Elizabeth (and for certain other specified purposes). Then follow elaborate provisions for the children. Reference to a debt due from Randolph Willey citizen and vintner of London and one due to Mr. Valentine Moretoft of London, and debts due to testator beyond the seas &c. To the poor of St. Peters in St. Albans of Shenley and of St. Mary le Bow, London. To Mr. Jeremy Leech, parson of St. Mary le Bow one ring of gold, with a death's head, of the value of twenty shillings. To my well beloved father in law Master Roger Glover the like ring of gold of the value of thirteen shillings and four pence, and to my brother in law John Glover the like ring of the value of thirteen shillings four pence. To my dear mother Mistress Elizabeth Pemberton, widow, and to my loving brother John Pemberton and Katherine his wife, and my loving brother Raphe and Frances his wife, and my loving brother in law Mr. Robert Woolley and Tecla his wife, each of them the like ring of the value of thirteen shillings four pence apiece. Rings to wife, to cousin Ellen Woolley, to son Robert to daughter Elizabeth and to Robert, son of brother Mr. Robert Woolley. To son Roger my ring bequeathed unto me by my father Mr. Roger Pemberton deceased. Son Roger to be executor and brothers John Glover and Raphe Pemberton to be overseers. Barrington, 69.

[Robert Pemberton, the testator, had a mother Elizabeth, a brother John, whose wife was named Katherine, and a brother Rafe, mayor of St. Albans, whose wife was named Frances. I am inclined to believe that he was a son of Roger Pemberton of St. Albans, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Raffe More, though no Robert is found among the children of this couple in the Visitation of Hertfordshire, 1634, printed in the 22d volume of the Publications of the Harleian Society. The Pemberton pedigree will be found on page 81 of that volume.

Mr. Watkins, in his article on the Pemberton Family, vol. 46, pp. 392-8 of the Register, supposes Ralph Pemberton, born about 1609, who is regarded as the ancestor of the Pemberton Family of Pennsylvania, to be "Ralfe" mementioned in the pedigree in the Harleian Society's publications as the son of Raffe and Frances (Kempe) Pemberton; but from information he has since received, he is convinced that the supposition is erroneous, the father of Ralph, the Pennsylvania emigrant, being named William .- EDITOR.]

ROGER GLOVER of London Esq. 9 January 1633, proved 7 August 1634. Daughter Elizabeth Glover to be full and sole executrix. Reference to a mortgage made to testator by son in law Robert Pemberton, of certain houses in Bow Lane for the sum of eleven hundred and forty five pounds principal lent to the said Robert at the time of the said mortgage, on which testator has recently received eight hundred and fifty pounds. If the executor shall receive the remainder of the principal money which is unpaid and the forbearance of the eight hundred and fifty pounds which is already paid me, during the time it was in the hands of my son John Glover and Mr Ralph Pemberton then she shall reconvey the said houses unto the heirs of the said Robert Pemberton my late son in law. "And if neede shall soe require I desire my eldest sonne Joses Glover to ioyne wth my said executor in the reconvayinge of the said houses the weh I trust hee will not deny in "gard hee hath given me a release" &c.

I give my household stuff and plate unto my two daughters Elizabeth and Sarah to be divided equally between them at the time of either of their marriages and my will is that my wife shall have the use of the said plate &c during her natural life &c. Reference made to a bond of son John Glover for the payment of twelve hundred pounds to Sir William Hewitt (which he did not pay) and for the payment of five hundred pounds to my daughter Sarah and five hundred pounds to my son Ralphe after my decease. The lease of my house in Drury Lane to my daughter Sarah.

Whereas I have disbursed threescore and sixteen pounds for and towards a ship called the Coslet for which ship I have a bill of sale, my will is that my son Roger be presently furnished with one hundred twenty four pounds more to make up the same two hundred pounds towards setting out of him and the said ship, and my will is that the said ship be insured during this voyage &c.

ELIZABETH GLOVER of the parish of Anne Blackfriars London 4 May 1643, proved 7 May 1643. To my brother Francis Collins and my sister Sara Collins ten pounds apiece. To my mother M<sup>rs</sup> Anne Glover ten pounds and my pair of brass andirons that are at Amy Collins's house and a cap pan of Brass to them. To my three nieces Elizabeth, Sara and Anne Collins, daughters of my said sister Sarah Collins, one hundred pounds apiece. To my niece Elizabeth Pemberton fifty pounds (and certain goods). To my nephew Robert Pemberton fifty pounds. To my brother John Glover and his wife ten pounds apiece. To my said brother John Glover, for the use of his son Charles, my nephew and godson, thirty pounds of lawful English money. I do will that if my nephew William Moretoft shall live to the age of one and twenty years then I do give him thirty pounds, but if he shall die before he attain to that age then I do will the said legacy last mentioned to my said Nephew Robert Pemberton. To my uncle Roulte, to the Lady Abigail Darcy, to Mr. Morris and his wife, to Mr. Coppinger, to Mr. Dunton and his wife, Mr. Smyth and Mr. Miller and their wives and to Sir Edward Leech and his lady, to each of them a ring enamelled, with a death's head, of the price of forty shillings for each ring. To the poor of Istleworth five pounds. To Dr. Gouge forty shillings. To my said sister Sara Collins all my linen and woollen clothes, to dispose of them all to her own proper use &c. To my nurce Cushion twenty shillings, besides her wages. I make and ordain my nephew Roger Pemberton sole executor, to whom I give one hundred pounds. The rest &c. to my niece Elizabeth Pemberton.

JOHN GLOVER of Lincoln's Inn Middlesex "Petter" Barrister, 23 October 1648, proved 19 October 1649. I devise my manor of Water Newton, with the appurtenances, in the Co. of Huntingdon and all my lands, tenements &c. in that county unto Gamaliel Catlmer of Lincoln's Inn Esq., Richard Broughton of the Middle Temple gent, my nephew Robert Pemberton of Lincolns Inn gent, and certain estates in Whaddon and other towns in Cambridgeshire to be conveyed to my said three friends by William Vaughan of Gray's Inn gen., my late servant, in whose name they stand as my trustee. All these upon trust to allow my wife to take the profits of her jointure, to pay for the maintenance and education of my eight children in such proportion as my wife shall think meet. And there shall be raised for the portions of my seven younger children as follows, to every of my three younger sons, Charles, John and Richard, five hundred pounds apiece, to be paid them at their respective ages of one and twenty. To every of my four daughters as follows; to Elizabeth one thousand pounds, to Dorothy one thousand pounds, to Sara six hundred pounds and to Deborah five hundred pounds, at their respective ages of twenty years or days of marriage. The inheritance of certain estates in Highgate which I have purchased to be surrendered to my wife. And whereas my brother in law Mr George Griffith did heretofore pretend that I was indebted to him I do clear my self and, to give my mother in law and others satisfaction, protest before God that I owe him not one penny. My friend and kinsman Philip Smith Esq. hath in his bands and keeping an ancient Statute of Sir John Whitbrookes for which I have paid many years since one thousand pounds, for the debts of my said brother in law. Lands in Surrey to descend to my eldest son Francis Glover. I make my wife executrix. By a codicil he relieves his wife of the trouble of acting as executrix and appoints his son Francis executor, and I wish him to take administration of the goods &c. of my brother Richard Glover deceased.

[The name of the testator's wife does not appear in the above will, and the change of mind as to the executorship prevents our learning it through the Probate Act. But he is known to have married Joane, one of the daughters of Francis Dorrington of London, merchant, for whose pedigree see the Visitation of London (1633-34), Harleian Society's Publications, vol. 15, p. 235. Her mother was a daughter of Simon Horspoole.

H. F. W.]

ANNE GLOVER of St. Stephen, Colman Street, London, 5 July 1650 with codicil made 22 January 1651, proved 26 June 1654. My body shall be carried to Milton Hervy in Bedfordshire and buried in the parish church near unto my dear and loving husband Francis Barty in decent and comely manner. Admon. A. B. 1684.

Whether the following will refers to the same family I am unable to say.

MARY GLOVER of the City of London, widow, 21 March 1660, proved 2 July 1661. To my daughter Bennett Glover now of Virginia in parts beyond the seas, twenty shillings. I give unto her my two mourning rings, now in the custody of my daughter Anne Glover, if she the said Bennett shall fortune to come over the seas and to this City of London to receive and enjoy the same rings herself. To my son Richard Glover ten pounds to put him forth an apprentice, at the care, discretion and good liking of my loving brother Mr. Isaac Perkins, minister of God's Word. To my said son Richard (certain household stuff).

Item, my will and mind is that all such moneys, goods, commodities and other things now due or hereafter to be due to me as Adventure or as part of my late husband Richard Glover's estate from beyond the seas, and also all benefit and profit to be recovered and received of the debt now due to me from Thomas Cooper, shall be both equally had, parted and received by my son and daughter Richard and Anne Glover, part and part alike. The residue to my daughter Anne Glover. I do desire, nominate and appoint my very loving cousin John Watson full and sole executor.

Among the witnesses were Henry Cope and Elizabeth Cope. Proved by John Watson. May, 111.

With reference to the family of Mr. Josse Glover, the following notes taken some years ago from the Suffolk Court files (with the kindly assistance of my friend Mr. William P. Upham, who called them to my notice) ought to be preserved; and no better occasion has ever occurred than now when I have given so many wills bearing on the ancestry of Mrs. Sarah Winthrope, Mrs. Elizabeth Winthrop and Mrs. Priscilla Appleton, daughters of Mr Glover, and the parties concerned in the suit about the estate of Dr. John Glover, the son of the Rev<sup>d</sup> Josse Glover. Some account of him, by the way, will be found in Munck's History of the College of Physicians. HENRY F. WATERS.

["1682 Mr. Samuel Hall, some time a resident in Massachusetts, had died # Langford near Malden, Essex County, England. He bequeathed £100 to those who lost by the great fire in Boston and by Indian wars in this Colony. John Hall of Islington, near London, was his executor, who sent an order to his mother, Mrs. Rebeccah Symonds of Ipswich, to dispose of the bequest. Stagave to individuals who had suffered by Indians, as follows:—£8 to Maria Graves; £10 to Moses, of Newichiwanack, son of the Rev. William Worcester: £5 to Frances Graves of Ipswich; £3 to Martha Coy, fled to Boston, widow of John Coy of Brookfield, slain; 33s. to Susannah, widow of Thomas Ayres, also slain."—(Felt's History of Ipswich, p. 62.)

Rev. Dr. Felt probably compiled this account from papers now in the American Antiquarian Society's Library, the substance of which is given by Mr. Abraham Hammatt in his Early Inhabitants of Ipswich, pp. 130.

Samuel Hall, the testator, came to New England about 1633. In that year be, with John Oldham and another person, set out on an exploring expedition and went as far as the Connecticut River. They returned Januaay 20, 1633-4, having endured much misery. Mr. Savage thinks he may have returned to England and have come back in the spring of 1635, aged 25, in the Elizabeth and Ann. He have come back in the spring of 1635, aged 25, in the Elizabeth and Ann. He was at Ipswich in 1635, and his name with that of John Hall is on the original list of townsmen of Salisbury, 1640. He was a member of the Artillers Company, 1638. The date of his return to England I do not find. (See Savage's Dictionary, vol. 2, p. 337; Rev. David B. Hall's Halls of New England, pp. 720-1; Hammatt's Early Inhabitants of Ipswich, pp. 129-31; Winthrop's New England, vol. 1, p. 123 (146 new ed.); Hutchinson's Massachusetts, vol. 1, p. 43, first ed., p. 46, third ed.; Hubbard's New England, pp. 169-70).

The will of John Hall of Islington, the executor of Samuel Hall, and some facts concerning him, will be found in these Christians and the pp. 138.9.

facts concerning him, will be found in these GLEANINGS, ante pp. 138-9. His pedigree is printed, ante p. 245.

The will which follows is that of the testator's widow.—EDITOR.]

SARAH HALL of Langford, Essex, widow, 8 November 1680, proved # Chelmsford 25 January 1680. My body I bequeath to the Earth until the General resurrection at the last day to be decently buried by my loving and much respected friend Mr. Henry Robinson, minister of the parish of Langford, at his discretion, in the parish church of Langford in linen. I give up and resign all my right, title &c. in my deed of gift which my late has band Mr. Samuel Hall sealed unto me of the house and land &c. in Langford called Custaynes and Springers (containing twenty two acres more or less) to pay off my husband's legacies. If not enough then it shall be made good out of my own personal estate. I give five and twenty pounds to be expended about my funeral. To my friend Mr. Henry Robinson, minister of Langford twenty pounds. To Samuel Cockin, my brother Joseph's and his two children (now dwelling in Hull) forty pounds and two silver spoons, i.e. twenty to bim and ten to each of his children and one of the spoons to each of the children. To Mrs Mundaye's daughter of Boreham

Essex, spinster, ten pounds and unto Mrs Mundaye, her mother, forty shillings. Gifts to Mr. Heckford of Langford, to Mr Thomas Freshwater of Heybridge, to twenty nonconformist ministers or their widows, now living in Essex, the latter (ten pounds) to be paid into the hands of Mr. Martyne Carter the elder of Maldon, hoyman, to be by him disposed of (in sums of ten shillings apiece). To the poor of certain parishes. I give my customary cottage in Langford called Foster's Garden to the parish of Langford for the use of the poor of the parish. To Mrs Robinson of Langford my thumbring &c. To Daniel Hall of Doncaster forty shillings to buy him four rings, one for him, one for each of his two sons and one for his son's wife. To my brother in law William Graves of Bentley ten pounds. To twenty of the poor nonconformist ministers, or their widows, in or about the City of London. To John Hall of Bentley, my late husband's kinsman in Yorkshire, five pounds. To Henrietta Graves, my kinswoman, of London, twenty shillings.

And lastly I do constitute and appoint my loving friends Mr. Thomas Glover, a New England merchant, living in St. Clement's Lane near Lumbard Street London and Mr. John Hall of Ilington (Islington?) to be joint executors. Item, my further mind and will is that after my debts and legacies are paid and all other charges defrayed I do give the overplus of my estate to be left in the said Mr. Thomas Glover's hands, to be laid out in cloth for the use of the poor of Newbury, Hampton and Amesbury in New England to be equally divided amongst them, part and part alike.

Memorandum before the sealing and delivery hereof. I do give to Mrs Robinson my silver tankard and I do give a small trunk of linen to be sent

Book Heydon, L. 483, Com. of London for Essex and Herts.

[Thomas Glover, a New England merchant mentioned in this will, was, I presume, Thomas, son of John Glover of Dorchester, Mass., who at the age of three years was brought to New England by his father. He returned to Engand, and died in the parish of St. John, Hackney, London, Oct. 6, 1707, aged 50 yrs. and 9 mo. (See Miss Anna Glover's Glover Memorial, pp. 81-95). His will is printed on pp. 90-4 of that work.—Editor.]

NICHOLAS MORETON, minister of the word of God at St. Saviours Southwark in the Co. of Surrey, 29 May 1640, proved 18 August 1640. To my wife Elizabeth Morton her third part of those tenements at Shipyard near Chain Gate in Long Southwark that descended upon her by the death of her late father Mr. Nicholas King; also the rents of the two leases I hold at St. Katherine's Hospital near the Tower of London, forty pounds a year, during her life. Except two pair of sheets to each of my sons I give her all my household stuff. I give her fifty pounds in money, with all her own apparel, plate, jewels, except one silver salt, the late gift of my sister in law Margaret King to Nicholas Morton, my young son, and a piece of plate to each of my other sons at her own discretion. To Charles, John and Nicholas Morton, my three sons, I give to each of them thirty pounds year, to be paid them or their guardians by half year payments during the widowhood of my said now wife Elizabeth, or, when she marrieth, by quarterly payments. Upon the marriage of the said Elizabeth all her estate, t, claim, use and possession of any and every part of my estate, as my atrix or otherwise, shall wholly cease and be void and remain only to use of my children, except those above-named legacies to her bequeathed by this my will. Upon the death of either of my children in his minority his estate shall descend upon the survivors. Or if it happen that they all die in their minority, if my said wife continue a widow at that time, then one third of their estate shall fall to her and the other two parts to be bestowed upon and amongst the children of my brother William Morton of Coventry, or such of them as shall then be in England; or if they be not in England then to the two daughters of my late sister Joane Smith of Long Wharton or to Agnes Slyman, my sister Slyman's daughter, or the survivor or survivors of them.

I appoint my said beloved wife Elizabeth Moreton my executrix of this my last will and my loving father in law Mr. Thomas Kestle of Plendevie (Pendevie?) by Wadebridge in Cornwall and my good friend Mr Pitt of Clifford's Inn, gent, my executors in trust. I appoint M' Richard Tuffnaile of St. Olave's Parish in Southwark, brewer, and Mr. Philip Parker of Crutched Fryers, London, merchant, to be overseers of this my last will, desiring my said wife to present them, my father in law and friends, with a

Coventry, 115.

[Rev. Nicholas Moreton, the testator, was the pastor of John Harvard, the founder of Harvard College (REGISTER, vol. 39, pp. 284). He is mentioned in the will of Thomas Harvard, 1638, brother of John (Ibid. pp. 278-9), and in that of John Sedgwick, 1638 (vol. 38, p. 207).

Rev. Charles Morton, the eldest son of the testator, was educated at Oxford University, B.A. Nov. 6, 1649, M.A. June 24, 1652, was rector of Blisland 1656, from which living he was ejected for non-conformity in 1662, removed to the parish of St. Ives and preached privately to a few people of a neighboring parish till the great fire of 1666, when he established an academy at Newington Green, where DeFoe was his pupil. In July, 1686, he came to New England, and was pastor of the church at Charlestown from Nov. 5, 1686, till his death April 11, 1698, aged 72. He was vice-president of Harvard College (with the founder of which institution he had been doubtless acquainted) from June 4, 1697, till his death. "He was grandson by his mother's side, of Mr. Kestle of Penday, Cornwall, and was born in his house about the year 1626." PAUL MERCER of Southampton, merchant, 6 June 1661, with a codicil dated 7 June, proved 9 September 1661. To be buried in Godshouse Chappell within Southampton town. Thirty cloth mourning gowns to be distributed amongst thirty poor men and women inhabitants of said town, every gown being worth near upon thirty shillings apiece. To Mr. William Bernard, vicar of Holywoods church five pounds. To the common poor of the English and French churches gathered in said town one hundred pounds. For a remembrance to John, Jacob and Paul Pryaulx, Mary the wife of John Lamport, Elizabeth, Catherine and Thomasine Pryaulx, the son and daughters of late Capt. Peter Pryaulx, my cousins, to each of them the sum of ten pounds at one and twenty years of age. To my sister Elizabeth Blanchard, for a remembrance, my second best diamond ring. And as concerning the hundred pounds (principal) due by her son John Stroad, his obligation dated 2 February 1645, my will is that out of it he shall pay unto Francis Mercer, my brother and executor, thirty pounds and another thirty pounds unto Jane and Elizabeth Godsall the daughters of his sister Jane, now the wife of John Hill, or the survivor of them, at twenty one or days of marriage. The remainder of the said John Stroad's debt is hereby discharged and acquitted him forever. To my sister Judith Johnson, widow, a yearly annuity of twenty pounds during her natural life; and to her daughter Mary the relict of late James Chipchase, my niece, and after her decease to her child or children equally to be divided, the sum of two hundred pounds. To her sister Jane, the relict of late Gideon de Lawne, my niece, and after to her child or children my jewel of pendent diamonds &c, valued at one hundred pounds, with one hundred pounds in money. To my brother Peter Mercer, during his natural life, a yearly pension of forty pounds, providing that the legacy given him by the last will of our deceased brother Daniel Mercer shall remain properly for my use as my own and proper goods. As for his only daughter Hester, now the wife of Thomas Cary, my dear niece, I having already fully paid and satisfied her debts &c. -(reference to her contract of marriage dated 12 May 1660), she shall have two hundred pounds &c.

Item, I do give to her brother my nephew Thomas Mercer, and after his decease to his children or child begotten in wedlock, the sum of fifty pounds. To Susan and Anna Mercer, the daughters of my deceased nephew William Mercer, one hundred pounds equally to be divided &c. And if anything can be produced by their mother Susan Mercer, widow, from her late deceased husband's debtors it shall be (after decease) equally divided by her three children, named Paul, Susan and Anna Mercer, upon an account of a judgment of eleven hundred pounds by their said mother acknowledged heretofore unto me. To the children of my brother Francis Mercer, clerk, named Peter, John, Francis, Jane and Hester Mercer, to every one of them one hundred pounds at twenty one or days of marriage &c. To the four children of my deceased brother Daniel Mercer, for a remembrance, five

Item, I give unto "my niepce Anna de (sic) daughter of late Nathaniel and Hester Bachiler now the wife of Daniel du Cornet of Middlebrough merchant," as a marriage portion, three hundred pounds current Flemish money or, in lieu thereof, one hundred and four score pounds current English money, at my executors choice. To her three younger brothers, my nephews, named Francis, Nathaniel and Benjamin Bachiler, two hundred pounds, to be equally divided amongst them or the survivors of them. I give unto the grandchildren of my deceased sister Anna, begotten on the body of my late "niepce" Mary the wife of late John Bachiler, vizt unto their eldest son, named John Bachiler, sixty pounds, unto his sisters Mary, Anna and Margaret Bachiler and unto their brother Paul Bacheler six hundred, to be by them four equally divided (they under twenty one years of age). To Hester Mansbridge, the relict of late Richard Mansbridge, for a remembrance, thirty pounds; and I acquit and discharge her of all debts &c. which she or her late husband owe to me; and if she happen to decease before me my will is that her daughter Hester Cushing, or her child or children lawfully begotten on her body, shall have and enjoy the above mentioned legacy bequeathed unto her above-named mother. Certain servants. The residue to my dear brother Francis Mercer, Clerk, and his forever, whom I make the only executor &c.; but in case he shall happen to decease before the accomplishing and perfecting of it then my desire is that my dear nephews Dr. John Pryaulx and Paul Pryaulx of London, merchant, with Mr. Henry Pitt and Mr. Joseph de la mott of Southampton, merchants, or any three or two of them, will be pleased and are hereby empowered and authorized to accomplish and perform the contents of this my present will &c., as being selected to be my overseers.

In the codicil he provides that in case his clear estate should not amount to three thousand two hundred pounds, proportional deductions and abatements should be made on the legacies (pious uses, Hester Cary and Anna du Cornet's sums excepted).

[Mr. Waters deserves the sincere gratitude of every descendant of Rev. Stephen Bachiler in America for filling so conclusively the provoking gap between the minister and his grandson, Nathaniel Bachiler, senior, of Hampton, N. H. besides formishing other valuable information.

N. H., besides furnishing other valuable information.

No one can examine these Mercer and Pryaulx wills in connection with the letter referred to by Mr. Waters (see Register, vol. 27, p. 368), without feeling sure that the father of Nathaniel Bachiler, senior, of Hampton, was Nathaniel, the son of Rev. Stephen Bachiler, and that the mother of Nathaniel Bachiler, senior, of Hampton, was Hester Mercer. The following will show the connection between Rev. Stephen Bachiler and Nathaniel Bachiler, senior, of Hampton, N.H.:

VOL. XLVII. 44*

Walter Rawleigh his History of the World and to his wife my great gold ring with a death's head cut in the stone, therein set, and to Mrs Sarah Capeline, their daughter, I give my desk, as also my round and long table boards which I left in the custody of her father at my removal from his house in Southampton; all which I bequeath unto them as remembrances from their friend. My son Francis Mercer shall annually pay fifteen pounds unto or for the use of Katherine, my wife, during the time of her natural life. I give thirty pounds to the children or child of my son Peter Mercer, another thirty pounds to the children or child of my daughter Jane now the unhappy wife of Edward Furber, another thirty to the children or child of my daughter Esther now the wife of John Willis and another thirty to the children or child of Francis Mercer my son. My will and desire is that the annuity of forty pounds per annum which was bequeathed to Peter Mercer, my brother, by the last will of Paul Mercer, my late brother, to be paid unto him by ten pounds quarterly during his natural life, shall be well and truly performed by my executors, and at or within forty days after the decease of the said Peter, my brother, and the determination of his said annuity, I give and bequeath the sum of six hundred sixty and six pounds to be divided and distributed to and amongst the children of Peter, Jane, Esther and Francis aforesaid, my sons and daughters. Other bequests to Jane and the others. My wife Katherine shall have the use of such household stuff of mine as did belong unto her before my marriage with her or hath since been given unto her by Robert Browne Esq., her son. Other bequests to her. Reference to sums lent to son Peter in his necessity. To son Francis (among other things) the picture of my mother and her wedding ring of gold and one other gold ring having a coat of arms cut in the stone that is set therein, my silver seal of arms, my steel glass, my best gold weights, my agate picture, the picture of Henry the Fourth, the late French King, the pictures of my late brother Samuel and of two gentlewomen, with all the cases that belonging to them; and to Abigail, his wife, my case for rings, with a small ring of gold with a death's head therein. To Edward Furber, my son in law, my black cloak of proof serge, my black pair of boots, my cart and wheels and harness and pigs-trough. Certain jewels and silver to daughter Jane. Bequests to son in law John Willis and daughter Esther (among which) a silver tooth-pick with a claw of a bird set therein, my eye-cup of silver, my clock and the plummets thereof and twelve small pictures, in frames, of Moses and the prophets. To son Peter (among other things) the picture of my father and the case thereof. The residue to my sons and daughters, Peter, Jane, Esther and Francis (equally). Mention of trusts under the will of brother Paul Mercer deceased. My son Francis Mercer of the City of Sarum, Wilts, ironmonger, to be my executor and my approved friends John Pryaulx, Doctor in Dvinity, and Canon of the Cathedral Church of Sarum, and Robert Browne of Blandford St. Mary Esq., my son in law, to be overseers. Published and declared 20 August 1668. Coke, 8.

[It is evident that John, one of the sons of the above Francis Mercer, had predeceased his father. The following is a brief summary of his will.]

JOHN MERCER of London, mariner, bound on a voyage to Bantam in the East Indies in the good ship or vessel called the Constantinople Marchant, 26 January 1662, proved 23 March 1663. To my loving father, Francis Mercer, five pounds. To my loving brother Francis Mercer twenty pounds.

To my very loving brother Captain Robert Browne ten pounds to buy him a ring to wear in my remembrance. To the rest of my brothers and sisters living at the time of my decease twenty shillings apiece to buy them rings &c. To my friend Clemt Witham, scrivener, forty shillings (for a ring). To my very loving mother Katherine Mercer forty pounds. To my loving sister Anne Mead, wife of Josuah Mead all the rest and residue of my estate; and I make the said Anne my sister sole executrix; but if she die before me then I make Anne Meade, daughter of my said sister, executrix and I bequeath to her all my goods so given and bequeathed unto her said mother. And I appoint my said brother Josuah to be aiding and assisting unto his said daughter in the executing of this will.

[The foregoing Pryaulx and Mercer wills are sent in reply to the friendly challenge of W. H. Whitmore (see Reg., vol. 45, p. 237). One must refer also to the Register for October, 1873, page 368, and read that letter referred to by my friend W. H. W.

HENRY F. WATERS.]

MARGERY ANGUR (or Augur) of London, widow, 3 January 1653 proved 9 October 1658. To my son John Angur forty shillings. To my son Nicholas Augur now residing in New England (certain household goods) and also one messuage &c. in Plastowe in Westham, Essex, formerly given unto me by Mistress Mary Guilliams &c. If Nicholas happen to die before such time as he should return into England then my daughter Hester Angur shall have the aforesaid messuage &c. To Ann, the wife of my son John Angur my little gold ring with a Bristol stone in it. And all the residue I leave to my said daughter Hester whom I make sole executrix, and I appoint my brother Gabriell Bynnion, citizen and tallow chandler of London, overseer.

[Nicholas Auger of New Haven, Ct., 1643, was a physician and trader. He swore allegiance August 5, 1644. He made a will Sept. 20, 1669. He had a sister Esther Coster and a brother John probably then in England, who had a son Nicholas. He had also a relative Robert, probably a nephew. His inventory dated Feb. 26, 1677-8 amounts to £1638. Mrs. Hester Coster, to whom he left the larger part of his estate, died at New Haven, April 5, 1691. After her death Robert Auger "the next of kin resisted probate of her will containing some bequests for the 'support of religion and learning'; but he met with not success." PARNELL FEAKE of St. John Zachary in London (nuncupative) 25th or 26th October 1593, proved 8 November 1593. She lying sick in her house did declare to her three daughters, Margaret, Judith and Anne Feake, being attendant upon her, that her mind and will was that William Feake her son should have the disposition of all whatsoever she had. And she did also declare unto them that she had locked up all that she had in a chest, saving that which she willed should be bestowed at her funeral, and willed and charged her daughters that they should deliver the key of the said chest unto her son William. And that her said son William should bestow so much of her goods upon every of her said daughters and her son James as he thought good. And made the said William Feake her son sole executor of the said her will. And also made William Feake, her husband's brother, Mr Padmere and Robert Padmere overseers.

WILLIAM FEAKE the elder, citizen and goldsmith of London, 7 May 1595, proved 19 May 1595. To be buried in the parish church of St. Edmund the King in Lumbard Street, London, where I am a parishioner, at my pew door. To twenty poor men of the poorest of my Company of Goldsmiths twenty gowns of twenty shillings price apiece and twelve pence apiece for their dinner. To ten other poor men ten gowns of like price and twelve pence apiece for their dinner. To every of my brethren's children now in London and every of my men and women servants a cloak or gown. My goods &c. (after debts paid and funerals discharged) to be divided into three equal parts, according to the ancient and laudable use and custom of the City of London, one part whereof I give to my beloved wife Mary, the second part I give and bequeath unto and amongst Thomas, John, Edward, Sarah and Rebecca, my children (minors). The third part I reserve unto myself to be disposed of &c. To poor prisoners in seven prisons, the hospitals, poor and towardly scholars in Cambridge the Goldsmiths' Company &c. A house for six poor men or women at Wighton in Norfolk where I was born. Poor goldsmiths' widows. The Governors of Bridewell. Parker, 97.

Robert Feke of Watertown, Mass., who with Sergt William Palmer of Tarmouth, N. E., and Judith his wife, and Tobias Feke (aged 17), son and daughter of James Feke late of London, goldsmith, deceased, made a letter of attorney (5 10<sup>bias</sup> 1639) to Tobias Dixon, citiaen and mercer of London, to sell one tenement or house and shop in Lumbard Street, London, held of the Company of Goldsmiths in London (see Thomas Lecthford's Note-Book, pp. 228-9). And I have little doubt that he was akin to the John Feke of London, goldsmith, whose pedigree is given in the Visitation of London (1633-4), published by the Harletan Society (vol. 1, p. 268).

RICHARD ATWEECKE als Weecke of Stanes, Midd., yeoman, 17 September 1592, proved 18 December 1592. To be buried in the church or churchyard of Staines. WILLIAM NICHOLLES of Witham, Essex, gentleman, 4 August 1638, proved 29 November 1638. To be buried in the parish church of Witham. An inventory to be made of my goods, &c. in my now dwelling house in Witham, there to remain during the natural life of Dorothy my wife. I give to my wife all the goods of household &c. that she had and brought to me and that were her goods at the time of our marriage. My so William Nicholles of Witham shall pay her ten pounds a year during the lease granted by the Right Worshipful Sergt Darcy of the farm called the manor of Benton's in Witham, now in the possession of the said William shall, the first year after my decease, give, bring in and deliver unto the said Dorothy my wife four seams of mislin, four seams of wheat and four seams of barley, good and sweet corn. Other bequests to wife and so William.

Item, I give, will and bequeath in and by this my last will and testament unto Sibrian Nicholles my son the sum of one hundred pounds at the expiration of three years after my decease, to be paid unto him by William my son. And my son William shall pay unto the said Sibrian ten pounds every year, for three years next after my decease, (to be paid half yearly) for and towards the maintenance and bringing up my said son Sibrian at Cambridge. I give Sibrian also fifty pounds, to be paid him, within a year after the decease of Dorothy my wife, by the said William my son. To my brother John Nicholles of Coggeshall, webster, five pounds. To Matthew Baxter daughter of William Baxter of Witham four pounds. To Thomas Haiword my servant twenty shillings. The residue to my son William whom I make executor and I make my wife Dorothy executrix.

ANNE FARMER, wife of George Farmer of St. Andrew, Holborne' London, Esq., heretofore the wife and administratrix of Thomas Gate, late one of the Barons of the Court of Exchequer, deceased, &c: her will made 24 June 1668, proved 2 November 1669. My body to be buried in the Temple Church, London, as near the body of my said late deceased husband as conveniently may be, in decent and comely manner. To my grandchild Anne Farmer, wife of Thomas Farmer of the Inner Temple, gent., my best jewell of diamonds, my silver bason and my silver salt &c. &c., and all manner of furniture in the chamber next the Dining-room, towards the street, in my house at Endfield in the Co. of Midd., as also my picture of myself &c. Whereas I am seized in fee, according to the custom of the manor of Cheshunt, Herts., of one messuage or tenement at Lucas End and nine acres of meadow or pasture and common of pasture for cattle in Cheshunt Leyes &c — and whereas I have surrendered the said messuage and lands into the hands of Sir Clement Farnham Knight, Steward of the said manor, to the use of such person or persons and for such estate and estates as I shall by my last will and testament nominate, declare or appoint, in which Surrender my husband, Mr George Farmer, hath joined, I do declare and appoint that my said grandchild Anne Farmer shall be admitted tenant &c.; but the rents and profits shall be paid or transmitted unto Constant Morley, late wife and relict of John Morley deceased, my late brother &c., during her life, and after her decease to be and remain to the said Anne Farmer and her heirs forever. To my grandchild Edward Payne one hundred pounds at one and twenty. To my grandchildren Elizabeth and Catherine Payne ten pounds apiece (and the rest of my plate). They the daughters of my son in law Mr John Payne. Certain jewels to grandchild Anne Lane. To my son in law Sir Edward Farmer my picture of his father, drawn in little, which I used to wear. A gift to his lady. My son in law Mr Thomas Farmer. My daughter in law M<sup>n</sup> Elizabeth Beamond, wife of Henry Beamond Esq. My cousin Frances Norwood. Mrs. Hester Mason. Others. Coke, 139.

[This will of Mrs. Ann Farmer is a gratifying confirmation of the suggestion advanced by me, in Gleanings of April, 1892, as to the ancestry of John Morley of Charlestown, Mass. (See Register, Vol. 46, p. 156). Mrs. Farmer, by referring to her former husband Thomas Gate and also mentioning Constant Morley, the relict of her late brother John Morley, settles the matter completely.

Richard Kinsey, William Maior, Ralph Izard and Mr. John Combes, my godson Job Watts and my god daughter Elizabeth Danvers. I commit the custody my brother William Quyney (whom it hath pleased God to deprive of his reason) to my said brother Adrian Quyney, earnestly desiring and strictly charging him to use his utmost care and diligence for the good and preservation of my said brother William Quyney according to the tender bowels of compassion which a good Christian and a brother ought to have to so near a relation. The residue to my brother Adrian whom I appoint sole executor, and I make my brother Thomas Quyney overseer. Hare, 153.

[The testator of the above will was the oldest son of Richard Quiney of London, grocer, by Ellen daughter of John Sadler of Stratford upon Avon. The wills of his father and his brother Adrian have already been given in these Gleanings. His brother Thomas Quiney inherited their father's land and other property in Virginia. In the Register for October, 1892, may be found the wills of sundry relatives of this family. Their connection with Shakespear and indirectly with John Harvard and Governor Willys of Connecticut makes them interesting.

HANNAH WALKER of London, widow, 10 April 1675, proved 2 November 1675. I give and bequeath unto my son Thomas Walker of Sudbury in New England, in the parts beyond the seas, merchant, the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds of lawful money of England, to be paid to him or his assigns within twelve months next after my decease. In case of his death before it becomes payable I give the said sum to his wife Mary for the use of their children, if she be then living, but if dead then to the Executors of my son Thomas, for the use of the children &c. To my son in law Mr. Paul Strange five pounds to buy him mourning. A writing 88 to the disposition of goods &c. deposited in the hands of my dear daughter Hannah Strange, wife of the aforesaid Paul Strange. To my loving friend Mr. John Jackson of London merchant three hundred pounds, to be paid from time to time to such persons as my daughter Hannah may direct and appoint; and if she die before her husband then I give two thirds of the said three hundred pounds to the aforesaid Thomas Walker in New England, or to his executors for the use of his children, if he be dead. The other third I give to my said son in law Paul Strange. But if my daughter survive her husband then it shall be all at her dispose, living or dying My friend Mr. John Jackson to be executor and Mr. John Smith of Lambeth, Surrey, gent., to be overseer.

Wit: John Ward, Hester Ward.

Dycer, 119.

[Thomas Walker, of Sudbury, and wife Mary had eleven children, statistics of which will be found in Barry's History of Framingham, page 430. In 1664, the town of Sudbury considered if they would give Mr. Walker land for his encouragement to keep a free school in Sudbury. In 1672 he kept an ordinary there. His descendants are numerous in Sudbury and Framingham.—EDITOR.]

ADDRESS

BY

CHARLES CARLETON COFFIN, A.M.

THE year 1892 marks the completion of four centuries since the discovery of this Western world. That event was duly commemorated by the formal inauguration of the Columbian exhibition at Chicago. Such an exhibition, upon the scale contemplated in the metropolis of the West, which, within the memory of some of us, was only an insignificant village, is a grand testimonial of the world's progress, not only during the four centuries, but during the present century.

In 1827, the late Sylvester Marsh of Concord, N. H., projector of the White Mountain Railroad, began to supply the then two hundred inhabitants of Chicago with beef. His slaughter house was a grove of oak trees near the site now occupied by the Court House in that city of Lake Michigan.

The present century has been distinguished above all others by the advance of the sciences, the discovery of natural laws, and the use of machinery to do the work of human hands. In no other age have there been such marked changes in the conditions of life affecting the well-being of the human race. It has been distinguished by a recognition of the rights of men, by philanthropic effort and Christian charity.

There has been the coming of a new era in civilization. The first want of a human being is something to eat. The earth is our great mother, and yields her gifts to labor in tilling the soil. When the messengers from Agamemnon came to Ulysses they found him cultivating his glebe with milk-white oxen dragging the forked branch of a tree. A few years ago, while visiting Europe, I, myself, drove such a team and held a like implement in what was once the banqueting hall of Hadrian's villa at Tivoli. The pointed nose of the plowshare was the tip of a cow's horn.

Upon the banks of the Nile I beheld a fellah guiding such a plow drawn by his wife and a donkey, the plowman occasionally prodding the team with his goad. Farther eastward I witnessed the Sudra of India cultivating the poppy fields of the Ganges with such an implement of husbandry. The plow of the Orient has undergone little change since the days of Ulysses.

"Civilization is the economy of power," says Baron Liebig. The beginning of the new era was coincident with the improvement of the plow. That implement in my boyhood was made by the village carpenter and blacksmith. Its mould board was cut from a winding oak tree, and was plaited with iron shoes worn smooth upon the feet of oxen. Six yoke of cattle were needed to draw the plough, with a man riding the beam to keep it in the ground. The first cast-iron plows came into use about the year 1835. The farmers of my native town, as in other localities, in their ignorance and conservatism were reluctant to use them, fearing the iron would poison the soil.

In those years a farmer and his two sons, by diligent labor with the hoe, could plant one acre of corn in a day. It was my duty, as the youngest, to drop five kernels of corn and a pumpkin seed in each hill. To-day the farmers of Illinois, riding their wheeled plows, turn the furrows on ten acres in a day, and plant fifteen acres between sun and sun.

Before the dawn of the new era, harvesting was done by a sickle or cradle. If done with a sickle, one fourth of an acre of wheat could be reaped in a day. If the grain was not lodged, one acre might be harvested with a cradle. In contrast, the husbandman of to-day reaps and binds fifteen acres of grain.

The memories of some members of this Society go back to the year 1830, when the locomotive began to supersede the stage-coach and wagon. The stage-coach has almost disappeared, and the locomotive spins along one hundred and seventy thousand miles of railway in the United States, not to mention the mileage in other lands. Sitting in the white light of the new era, let us throw a glance at ancient history as narrated by Herodotus and Plutarch. If we are to credit Herodotus, the army of Xerxes numbered two million fighting men; and the horde which invaded Greece, including teamsters, slaves and women, numbered five million. With all due respect to the Father of History, I do not accept the account. With the appliances at the command of the Persians, two million men could not have marched from the far east, crossed the Hellespont and made their way to Greece. It was not an army with a great train of baggage-wagons, but of pack-mules. The average horse attached to a wagon will draw one thousand pounds on a good road; the average pack-mule will carry five hundred pounds. There could not have been sufficient subsistence within the reach of Xerxes to supply any such number of people with pack-mules.

During the late Rebellion the Confederate army in Richmond, numbering less than one hundred thousand, was several times put on short rations, notwithstanding the railroad facilities of that city. When General Grant assumed command of the Union army at Chattanooga, in 1863, it was dependent for subsistence upon wagon trains drawing supplies sixty-five miles. The army numbered less than sixty thousand men, but was on the verge of starvation. The overworked horses and mules were dying, and the carcases of more than ten thousand animals were strewn along the road. Had it not been for the indomitable energy and perseverance of General Grant, the army would have been compelled to evacuate that point.

The Confederate army, with railroad trains running to within twelve miles of Bragg's headquarters, was on half rations. I assume, therefore, that the statement of Herodotus was beyond the bounds of possibility.

We are informed that after the battle of Salamis, Mardonius was left with three hundred thousand men to continue the war with Athens. Whence did such an army obtain its food? Not by sea, for the Persian galleys had been destroyed by the Athenians. When we study the campaign of Mardonius in connection with the physical features of the Grecian Peninsula,—the mountain ranges, the narrow valleys, and the poverty of the adjacent country,—we are compelled to conclude that no foreign army of any such magnitude could have subsisted.

In like manner, I question the correctness of Plutarch, who gravely states that Alexander encountered six hundred thousand Persians at the battle of Issus; and that Darius gathered a second army of seven hundred thousand at Arbela, where he lost three hundred thousand men, while Alexander lost but five hundred.

The history taught in our schools narrates that when Godfrey of Bouillon reviewed his army of Crusaders at Nice, it numbered one hundred thousand horsemen and six hundred thousand footmen. We are to remember that the Crusaders had no wagons. The mechanical ability of Europe at that period could hardly have constructed an army wagon. The multitude, whatever its numbers, obtained its provisions by pack-horses. The army was greater, according to received history, than the entire population of New Hampshire and Vermont. With agriculture as it was in the dark ages, and with a sparse population, we are called upon to believe that an army numbering seven hundred thousand could have made its way from France to Jerusalem!

What little we know of the Crusades has come to us through religious enthusiasts, who doubtless magnified the number and powers of the Crusaders; but, when we turn the head light of the locomotive down the track of time, we see how improbable are their statements.

The locomotive and steamship are great conservators of human life. Within the memory of many in this audience, famines, not in barbaric but in civilized countries, have swept myriads to untimely graves; but such calamities are fast passing from human experience.

There is sufficient food in the world to supply the people starving in Russia; that they are not supplied is not the fault of the sympathetic nations, but of the barbarism of Russia. It is one of the features of the new civilization that, coincident with the use of the energy of nature to promote the well being of the human race, is the beginning of a new era in philanthrophy. Moral activities all unknown before,—charitable, benevolent and missionary organizations, moved by a heaven-born influence,—have begun their humanizing work. So it has come about that, wherever there is human suffering, there also are willing hearts to relieve it, and generous hands to give bread to the hungry; the locomotive, the steamship and the telegraph—every agency that speeds the free-will offering on its way—are pressed into service to make potential on earth the song of the celestial choir once heard above the green pastures of Bethlehem: "On earth peace, good will to men."

The exhibition at Chicago will be the grandest object lesson of all the ages, illustrating not only the achievements of the human race, but the growth of the Republic, now numbering forty-four States.

Among the important events of 1892, has been the adoption by twenty-six States of a new method of balloting.

The year has also witnessed an advancement of the democratic idea in other lands, especially in Spain, where there has been a great enlargement of the franchise.

In no other age has there been such rapid advancement of civilization as in Japan. Only thirty-eight years have passed since the United States, through Commodore Perry and Mr. Townsend Harris, concluded a treaty, which opened that empire to civilization. In June. 1875, the Mikado inaugurated the first Parliament, the members of which were appointed by himself. Since then, parliamentary elections have been held there as in this country; political parties have risen there as here—the People's party, the Government party, and Independents. A new Parliament was elected in February last, composed of members from each of the three parties. There is absolute religious freedom; public schools and universities have been established; while railroads, telegraphs, telephones, newspapers, and all the appliances of American civilization, are employed. Since the establishment of steamship lines across the Pacific, we no longer think of Japan as belonging to the Orient, but as a rising star of the Occident. Between three and four hundred Protestant churches have been established. The ideas common to this country and to the most enlightened countries of Europe are being adopted by the people of that land. No nation is advancing more rapidly toward a lofty civilization.

I have already alluded to the wide spread famine in Russia, extending over fifteen provinces inhabited by twenty millions of people. The sympathy and philanthrophy of the United States have been exhibited by the contribution of six million pounds of flour, mainly the gift of the millers of Minneapolis. The act will ever stand in vivid contrast to the barbarism of Russia, which today is driving the Jews from that empire and confiscating their property.

In our own country the rectitude of our civilization is seen in the vigorous warfare waged against the Louisiana lottery, and the suppression of the society of the Mafia in New Orleans. But we may not flatter ourselves that we have reached the highest possible virtue so long as the present law against the Chinese remains upon our national statutes. It is to be hoped that the incoming Congress will reconsider that act.

The stability and vigor of Republicanism in France is seen in the determination of Parliament to bring to the bar of Justice all participants in the Panama scandal. It is evident that the Republican idea is daily becoming stronger in that country.

The necrology of the year includes Charles H. Spurgeon of London. No other religious teacher of our time has reached so many men as he. No cathedral, however great its endowment, or magnificent its ritual, has regularly gathered such numbers as were accustomed to assemble in Spurgeon's chapel on the banks of the Thames, during the forty years of his ministry.

By the death of Edward A. Freeman, historic literature has lost a painstaking devotee. He died at Alicanti, Spain, in February, after a short illness. He is best known by his history of the Norman Conquest of England. At the time of his death he was collecting materials for an exhaustive work on the development of civilization in the Mediterranean countries. He intended to include Phænician, Grecian, Roman, Gothic, Byzantine, Saracen and Norman peoples, from the earliest period to the time of Charles V. We are appalled at the magnitude of the undertaking. He contemplated that it would require five large volumes. Perhaps no historian was ever more painstaking than he in research. He cared not for style or symmetry; yet, notwithstanding this defect, few men during the present century have made more valuable contributions than he to historic literature.

Two of the great poets of the century have died during the year; Whittier in our own country, and Tennyson, poet laureate of England. It seems to me that Whittier, far beyond any other American poet, has left the impress of his genius on this century. His poems, written during the anti-slavery agitation, contrasting slavery and freedom, awakened the Northern people to the injustice and barbarism of the institution, and its incompatibility with the ideas which brought about the establishment of the nation.

Such is the poem beginning:

"Our Fellow Countrymen in Chains!
Slaves in the land of light and law!
Slaves crouching on the very plains
Where rolled the storm of Freedom's War!"

He employed sarcasm with great effect in the poem entitled

THE HUNTERS OF MEN.

"Have you heard of our hunting, o'er mountain and glen, Through cane-brake and forest,—the hunting of men? The lords of our land to this hunting have gone, As the fox-hunter follows the sound of the horn; Hark!—the cheer and the hallo!—the crack of the whip! All blithe are our hunters, and noble their match,—Though hundreds are caught, there are millions to catch. So speed to their hunting, over mountain and glen, Through cane-brake and forest,—the hunting of men!"

Tender is the pathos of the Farewell of the Slave Mother to her daughter:

Where the slave-whip ceaseless swings,
Where the noisome insect stings,
Where the fever demon strews
Poison with the falling dews,
Where the sickly sunbeams glare
Through the hot and misty air,—
Gone, gone,—sold and gone,
To the rice-swamp dank and lone,
From Virginia's hills and waters,— Woe to me, my stolen daughters!"

These and kindred poems came home to the hearts of thousands, quickening conscience, awakening sympathy, and kindling a flame which finally gave freedom to four million people and which purified the land. Not only was Whittier an apostle of freedom, but of nature and humanity. No other eight lines by any American poet have so modified the theologic thought of the century as those in the poem entitled the "Eternal Goodness":

"And so beside the silent sea
I wait the muffled oar;
No harm from Him can come to me
On ocean or on shore.

I know not where His islands lift There fronded palms in air; I only know I cannot drift Beyond His love and care."

Tennyson, in like manner, has wielded great influence upon the religious belief of the age, especially in that poem which for a period of seventeen years occupied his profoundest thought. "In Memoriam" is a poem of faith and hope. I can but think it will ultimately be regarded as the foremost religious poem of the ages.

The world is richer because Whittier and Tennyson have lived. They were emphatically poets of the new civilization, which, while developing the forces of nature, recognizes the truth that life is more than meat, and the body than raiment.

Though one of the richest men of all time has died during the year, and has not in any way recognized his obligation to his fellowmen, other men are setting the world illustrious examples as benefactors, and as executors of their own wills. Baron Hirsch, in caring for the exiled Jews of Russia; Philip Armour, of Chicago, by his recent benefaction, for the promotion of science and industrial art; and Mr. Rockefeller, by his gifts to the Chicago University,—are exemplifying the motive force of the new civilization.

It is this recognition of the worth of human beings that arches the future with radiant light. Men are no longer regarded as mere food for powder; neither are they regarded as created to do the bidding of a few men. The new civilization recognizes not only the right of every human being to make the most of himself, but regards it the duty of society to aid him in his efforts. It is gratifying to know that in no other State of this Republic, in no other section of the globe, is there a higher recognition of the obligations of society to the lowest and humblest of its individual members, than in this commonwealth.

Here the common school had its origin, followed by the high school, the academy, the college, the university, schools of liberal arts, and public libraries free to rich and poor. These give regal power and lease of life. Education for all is the grand idea.

Amid the smoke and flame of Gettysburg, America announced to the wondering nations that thenceforth we were to be not a confederacy, but a nation; that men, irrespective of lineage, race, or previous condition, were to have the rights, privileges and opportunities of citizenship.

With material resources far surpassing those bestowed upon any other people, animated by these ideas, in this closing decade of the nineteenth century, this country begins its unequaled march down the ages.

PROCEEDINGS.

THE Annual Meeting of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society was held in Jacob Sleeper Hall, No. 12 Somerset Street, Boston, on Wednesday, 4 January, 1893, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

In the absence of the President, and on motion of the Rev. Henry A. Hazen, D.D., the Hon. Charles C. Coffin was called to the chair.

On motion of Col. Albert A. Folsom, George A. Gordon, A.M., was chosen Secretary pro tempore.

The record of the last Stated Meeting was read and approved.

The Monthly Report of the Council was then presented, and, agreeably to the By-Laws, was referred to the next Stated Meeting.

The Report of the Committee on the Revision of the By-Laws was taken from the table, and the Committee was discharged. On motion of Mr. George A. Gordon, the thanks of the Society were voted to the Committee for their able Report. On motion of the Hon. Newton Talbot, the Report was referred to the next Stated Meeting, and the Secretary was instructed to so inform the members by his notices of said Meeting.

The business of the Monthly Meeting having been completed, Col. Albert A. Folsom offered the following Resolution:—

Whereas, the Rev. Henry A. Hazen, D.D., has signified by his letter to the Nominating Committee, that by reason of his other duties and engagements, he desires not to be put in nomination again for the office of Corresponding Secretary, therefore Resolved: That the thanks of the Society be tendered to Dr. HAZEN for his valuable and acceptable services to the Society.

The following Annual Reports were then presented:-

Report of the Council.
Report of the Librarian.
Report of the Treasurer.
Report of the Trustees of the Kidder Fund.
Report of the Corresponding Secretary.
Report of the Historiographer.
Report of the Nominating Committee.

After the reading and acceptance of the Reports, the Society proceeded to the election of Officers for the ensuing year. The candidates whose names had been presented by the Nominating Committee were duly elected, and their election was declared.

After which the Hon. CHARLES C. COFFIN, by invitation, addressed the Society.

At the conclusion of Mr. Coffin's address, on motion of the Rev. Alonzo A. Miner, D.D., it was—Voted: That the thanks of the Society be tendered to Mr. Coffix for his patriotic, instructive and interesting Address, and that he be requested to furnish a copy thereof for publication.

On motion of the Hon. NEWTON TALBOT, it was-Voted: That the Address, the several Annual Reports, the Necrology, and the other proceedings of this meeting, be referred to the Council with full authority to print and publish the same.

The meeting was then dissolved.

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL.

PRESENTED BY EZRA HOYT BYINGTON, D.D.

At the close of another year the Council submits to the Society its Fourth Annual Report, as required by the By-Laws. As the chief executive Board, the Council has, for the time being, the supervision of all the interests of the Society, so that its Annual Report should make its constituents fully acquainted with its condition and its prospects, and with the methods of administration that have been followed.

It is but just to the Council to say that its membership has changed almost entirely since the beginning of the year, in consequence of the resignation of a large proportion of its members. Only three of the present members of the Council were connected with it at the close of the last Annual Meeting. These changes have interfered more or less with the work of this Board. It takes time for new members to gain familiarity with the various parts of the work of the Society. There has, however, been entire harmony in the Council, and the reports from the various Committees, which form the basis of this general Report, will show that notwithstanding these changes, the usual work of the Society has gone steadily forward, with reasonable efficiency in every department. The Library has been growing, as well by the purchase of new books as by the gifts of friends of the Society; a large number of persons have resorted to it for historical and genealogical information; a number of historical papers have been read at the stated meetings of the Society; some of the questions relating to the investment of the funds of the Society have been settled; the Rolls of Membership have been printed and distributed among our members; the New-England HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER has maintained its reputation, and has been regularly issued. Besides superintending this regular work, the Council has under consideration a number of plans which are likely to increase the usefulness of the Society.

THE FINANCES.

At the first meeting of the Council, in the beginning of the year, the appropriations were made for the different branches of our work. The probable income was estimated at that time at $4,450; that is, from invested funds $3,000, and from the regular assessments $1,450. From this sum $3,080 was appropriated. These appropriations were based upon the average expenditures for ten years, in the various regular departments. This left the sum of $1,370 to meet the contingencies that are sure to arise.

In addition to these appropriations for current expenses, the sum of $1,082 was appropriated in the early part of the year from the Wilder Building Fund. This is in addition to the appropriations from that Fund reported in previous years for alterations upon the building, and for other purposes. A reference to the reports of the Treasurer shows that something more than $6,000 has been paid from that Fund for alterations in the Society's House, and for other purposes connected with the arrangement of the Library, within four years.

The report of the Committee on Finance states that "the Wilder Building Fund, secured to the Society by the efforts of the late Col. Marshall P. Wilder, amounted to about $25,000; that by an unfortunate investment of $10,000 of this Fund in bonds of the Showalter Mortgage Company, that sum has been reduced to $2,500. It is supposed that this is all that will be obtained from those bonds, making a loss of $7,500.

"Another sum of $10,000 was invested in the mortgages of the Showalter Company. One or more of these mortgages has been paid in full, amounting to $4,810. A mortgage for $1,600 has been sold for $1,150, making a loss of $450. So that the entire loss, so far as it has been ascertained up to the present time, is $7,950; and the amount received in cash is $8,460. There still remain in the hands of the Treasurer several mortgages of this company, which together amount to $3,590, from which it is hoped a considerable sum may yet be collected." To the loss from the principal of the Fund which has been stated above, should be added, of course, the large amount of interest which was due on these bonds and mortgages, and which has not been paid.

The Committee on Finance also report that the general expenses of the Society the past year have exceeded the income by $675.08. This deficit is more than accounted for by the fact that the insurance for five years, of the Society's House, has been paid this year, amounting to $476.19; and that the printing of the Rolls of Membership this year has cost $598.69.

Some important changes have been made during the year in the investment of the permanent funds of the Society, with a view to greater security. The following statement is from the Committee on Finance:—

GENERAL INVESTMENT ACCOUNT.

Mortgages in the City of Boston	. $25,700.00
Boston Safety Deposit & Trust Co	. 29,000.00
Savings Bank	1,284.94
Fremont, Elkhorn & M. Valley R. R. Bonds	. 3,000.00
Western Mortgages
Austin City Water Co. Stock	500.00
To this should be added:	$63,074.94
Real estate in Rear of 18 Somerset Street	. $3,500.00

THE LIBRARY.

The condition of the library has been improved in some important respects since the last Annual Meeting. At that time the work of refitting the upper hall for the use of the library was almost completed, and about three thousand volumes had been already placed upon its shelves. The new Librarian, Mr. Henry W. Cunningham, completed the removal. This hall now contains about twelve thousand volumes. These include a large proportion of the books that are most commonly called for. The new hall has proved very convenient and attractive.

The remainder of the library is in much the same condition which was stated in the reports presented one year ago. The books that were then stored on the first floor have been placed upon the shelves in the second story, but they have not been arranged or catalogued. The pamphlets of several years past are stored in a room on the first floor, without arrangement, and without a catalogue. The Council has, however, adopted a plan which it is expected will make it practicable to re-arrange these parts of our library, and catalogue them. The next year should suffice for bringing the whole mass of books and pamphlets into order, and making them available for the purposes of the library.

The COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY, the Rev. Henry A. Hazen, D.D., Chairman, reports:—

That the Committee has examined the book catalogues and publishers' announcements, with the purpose of selecting such books as were most important and germane to the objects of the Society. Committee has expended the sum of $345.85 in its purchases. work was under the special charge of Mr. Henry E. Woods until his resignation in the middle of the year. Since that time the duty has been performed by the Librarian, who is ex-officio a member of the Committee. The Committee has also cooperated with the Librarian in arranging for the preparation of a new and more complete catalogue of our books. The work was begun in October last. Mr. Charles A. Cutter, Librarian of the Boston Athenæum, has very courteously consented to give his personal attention to the work, and it is going on under his direction. The Committee are satisfied that we are likely to have a much better catalogue, in all respects, than we have ever before had, although the expense is likely to be considerable.

The Committee deem it fitting to say a very hearty word in recognition of the services of the late Librarian, Mr. Cunningham, who served the Society the first six months of the year. He gave much time to the work, and by his uniform courtesy, as well as by his efficient management, he placed the Society under special obligations, and he deserves our hearty thanks. Mr. Dean was elected to fill the vacancy, on the retirement of Mr. Cunningham, and he has discharged the duties of his office, in addition to his editorial work, with rare efficiency and wisdom.

The COMMITTEE ON PUBLICATION, of which Mr. Albert H. Hoyt is Chairman, reports:—

That progress is being made in printing the fifth volume of Memorial Biographies of deceased members of the Society. Also, that the number of the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register for January, 1893, has been printed and distributed. The Committee desires to call the special attention of the members of the Society to the importance of sustaining the Register by their personal subscriptions, and of promoting its circulation among those of their acquaintances who are interested in historical and genealogical research. The price of the Register ($3.00) per year barely covers the cost of printing, while the marketable value of the successive volumes increases year by year. Under the very able editorial direction of John Ward Dean, A.M., the Register has become an authority of the highest character in the departments to which it is specially devoted.

The COMMITTEE ON ENGLISH RESEARCH reports, through its Chairman, Mr. William S. Appleton:—

That the various instalments of Mr. Waters's Genealogical Gleanings in England have appeared regularly in the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register; but with each succeeding year the need of a permanent fund, the income of which shall be sufficient for carying on these researches in England, becomes more and more apparent. The Committee feel it their duty to again impress upon the minds of the members of the Society, and all others interested in the work, the fact that only in this way,—by the establishment of such a fund,—can the undertaking be placed on a permanent basis, and these investigations conducted in a manner worthy of their great importance. The pressing need of the Society to-day is a Research Fund.

Among the important events of the year, for our Society, has been the publication of the Rolls of Membership, which has been accepted by the Council as official. The preparation of this Roll reflects the highest credit upon the members of the Committee, who were engaged for more than three years upon it, and who have completed their work with so much care and accuracy; and also upon our Society. The Committee well deserve the special thanks of the Society.

On the completion of their work in May last, the Committee were discharged at their own request. The Council has since appointed Mr. George K. Clarke, who had served as Chairman of the Committee on the Rolls of Membership, to complete the work, which had been for some time in progress, of preparing and publishing an additional

List of Present Members. Mr. Clarke reports, that "before the type was distributed, the names of the present members were separated from the others, and proofs printed. This List was corrected to October 1, 1892, and electrotyped, by direction of a sub-committee of the Publishing Committee, to whom the subject had been referred." Mr. Clarke adds, that "the Rolls will be ready for publication as early as the middle of January. Some corrections of the plates are necessary, and it is proposed to perfect the list to the close of the year 1892."

The COMMITTEE TO ASSIST THE HISTORIOGRAPHER reports :-

That it has furnished during the last year eleven memorials of deceased members, which have been published in the REGISTER. Other necrologies are in progress.

The Committee on Memorial Biographies reports through Mr. John Ward Dean:—

That the Council has ascertained that the income of the Towne Memorial Fund is sufficient to pay the cost of a new volume, and has voted that the printing be done under charge of the Committee on Publications. The printing of the fifth volume has already commenced. The Committee repeat the statement made by them some years ago, that in the volumes already published, especially in the earlier memoirs, they experienced difficulty in finding persons having sufficient information to prepare even a brief sketch of the life of some of the deceased members, the lapse of time having removed those who might have assisted in recalling the necessary incidents and dates. For this reason, they have decided not to wait till the memoirs are needed for printing, but to solicit the preparation of them while the events and impressions are fresh in the memory of surviving relatives and acquaintances. In accordance with this decision the Committee has continued to collect memoirs, and materials for memoirs, and has already a large collection on hand.

The COMMITTEE ON THE CABINET reports through Mr. Herbert J. Harwood:

That it has held one meeting, but that there has been nothing requiring the attention of the Committee, and that no action has been taken. The COMMITTEE ON DONATIONS, by its Chairman, the Rev. William C. Winslow, D.D., LL.D., reports:—

That no meeting of the Committee has been held this year, partly because of the changes that have been going on in the library, and partly on account of the absence of some of the Committee.

The COMMITTEE ON HERALDRY reports through its Chairman, Mr. Henry E. Woods:—

That it has held two regular meetings during the past year; that from time to time it has answered many heraldic queries, some from remote States and from England; that it has given considerable information regarding the identity of Seals and paintings of Arms; and that it trusts it has proved itself of some value to the Society and to inquirers.

THE COMMITTEE ON PAPERS AND ESSAYS reports, through its Chairman, the Rev. David Greene Haskins, S.T.D., the following list of gentlemen who have read historical papers before the Society during the year 1892:—

- Feb. 3. WILLIAM W. BAILEY, LL.B., of Nashua, N. H., on "Matthew Thornton, one of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence."
- Mar. 3. WILLIAM GRAY BROOKS, LL.B., of Boston, on "The Battle of Religious Toleration; a Study of the Maryland Charter."
- April 6. Rt. Rev. Thomas M. Clark, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Rhode Island, on "William Wheelwright, the Benefactor of South America."
- May 4. Rev. Alonzo H. Quint, D.D., of Boston, on "The Capture of Fort William and Mary in 1774," read by Rev. William H. Cobb.
- Oct. 5. Mr. John Calvin Crane, of Millbury, Mass., on "Col. Thomas Gilbert, a Leader of the New-England Tories of 1776-80."
- Nov. 2. Prof. John Fiske, A.M., of Cambridge, Mass., on "Charles Lee, the Soldier of Fortune."
- Dec. 7. Rev. EZRA HOYT BYINGTON, D.D., of Newton, Mass., on "The Pilgrim and the Puritan in New-England History."

These reports include all the important Committees of the Council, and they give a condensed statement of the work that is going forward in connection with our Society. In the early part of the year the Council decided to dispense with some of their Committees, and the number has been still further reduced in the later months of the year.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

PRESENTED BY JOHN WARD DEAN, A.M.

THE Librarian would report that the library continues to be much used by members and others interested in the study of history—particularly local and family history. The accessions during the year have added much to the usefulness of the library. The incomes of the Sever, Russell and Kidder funds have been used to supply the wants of our readers, that have not been met by the liberal gifts of our friends.

The additions in 1892 are:

Besides these accessions, there have been thirty files of genealogical manuscripts purchased, and six manuscripts presented this year. Donations of one relic, two framed portraits, one medal, three coins, two drawings of arms, four bullets, one map, three charts, two photographs, and sixty-nine newspapers and newspaper cuttings of historical and biographical articles, have been received.

The relic named above is the thighbone, as is supposed, of Major Andrew McClary, who lost his life after the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775. This relic was exhibited by the late William H. Montague, Esq., at the first meeting for forming this Society, October 18, 1844, as is stated in the REGISTER for October, 1890, page 346, and has been presented to the Society by Mr. Montague's daughter, Mrs. Jennie Montague Morris of Philadelphia. The other relic exhibited at that meeting, the ball taken from the body of Gen. Joseph Warren, was presented to the Society by Mr. Montague during his life time. A framed portrait in crayon of Mr. John Merrill Bradbury, a benefactor to the Society from his widow, Mrs. Sarah A. Bradbury, is among the articles received. Many of the books and pamphlets presented are rare and valuable.

B. B. TORREY, Treasurer.

The undersigned hereby certify that they have examined the accounts of the Treasurer for the year 1892, and find his books to have been properly kept, and the several accounts properly stated.

The cash payments appear to have been made in accordance with warrants authorizing the several payments, and the cash balance has been verified. The Securities in the Treasurer's hands have been examined, and they correspond with his books and accounts.

AUSTIN J. COOLIDGE, Auditors.

BOSTON, 4 January, 1893.

At the meeting of the Society held on the first of February, 1893, the following votes were offered by the Hon. Newton Talbot, and passed:

Voted, That the Treasurer be authorized to amend his last annual report in relation to the funds of the Society, so far as to take from the Wilder Subscription Building-Fund the sum of $2,595.55, which sum is the profit on certain investments sold by the Society, belonging to other funds.

Voted, That there be established a fund to be known as the Donors' Free Fund, which shall consist of all separate donations of money to the Society of one hundred dollars and upwards, which have been used for the current expenses of the Society, and that a sum, equal to the aggregate of these donations, be transferred from the profit arising from the sale of said investments to make the principal of said fund.

Voted, That the remainder of said $2,595.55 be added pro rata to the principal of the several funds as they existed at the time said investments were sold.

Voted, That the Treasurer enter in his books the name and amount of each fund, separate and distinct; but, when not otherwise directed by the donor, the investments may be general and applicable to all the funds.

Voted, That the principal of the Wilder Subscription Building-Fund shall be the sum finally received from the sale of the Showalter bonds and mortgages, together with any part of said fund never invested, which has not been used for building purposes.

Voted, That the principal of the Wilder Subscription Building-Fund shall never be expended, except by a vote of the Society; and, so long as it remains unappropriated, it shall be treated as a fund and invested as are other funds of the Society, and the income used for any purpose not inconsistent with the terms of the donations.

Voted, That the foregoing votes be printed with the annual proceedings of the Society, in connection with the report of the Treasurer.

The Secretary offered the following vote in addition to the above, and it was passed:—

Voted, That all donations or bequests, at present on the Treasurer's books, of five hundred dollars or under, be added to the new fund, entitled the Donors' Free Fund, unless otherwise specifically devoted in the donation or bequest.

REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES OF THE KIDDER FUND.

BOSTON, DECEMBER 31, 1892.

This fund, consisting of twenty shares of the Cabot Manufacturing Company, of which the par value is one hundred dollars a share, was bequeathed by the late Mr. Frederick Kidder, of Melrose.
